THE WRONG TIME AND WRONG PLACE

Young Man Requested Not to Whistle on Brock St. Between 12 Midnight and 2 a.m.

Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir,— Kindly allow us space to tell the young man who has whistled along Brock Street between the hours of 12 p.m. and 2 a.m. almost nightly for months past, that all the residents of this street are willing to excuse him now and hereafter as an entertainer.

Whether his whistling is good or bad as a musical performance, we are not concerned to decide. His ambition to excel may be commendable, and his willingness to entertain, not in itself bad, perhaps; but his sense of time and place for rehearsal is certainly defective. In this case, we see it our duty, or necessity, to say quite plainly, we don't want to hear his or any whistling rehearsal at such a time of night. We want to sleep, and we trust the whistler will henceforth discontinue it—omit it—quit it—cut it out.

Very truly yours,
Some of the Afflicted Residents.

ROUND THE STORES

Sometimes she shops alone — this Lady—sometimes with a feminine friend, and occasionally she lets me go along; but always, it seems, she has a shopping adventure or two.

And how they vary! They're as full of queer twists and turns as the heart of woman itself. They are unpleasant and pleasant, commonplace and exciting, in turn. From contented laughs over successful shopping episodes she runs the gamut to stormy tears of indignation. One time her story makes me smile and think, "Good salesmanship, that!" Again I have to scowl and sympathise and say in vengeful bass: "Is that so? Well, I'll go down there to-morrow and tell that young fellow what we think of him."

Perhaps the telling of a few of these adventures may mean more than the mere setting down of sprightly conversation. Something tells me it will.

The first that comes to mind is that of the slippers. They were purchased last summer; the methods in vogue at the two shops entered were so extreme as to be amazing. It seems impossible that two up-to-date shoe stores, standing almost shoulder to shoulder, should show such a disparity in salesmanship.

Let the Lady tell about it:

"Well, I bought my slippers to-day," she said one evening, "and such a time! First I went to H's. Well! I'll tell you one thing: I'll never go there again.

"What do you think the woman said to me. It was early in the morning, you understand, and she wasn't a bit busy. I thought I'd surely get the best of attention. I told her exactly what I wanted. Yes, she had them. She went away for a moment and came back with a rather good looking slipper, but the moment she tried it on I knew it was too big. I told her so—and I wish you could have seen the look she gave me. 'Too big?' she said, 'My dear young lady, I wouldn't sell you a smaller shoe.'

"I simply couldn't resist saying, 'Very well, don't bother; you couldn't sell me anything now.'

"Then I went over to S's. They were busier than the other place, but I didn't have to wait long. A nice, middle-aged woman waited on me, and as soon as I told her what I wanted she showed signs of being interested. 'Why certainly,' she said, 'I think I have exactly what you want.' She was back in a moment. And—and—I suppose the price was a dollar more than I should have spent—but it was a beauty.

"But listen, here's the point. I asked her if she thought I could wear a shoe like that—it was rather extreme. 'Extreme?' she said. 'Why, you could wear any shoe in our store.'"

What a difference just a few words make?

Flattery? Well, maybe. But it did more good than the other woman's talk. The Lady bought that pair of shoes, you may be sure—even though they did cost a dollar more than she wanted to pay. As for the virtue of S.'s shoes—all you have to do is mention the word, and the Lady breaks in to the talk with something like this: "Personally, I like D's. I had more satisfaction in buying this last pair there than"—and so on.—System.

WHEN BLOOD IS BOILED.

The blood must be filtered, otherwise your are poisoned. If the kidneys fail the liver is overworked, and poisons results. By using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you get both these filtering organs working right, and also secure healthful action of the bowels. For this reason these pills are an ideal family medicine. They cure constipation, biliousness, indigestion and kidney disease.

DEVIL'S FOOD.
Many a housewife has wanted a really good and economical recipe for this delicious cake with the alarming title. The following is a well tried recipe. See if you don't think it a good one: Cream 1 cup sugar and a scant ½ cup of butter with 1 cup of sour milk. Beat an egg into the mixture. Then add the following ingredients which have been well sifted together: 1¾ cups flour, ½ teaspoonful salt, 1 scant teaspoonful soda and 3 dessertspoons Fry's Cocoa. Bake in a moderate oven for 35 or 40 minutes.

It's thinness is in the movement

Come in and let us show you how a new, mechanically correct improvement of Ultrathin model (the size of the ordinary pocket watch) can be had.

Then you will understand how this watch can "fit your pocket like a thin dime," yet withstand the hardest wear and all possible shocks.

Then you will know how different this gentleman thin model is from the ordinary "thin model" you've seen.

Before you buy any watch, be sure to see the Ultrathin model. Then you'll know what real watch-thinness means.

Lt.-Col. Preston in the City

Officer Commanding the 39th Battalion in Peterborough To-day

Lt.-Col. Preston, officer commanding the 39th Battalion of the 3rd Canadian overseas contingent, arrived at noon to-day to inspect the 57th detachment, which will be attached to the Battalion. Lt.-Col. Preston is on a tour of the different units of the 39th, starting in at Port Hope yesterday. Some sixty-five members were on parade to-day, with Capt. Spencer, who arrived yesterday from Millbrook, in charge.

The Mounted Rifles had their usual drill this morning in charge of Sergt. Biggs. On orders from Kingston the officers will have charge this afternoon. Major S. T. Medd and Lieuts. Sneath, Rogers and Johnston are on duty. Recruits are being taken on every day. This morning several arrived from Bowmanville.

The second stage of the innoculation for typhoid will commence on Thursday, the 21st.

The men of the Mounted Rifles are eagerly awaiting their first pay. The money is expected to arrive to-morrow, as the pay sheets have been sent to Kingston.

Bail Fixed At $90,000

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Jan. 19. —If they can raise bail for ninety thousands dollars in all, the four men charged with manslaughter in the now famous international case of shooting the Buffalo duck hunters, will be allowed their freedom pending trial. This was ordered to-day by Mr. Justice Middleton. Provincial Police Constable Delaney must find outside bonds of fifteen thousand dollars, and Corporal Kayo, Privates Leslie Kinsman and Sammund McIntosh ten thousand dollars each, as well as their own personal recognizance for that amount in each case.

LINES BY A SOLDIER BOY

"How Wilt Thou Wash Thy Hands?"

By S. L. Strong.

E'er the first cannon thundered,
Thy soul was steeped in crime,
Before our slain was numbered—
(While nations still marked time.)
Coward, thy brain was scheming
For others' homes and lands;
When sated is thy dreaming,
How wilt thou wash thy hands?

The noblest blood of nations
Is spilt, because of thee;
Thy damning aspirations
Are death to liberty;
Tho' thousands fall before thee,
Millions against thee stand.
When thy defeat comes o'er thee—
How wilt thou wash thy hands?

Thy final annihilation
Seems sure as God's White Throne,
The general consummation
God knows, and God alone.
End how it will—thou tractor,
As thou has broken bands
Of unity asunder,
Thou canst not wash thy hands.

Blood drips from every finger,
Blood marks thy path through life,
Blood on thy skirts shall linger,
Blood of the Child and Wife.
Blood of the aged and helpless—
Slaughtered at thy commands,
'Twill cling to thee forever—
Thou canst not wash thy hands.

OBITUARY

JOHN DeLAHAYE MACDONELL.
John De Lahaye Macdonell, brother of the late Mrs. Judge Hayes, and eldest son of the late Angus B. Macdonell of Toronto, died yesterday in St. Joseph's Hspital, Guelph. Mr. Macdonell, who was engaged in the building trade, was 55 years of age. The funeral will take place to-morrow morning from his mother's residence, 419 Dundas street, to St. Helen's Church, where Mass will be celebrated at 9.30 o'clock.

MABEL A. ROSBOROUGH.
Mabel Alice Rosborough, the four-months' old baby of Mr and Mrs. Hall Rosborough, Sudbury, passed away Saturday evening last, after four days' sickness, from bronchitis. The remains were brought to Peterborough for burial in Lakefield Cemetary. Mr. and Mrs. Rosborough have the sympathy of their many friends in Peterborough in their bereavement.

MR. JOSEPH McLAURIN.
Mr. Joseph McLaurin passed away about 10 o'clock this morning at the age of 67 years. He had been ill for some time, and the end was not unexpected.

The late Mr. McLaurin was born in Cavan Township, but has spent most of his life in South Monaghan. About four years ago he removed to Peterborough with his family, settling on Romaine street.

The funeral will take place on Thursday afternoon from the family residence, 288 Romaine street, at 2 o'clock, interment to take place in Little Lake cemetery.

Appeal Case Was Adjourned

The appeal in the Blastorah case was adjourned yesterday to some time to be set by Judge Huycke, Crown Attorney Hatton not being ready to go on with the case.

Messrs. Gordon and Widdifield, on behalf of Frederick Blastorah, proprietor of the Palace Hotel, are appealing against the conviction by Magistrate Dumble of a few days ago, in which Mr. Blastorah was fined $10.00 and costs, on a charge of allowing a blackister, under the influence of liquor, to loiter in or about his barroom, on Dec. 25. It is probable the witnesses in the case will all have to be heard again.

Removing Snow

Quite a number of men were given employment to-day by the Board of Works Department, removing the snow from the City's streets. The snow was first cleaned off the crossings, after which it was removed from the main thoroughfares and dumped into the river. City Engineer Parsons who has been indisposed for several days, returned to the office this afternoon. He was not in a position to estimate the number of men that would be employed on the work, which was being looked after by Street Comissioner Evans.

Last night's fall of snow added considerable impetus to business. A number of farmers drove into the City with supplies of produce, including a few loads of hay and wood. Local traffic was also improved as a result of the improved sleighing.

ODDFELLOWS WHO VISITED LAKEFIELD

The District committee of the I.O.O.F., in charge of D.D.G.M. Thos. Sills drove to Lakefield last night, where they installed the officers of Lakefield lodge. The visitors were afterwards entertained by the Lakefield brethren at Alfred's restaurant.

The Peterborough party was composed of W. Savigny, George Gillespie, Geo. Evans, I. Goodfellow, W. McLaren, J. Vallory, B. Watt.

Municipal Bonds.

The city of Regina has accepted the Bank of Montreal's offer to negotiate treasury bonds to the extent of $1,750,000, at a very favourable price. The offer of the bank was made to the city council on the first day of the year but could not be accepted until the new council had organized. The finance committee has now gone into the matter thoroughly and has recommended the acceptance of the offer.

Tried To Bribe A Dutch Paper

A despatch from Amsterdam published in London states that the German Roman Catholic newspaper, the Tyd, strongly protests against the statement of another Roman Catholic organ, Kolnische Volkszeitung, that the Tyd is in the service of Germany's enemies and that it is being supported by French and English money. The Tyd denies this, and states, on the contrary, that at the beginning of the war a proposal was made from the German side that it should publish German reports and that it should be paid for doing so. Such a proposal has never been made from the French or Belgian side, neither to the editor, nor as far as the Tyd knows, to any of its correspondents. It points out that the Kolnische Volkszeitung is furious against its correspondent because he published an account of the ill-treatment of the British prisoners at Landen.

The statement of the Tyd is of importance, as it is the first time that a Dutch paper has made it known that the Germans have offered money to it to publish "true" German war news. There is no reason to suppose that such proposals have not been made to other Dutch papers. Fortunately, I can state that the Dutch press is independent enough, and will be so in future, to be able to resist any effort of that kind.

SITUATION CONSIDERED SATISFACTORY

ITALIAN BOAT SUNK

SPECIAL CABLE:

PETROGRAD, Jan. 20 — Although the Russian and German forces are in the closest touch all along the right bank of the Vistula and along the railway line from the Warsaw front to Mlawa, there have been only insignificant combats since January 17th. The heavy artillery duel seems to have shifted to the Konopa front, where the Germans have made a desperate effort to blow up the Russian trenches. In this, however, they have failed, the War Office says, and the Russian guns have been so well served that they have demolished one German battery; the Russian positions on the Radsanowo-Bezhun-Dobrzhyn front was attacked in force by the Germans on the 17th of January, but the lines held good, and the Germans were repulsed with a very heavy loss. In general the Government considers the situation satisfactory.

Amsterdam, Jan. 20—Two of the Allies' airmen flew over Cologne, yesterday, but did no damage.

Berlin, Jan. 20 — Lieut. General Freiherr Von Ompteda has been killed in action leading a brigade on the western battle front.

Rome, Jan. 20—An Italian freighter "Varesesw" was blown up and sunk off a Pola-Austrian naval base, in the Adriatic. The freighter struck an Austrian mine, and went down with all on board. The Italian Government has made a strong protest to Austria.

Are The Canadians Now In France?

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Practically all the Canadian soldiers are now upon the continent, or on their way to France. Following the removal of the Princess Patricia's Light Infantry to the battle-front, the work of transporting the other Canadian units to France was hurried to meet new and violent German attacks.

Returns From Seat of War

Wounded Reservist Who Was in Big Battles Back in Toronto Again

TORONTO, Jan. 20 — Invalided home after being wounded three times in the battle of Dixmude Private Sam Nurse of 17 McCaul street, a British reservist, arrived in Toronto yesterday. During the engagement in Belgium he was shot through the lung by a German Mauser bullet and wounded in the hip and lower leg by shrapnel.

Private Nurse was also in the battles of the Aisne and Mons, where he witnessed the British retreat, which, conducted by General Smith-Dorrien, is acknowledged to be one of the most brilliant feats performed by the British Army during the war. "When we retreated we were not licked," said Private Nurse. "We didn't get reinforcements, and were outnumbered. [illegible] back. The German cavalry pursued us so fast that when men fell out they were captured. Von Kluk thought that he had us going, but Smith-Dorrien fooled him. If it had not been for the genius of Smith-Dorrien the first expeditionary force would have been wiped out."

The fact that the German sharpshooters made a practice of shooting the Royal Army Medical Corps while they were assisting the wounded was claimed by Private Nurse. "I was with this branch of the service," he said, "and I lost all my mates at the Battle of the Aisne. The Germans shot every man who went out to pick up the wounded, and it got so bad that we were forced to work entirely at night."

Private Nurse has been honourably discharged from the Army as no longer physically fit for active service. He was formerly employed as a waiter in the Woodbine Hotel.

Six Killed And Twenty Injured In German Zeppelin Raid

Swooped Down Upon the East Coast and Bombarded Nearly a Dozen Cities Within One Hundred Miles of London---All Raiding Airships Believed to Have Escaped

SPECIAL CABLE:

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Bulletin—So far as ascertained at daylight this morning six persons in all were killed and twenty injured in the raid of the German Zeppelin or aeroplanes over Yarmouth, Sandringham and Kings Lynn, last night. There is no official confirmation that any of the raiders were brought down.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—"The Zeppelin chill" froze timid hearts in London to-day. The city stood aghast at the news that the fleet of German aircraft, presumably Zeppelins, swooped down on the east coast during the night, bombarded nearly a dozen cities within scarcely one hundred miles of London, and actually threatened the capital itself.

All raiding airships are believed to have escaped.

Despatches from Hunstanton, near the raided area to-day deny the report that a Zeppelin was brought down there by the fire of warships off the coast. On the contrary, it is stated an airship was sighted drifting leisurely seaward early to-day, apparently returning to the German aircraft base at Cuxhaven.

Unofficial reports from Amsterdam brought word that three airships, flying eastward, were sighted off the coast of Holland early to-day. They are believed to have been returning from an attack.

In the absence of official reports to-day, the number of persons killed in the night attack by German airships is variously placed at from four to nine. Reports concerning the number of aircraft engaged, range from three to six, with the latter figure generally accepted.

Because the raid was executed in the darkness reports are most conflicting. Two persons are known to have been killed at Kings Lynn. Mrs. Dasely, a widow, was killed while paying a visit to a neighbour. Her body was recovered from the debris this morning when her relatives started a search. A seventeen-year-old boy, named Coat, was killed in bed when the bomb dropped through the roof of his home. Thre others were hurt in the same house.

Other despatches from Kings Lynn place the number of dead there at four, but give no additional information. Yarmouth correspondents also report four dead. The air raiders did not visit London. After throwing terror into the hearts of the residents of the east coast towns, the fleet apparently turned eastward shortly after midnight and sped back across the North Sea.

NOT ZEPPELINS.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—(Special Cable.)—At this hour there is considerable doubt that the German aircraft which raided England last night were Zeppelins, after all. No official report has so far been issued by the War Office. The police at Yarmouth assert positively that the outlines of the attacking craft were clearly visible there, and they were all aeroplanes or hydroplanes. It seems reasonable to suppose that if they had been Zeppelins, far more damage to life and property would have been done at all points owing to their greater carrying capacity for crew and ammunition. On the other hand scores of the residents of Cromer are sure that they saw Zeppelins. In the opinion of many experts here it has yet to be demonstrated that the Zeppelins can safely attack Britain.

LONDON, Wednesday, Jan. 20.— German aircraft made their long threatened raid on England last night and attempted to blow up with bombs the King's royal residence in Sandringham, County Norfolk.

This intention was ill-timed, for King George and Queen Mary with their family, who had been staying at Sandringham, has returned to London yesterday morning to resume their residence in Buckingham Palace. It is still not definitely known whether the raiders were Zeppelins or aeroplanes, but Zeppelins were reported yesterday afternoon as passing over the North Sea in a westerly direction and most of those reporting that sweep by line to the belief that these were the raiders.

The night was quite calm, [illegible] dark and cloudy, which [illegible] possible for the people in the towns over which they passed to distinguish even the outlines of the raiders, though the whirr of their propellers and the droning of their motors could be distinctly heard.

A Zeppelin is reported to have been brought down by the fire of a warship at Hunstanton, a few miles north of Sandringham.

Bombs were dropped in Yarmouth, King's Lynn, Sandringham, Cromer Sherringham and Beeston, and everywhere except at Beeston casualties and damage to property resulted.

The Towns Visited.

The towns of Yarmouth, Sandringham, King's Lynn, Cromer, Beeston, Sherringham and Hunstanton are all situated in the County of Norfolk which abuts the North Sea about 100 miles north-east of London.

Yarmouth, known as Great Yarmouth, and Cromer are favourite water resorts. King's Lynn is a seaport and market town. It contains shipbuilding yards, iron foundries, machine factories, oil mills and other industries.

The aircraft which made the attack were evidently the same three reported as having passed over the Island of Ameland, off the north coast of Holland, in a westerly direction at 2.30 Tuesday afternoon. They probably started from the vicinity of Cuxhaven and would have had to fly about 130 miles across the North Sea to reach England.

Few Casualties.

KEPT UP BEST TRADITIONS OF THE ARMY

Princess Patricias Praised in Gen. Snow's Special Order—Were in Only One Engagement

COURAGEOUS MEN

SPECIAL CABLE:

LONDON, Jan. 20—General Snow has sent special orders to Col. Farquhar congratulating the Princess Patricia Regiment on the splendid way they took over the trenches from the French troops and maintained them under heavy artillery fire "thus keeping up the best traditions of the army." The Patricias were the first regiment, in the new division sent from Winchester, to take over trenches from the seasoned troops, they being one of three battalions selected. The Patricias were not in action in December, declared Captain Cuthbert Fairbanks Smith to-day, while the London newspaper story about the Patricias' charge with the rallying cry, "For Canada and Old England," though graphic, was not a fact. The regiment went into the trenches on the night of Wednesday, January 6th, but some days previous thereto Major Hamilton Gault and Captain Smith had been selected to enter the trenches. No other members of the regiment accompanied them. This being before the end of December, they will be the only two officers of Canadian troops entitled to wear the 1914 clasp. In this preliminary test Captain Smith had a narrow escape, as a bullet whistled between him and an English sergeant as their heads were close together in conversation. To reach the trenches Major Gault and Captain Smith had to cross 200 yards of ground over which a steady fire was proceeding.

The Losses.

The entire regiment, as stated, went into the trenches on January 8th. Of their behaviour under fire Captain Smith, who was in command of No. 4 Company, said: "Never in my life have I seen men act so courageously. Regardless of bullets and shrapnel, the discipline was splendid."

Captain Newton was shot in the middle of the body just as he was leaving the trenches in the evening, and he died the next morning, after being conscious during most of the interval. He was buried in a village cemetery in Belgium. Captain Smith was formerly a fellow-officer with Captain Newton in the 13th Middlesex Regiment.

Captain Smith himself was wounded after a perilous attempt to reach a German trench, which he accomplished, but he fell in, breaking his leg badly. An operation was declared necessary, but the condition of his nervous system has rendered him unable to endure the operation as yet.

No. 4 Company of which Captain Smith was in command, is composed of Westerners from the Calgary district.

DEATH'S AWFUL SWEEP.

(By F. A. Conners.)

A half a million souls each day,
Death brings to early graves,
By gun and knife and alcohol,
Earthquake and tidal waves.

Hot lava bursting from the hills,
Explosions in the mines,
Auto smash-ups on the roads,
And train wrecks on the lines.

Fire, too, its victims claim,
A thousand in a day,
Rivers, lakes, and ocean waves,
Make men their constant prey.

Lightning flashing east and west,
Hailstone, snow and rain,
Cyclones in their fury sweep,
Buildings, stock and grain.

War is raging everywhere,
On land and on the sea,
Cannon roar and bugle call,
Make dreadful melody.

From whence Lord, have these evils come?
Or where did they begin?
We trace them to the fall of man,
They are the fruits of sin.

And where will these evils cease?
Or when shall we be free?
Not till we pass the veil of death,
And [illegible] in peace with Thee.

Helped To Bottle Up Konigsberg

South Shields Men Have Reached England After Their Experience

South Shields men, members of the crew of the steamer "Newbridge" which played an important part in the "bottling up" of the commerce raider Konigsberg in the Rufigi River, German East Africa, had interesting experiences to relate when they reached England a few days ago. When the Konigsberg was located by the British squadron shells were rained upon her. The Newbridge was utilized to block the entrance to the river, and the Shields men were ordered ashore, the Newbridge being manned by naval men. The vessel, which had coal aboard, was sunk by three charges of gun cotton placed in the hold. Two other vessels were sunk besides the Newbridge, blocking the navigable channel and imprisoning the Konigsberg.

While the naval men were returning to their ship the Konigsberg crew opened fire upon them, and the coxswain of a steam launch was struck by a Dum-dum bullet, passing right through his body, killing him instantly. Another coxswain was killed by a bullet piercing his temple.

A SURE WAY TO END DANDRUFF

Stop Falling Hair and Itching Scalp—At Once.

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this just get about four ounces of plain common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need) apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be done, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve, and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and diggins of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you value your hair, you should get rid of dandruff at once, for nothing destroys the hair so quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless and everybody notices it.

The government of India will extend its wireless system until every army post has a station in charge of a trained officer.

"THE BATTLE CRY"

Charles Neville Buck

The girl laid the letter down with a sense of disappointment and chagrin. She had been accustomed to having men come to her when she summoned them, and come willingly. For a time she was deeply apprehensive, too, lest the effort which had failed at first might be more successfully repeated, but that week brought the long-delayed rains. They stripped the hills of glory and left them grey and stark and dripping. The horizon reeked with raw fogs and utter desolation settled on the mountains.

Trickling streams were torrents again and the danger of fires was over. Old Milt McBriar heard of his son's part in the watching of the school, and brooded blackly as he gnawed at the steam of his pipe, but he said nothing. The boy had been sent away to college and had been given every advantage. Now he had unwittingly, but none the less surely, turned his rifle on one of his father's hirelings bent on his father's work, for the oil-soaked kindling had been laid at Old Milt's command. The thing did not tend to make the leader of the McBriars partial to the innovations from Down-below.

One day when Juanita went down to the post office which nestled unobtrusively behind the single counter of the shack store at the gap, she found a letter directed in a hand which set her heart beating and revived many old memories.

The sun had come out after those first rains and a little of the Indian summer languor still slept along the skyline, but the woods were for the most part bare and the air was piercing. In a formless mass of wet mould, that no longer rattled crisply underfoot, lay all the leaves that had a few days ago been stitches in the tapestried and embroidered mantle of the hills; all except a few tenaciously clinging survivors and the russet of the scrub oaks. The pines that had been sober greens through the season of flaming colour were still sober greens when all else had turned to cinnamon and slate. But in spite of the cold Juanita wished to carry that letter up to the crest and read it there under the poplar tree. As she climbed she heard the whistle of the quail off in a cornfield and two or three rabbits jumped up and loped into the cover, flaunting their cotton tails. So she tore the end from her envelope and began to read the letter, from the man she had sent away. He said that he had made a sincere effort to reconcile himself to her decision; the decision which exiled him. The effort had failed. He had been to the Mediterranean and the East.

"Do you remember the terrace at Shepherd's when you and I sat together?" he asked, and the girl who knew him so well could fancy the lonely longing in his face as he had written it.

"Can you close your dear eyes and see again the motors purring by and the donkeys and camels and street fakirs with cobras in flat baskets and apes on chains? Can you hear the laughter of the tea-drinkers under the awnings and the Fellaheen chatter and Viennese orchestras contending with the tom-toms of returning pilgrims? Dearest, can you see the blue triangles of shadow that the pyramids throw down in the moonlight on the yellow sands of the desert? The desert has no loneliness greater than mine." She let the letter drop for a moment. Loneliness? Suddenly she felt that she herself was the loneliest person in the universe. Then she read again.

"Can you see the Jaffa Gate and the Tower of David in Jerusalem? I have been there — alone this time. Do you remember how you were touched by the fanatical devotion that lighted the heavy faces of the Russian peasants who had journeyed so far in their pilgrimages to the shrines of the Holy City? Can you see them again in their sheepskin jackets and felt boots and ragged beards creeping on hands and knees through the temple of the Sepulchre and kissing the stones?

"I, too, was a pilgrim seeking peace, but I did not find it. Can you not find it in your heart to be touched by my devotion? Not only happiness, but peace dwells where you are, and I am coming to you.

"Do not forbid me, for I am coming anyway. I am coming because I must; because I love you."

Yes, she remembered all the things of which he spoke—and many others. All the old life which she had renounced rose before her, slugging her senses with homesickness. Around her lay the escarpments of the isolated hills which would soon sink down to the sodden wretchedness of a shut-in winter.

She could see ahead, at that moment, only failure, and hear only the echoes of many warnings. Yet here she must stay because she had cast her lot among the sons and daughters of Martha, who ". . . do not preach that their God will rouse them a little before the nuts work loose;

They do not preach that His Pity allows them to leave their work whenever they choose,
As in the thronged and the lighted ways so in the dark and the desert they stand,
Wary and watchful all their days, that their brethren's days may be long in the land. . . ."

She sat for a long time gazing off at the distances, and shivered a little in the bite of the raw air. Then she looked up and saw a figure at her side. It was Bad Anse Havey.

He bowed and stripped off his coat which, without asking permission, he threw around her shivering shoulders. "I didn't aim to intrude on ye," he said slowly. "I didn't know ye was up here. Do ye come often?"

"Very often," she answered, folding the letter and putting it back in its envelope. "When I first came to the Widow Everson's I discovered this tree and it seemed to beckon to me to come up. Look!" She rose and pointed off with a gauntleted hand. "I can stand here and see the fortifications of my two enemies. This is your place and there is Milt McBriar's." She smiled with unconscious archness. "But I'm not going to let you be my enemy any more. I've decided that you have got to be my friend, whether you want to be or not—and what I decide upon, must be."

Bad Anse Havey stood looking into her eyes with the disconcerting steadiness of gaze thats he always found it difficult to sustain, but his only response was a sober, "I'm obleeged to ye."

Perhaps that letter with its old reminders had brought back a little of the old self and the old self's innocent coquetry. She stood with her gauntleted hands in the deep pockets of her sweater jacket, and his coat hanging from her shoulders. About her deep violet eyes and sensitive lips lurked a subtle appeal for friendship—perhaps, though she did not know it, for love.

"I have behaved abominably to you, Mr. Havey," she confessed.

"It's natural that you should refuse me forgiveness." For a moment her eyes danced and she looked up challengingly, into his face. "But it's natural, too, that I should refuse to let you refuse. We are going to be friends. I am going to smash your old feud to splinters and I'm going to beat you, and just the same we are going to be friends." Again his reply was brief.

"I'm obleeged to ye."

Against the girl who had scorned him and denounced him, Anse Havey's wounded pride had reared a fortress of reserve, and yet already he felt its walls tumbling. The smile in her eyes was carrying it by assault. It had no defence against the sweetness of her voice. He had for the most part known only the women who live to work and raise large families; who servilely obey the lordly sex and soon wither. He had in him much of the woman-hater, and he did not realize that it was because he had never before known a woman who was at once as brave and intelligent as himself and as exquisite in charm as the wildflowers on his hillsides. This girl who smiled at him was not the same woman he had resolved to hate, whose friend he had declined to be. She was a new and fragrant being in whose presence he suddenly felt himself, unspeakably crude.

"You have been very good to me," she went on, and the note of banter left her voice, "and you refused to let me thank you."

For a moment he was silent, then he said awkwardly, "I reckon it's pretty easy to be good to you." After that she heard him saying in a very soft voice:

". . . One of the first things I remembers is being fotched up here by my mammy when I was a spindlin' little chap. She used to bring me up here and tell me Indian stories. Sometimes my pappy came with us, but mostly it was just my mammy an' me."

"Your father was a soldier, wasn't he?" she asked.

"Yes. He was a captain in Morgan's command. When the war ended he come on back here an' relapsed. I reckon I'd oughter be right-smart ashamed of that, but somehow I'm tol'able proud of it. He 'lowed that what was good enough for his folks was good enough for him—" He broke off suddenly and a smile came to his face; a remarkably naive and winning smile, the girl thought. Striking an attitude, he added, in a tone of mock seriousness, and perfect lowland English, marred by no trace of dialect: "I beg your pardon, Miss Holland. I mean that what was sufficiently good for his environment appeared adequate to him."

The girl's laughter pealed out in the cool air and she said with an after-note of surprise, "Why, Mr. Havey, you didn't speak like a mountain man then. I thought I was listening to a 'furriner.'"

He nodded his head and the smile died from his lips. Into his eyes came the look of steady resolve which was willing to fight for an idea.

"I just did that to show ye that I could. If I wanted to I reckon I could talk as good English as you. I reckon ye won't hardly hear me do it no more."

"But why?" she inquired in perplexity.

"I reckon it sounds kinder rough an' ignorant to ye; this mountain speech. Well, to me it's music. It's the language of my own people an' my own hills. I loves it. It don't make no diff'rance to me that it's bad grammar. Birds don't sing so sweet when ye teaches 'em new tunes. To my ears the talk of Down-below is hard an' unnatural. I don't like the ways nor the speech of the flat countries. An' as for me, I'll have none of it. Besides, I belongs here an' if I didn't talk like they do, my people wouldn't trust me." He paused a moment, then added, "I'd hate to have my people not trust me. So if ye don't mind, I reckon I'll go on talkin' as I learnt to talk."

She nodded her head. "I see," she said quietly.

"What do ye aim to call this school?" asked the man suddenly.

"Why, I thought I'd call it Holland School," she answered; and when he shook his head and said peremptorily, "Don't do it," she coloured.

"I din't mean to name it for myself, of course," she explained. "I wanted to call it after my grandfather. He always wanted to do something for education here in the Kentucky hills."

"I didn't mean to find fault with the name of Holland," he assured her gravely. "That's as good a name as any. But don't call it a school. Call it a college."

"But," she demurred, "it's not going to be a college. It's just a school."

Again the boyish smile came to his face and seemed to erase ten years from his seeming of age. His manner of speech made her feel that they were sharing a secret.

"That don't make any difference," he announced. "Mountain folks are almighty proud an' touchy. I shouldn't be astonished if some grey-haired folks came to study the primer. They'll come to college, all right, but it wouldn't hardly be dignified to go to school. If you want to get 'em ye must needs call it a college."

The girl looked at him again and said in a soft voice: "You are always teaching me things I ought to know. Thank you."

Suffered Intense Pain in Her Back.

Could Hardly Do Her Housework.

If a pain attacks you in the back "stop and think" what it is and what causes it.

If the kidneys are at fault—and in a large majority of cases of pain in the back they are—doctor them at once, and doctor them persistently, as it is impossible to have a well strong back unless the kidneys perform their functions properly.

Mrs. H. F. Jacob, Lavant Station, Ont., writes: "I take pleasure in telling you how much good your medicine has done me. I had suffered from intense pains in my back, and was so bad I could hardly do my housework. My kidneys were also bothering me a great deal. I tried several kinds of patent medicines, and was almost discouraged, and was looking for some other kind of medicine to try when I noticed your advertisement of Doan's Kidney Pills, so I thought it could not hurt to try them. I noticed a great difference when I had used one box, and to my great relief when I had used three boxes I was entirely cured, and I have not been bothered since. I will not hesitate to recommend them to all I know."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c a box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

MORE STRENGTH FOR OLD PEOPLE

Mrs. Hutchison—Eighty-One Years Old—Uses No Other Tonic but Vinol and Recommends it to Friends.

Greenville, S.C.—"It is with pleasure I tell others of the great benefit I have derived from Vinol, for the past several years. I am 81 years old and I find Vinol gives me strength, a healthy appetite and overcomes nervous disorders. Vinol is the only tonic reconstructor I have used for several years. I have recommended it to a great many of my friends and it has always proved satisfactory."—Mrs. M. A. HUTCHISON, Greenville, S. C.

Such cases as the above are constantly coming to our attention. If people in this vicinity only realized how Vinol invigorates old people we would not be able to supply the demand.

It is the tissue building, curative elements of the cod's livers, aided by the blood making strengthening properties of tonic iron contained in Vinol, that makes it so successful in building up strength for old people, delicate children and for all run-down conditions. Vinol is also a most successful remedy for chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis. If it fails to benefit any one who tries it we return your money.

Nervousness, Dizzy Spells and Sleeplessness Are Now a Thing of the Past.

MRS. PEACOCK.

This is a cheerful letter from Mrs. Peacock, and it should bring joy to the heart of many a reader of this paper. Dizzy spells and sleeplessness are symptoms of exhausted nerves, and are the bugbear of many women, who do not know just what treatment to use.

You can read Mrs. Peacock's letter and take courage, for she has proven that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is a complete cure for these troubles. So pleased was she with the results obtained that she wants other women to know about this food cure.

Mrs. Thomas Peacock, 23 Hiawatha street, St. Thomas, Ont., and whose husband is conductor on the Wabash Railway, states:—"I was quite run down in health, was very nervous, did not sleep well, and had frequent dizzy spells. Believing this to be the result of an exhausted nervous system I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and can say that this medicine did me a world of good. It entirely freed me of the symptoms stated above, built up my health generally, so that to-day I feel that I am quite well again."

In a more recent letter Mrs. Peacock writes:—"Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has done me a world of good, and I would be pleased to tell everybody so."

In nearly every issue of this paper you will find letters about Dr. Chase's medicines. If this one does not describe your case watch for others or write to us. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

DIRECTORS' MEETING HELD IN A TRENCH

LONDON, Jan. 18.—Here is a curious side issue of this strange war. A company meeting has been held in the trenches. All the directors of Vacher & Sons, Limited, the Parliamentary printers, are at the front, and the auditors, Messrs. A. C. Roberts, Wright & Co., have just received the following minute, signed by Captain Stanley Low, chairman of the company, and Captain Geoffrey Cox, director.

'A meeting of the directors of Bacher & Sons, Limited, was held in a 'dug-out' in the trenches on 24th December, 1914. Present, Captain Stanley Low, Captain Geoffrey Cox. The directors present were unable to deal with the minutes of the last meeting, owing to the absence of the minute book. The accounts were considered and approved subject to confirmation at the general meeting of the company. The directors present regretted the absence of their colleague, Captain Claude Low, whose whereabouts at the front are unknown to them. There being no other business to transact, the meeting closed with a hearty vote of thanks to the chairman."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

MR. WATSON'S LITTLE VACATION

By Hilda Richmond

"ANNA, I see no way out of the difficulty but for you to drive over to Sheldon and look after that tax business," said John Watson turning from a prolonged scrutiny of his swollen face in the kitchen mirror. "I can't go out with this confounded rag on my face and I can't go without it in this keen wind."

"But I had planned to peel the apples for the last apple butter," objected Mrs. Watson, "and to do the mending and wash out the baby's flannels. I was going to have a pick up dinner and get a lot of work turned off because the day is bright and sunny."

"As far as that's concerned," said Mr. Watson loftily, "you don't need to worry. If I can't wash out a few flannel petticoats and peel a peck of apples I'll give up entirely. You only want to make four or five gallons of apple butter, I heard you say. Women magnify their little tasks until they look like mountains. I'll do the apples and call this my vacation. All that worries me is that you can't adjust the taxes and this is the day for the Commission to hold its last session. Now do be careful, Anna."

Mrs. Watson dressed and kissed the children good-bye during a perfect stream of what to do and what not to do from her husband's lips. The two older children she took with her to deposit at the school house and the baby, a little girl of two and a half, was to keep Mr. Watson company. The day before Mr. Watson had had a painful, but not serious, accident with some farm machinery, and while he was well and able to do a day's work the doctor warned him not to go out in the wind without the bandage on his bruised and swollen face.

"First, the flannels," said Mr. Watson briskly as the buggy rolled away. "There goes the telephone the first thing. I think Anna and the neighbor ladies have the habit of visiting a little too much over the telephone, and that is what makes them complain of always being behind. "Hello!" he called. "O, you, Smith? Yes, this is Watson. What's that? Say, excuse me a minute! The baby is pulling the cat's tail and I can't hear. I'm chief cook and bottle washer to-day. The Mrs. has gone over to the country seat to look after some business. Yes, I'll be home all day. Run in and we'll talk about the deal."

Mr. Watson put the receiver in place and shut the crying baby into the little pen Mrs. Watson used for her when she had to leave the room. He hastily tossed the child a few play things and then hurried to the kitchen to begin on the flannels. "If Smith is coming over I'll have to hurry," he said. "Gee! The fire's dead out. And such wood! If I get over this trouble I'll attend to the wood." He hastily cast a glance at the weeping child and hurried to the wood house. There gnarled and rotten wooden limbs confronted him in a most uncompromising array. "I declare I forgot all about bringing home that coal,' he said aloud. "Anna spoke of it several times, but I've been so busy."

Back again into the house with enough wood to last about half an hour he filled the reservoir to the brim with rain water before remembering that it leaked. A great deal faster than he poured in the water he endeavored to dip it out, but the kitchen floor was soaked before the task was finished. He mopped and mopped but it was decidedly damp in corners when at last he gave it up and again rushed out to get more wood.

"No dinner ready!" cried the hungry children rushing home at the same hour. "We'll miss all our play time if dinner is late."

"Hush! Both of you!" said Mr. Watson sternly. "I've been busy this morning. "I'll get you some bread and butter right away."

"Mamma always had a nice hot dinner," said little Rose. "It's awful cold to-day. Say, Papa, is there pumpkin pie to-day"

"I should say not," said Mr. Watson irritably. "Didn't I tell you I had been busy?"

"There comes Aunt Molly and Uncle Joe!" cried little Fred Watson. Goody! Goody!"

Mr. Watson was forced to shake hands and smile at his brother and tell them that they were welcome, but he sincerely wished that they were miles away. "You seem to be having a strenuous time, John," said Mrs. Joe Watson sitting down comfortably before the fire which was now roaring its best. Mr. Watson had forgoten to close the damper and the wood was rapidly being devoured. "I didn't want to come without sending you word but Joe said that you insisted on our dropping in whenever we could. Since we have the automobile we never know till the last minute that we really are going on account of the weather."

"Women always have the idea that you have to send word ahead," said Joe Watson, "I say, give visitors what you have and don't make any fuss. Molly here, she makes a fuss if I bring in a stranger or two at the eleventh hour, but what's the difference? What's good enough for the home folks is good enough for company."

John Watson was too busy watching the eggs he was frying to say much though he had often said the same to his own wife, and finally the little group gathered about the fearful and wonderful dinner the man of the house had raked and scraped together. He had some cold fried meat from the day before, the scrambled eggs, lukewarm coffee,, a dish of apple butter, bread cut in chunks, two pieces of cold pie, a few ginger cookies, a can of salmon served right in the can, several kinds of pickles and preserves hastily gathered from the store closet shelves and some mashed potatoes, made into cakes, and warmed through in the oven. The children ate with one eye on the clock, and raced off unreproved with bread and butter in their hands, while the grown people ate very little. John Watson hoped that his sister-in-law would offer to clear the table and wash the many utensils but in a few minutes after they left the mussy table the guests announced that they must be moving on.

"Consarn it all!" said John Watson in irritation as he discovered that both the sitting room and the kitchen fires were out. "With that light flimsy wood no man could keep up a fire." He strode to the telephone and called up the village coal dealer. "Is that you, Archer?" he called savagely. "Send out a ton of soft coal, to my place, and have it here before two o'clock. Two o'clock, can't you hear? . What's that Charge extra for hauling? Well, what of that! I've got the money to pay for hauling one ton of coal, I guess."

"Papa! Papa!" wailed the baby. "Me's told!"

"You poor little chicken!" he said kissing the blue cheeks. "I'll wrap you in a blanket till I get the fires started again. I'll bet a dollar that this baby will have the croup this very night. Gee Whillikins! I never took off that wet dress when she spilled the milk at dinner! What on earth shall I do first? It's enough to drive a man to the insane asylum."

The telephone jingled wildly several times, while he dashed around getting the baby into dry garments, and wrapping her in a blanket, but he paid no attention at all. Next he went at the fires and very soon the house was again comfortable, but the sleeping child was breathing heavily, and he was greatly worried. He watched the clock anxiously but knew Mrs. Watson could hardly get home before dark. The apples he had forgotten entirely, but he was still striving to get to the flannels. With one eye on the baby and the other on the disarray in the kitchen and dining room he began to wash the dishes without previously scraping and piling them up. Three times he dipped into the leaky reservoir for hot water and each time he remembered that his wife had told him many times that it needed attention but he had put her off. All this time the telephone kept on ringing, or it did until he took down the receiver, but he was too busy to answer.

"What in Kingdom Come is the matter with your telephone, Mrs. Watson?" said a voice at the back door and Mrs. Simms entered without the ceremony of knocking. "Oh, it's you, Mr Watson! I've been ringing and ringing the last hour and can't get a soul. I declare some days I threaten to have the phone taken out entirely. I've wasted more time trying to get you folks than it took me to put on my things and walk down here."

"The baby's asleep and I took the receiver down," said Mr. Watson lamely. "I'm sorry, Mrs. Simms. Won't you sit down?"

"No, I haven't the time," said the lady still provoked and disturbed, "I've only a few minutes. We're getting ready to go to Susie's to-morrow and I wanted to tell Mrs. Watson that I would not be at home. She was planning to bake her fruit cake in our oven, but we got this chance to go to see Susie so I knew that she wouldn't mind."

"Bake her cake in your oven," said Mr. Watson. "I don't understand."

"There's something wrong with your stove, and she's been doing her baking in our oven," explained the guest. "I don't mind it at all," said Mrs. Simms hurried as she noted the look on her host's face. "Mrs. Watson has done lots for me and—John Watson! That baby has the croup as sure as anything. Don't you know any better than to scrub the kitchen floor on a raw windy day like this. Get me a tub at once. Hurry!"

The good woman quickly and skilfully relieved the suffering child and then turned her cabable hands toward the disorderly kitchen. Mr. Watson meekly did as he was told, but he was thankful when she had left the house. Thanks to her vigorous work and directions the floor was dry, the fires in good order and the house clean and tidy, and all in a few short hours. The instant the door closed behind her Mr. Watson flew to the telephone and gave some vigorous directions to several firms in town, with directions to carry them out before dark.

"Mamma! Mamma! Mamma-" cried Rose and Fred the instant their mother entered the house and they felt her cold cheek on theirs. "Mamma such—"

"Why, John! A new range!" cried the lady of the house blinking her eyes in the sudden light. "When did that come?"

"About an hour ago," said the gentleman rather incoherently. "And there's going to be linoleum on this floor and a washing machine and a decent churn and some other fixings. And there's coal in the coal house, and I'm going to have some kindling there to-morrow."

"Why, John, what is the matter?" cried the lady in alarm. "Has anything happened?"

"A large variety of things happened since this morning, Anna, but I guess no more than happen to country housewives every day of their lives. To tell the truth I've made some discoveries to-day about what women have to stand and that's the reason I sent for the new things. It was a lucky day for me when that corn shredder struck me on the side of the head."

"I guess it was," said Mrs. Watson, fingering the new range as if to assure herself that it was real. "The house looks so nice and comfortable and I suppose the work is all—"

"The work is all waiting for you, Anna, but to-morrow I'll help you. And never again will I say that women potter and waste time over their housework. My little vacation has done me a world of good and I'm not ashamed to own it. But, Anna, I don't want you to leave me in charge again for at least a hundred years."

PIMPLES

APPEARED ON HIS FACE AND HANDS.

The primary cause of pimples arises from the blood not being in a good condition. When the blood becomes impure you will find that pimples will break out all over the body, but more particularly on the forehead, nose and chin, and although they are not a dangerous trouble, they make you appear unsightly both to your friends and yourself. What you need, when these pimples break out, is to get a real good blood purifying medicine such as Burdock Blood Bitters. One that will build up the system by cleansing the blood of all the impurities and poisons which cause the skin to break out in these eruptions.

Mr. F. A. McKenzie, Portage La Prairie, Man., writes: "Last summer I was all run down and unfit for work of any kind. All kinds of food seemed distasteful to me. Pimples appeared on my face and hands, and I seemed to grow worse every day. One day a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. Half-heartedly I did so, and the results obtained were marvellous. I regained my health, I took on flesh, and in a short time the pimples and skin eruptions disappeared entirely; thanks to the healing powers of B.B.B. I freely recommend it to all sufferers."

TO REPLY TO-DAY.

British Answer to "Dacia" Note Likely To Be In Negative.

LONDON, Jan. 19. — The British Government probably will reply to-day to the request of the United States Government, that the former Hamburg-American Line steamship Dacia, which now flies the American flag, be permitted to make one trip with cotton from the United States for Germany without the voyage being considered a precedent establishing the right of German ships interned in the United States to be transferred to the American flag, and then resume uninterrupted trade with Germany.

The opinion is general in official circles that Great Britain cannot make an exception in this instance. The Dacia case has produced a marked impression in England. It is generally discussed in the streets by men of all classes and the feeling voiced against the position of the United States concerning the Dacia is much more bitter than that aroused by the American note concerning delays to shipping, as the definite case of the Dacia is far better understood than the generalities of the note.

Adrianople is Evacuated.

LONDON, Jan. 19. — The Turkish garrison at Adrianople, the partial withdrawal of which was previously reported, has now completely withdrawn, according to an Athens' despatch, which gives no explanation.

The London papers print a forecast appearing in The Paris Figaro, that Italy, Greece, Roumania and Bulgaria, will join the allies, but there is nothing more definite relative to this turn of affairs than there was a fortnight ago.

British Aviators Raid Ostend.

LONDON, Jan. 18. — A successful raid on the German military position at Ostend has been carried out by British aviators. Many bombs were dropped on the barracks and railway station, and considerable damage done. Nine aeroplanes took part in the attack.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Colour and Lustre to Hair

You can turn grey, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost overnight if you'll get a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old, famous Sage Tea Recipe are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning grey, becoming faded, dry, scraggly and thin have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the grey hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful—all dandruff goes, scalp itching and falling hair stops.

This is the age of youth. Grey-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

No Attack on Le Bassee.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—The observer with the British army in France who writes the day-by-day reports of events given out to the press, is authority for the statement that British forces did not recently capture certain German positions near Le Bassee and make an advance of one mile. That they had done so was reported Jan. 15 in a despatch from St. Omer, published in Paris.

Not Falkenhayn's Son.

PARIS, Jan. 19.—Referring to the exploits of the French aerial corps, the official eye-witness says:

"It was Lieut. von Falkenstein, not von Falkenhayn, as erroneously reported, who was killed by the French army aviator Gilbert. This was the third time that Gilbert, who is a military medalist, succeeded in bringing down a hostile craft."

SURPRISES IMPOSSIBLE.

Aeroplanes Have Revolutionized Warfare, Says Observer.

LONDON, Jan. 19. — The British military observer at the front discusses the part aviation is playing in the military operations. In this connection the observer says:

"Aviation has profoundly modified warfare by eliminating the element of surprise, for so long as the weather permits aerial reconnaissance it is impossible to carry out any great concentration or movement of troops by day within a considerable radius without being discovered. Especially in the present form of warfare have the former functions of the cavalry, as regards reconnaissance, been usurped by the flying corps."

The officer then pays a tribute to the remarkable work of the British aviators and mentions as a frequent occurrence reconnaissance in "driving snow with the temperature below zero or in a gale, under fire of the enemy's anti-air craft guns, or travelling with the wind, when the machine rocks and sways and attains a speed of 100 miles an hour."

THEY SCORN EGYPT.

German Officers In Near East Are Crying "Sour Grapes."

CAIRO, Jan. 19. — Fugitives from Syria report that Turkish soldiers there are without sufficient food, and that the army is in a state of disorganization. They are clothed in summer uniforms, which has been reduced to rags.

A force of 25,000 Bedouins, which was recruited at Hebron at the commencement of the war was left foodless, and they have returned to their homes in disgust.

Anatolian troops particularly are dissatisfied. German officers in command of the army now depreciate the importance of a victory over the British in Egypt if such campaign were carried through, and that project has been abandoned.

Move For Trade Relations.

PARIS, Jan. 19.—The Government has decided to appoint a committee to study a means of establishing closer relations between the French and Russian markets, with the object of eliminating from both German products. The committee will work in conjunction with the commercial attaches and leading business organizations of the two countries.

Canon Sloan Succumbs.

OTTAWA, Jan. 18. — Very Rev. Canon Sloan, parish priest of St. Bridget's Roman Catholic Church here, died last night as the result of a shock from injuries received several weeks ago when a vehicle in which he was driving was overturned by a street car. He was 60 years of age.

Italian Gunboat Damaged.

ROME, Jan. 18. — A report has been received here that the Italian torpedo gunboat Coatit has been badly damaged while cruising in the Adriatic. No details were given regarding the accident.

Austro-German Losses.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—The Exchange Telegraph's Vienna correspondent, in a despatch sent via Copenhagen, says that 110 Austrian casualty lists, which do not include the losses of the last two months, give the following totals: Officers killed 2,263, officers wounded 8,950, officers captured 628.

The last five Prussian casualty lists, according to the correspondent, gives the names of 36,764 officers and men killed, wounded or missing, making the total Prussian losses, as disclosed in 136 lists, 877,107.

An Irishman was sitting in a station smoking when a woman came, and, sitting down beside him, remarked:

"Sir, if you were a gentleman you would not smoke here."

"Mum," he said, "if you was a lady you'd sit farther away."

Pretty soon the woman burst out again:

"If you were my husband I'd give you poison."

"Well, mum," returned the Irishman as he puffed away at his pipe, "if you was me wife I'd take it."

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

The Morning Illustrated has a seam at each hip and under the arm, just outside the shaded portion. The sleeve is plain, without fullness, and the collar broad and square in the back and cut to open square in the front. The pattern, No. 6908, comes in sizes 36 to 44 inches bust measure.

In the small front view is shown an effective style which is suitable for flannel or any material that would gather readily into the waistband. The collar is cut with a shallow and edged with feather stitching, as are the other edges of the sailor.

Any one who has become accustomed to an eiderdown wrapper for winter wear will not be able to get along without one. As a bath robe it has no superior, and for a slipper robe in the afternoon it can scarcely be improved upon. These comfortable garments wash very well, but much care must be exercised. Salt, a good handful, should be thrown into the water to preserve the color, and rapid rubbing is best. They take a long time to dry, but come out soft and fluffy after washing.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required as well as age of a child.

TOWNSHIP COLLECTOR APPOINTED

Meeting of the Harvey Council Held in Town Hall

HARVEY, Jan. 19.—The Harvey Council met in the town hall, Lakehurst, with the following members present: Robt. Shaw, Reeve, and Councillors-elect Graham, Hugh Allen, Thos. Flynn and Archie Wilson, Junior.

Having taken their several declarations of qualification and oaths, they took their seats and proceeded to business. The minutes of the last two meetings were read and confirmed. A number of accounts were received. Applications for office were received from Leslie Croke for assessor, salary, $90; W. S. Thompson, salary, $50; Cecil Crone, for collector, salary $70; David Weir, clerk, $115; Henry Coons, treasurer, $45.

Raglan Richmond wrote notifying Council that he would not apply for the office of Collector any longer.

Moved by Mr. Graham and Mr. Allen that Mr. Thompson be appointed assessor at a salary of $50.—Carried.

Fighting Is Not Always of Whole Hearted Nature With Yser Region Deluged With Constant Rainstorm, But Soldiers Off Duty Are Ready for Frolic

IN NORTH FRANCE, VIA LONDON, Jan. 5.—What with violent storms daily in the area of the Yser, and the ever-increasing floods left of the Allies' lines, the fighting for some time has not been of what one could term very whole-hearted.

About sixty German prisoners were brought into the railhead at ——— the other night, in a desperate state of dirt, and utterly worn out. They swallowed the hot soup served out to them in the tin bowls with the greed of starved wolves. They crouched round the big stove in the anteroom of their prison, steaming malodorously in the glow of the charcoal. There was no hope in the New Year for them; but they were glad in a dazed sort of a way that the great game of war was over at last so far as they were concerned. They said that they had been living in mud holes for weeks, frozen and soaked turn and turn about. The terrible gloom in their countenances and the utter hopelessness of their scanty speech struck deep down in my heart as I gazed on them and listened to their mutterings. This is what civilization has come to; and perhaps worse things are in store.

About midnight each night a train comes in from Hazebrouck and St. Omer to the coast—a long, clammy journey. And out of it tumble little companies of khaki fellows with their kit all slung around them, Autolycus fashion, and themselves bright enough, though they are mud-caked to the waist, stiff and cramped after their tedious journey, but "right as rain!" How they keep up their spirits is a marvel. A trifle blue of nose they may be, perhaps, as they unwind their Arctic swaddlings from their shoulders and necks, and stamp and swing their arms, and thump their grave chests in the draughty square.

All day long and every day an incessant chatter of French fills the square, an ever-increasing tramp, tramp, tramp of marching heroes of France and Britain, bound for the battlefield, and all exuberantly eager.

And then you see the tough little Belgians swinging by, more salient than ever on their journey to the dunes and the dismal swamps behind them. Then night closes in and all is quiet for hours and hours, save for an occasional Red Cross machine slipping in with its bandaged passengers. The tall belfry wearily tinkles out its midnight chime—a melancholy, wistful note; a couple of belated cabmen, hooded like holy friars, jabber for a spell in the curious sing-song of the patois, and then, quite suddenly, a clatter of hobnails out of the station gate, and the heartening sight under the moonshine of greenish-grey rather ghostly-looking ruffians foregathering in the square and bursting into song. One of them—a Lancashire lad, for sure—hauls a mouth organ out of the bag slung to his shoulder and begins to play a jig with that masterly command of the instrument of which the British soldier alone knows the secret, albeit they are "made in Germany." The others pile their kit in a heap in the middle of the square and start a rattling dance to tickle up the chilblains in their toes.

Merry, modest, good boys, every one of them, mettlesome, with the kettle of their spirits bubbling over malgre the gruelling time they have been through mud-larking in the trenches. Here and there the serious note is struck and they talk seriously and wisely of their profession. They have been playing the Great Game for many long weeks now; they have been tried and not found wanting. The note in their voices is the note of confidence and high courage, brightened always by that flash of rough and ready humour and that ripple of laughter which is ever with Tommy Atkins wherever he goes and whatever slings and arrows are served out to him.

Is he downhearted? No! And never will be. This business with him is simply the day's work he carries on blithely with a cheerful countenance. He looks forward to his little holiday, his short, tumultuous days at home, with all the anticipatory joy of the lower form school boy, counting the hours to his first "vac."

And here he is, in this wet, moonlit square to-night, nipped out of the jaws of death for a few glad hours—a hard, stern man when the realities are whirling over and around him, but just a jolly chap now, a boy out for sport. The jig is over, the kit is re-collected and re-slung. The little company forms up again. Alf, the maestro of the mouth organ, takes his proper place at the head of the homeward column, and the "band" strikes up. It is the old, old merry tune: "Let's all go down the Strand."

The Channel lights are winking a welcome as the boys swing on, and vanish beyond the bridge. All is quiet again in the market square.

Six Killed And Twenty Injured

known seaside resort and fishing town of Yarmouth, where the people were taken by surprise at the sudden visit. Two persons, a man and a woman, were killed and a number of other persons were injured, and much damage to property was done by the raiders in their visit, which lasted less than ten minutes. Four or five bombs were dropped in Yarmouth.

When the attack began the authorities gave instructions that all lights in the town be extinguished, and other precautionary measures were taken to safeguard the populace. Little signs of a panic were seen during the raid in Yarmouth.

Apparently the raiders after visiting Yarmouth proceeded to Cromer, where they also dropped bombs, and thence went to Sheringham and Beeston. Then turning inland they made for Sandringham, dropping explosive missiles there and at King's Lynn, where a boy was killed, and a man, a woman and a child were injured, and two houses were destroyed. It was variously reported that five and seven bombs were dropped in King's Lynn.

The damage done in Sandringham has not been reported. It is known, however, that the Royal palace escaped unharmed, although a Central News despatch states that a bomb was dropped on the King's estate. At Sherringham a bomb penetrated a house, but did not explode.

It was only yesterday that the Scotland Yard authorities issued instructions concerning the measures to be taken by the police and other officials in the extent of an air raid.

The police and special constables were called upon in the instructions to hold themselves in readiness for a possible raid on London, and the fire brigades also were warned to be in readiness.

The report of the attack on Norfolk County caused a considerable commotion in London. The searchlights all about the city were busily engaged throughout the evening scouring the sky with their rays to pick up any aircraft that might approach. Up to a late hour, however, there was no sign of an aerial visitor.

Reports reaching London are to the effect that a squadron of six Zeppelins crossed over the North Sea, and on reaching the coast line separated, some of them taking a southerly direction and others an opposite course. These reports, however, have not been confirmed.

MOTHER! THE CHILD IS CONSTIPE, BILIOUS

If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs;" then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

Peculiar Taxation in Holland.

Some of the most peculiar of taxations recorded are to be found in the archives of Holland. In 1791, for instance, there was in existence a tax imposed on all passengers travelling in Holland. In 1874 a duty of 2 shillings was levied on each person who entered a tavern before noon, on those who entered a place of entertainment, on marriages and deaths and on many other things. If a person was buried out of the district to which he belonged the tax was payable twice over.

Wonderful Musical Memory.

Sir John Stainer had a wonderful musical memory. It was put to the test once at the Crystal palace when he had to play the organ in the "Messiah" and a fugue came on which music he could see the score, was not forthcoming. The conductor was in despair. Sir John cut the knot by a wonderful tour de force, playing the part faultlessly right through and entirely from memory, probably the only time the "Messiah" has been so rendered.—London Standard.

PERSISTENCE.

Nothing can take the place of persistence. Talent will not; unsuccessful men of talent abound. Genius will not; unrewarded genius is almost a proverb. Education will not; the world is full of educated derelicts. Persistence and determination alone are omnipotent.

MUSIC THE HIGHEST

Wallace has said, "That music, although the youngest of the Arts, surpasses life in fuller glory than does any other Art." Perhaps it is because it is created out of discipline that it reflects life so perfectly. Pleasures that follow discipline are always of the keenest; why therefore, cannot music be used to help us take the brightest and happiest out of our pleasures. Musical parties can be arranged so as to win thirsts for the most fateful hostess.

And the cares that infest the day
Shall fold their tents like the Arabs,
And as silently steal away."
—Longfellow.

This verse was the prompter to a musical mystery which the writer participated in recently. As the guests were ushered into the parlor each one was presented with a dainty booklet decorated with notes for the tunes of "Auld Lang Syne." Inside we found three sets of numbers, with blanks opposite the numbers. The bottom explained that the room was full of articles numbered. These had a musical significance familiar to all present. We were to discover the articles and write down the musical name opposite the corresponding number. The hunt afforded a great deal of amusement. I will give the list as we found it.

Musical Hunt

1. Bar of soap (bar). 2. Cardboard letter "O" hung from the light (high C). 3. Heavy string (chord). 4. Quire of paper (choir). 5. Pair of scales (scales). 6. Funk measure with two heels (two beats in a measure). 7. Some ones name (signature). 8. Razor (sharp). 9. Watch (time). 10. Three dolls of the same size (triplets). 11. Door key (key). 12. Lump of tar (pitch). 13. Bank note (note). 14. Twenty-five cents with black dots on it (dotted quarter). 15. Chair (stool). 16. A real flower and a lock of hair (natural). 17. Half tone picture (half tone). 18. Neck tie (tie). 19. Carpenter's brace (brace). 20. Card with figures XL. (forte).

Musical Trip

When our hostess called "Time's up" for the hunt were were instructed to turn to the next set of numbers. These represented a hurried visit to the foreign lands. The music had all been arranged, and a young woman began to play snatches of familiar airs, in the order of the trip. When the selection was being played the guests wrote down the country suggested by the air and the name of the music opposite the country. The trip started at Montreal.

Montreal suggested "O Canada"; the Atlantic Ocean, "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep"; Ireland, "Killarney"; England, "Rule Britannia"; Scotland, "Annie Laurie"; Germany, "The Watch on the Rhine"; Italy, "Il Trovatore"; Spain, "Spanish Cavalier"; France, "Marseillaise"; Palestine, "The Holy City"; Africa, "Down in Jungle Town"; India, "On the Road to Mandalay"; China, "Under the Bamboo Tree"; United States, "America"; Montreal again, "Home Sweet Home." This list could be continued at great length.

Picture Gallery

Our third contest proved to be a musical picture gallery and was a progressive game. On little tables (which were afterwards used for refreshments) were placed pictures of the leading musicians and the popular artists. Five minutes was allowed for guessing the names at each table. At the ringing of a bell all moved to another table. When the lists were filled the hostess read the correct answers to the three contests. Pretty little awards were made of pictures of the musicians to the most successful contestants, and copies of that old song, "Why Don't You Try," to the unfortunate ones. Refreshments and the singing of "They're All Jolly Good Fellows" closed a most delightful evening.

Musical Story

For a luncheon or a small party the following little story is very interesting. Read [illegible] a copy of the story, with the blanks unfilled. Each blank represents a musical term.

The ——son of my dear friend, ——Cole, and I were climbing the Hamilton Mountain. I found my —— a great help. The scenery is beautiful and every —— I took a —— we were more than delighted with the beauty of the city. It was our sole ——. The —— of the hill was so steep, I soon felt the —— of such hard work. At one place I took an involuntary ——, the ascent was so steep and so——. It gave me joy to —— that my companion kept pace with me. At one point the trees hung —— that we heard the birds —— blithely in our ears, and we had to —— the branches with our hands. Soon after this we passed through a —— in the rock, and came out upon a —— surface, where we rested, listening to the merry —— of a robin. Then we came home on the electric car.

Key to the story: Minor, major, duet, time, rest, theme, pitch, strain, slide, sharp, note, solo, trill, beat, cleft, flat, tune. Besides being interesting this is a pleasant way of impressing the names of the musical terms.

AFRAID SHE WAS DYING

ST. JEAN DE MATHA, Jan. 27th, 1914.

"After suffering for a long time with Dyspepsia, I have been cured by "Fruit-a-tives". I suffered so much that I would not dare eat for I was afraid of dying. Five years ago, I tried the samples of "Fruit-a-tives". I did not think to try them for I had little confidence in them but, seeing my husband's matters, I decided to do so and at once I felt relief. Then I sent for three boxes and I kept on prescribing until I was cured. While sick, I lost several pounds, but after taking "Fruit-a-tives", I quickly regained what I had lost. Now I eat, sleep and digest well—in a word, I am completely cured, thanks to "Fruit-a-tives".

A MESSAGE TO THIN, WEAK, SCRAWNY FOLKS

An Easy Way to Gain 10 to 30 lbs. of Solid, Healthy, Permanent Flesh

Thin, nervous, undeveloped men and women everywhere are heard to say, "I can't understand why I do not get fat. I eat plenty of good, nourishing food." The reason is just this: You cannot get fat, no matter how much you eat, unless your digestive organs assimilate the fat-making elements of your food instead of passing them out through the body as waste.

What is needed is a means of gently urging the assimilative functions of the stomach and intestines to absorb the oils and fats and hand them over to the blood, where they may reach the starved, shrunken, run-down tissues and build them up. The thin person's body is like a dry sponge—eager and hungry for the fatty materials of which it is being deprived by the failure of the alimentary canal to take them from the food. The best way to overcome this sinful waste of flesh building elements and to stop the leakage of fats is to use Sargol, the recently discovered regenerative force that is guaranteed on a daily by physicians here and abroad. Take a little Sargol tablet with every meal and notice how quickly your cheeks fill out and rolls of firm, healthy flesh are deposited over your body, covering each bony angle and projecting point. Good druggists have Sargol, or can get it from their wholesaler, and will refund your money if you are not satisfied with the gain in weight it produces as stated on the guarantee in each package. It is inexpensive, easy to take and highly efficient.

Caution:—While Sargol has produced remarkable results in overcoming nervousness, dyspepsia and general stomach troubles, it should not be taken unless you are willing to gain ten pounds or more, for it is a wonderful flesh builder.

MORALITY.

Scepticism in moral matters is an open ally of immorality. Who is not for morality is against it. The universe will have no neutrals in these questions. In theory as in practice, clodpate or healer or tail as we like about a wise scepticism, we are really doing volunteer military service for one side or the other.

Fighting Is Resumed Around Nieuport

British Too Much For German Attack

A PUBLIC MEETING

Was Held Last Evening to Discuss a Memorial That Will be Submitted to the C. P. R.—Better Passenger Service is Wanted

RESOLUTION ENDORSED

As a result of a public meeting that was held in the City Council Chamber last evening, Mr. J. T. Arundel, General Superintendent of the Ontario Division of the Canadian Pacific Railway, with headquarters in Toronto, on behalf of the citizens of Peterborough, will be presented with a memorial setting forth the reasons why Peterborough should receive a better passenger service over the company's lines. The memorial claims that the new lakeshore line is provided with a much better train service than the Peterborough line, despite the fact that the territory through which the Peterborough line passes possesses a preponderating population. It was pointed out that what this city required more than anything was a through time table, which requirement included a fast train east and west so as to facilitate connections at the continuing points.

A Representative Gathering

Last night's meeting was not only largely attended but was a representative one. Among those present were Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., His Worship Mayor Butler, Mr. E. G. Patterson, of the Canadian General Co., Mr. W. R. Breyfogle, of the DeLaval Supply Co., Mr. E. N. McWilliams, Mr. Robert Fair, and about forty-five business men and merchants.

The C.P.R. was represented by Mr. W. S. Dodd, local agent, Mr. L. G. Rogers, assistant superintendent of this division, with headquarters at Trenton, and Mr. A. E. Steward, road foreman, Toronto.

At the opening of the meeting, Mr. W. G. Morrow was appointed chairman, and Mr. S. R. Armstrong, secretary.

Improved Freight Service.

The first speaker was Mr. E. G. Patterson, who sounded an apologetic note, when he took occasion to remark that until a few days ago his sympathy was with the citizens until he secured a time table and found that only two trains had been cut off. He assured the meeting that he held no brief for the railway company, but remarked that it would be more advantageous to the citizens if they would get after the company for an improved freight service. Goods were shipped to Havelock and allowed to stand there until there was sufficient to make up a car for shipment to Peterborough.

Mr. W. [illegible] described a trip that he made to Montreal recently, which was accomplished at no inconsiderable inconvenience. He said he thought the retrenchment policy of the company was more sweeping, in so far as Peterborough was concerned, than conditions warranted, and that if a few months of depression was in prospect, it was no reason why this community should be made to suffer.

A Better Schedule.

Ald. A. H. Stratton was satisfied with the ground covered by the memorial. He was also satisfied with the number of trains operated on the Peterborough line of the C.P.R. but was of the opinion that the schedule could be arranged to better advantage. He observed that this city was a central point for commercial travelers and others, who were put to considerable inconvenience as a result of the suspension of the Sunday train.

The proposal to present the memorial to the officials at Montreal was discouraged by Mr. W. S. Dodd, local agent for the company. He contended that it would be better policy to submit the memorial to the General Superintendent in Toronto, which was a case of working from the bottom upwards, instead of the reverse.

A Chronic Kicker.

Mr. Dodd dealt at length with the freight service, which he characterized as being as good if not better than was ever provided before. It was possible to load freight in Peterborough at six o'clock in the evening and have it ready for delivery at nine o'clock the next morning. Arrangements were being made to have the

BRITISH REPULSE GERMAN ATTACK

Attempt to Dynamite a Bridge Over the Yser Results in Heavy Loss to the Enemy—The Allies' Artillery Fire is Very Effective and German Earthworks Are Destroyed

SPECIAL CABLE:

PARIS, 3 p.m. official.—Desperate fighting for the possession of a bridge over the Yser, marked the resumption of the fighting in the Nieuport region along the sea coast, the War Office announced to-day.

The bridge was held by the British under cover of a violent artillery action. The Germans attempted to dynamite the structure across which the allies had made several successful sorties. The allies' guns were wheeled into action and poured such a hot fire upon the east bank of the Yser that the Germans were forced to withdraw, having suffered very heavy losses. Other violent engagements occurred near the seacoast, the heavy fog and the unfavourable weather, that has been hindering the operations, having passed away. The allies bombarded and destroyed the German field works near St. George's and Blagny. The capture by the Germans of several trenches in La Crurie woods in the Argonne was officially admitted, but the War Office declares the French troops by brilliant counter attacks re-took the trenches and gained still more ground. The artillery fighting in the Argonne region was again described as "violent." The Germans have again resumed the offensive in La Pretre woods. The French offensive against Metz has been temporarily halted. From behind a field entrenchment the French are successfully repelling the German attacks in this region. The official statement reports that in the regions of Soissons and Rheims the lull in the fighting continues.

LONDON, January 20.—In the British newspaper comments on last night's aerial raid much sarcasm was displayed. In connection with the German East Coast bombardment, the general opinion is that the British have a right to retaliate in kind, and will do so with startling effect. The Pall Mall Gazette says that the German airships will be Kitchener's best recruiting sergeants.

CONSTANTINOPLE, January 20.—The War Office statement today says that the Turkish forces surprised and defeated, with one hundred casualties, a small force of the British in Arabia.

LONDON, January 20.—The property damaged at Yarmouth (where the most damage occurred from the German bombs) is estimated at not to exceed $15,000. It was discovered today that bombs were dropped on the race track, and wrecked the grand stand; much damage was done at the city fish wharves. Two unexploded bombs which were found in the outskirts and placed on display in a store window, immediately attracted a large crowd. Each bomb weighed about six pounds and was shaped with a conical four inch base.

TO-DAYS MILITARY NEWS

At the Armouries yesterday afternoon, Lt.-Col. Preston, officer commanding the 39th Battalion, briefly addressed the members of the 57th detachment of the 3rd contingent, who will be under his command. He expressed his pleasure at the first appearance of the men and hoped that although third in number, the contingent would be first in efficiency. Col. Preston said that the showing made was a splendid one, especially in view of the drain that had been made on the city for the first and second contingents. He assured the men that there would be a complete company from Peterborough and that they would be kept together as a unit.

On account of the military funeral this afternoon neither the Mounted Rifles or Infantry Company had drill, and the men were given the opportunity to attend, although this was voluntary on their part. Drill will be resumed in the morning. A fatigue party from the 57th was detailed for work at the armouries this afternoon.

A class for members of the 57th overseas detachment who wish to qualify as non-coms. will commence tonight at the armouries. The class will be in charge of Sergt. Harry Welford and will be held on Mondays, Wednesday and Friday nights. A large number of men have signified a desire to try to qualify.

There was a good turnout at the weekly drill of the 57th Regiment last night. The evening was spent in company drill.

RUBBISH FIRE

The Fire Department received a call yesterday afternoon to a rubbish fire in the rear of the old 5 and 10 cent store on George Street, which is undergoing some alterations. While the carpenters were clearing the rubbish from the building they started a small fire, not knowing it was contrary to one of the city by-laws. Some neighbours became alarmed and called the firemen. There was no damage.

GERMANS RENEW THEIR ATTEMPTS

Threatened By Another Invasion of East Prussia the Enemy is Trying Once More to Cross the Vistula and Attack Grand Duke Nicholas' Army in the Rear

SPECIAL CABLE:

PETROGRAD, January 20.—Threatened by another invasion of East Prussia, the Germans are renewing their attempt to cross the Vistula and attack Grand Duke Nicholas' army in the rear, according to the official reports brought here to-day.

The Russian lines north of the Vistula have been pushed forward to a point beyond Lipnow, 25 miles north west of Plock. A continuation of their present success would bring the Russian forces in northern Poland to the Prussian frontier at a point not far distant from Thorn. An artillery engagement at the junction point of the two rivers is proceeding. The German attempt to force a crossing has caused heavy losses on both sides it is reported.

The correspondent of The Daily Chronicle in France says that British artillery and British infantry by brilliant work have captured and occupied the village of Frelinghen on the Franco-Belge border after driving the Germans out in bayonet charges.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 20.—The seat of the Commonwealth Government has been transferred temporarily from Melbourne to Sydney.

TURKISH GARRISON ABANDONS ADRIANOPLE

LONDON, January 20.—Adrianople has been abandoned by the Turkish garrison, which has been despatched to the northern frontier, according to a Reuter's despatch from Athens. After Constantinople, Adrianople is the most important city in the Ottoman Empire.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Correspondents of the Exchange Telegraph after interviewing a number of the leading residents of Cromer and other Norfolk county towns, gained the impression that the attacking fleet was made up largely of aeroplanes accompanied by perhaps two Zeppelins.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Under the caption of "More Slaughter of Innocents," the Herald this morning comments editorially on the German aerial raid:

"Is it madness or despair, or just plain everyday madness, that has prompted the Germans to select for attack the peaceful and undefended resorts of England's East Coast. What can Germany hope to gain by these wanton attacks upon undefended places, and this slaughter of innocents? Certainly not the good will of people of neutral nations, for these know that the rules of civilized warfare call for notice of bombardment even of places fortified and defended."

COL. CLEGG APPOINTED

Peterborough Officer is Made Second in Command of the 9th Battalion of First Contingent

OTHER PROMOTIONS

SALISBURY, Jan. 19.—Colonel A. H. Moore of Hamilton has been appointed to the command of the infantry reinforcements for the Canadian Expeditionary Force. Colonel Rattray of Winnipeg will command the reinforcements of all the other units.

Colonel Clegg of Peterborough has been appointed second in command of the Ninth Battalion Major Jones and Lieut. Christie of the Princess Patricias have resigned, presumably to join some other regiment.

ROUND THE STORES

At Tait's.

The person who is thoroughly abreast of the times is in a position to profit by the new ideas that are evolved. Among the latest improvements in eye glass mounts is the new Tait no-screw mounts, which never work loose like the old style. These mounts are attached to the lenses without the use of screws or rivets, which so frequently work loose and wobble in the frame, much to the annoyance of the wearer. The no-screw mount does away with this trouble, the lens being neatly cemented with glass cement, which never becomes loose, and so avoids breakages. It also does away with the necessity of drilling a hole in the lens which, of course, weakens it more or less. These no-screw mounts are manufactured in Canada at the Tait Optical Co's Hamilton branch, and sold exclusively by the Tait Optical Co. here. The samples shown in the local branch are quite interesting to all wearers of eye glasses.

At Campbell & Best's.

It got so chilly in the evenings last fall before starting the furnace that we began to wonder when the janitor would turn on the steam in our apartment. We hunted up the lease to see what it had to say on the subject. There it was: "A sufficient quantity of steam heat will be furnished between November 1 and April 15." And it was only the 1st of October; so we decided we must have some temporary heat, and started out to look up the stores with heating appliances. As we came out of the post office, we dropped into Campbell & Best's, and [illegible] the stoves in their attractive window, with the price ticketed on them.

"Yes, we sell quite a lot of these oil heaters to people who want some extra heat between seasons. They do not require any installing—all you have to do is to fill them with some good kerosene oil, and touch a match to them — and there is your pleasing warmth. This one is $4.50, this $6.00, and that $7.00."

"All right," I said, finally, "send me this $6.00 up before evening, will you. It's going to be chilly to-night and to-morrow, and we need it right away."

And now when spring arrives, and the steam is turned off, and the evenings get chilly or damp, we will start our oil stove and be quite comfortable.

At Reid's.

The January Sale at Reid's is going strong. Initiative, perseverance, and all other attributes of business success are secondary to the attribute of good buying and thoroughly honest methods. People in business well know how vigilant and careful they have to be in buying the right quantities at the right prices in order to get a system of service in operation here. The Reid Store for the past few days must have produced a lot of excellent buying chances to continue to attract such crowds. To-day the store was again taken by storm. The lowered prices on Ladies' Coats, Suits, Dresses, etc., brought out a splendid class of buyers. If you care to see a modern illustration of old Dickey's idea that "Economy is of itself a great revenue," come down to Reid's some fine morning and meet the ladies of the bargain hour—see the mistress of the magic of stretching out a dollar to the length of two.

NOT AGAINST GERMANS.

We have an undying hostility against Germany as iniquitously interpreted by the war clique; but we have no antipathy towards the German people who are a fine people when they are unspoiled by militarism. Most of the Germans who have made their homes in Canada are amongst our best citizens; industrious, enterprising and patriotic. In Waterloo county, which is very largely peopled by Germans or the descendants of Germans, we have had some of the finest demonstrations of the patriotic spirit; and a citizen of Waterloo, whose only fault is the wrong shade of politics he wears, Mr. Weichel, M.P., for North Waterloo, is to move the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne, at the coming opening of Parliament. This shows that we have no national prejudice, when we select a German-Canadian to talk back to His Majesty.

THE BABY KILLERS AGAIN.

The baby killers are at work again. The Zeppelin raid upon the east coast of England, gives the world another example of the gratuitous and wanton cruelty of the barbarous methods of Germany, and its disregard of the civilised rules of war. Without any hope of military advantage from such raids they are perpetrated. They are an outrage upon the principles of The Hague convention. The United States, which signed this convention, will find little justification for its attitude of aid to Germany, in trying to check Great Britain in its desire and determination, to prevent United States shipping interests and shipping activity and crookedness from being contributing agents in helping the baby killers wage war.

While words cannot express adequate condemnation of the barbarity of the German air raids; there is the comfort that their destructiveness is not as great as the perpetrators expected. They will have no great bad effect; and there is compensation in the fact that the baby killers are the most effective recruiting agents that Britain could desire. Such tactics only intensify the determination of Britons to see the fight to a finish. The British mind is different from the Oriental. The success of the soldiers of India in the battle line have stimulated recruiting enthusiasm in India. The British spirit comes out most strongly under reverse, and is especially aroused by disregard of the national principle of fair play or menace of force. If Kitchener wanted any incitement to recruiting, he will get nothing better than the raids of the baby killers—to stir British blood and arouse the British spirit of battle.

A STRONG BANK.

The annual statement of the Bank of Nova Scotia, is a very satisfactory presentation of the affairs of one of our most substantial banking institutions. The fiscal year of the bank ended on 31st December, and its eighty-third annual statement appears in this issue. As usual it exhibits a unique position of strength, for the quickly convertable assets, comprising cash, bank balances, investments and call loans total $49,232,412, which amounts to no less than 64 per cent. of the bank's liability to the public; of this 20 per cent. is in holdings of cash alone. The total resources of the bank mounted during the year from $88,151,829 to $96,733,670 by reason of the purchase of the Metropolitan Bank last November in addition to an increase of $3,900,000 in deposits.

The profits for 1914, like those of the other large banks reporting at this time, are smaller than in 1913 — $3,196,116 as compared with $1,210,774 —for the strengthening of cash reserves made necessary by the unusual financial situation, means a sacrifice of profits. The bank paid its usual dividend of fourteen per cent., contributed $37,483 to the various Patriotic Funds in Canada, Newfoundland and Jamaica, and the fund raised to provide for the families of the Newfoundland fishers who lost their lives in the disaster of last March; contributed $20,000 to the Bank's Pension Fund and $100,000 to the Reserve Fund. This sound old institution easily holds its strong position and sets an enviable example of preparedness, despite the financial stress of wartime. The local branch, under the management of Mr. A. F. Tomlins, has contributed substantially to the excellent achievement of the past year.

A GOOD EXAMPLE.

The Utilities Commission set a good example to other civic bodies in taking the public into their confidence in the matter of the progress of negotiations and considerations in respect of a waterworks auxiliary motive power plant. The City Council and the Board of Education might follow the example with profit to themselves as establishing a claim upon the confidence of the people, and as a concession to the right of the people to be informed and kept informed in the matter of the progress of movements for whose implementation they have to furnish the cash. Perhaps the people are not yet convinced of the desirability of an auxiliary pumping plant power. But nevertheless, there is necessity for it, and the publication of "progress estimates," so to speak, will furnish a public knowledge of the situation as it progresses and reconcile the public to the idea and induce compliance with the idea of necessity. Thus when the commission shall put its ideas into practice, it will incur less, if it does not altogether avoid all, criticism.

The publication of the report of the engineer, gives the public valuable information, and the public knows where it is at in regard to this subject, as it does not know in regard to other matters involving very greatly larger expenditure. His report inclines to favouring a gasoline auxiliary equipment, which we are assured will be as effective as any other plan, and what is an important recommendation, far less costly. The public is greatly indebted to the commission for an opportunity to know the essential details of the proposals made to insure, absolutely, as far as human provision and provision can accomplish it, immunity against interruption of our water service, as far as this depends upon continuous power for pumping services. When a frazil or anchor ice "spell" of weather threatens, we can sleep securely in our beds, unafraid that failure of water supply will add reality to the menace of fire. And in the summer time, when there is drought and low water, we can husband our water instead of wasting it for developing pumping power. In every way we shall gain by having a thoroughly efficient and dependable pumping provisions in connection with our waterworks.

A FRIENDLY WAY OF PUTTING THE CASE.

The United States people being our next-door neighbours, with whom it is desirable that we should live on continuous good terms, a good deal of importance attaches to the popular sentiment of that country in regard to the attitude of the government in the matter of Britain's dealing with contraband shipments. The Detroit Times, deals with the controversy, under the heading, "It Is Up to You, Uncle Sam, Is What England Says in Her Reply," in this way:

> A few days ago this country sent a note to England demanding uninterrupted passage for ships flying the United States flag and carrying cargoes for neutral countries.
>
> This note was the result of complaints reaching the state department in Washington that United States ships had been ordered into port and searched.
>
> England's preliminary reply has been received and it boils down to friendly tip, to wit:
>
> "Brother Samuel, if it is your desire that your merchant ships move unmolested, it is up to you."
>
> In other words, England, through Earl Grey, has told us in a frank and friendly way, where we sit.
>
> As a peaceful nation we have our rights.
>
> We have to insist and do insist, of course, upon recognition of those rights.
>
> But a nation at war also has its rights, and respect and recognition is the part of the nation at peace.
>
> The practice of fairness is no breach of neutrality.
>
> Characterization of the British note as fair, and what is more, as sound, is only fairness on our part.
>
> We want to move a lot of this country's products.
>
> We do not want to lose any of our regular customers remaining neutral across the seas.
>
> We want particularly to aid the south, which has been hard hit by the war because of inability to get the cotton crop to market.
>
> England has no objection at any point and has no disposition to make us suffer innocently, but upon good ground and most properly insists that this government guarantee cargoes so that bales of cotton will be bales of cotton instead of bales of cotton-wrapped munitions of war or other contraband.
>
> It seems pretty tough when an old mother calls at the prison gate with a cake she has baked for her son inside, to have her told she will have to take it back home; that it would be against the rules to admit it into the prison.
>
> A vastly different complexion is given the matter, however, when it is explained that the cake that came in for a convict had a saw inside it, and as a result a dozen convicts got out.
>
> England is willing that our cotton should move, and has as a matter of fact, invited and encouraged its movement.
>
> At the same time England is suspicious that all that is being shipped from this country as cotton is not cotton, and pleads the right to find out whether it is or not.
>
> Between August 4 of 1914 and January 3, 1915, 773 ships cleared from the ports of the United States for ports of Holland, Sweden, Denmark, Norway and Italy. Of these 45 were found by England to be carrying forbidden commerce which England has good reason to believe were intended for her enemies.
>
>
> If a cargo of cotton is suspected it is necessary that the ship go into port where the bales can be weighed.
>
> This, of course, means that the ship is delayed.
>
> Such delay could be avoided, easily and simply, and all that England asks is the guarantee of this government that shipping from the United States is in every instance legitimate.
>
> There is a cue in England's position which shippers and ship owners could act upon if delay to them is annoying—shippers and ship owners might make good and sure that their shipments and their ships' cargoes are legitimate.

There is common sense and a sense of fair play in these comments. It is gratifying to note them as a reflection of the popular opinion of our neighbours, in so strong contrast with the attitude of the government, which is exalting the financial, the sordid trade consideration above considerations of humanity, above considerations of the duty of all free peoples to stand by other free peoples whose rights are menaced and whose liberties outraged. Great Britain is only seeking to protect the United States from being contributing agents to helping Germany in its assault upon human liberty and free institutions. In this regard, in the final analysis, Great Britain is fighting the battle of the United States; for if Germany should win its asserted ambition of world-wide domination, the United States could not expect to be excluded from the application of its programme. All Great Britain wants is fair play, in waging its fight for all the interests that free peoples hold sacred.

Many German Papers Fail.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 20.—Speaking in eBrlin, at a meeting of the German Lyceum Club, Dr. Dietz, director of the Wolff Agency, admitted that 1,000 German papers, 120 of them political ones, had been forced to cease publication owing to the war.

Many a politician has found it easier to make a record than to explain it.

Belgium is bitterly opposed to being the international cemetery of Europe.

Europe will find the bread box is more vital than the ammunition chest.

The colleges' courses in European history will all have to be changed this fall.

CANADA'S THIRD ANSWER TO THE CALL OF EMPIRE

Twice has the Empire called on Canadians to come to her aid, and twice has the response been prompt A third time comes the call. What will the answer be? Judging from reports, Canadians as well as British-born in the cities are ready. Enlistments are proceeding rapidly. The recruiting officers are kept busy. Men are freely offering their services. Is it the same everywhere? Are the young men in the villages and on the farms answering the call?

Three times now has come the call, and that will not be the end. It was thought by some that the war would be over in a few months. They overlooked the preparedness and the persistence of the German army. They did not realise that an arrogant sense of superiority obsessed the leaders of German society; that an obstinate determination to conquer and rule filled the minds of those in authority; and that the firm grasp of military discipline held the entire people firmly, and made them the unreasoning instruments of the controlling bureaucracy.

Time is showing the true condition of affairs. Five months of conflict have passed, and the German army still holds Belgium which it has crushed, part of France which it has invaded, and defends itself skillfully against what would seem to be an almost overwhelming Russian force. We have confidence in the ultimate success of the arms of the allied nations. We know they are fighting the cause of national independence, the cause of freedom and of civilisation; and we are sure they must win. But the end is not yet. The last call for men has not yet been heard. There are days of strenuous battle still before us.

It may be that, far removed from the scene of strife, living in peace and comfort where the sound of artillery and the cries of men in a deadly struggle cannot be heard, where the tears of widowed and sorrowing women cannot be seen, that some of us still fail to realise the Empire's task and the Empire's need. A hundred years of peace unfits us for the thought that Canada can be invaded by a European army. A confident trust in the power of Britain unfits us to grasp the idea that Britain can possibly fail. And yet, unless from every land where flies the Union Jack her people offer freely their services and their lives, if need be, there can be no safety for Britain or for Canada. The Empire is in deadly conflict with a strong, unscrupulous and determined foe. She may need all the men and money she can obtain.

Possibly Canada may not see a foreign army marching through our towns, and devouring the produce of our farms. The lives of all who stay at home at ease may be safe. But a German victory would mean Canada under German control; Canadian people taxed to starvation to pay a war indemnity to the victor; German language taking the place of English in our legislatures, our schools, our commerce. Is the possibility to be lightly regarded? Then answer, one and all, in the words of the Canadian boy who heard the call and sailed across the sea with the first contingent:

"I hear the clear note of the bugle
And the roar of the calling drum,
And I feel the swing of the marching men,
And a deep, deep voice says,
'Come,'

"For the arrow of duty points forward
Though the heartstrings quiver and break,
Yet the voice of my calling country
Is one I may not forsake.

"For my manhood heeds and listens
And bends an attentive ear,
And though war's alarm may bring me harm
My road lies plain and clear.

"It stretches wide from my own fireside
At the far end stands the foe;
And though grim death meets my eager breath,
I am ready and glad to go.

"For England asks for the sons she lent
To the East, West, South and North;
And who stands by when a mother's cry
Is bidding her sons 'Stand forth?

"The shades of the past stand clear at last
For the flag by land and sea;
What was duty for Wellington, Nelson and Moore
Is doubly duty for me.

"For they handed down the hard-won crown
That is made for the victor's brow,
And the glory of deeds afloat and ashore
Is one to remember now.

"Then God, send England the strong right arm,
To prosper well in the fight;
And show that the sea-girt island
Is backed by the Empire's might."

—London Advertiser.

TRIAL CONTINUES.

Letters Regarding Stock Sales Read at Union Bills Hearing.

TORONTO, Jan. 20.—The second day of the trial of Dr. F. G. Hughes and Harry K. Symons, K.C., on the charge of conspiring to defraud the public in connection with the Union Insurance Co. and National Agency was mainly taken up with the reading of copies of letters purported to have been written by Dr. Hughes to Mr. Symons while on a tour trying to sell stock, and a report of the evidence of the latter taken before commission in the Supreme Court in October, 1913. Nine more witnesses were called for the prosecution, and the case adjourned until to-day.

Counsel for the crown wanted to put in process, a bundle of copies of letters alleged to have been written by Symons and Hughes. This was objected to by defending counsels refusing to admit that they were copies of letters written by the accused.

Subsequently the counsel for Dr. Hughes admitted the letters purported to be written by him and these were read to the jury. The letters referred to the trouble of selling stock.

NO DECLARATION YET.

LISBON, Jan. 20.—Portugal is today in a singular situation in reference to the great war. German forces have invaded Portuguese Angola and fighting has been going on here between German and Portuguese forces for a couple of months. Yet Germany has not declared war on Portugal, the German minister remains in Lisbon and the Portuguese minister in Berlin.

An official casualty list gives Portuguese losses in Angola, which is on the western coast of Africa as one officer killed, six wounded and one taken prisoner. The number of casualties among the soldiers is not mentioned, but unofficially it is said that the Portuguese have lost about 800 all told in killed, wounded and prisoners. On the other hand the Portuguese have killed, wounded or captured about 200 German cavalrymen. Fresh Portuguese troops numbering about 4,000 are ready to embark for Angola. Some orders for equipment have been placed in the United States.

Mercier Makes Strong Protest.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—The Amsterdam correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Co. telegraphs that Cardinal Mercier has made formal protest against his treatment at the hands of the German authorities in Belgium. The cardinal has published his protest in the form of a letter, dated Jan. 10, and has sent copies to all points in his diocese.

He declares the statement of the German governor of Brussels, that he (Cardinal Mercier) has not been hindered in his episcopal work is "far from the truth."

Prince Visits Battlefields.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—The Prince of Wales, according to The Times, has concluded a visit to Nancy, Luneville and the battlefields in Lorraine.

Socialists To Urge Mediation.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 20.—"It is the duty of all Socialists to work to bring about peace. To this end Socialists of all neutral countries will urge their Governments to offer plans of mediation."

These two resolutions were adopted at the closing session of the conference of Socialists of neutral countries, which began here Sunday.

The United States was not represented. One Italian delegate was present and four each from Denmark, Sweden, Norway and Holland.

Berchtold Had Row With Emperor.

ROME, Jan. 20. — The Giornale d'Italia publishes a report that Count Berchtold resigned as Minister of Foreign Affairs of Austria in consequence of a stormy interview with Emperor Francis Joseph, who accused him of having misinformed the Emperor as to Russia's attitude following delivery of the ultimatum to Serbia.

A rumor is current in Vienna that Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, German Prime Minister, is to resign.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

Towns That Are Damaged

The towns of Yarmouth, Sandringham, King's Lynn and Cromer, on which German aviators dropped bombs last night, are all situated in the county of Norfolk, which abuts the North Sea about 150 miles northeast of London.

YARMOUTH, known as Great Yarmouth, with a population of over 52,000, is a centre of the herring and other fisheries. The Church of St. Nicholas is ancient. The thirteenth century refectory of St. Nicholas' Priory is now a school. Ship and boat building are carried on. The city extends for three and a half miles along the coast, and has two piers.

KING'S LYNN, 42 miles north-west of Norwich, is an industrial centre, with a population of over 20,000. The fisheries are important. The industries include corn mills, oil and cake mills, chemical works, breweries, agricultural implement works and iron and brass foundries.

SANDRINGHAM is three miles from the shore of the Wash. Sandringham House was purchased by the late King Edward in 1861. The estate includes 7,000 acres and a park of 200 acres. The house is of brick and stone, in Elizabethan style.

CROMER is a favourite seaside resort on the Norfolk coast, 130 miles from London and has a population of 5,781. The town stands on cliffs of considerable elevation, and the inhabitants carry on a fishing industry.

SHERRINGHAM is a town about five miles west of Cromer, on the south side of the Wash.

ALMOST FRANTIC WITH SKIN TROUBLE

1900 City Hall Ave., Montreal, Que.—"The trouble began last summer. I noticed that I was becoming fidgety and unable to keep my arms at my sides. I put some talcum powder in my arm-pits where the pain was most intense, but while it eased the pain for a little while it afforded no relief. It gradually came down my right side to my hips. At first it was only one continuous red streak, but it transformed itself into blisters and red, swollen pimples. The pain was at times so intense that I was forced to hold my right arm in a horizontal position so that it would not rub against me. I could not sleep; I was almost frantic with pain.

"I used two or three different kinds of salves and powders without effect. I had had the trouble about six or seven months before I came across an advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. The first night I put the Cuticura Soap and Ointment on I felt as if a piece of ice had been put on my side, it was so refreshing and cool. I continued using Cuticura Soap and Ointment until I was completely cured." (Signed) A. Simpkins, July 8, 1914.

Samples Free by Mail

For more than a generation Cuticura Soap and Ointment have afforded the most economical treatment for affections of the skin and scalp that torture, itch, burn, scale, and destroy sleep. Sold by druggists and dealers throughout the world. Sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. D, Boston, U. S. A."

ANNUAL MEETING OF YOUNG MENS' CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

New Directors Appointed—Reports Received Indicate That Association Has Had a Very Satisfactory Year—Directorate Will Meet Later To Complete List of Officers

The annual meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association was held last evening. While the Institution closes the year with a net deficit of about $2,400, progress has been made in the accomplishment of the objects for which it stands. The old Board were tendered a banquet, which was followed by a short meeting to consider the report of the auditor, Mr. W. R. Morris. This was followed by the election of the Board of Directors. The Board is composed of twelve members, four retiring each year. The retiring members were Messrs. J. H. Connal, F. J. Might, W. B. Warne, and J. T. C. Lang. Mr. A. McFarlane, whose term of office expires shortly, asked to be relieved of his duties. He was succeeded by Mr. J. H. Connal, who was re-elected. The other four who were appointed were Messrs. William Richardson, Joseph Wearing, J. J. Turner, Jr., and W. B. Warne, who was re-elected.

The directors will meet some time within the next two weeks, when the election of officers will be completed. Mr. J. H. Connal is the retiring president.

The following reports were presented:

GENERAL SECRETARY'S REPORT

Your present General Secretary commenced his duties the 1st of May, 1914, and feels that at the present time he is quite familiar with the possibilities as well as the problems of your association.

There have been a good many bright spots in our work during the past eight months, although we realize that this has been an unusual year, and that benevolent work of all kinds has been handicapped because of the tightness of money as well as the war.

Our report should cover the four months of the year which were in charge of our predecessors, Mr. Hainsworth, general secretary, and Mr. Thompson, physical director. I have been personally acquainted with these two men for a number of years, so it is a pleasure for me to pay them a tribute for their successful and untiring efforts in behalf of our association. As I have taken up work immediately following Mr. Hainsworth, I am sure I realise better than any other men how consistent was his office work and his interest in our Y.M.C.A. and in the young men of our City.

Our young men have not forgotten Mr. Hainsworth or Mr. Thompson, and scarcely a day passes but what some young man gives evidence that his life has been touched by these two men who were in charge of our work during the first four months of 1914.

Our first efforts in May resulted in a committee being appointed on the summer activities. The summer sports up to the time of our present physical director's arrived, on June 15th, consisted of a baseball league and two tennis leagues, all of which were very successful, although we regret that the baseball schedule was not completed.

Upon the arrival of Mr. Carson, war canoe practice was started, and a goodly number of young men enjoyed the river, although the coveted cups were not captured by our crew.

Our membership statement up to January 18th, 1915, is as follows:

Senior members, paid in full	283
Senior members, paying on instalment	28
Boy members, paid in full	219
Boy members, paid in part	38
Number of seniors granted an extension of time for the renewal of membership	40
Boy members carried by special arrangement	61

Total amount received in membership fees during 1914 $2,154.45

Our annual subscription canvass was started on June 1st, $4,500 being asked and about $2,300 being pledged.

The completion of the subscription canvass was postponed until the 1st of September, but circumstances that we are all familiar with made the fall canvass impossible, so we regret to state that we close the year with about $1,500 unprovided for and an additional $1,000 [illegible] and memberships uncollected.

Mr. Galley, our Boys' Work Secretary, has done excellent work in his department. The boys' camp in June, as well as the fall and winter activities, being very successful.

Our Physical Director, Mr. Carson, with the co-operation of a strong physical work committee, has been very successful in a field day in October and a strong gymnasium programme for the winter. Young men and boys have taken a great interest in our gymnasium activities.

Our membership committee organized a canvass for members in October and did some earnest work in connection with the same. This effort would have been more successful but for the fact that so many men were out of employment.

The Life Problem Club has met regularly since the second Sunday of November, with an attendance ranging from twenty to thirty young men. Two Bible classes for seniors and older Collegiate members taught by Mr. Joseph Wearing and the General Secretary have been meeting on Monday evenings since November 15, and have had thirty-five different students.

We are sure that Dr. J. L. Gordon's meetings in October and November were a help to our work, and we believe that the meetings addressed by Dr. Gordon under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. in the Opera House will long be remembered. About thirty-five hundred men attended these two services.

Our dormitories have been filled most of the time with regular roomers, and we are sure that we could keep a dozen additional rooms well filled if we had them.

We have had a bowling league, comprised of representative teams from the City that have brought in about forty men who are interested in this sport, and have served to advertise the association through the press.

Our bowling league for Collegiate members is having a successful season. About thirty-five members of the Collegiate have a part in the same.

Billiard tables are in constant use, although our revenues will not be as large as last year, due to the fact that the big English billiard table was taken out of our building last May. We believe that we should have at least two more tables for the use of our members, and trust that the future will make it possible for us to provide the same.

Attached hereto will be found the financial statement of our association as prepared by our auditor.

As we look into the year 1915 we can see new doors of opportunities for service being open, so we trust that we may have the courage and zeal and faith in God to do our very best work in face of obstacles and handicaps that may confront us.

We wish in closing to thank the members of the Board of Directors, for members the citizens of Peterborough, the press for their kind support and co-operation, and wish to express appreciation for the efficient service rendered by Boys' Secretary Galley, Physical Director Carson and our caretaker, Mr. James.

Respectfully submitted,
C. N. MESERVE, Gen. Secy.

Physical Director's Report.

The report of the Physical Department dates from June 15. When the Physical Director arrived, the summer programme had been outlined and I tried to carry out the work that had been set up.

There was an Association team in the Church Baseball League, but this league was never finished, as the boys got away on vacations and by the time their vacations were over some of the boys on the different teams had enlisted and were out of town.

The work with the war canoe crew was carried on and about twenty-five were interested in this branch of sport. The crew went to the Stony Lake regatta and were as successful as usual. Some of our boys took part in other events and were successful in winning prizes. However, our job is not primarily to develop winning teams, but rather to promote sport for the mass rather than a few individuals and the best thing about this work was the fact that it brought the Physical Director into intimate relationship with a number of the fellows, for, besides our practices we spent three days camping together on Stony Lake.

Boys' Camp.

One week was spent by the Physical Director at the boys' camp and it was a week well spent.

Swimming Campaign.

During the last two weeks of July a free swimming campaign was run for both men and boys. This made good advertising for the Association as about thirty-five men and one hundred and fifty boys took advantage of it. About seventy-five per cent. of the boys learned to swim and about forty per cent. of the men.

Athletics.

The regular fall championship with the addition of some new features was a great success. Not only from a financial standpoint, but also from the standpoint of contestants and spectators. Of the latter there were about six hundred, while there were fifty contestants in the regular events, with at least sixty more in the special events. The special features being, a Public school relay race, for which Dr. Morrison gave a banner. A team of ten boys from each of the Public schools participated. An International tug of war, Indians, Scotch and Irish participating, and a five road race. The proceeds, after paying all debts, amounted to fifty-six dollars and sixty cents ($56.60.) This went to the National Council of the Y.M.C.A. for the aid of their work among the soldiers.

Fall Conference of Physical Dept.

The executive and representatives of all the different activities held a conference on the evenings of Sept. 12th and 14th. At this conference all phases of work under the Physical Department were taken up and discussed, and the programme of the different features outlined for the year.

Social Activities.

The slogan for our Department has been to promote a spirit of good fellowship and sociability among every member taking advantage of the privileges, and we believe we have in a large extent been successful in this. It has been most gratifying to see the way the Leaders Corps have caught the spirit, and have individually endeavoured to welcome every new member coming in.

Along with this there is a regular Social committee, of which Mr. F. L. Roy is chairman, and each month three of the members of the class work with him in arranging a big social evening. Two of these have already been most successfully carried out. And we look for these monthly socials to be a real factor in the lives of the young men, as they are always chaperoned by some of the best people in our city.

Basketball.

The basketball committee under the chairmanship of Ross Dobbin has carried through a most successful league. Its greatest success being this, viz.: that it interested and brought back a number of our old members who had not been using the privileges for years. One man playing on the Veterans' team said it had been eight years since he had been in the gymnasium.

A fee of one dollar was charged each team. This was to buy prizes for the winning team. The Veterans won the league and instead of taking the prizes they have given the Physical Director the money to go towards providing a banquet for all the men who played in the league. This banquet will be held the latter part of this month and at that time a new league organized.

Besides this there are two leagues among the boys which take care of ten teams.

The Vets. are to be commended on their spirit of generosity.

Bowling.

A committee and senior league of eight teams was organized and started on a successful season. This work was afterwards handed over to the social work.

Leaders Corps.

Too much credit cannot be given the members of our leaders corps. They have been untiring in their efforts, unselfish of their time, and have given of their best in making our work a success. They are the back-bone of the gymnasium work, and the way they handled the work during the absence for two weeks of Mr. Carson is deserving of the high commendation and thanks which was given them by the Board of Directors. We are very sorry to say that four of our senior leaders will be leaving us soon. We commend them in joining in the good fight for liberty and its cause, but they will be sorely missed by our Association.

Life Problem Club.

Which is held every Sunday afternoon, has had an average attendance of about twenty. Subjects of special interest to young men are taken up by our business and professional men of the [illegible] are well qualified to talk to young men on the different problems which confront the young men of our times.

Miscellaneous.

Much of the work, and probably the best work done by an Association officer cannot be tabulated. The private talks to young men and boys regarding their lives or their problems, which may be business, social or religious, is the kind of work that cannot be measured. It has been the aim of your Physical Director to call on as many of the business and professional men as his time would permit and to try and in some way interest them in the work of the Association. In many cases we have not succeeded in getting them into any class or to take an active part in any phase of our work. But it has served to advertise our Association. And honest effort in some way must bring results.

Open House New Year's.

The physical department co-operated with the other departments in making open house on New Year's a success. The boys of the city were given the privileges of the gymnasium and swimming pool in the morning. A demonstration of work for boys was given in the afternoon. And a basketball game between the Veterans and All Stars was a big success in the evening.

Gymnasium Classes.

Three new classes have been added this year, two for boys and one for men, and results obtained have proved that the step was worth taking.

Our gymnasium classes, notwithstanding the fact of money stringency, many of our members enlisting for the front and many more out of work, yet our classes have held up to past records and we are looking forward to a good finish to our season's work.

A report of our activities from the opening of the gymnasium until Jan. 1st shows 218 classes with a total attendance of 2,728. This does not include Collegiate classes, of which there are 70 classes with a total attendance of 1,270, making a total of 288 classes with a total attendance of 3,998.

Ways in Which the Physical Director Has Served Outside of the Association.

On committee and officiated at merchants' picnic.

Refereed and helped in organizing Labour Day sport.

President Church Hockey League.

Leader Young Men's Excelsior Club, George Street Church.

Filled the pulpit and spoke in several of the different churches.

Respectfully submitted,
H. B. Cowan,
Chairman.
Geo. A. Carson,
Physical Director.

Wrestling.

The wrestling class, under the supervision of Mr. Cowan, has got off to a good start and has been growing.

The wrestlers from our Association made a good showing last spring against the Toronto Central Association wrestlers, and these looks like good material in this line this year, which is already composed of twelve (12) men.

N. M. Davidson,
Treasurer Ladies' Auxiliary of Y. M. C. A., 1914.

In giving our annual report for the year we feel, as never before, how necessary it is to exert our influence for good while we have the opportunity. Many of our young men who have enjoyed the benefits of this Association are now enlisted to serve their country on the field of battle. We hope some of the influence received here will be of great benefit to them in a far-off land, and that they may be spared to return.

Early in the year we were favoured with an entertainment given by the Charlotte Street Methodist Ladies' Aid, which helped us financially at the close of which we tendered the Society a banquet.

In March we entertained the boys to the number of about three hundred at a banquet which they thoroughly enjoyed.

The works accomplished during the year consisted of the Rooms Committee supervising the dormitories several times, and in cases where they needed renewed curtains, etc. The Social Committee have been very diligent in their work, looking after the kitchen, and have purchased many new articles such as dishes, cutlery, kitchen utensils, also lumber for the platform for the gymnasium.

This society has held seven regular and two special meetings, with an average attendance of nine.

We are sorry to have lost one of our members, Mrs. Gohsen, by removal, but we are glad to have welcomed some new members, and hope if spared the coming year to welcome many more.

Rheumatism

Just put a few drops of Sloan's on the painful spot and the pain stops. It is really wonderful how quickly Sloan's acts. No need to rub it in—laid on lightly it penetrates to the bone and brings relief at once. Kills rheumatic pain instantly.

Mr. James B. Alexander, of North Hartwell, Me., writes: "My shoulder in my back and hips bothered me shockingly in the middle parts. I had it the bad spot when doing it for me, that I used to bump on my face to get relief. I at once applied Sloan's Liniment to the affected part and in a few minutes it was good as new. I think it is the best of all Liniments I have ever used."

AUDITORS' CERTIFICATE

In accordance with the provisions of subdivisions (2) to (5) of Section 56 of the Bank Act, 1913, we report as follows:

We have examined the books and accounts of the General Manager's Office and the certified returns received from the branches and the above statement, which is in accordance therewith, is in our opinion properly drawn up so as to exhibit a true and correct view of the state of the affairs of the Bank, according to the best of our information and the explanations given to us.

We have checked the cash and verified the securities of the Bank at the Chief Office at December 31st, 1914, as well as at another time during the year, and found them agreed with the entries in the books in regular balances. We have also during the year checked the cash and verified the securities at the principal branches.

We have obtained all the information and explanations that we have required and we are of the opinion that the transactions of the Bank which have come under our notice have been within the powers of the Bank.

Story of An Eye-Witness

Resident of Yarmouth Tells of His Experience

YARMOUTH, Wednesday, Jan. 20.—Mr. Buffolds, a news agent of Great Yarmouth, said: "I was walking along King Street when suddenly I heard a terrific explosion like a roar of mighty thunder. I looked up towards the sky, but could see nothing. The explosion seemed to have come from a spot a few hundred yards away. I ran towards St. Peter's Plain, and found that in St. Peter's Plain and St. Peter's Road two houses had been wrecked, many other houses and shops in the district had also been damaged, and everywhere windows were broken. In addition to St. Peter's Plain and Road, bombs were dropped on Trinity Quay, and in the South Gates Road. On Trinity Quay the tail of a bomb was picked up. The strangest part of the affair was that, although the whole town was shaken by the reverberating explosions of the bombs, owing to the darkness nothing could be seen of any aircraft in the sky."

A WORD OF GRATITUDE.

"In justice to humanity I want to tell you that I was a great sufferer from itching piles, and have found Dr. Chase's Ointment the best treatment obtainable," writes Mr. Fred. Elms, Bentinck Ave. "I gave instant relief and I can recommend it to any sufferer from this dreadful disease."

LOOKS LIKE NEW.

Tomkins—Say, that suit you've got Brown?

Brown—Oh no, just been cleaned and pressed by Read Bros, corner Wolfe and Rubidge. I am getting a new one from them in the spring.

Tomkins—I must send them my blue suit, what do they charge?

PARIS, January 20.—An aeroplane carrying Lt. Laporte of the French army and Lt. Chennery of the British army, fell from a great height to-day and took fire immediately after the crash. The British officer was burned to death. Laporte was rescued from the flames. He died shortly afterwards in an hospital.

CONSTANTINOPLE, January 20, via Berlin. — The Russian offence moving southwar in the Caucasus, continues, it was officially admitted to-day, but the war office declares that the "Turks are obstinately defending themselves against superior forces."

LONDON, Jan. 20.—The brief announcement from Melbourne of the transfer of the seat of government from Melbourne to Sydney, finds no explanation in London. Sydney is the main centre of the naval and military forces of the Commonwealth.

The list of victims of the raid at Yarmouth was added to to-day by the death of Pte. Poulton, of the Essex Regt., whose breast was penetrated by a fragment of a bomb. There are five dead at Yarmouth. The total dead as far as known at noon, is seven, with possibly two more.

WASHINGTON, January 20.—The State Department to-day asked British Ambassador Spring-Rice to secure from his government a full explanation of the alleged hauling down of the United States flag on the cotton steamer Greenbrier, bound for Bremen. The officials of the State Dept. say that this action on the part of the British officers constituted a most serious aspect of the case.

PETERBOROUGH'S ENCORE MANIA

Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I cannot recall as striking an exhibition of the encore mania as that given in St. Paul's church last night. A splendid programme was offered of twelve sterling numbers, but the audience didn't apparently have faith that the programme would be carried out, for it began doubling the dose by demanding an encore for the first number. This programme, anyway, was remorselessly carried out, with the effect that the audience got double value for their money—twenty-four numbers instead of twelve, which without the encore bonus was abundantly well worth the money paid for admission. The result was that the concert lasted till well after eleven o'clock, when the street cars cease running; and many ladies that came by car from distant parts of the city were compelled to walk home, and expecting to use the cars both ways, were not attired for so long a long in the open air in the almost midnight streets.

The encore mania shows a greedy appetite for getting more than is paid for. Of course an encore is a tribute to the artist; but if he is good natured he sings himself tired. People that don't sing, forget that a singer who puts his soul in his work, does as fatiguing work as sawing wood. Exacting so much of musicians is not only a refined form of cruelty to animals, an imposition on good nature, but it suggests that an audience doesn't often spend money on good concerts and is bound to get its money's worth, while the music is on tap, regardless of the fatigue of the performers or the street car time table. I don't object to an occasional encore, but duplicating a heavy programme of a dozen numbers, is "the limit."

Yours truly,
METRONOME.

A Sore Point.

Rev. J. A. McKenzie Will Be Inducted

In St. Paul's Church To-morrow Evening

The induction of Rev. J. A. McKenzie, B.A., B.D., late of Lachute, P. Q., the newly appointed Pastor of Knox Presbyterian Church, will take place to-morrow evening in St. Paul's Church. The service, which will be open to the public, will commence at eight o'clock. The newly-elected minister will be inducted by the Rev. McDonald of Warkworth, Moderator of the Presbytery. Rev. Mr. Thompson of Hastings will address the incumbent of Knox Church, and Rev. R. Pogue will address the people.

At the close of the public service a brief reception will be held, to which a number of ministers have been invited.

THE ADANAC QUARTETTE AND MR. HESSELBERG

The comparative quietness that has marked the concert season thus far was broken last night by a thoroughly enjoyable programme in St. Paul's Church, presented by Mr. Edouard Hesselberg, pianist, and the Adanac Quartette, composed of Messrs. Redferne Hollinshead, Arthur Blight, George Dixon and Ruthven Macdonald. They were greeted by a splendid crowd, a particular compliment, it might be said, to the art of Mr. Macdonald and Mr. Hollinshead, who sang most acceptably a year ago in St. Paul's; and doubtless Mr. Hesselberg should be included, because of the impression he made during the visit of the Rev. Dr. Gordon to this City. Mr. Blight and Mr. Dixon are not so well known in Peterborough, but their participation in last night's concert secured for them a local recognition worthy of their abilities. The talent, including most of the regulars and quite a contingent of volunteers, was plentiful [illegible] and their revelled in the music was amply demonstrated by the fact that the programme was doubled by encore numbers.

From the above it should be gathered that all the features attendant to a satisfactory musical evening were present. And such was the case.

THE PROGRAMME.

The quartette sang Walford Davies' "Hymn Before Action," and as an encore "Po Little Lamb," by Parks. "When Day Fades" was their second number, and its encore, "O to be a Wild Wind," by Elgar. Longfellow's "Bridge," splendidly sung, drew the extra "Lead Kindly Light." Their closing number was "The Pilgrims' Chorus," from Tannhauser.

Mr. Hesselberg played a double number in the first part: (a) "Recit and Song to the Evening Star," from Tannhauser; (b) Liszt's Rhapsody, No. 12. His encore was Chopin's Nocturne in D Flat Major. In the second part he played Chopin's Nocturne in C Minor and "Rouskaja e Trepak," a Russian folk song and dance, by Rubenstein. The audience replied with encore manifestations, and was amply rewarded by the beautifully expressive "Russian Nightingale," by Alabieff, and arranged by Mr. Hesselberg.

Mr. Macdonald's first selection was "The Horn," by Fleger, and as an encore, "I Cling to Thee, My Saviour," by Crojer. In the second part he sang "That Old Sweetheart of Mine," by James Whitcombe Riley, Mr. Hesselberg playing a piano obligate.

Mr. Hollinshead's solo was "The Sorrows of Death," from "The Hymn of Praise," by Mendelssohn. As an encore he sang "A Farewell," by Liddle, a setting of R. L. Stevenson's verse.

Mr. Dixon was heard in "Open the Gates of the Temple," by Knapp, and as an extra Homer's "Requiem."

Mr. Blight sang "It is Enough," from "Elijah," and his encore was a Southern lullaby croon entitled "Mammy's Song," by Harriet Ware.

Messrs. Hollinshead and Blight sang the duet, "Excelsior," by Balfe. Their encore was "A Heart That Loves Music," by Gounod.

It is many a day since a concert so uniformly satisfying has been heard in Peterborough, and Mr. John Allan deserves the congratulations he must have received upon the success of his enterprise and his appreciation of the musical yearnings of the citizens. And while he presented musicians of the first Canadian rank, it is questionable whether the satisfaction demanded by the audience was exactly temperate. The Adanac Quartette, with Mr. Hesselberg, appeared as an oasis to desert travellers, and the spring of music was drained with avidity. That may be overdrawn, but the insistence for encores could scarcely be misjudged. In one sense the audience was not to be blamed, for the extras were equally delightful. Mr. Hesselberg was in splendid form. His opening, "To the Evening Star," is one of the finest selections from Tannhauser. His interpretation was expressive, and after casting a hypnotic spell with the first few lines, he carried his audience to enjoyment depths, where they were content to remain among the lotus blooms of illusion. The Liszt Rhapsody was a masterly performance as a whole in its various movements. The Rubenstein Russian folk song and dance was delightfully played. Its descriptive melody portrayed a village scene, with its phases of live running from the exuberance and abandon of the dance to the rumors of passing shadows, returning again to the abandon of youth and its swift forgetfulness. In the encore number, "The Russian Lark," Mr. Hesselberg was strikingly effective, especially in the bird's song flight from earth, gradually swelling to the piercing note of proximity and diminishing as it disappeared in the heights. All the accompaniments were played by Mr. Hesselberg, and in this respect he showed his musicianly touch by withdrawing from solo effects and becoming for the time being a finished accompanist.

Mr. Macdonald's numbers were very pleasingly presented. His solo, "The Horn," was robust and in perfect tone, and his encore, "I Cling to Thee," will probably claim a first place in the programme's echoes in memory.

Mr. Hollinshead delighted his old friends and won new admirers. His encore was sung most expressively, and proved a most appropriate number. It was a setting of the three verses of Robert Louis Stevenson, ending with the oft-quoted lines—

Do noble things, not dream them all day long;
And so make life and death and that forever
One grand sweet song.

Mr. Blight and Mr. Dixon were received unreservedly, and indeed they have voices and talent that thoroughly equip them for positions with Mr. Macdonald and Mr. Hollinshead.

The work of the Quartette leaves little to be desired. They form a strong combination of well-balanced, experienced soloists, and this section of the Dominion should profit by their organization. Last night they sang "The Pilgrims' Chorus" particularly well, and "The Bridge" was also outstanding in its rendition. Mention should be made of the duo, "Excelsior," sung with fine appreciation and effect by Mr. Blight and Mr. Hollinshead.

The whole programme was exceptionally entertaining, and will not soon be forgotten by the more than 800 ardent listeners who were present.

THE RECEPTION

It has been said that Peterborough is more or less devoid of appreciation of good musical talent, but the number of persons, of both sexes, who attended by special invitation at the charming reception given by Mr. and Mrs. Allan, in the intermediate class room of St. Paul's Sunday school, after the concert would refute this idea. Some one hundred and fifty persons, well known in this city as knowing music well and being good judges of the art were, as Mr. Allan happily put it, gathered together to do honour to the Muse.

After [illegible] refreshments had been partaken of, Mr. Allen welcomed his guests in a very pithy speech. Then Miss Mignon Tehmann entranced her audience by one of her marvellously executed violin solos. Mr. John Crane made a very a-propos speech, followed by the various members of the Adanac Quartette, that by Mr. MacDonald brimming over with wit, the natural sequence being that the guests were nearly bursting with laughter. Incidentally it came out that Adanac is also a Hindustanee word, meaning a vessel with more than one spout. And the speaker prettily observed ,we have four spouters and we have spouted to a pretty good tune. Mr. Hesselbourg followed with a few remarks, stating that playing was more to his metier than speaking, and asking to be excused for any little shortcomings in that direction.

It then being past 12.30 a.m., 'Auld Lang Syne' was sung in the approved fashion, and the company departed to their respective homes, after having spent a most agreeable hour and a half.

Infantry Training

The Matter in This Column is from the Official Manual 1911 and is Published According to Orders of the Home Guard

4. The battalion or depot commander with a medical officer will examine the recruits at the conclusion of the course prescribed in Sec. 4; those considered too weak or too awkward to join their sections will continue the course of elementary instruction, and a detailed report, with a recommendation as to whether such men be retained for further training, or discharged, will be made by the battalion or depot commander to the general officer commanding.

13. Method of Instructing Recruits.

1. The instructor will be clear, firm, concise, and patient; he must make allowance for the different capacities of the men, and avoid discouraging nervous recruits; he must remember that careful individual instruction is the best means of developing the intelligence.

2. The instructor will teach as much as possible by illustration, performing the movements himself or making a smart recruit perform them. The detail for each movement given in this manual is for the information of instructors, who must avoid repeating this detail word for word, because such a method is wearisome and monotonous and would not be understood by some recruits.

The instructor will explain the reason for every movement and formation, and its application in the field.

3. Drills will be short and frequent to avoid the exhaustion of the instructor and recruits.

4. Recruits will be advanced progressively from one exercise to another, men of inferior capacity being put back to a less advanced squad.

5. At first the recruit will be placed in position by the instructor, afterwards he should not be touched, but made to correct himself when faults are pointed out.

6. When the various motions have been learnt, instruction "by numbers" will cease.

14. Words of Command.

1. Commands will be pronounced distinctly, and sufficiently loud to be heard by all concerned.

2. Commands which consist of one word will be proceded by a caution. The caution, or cautionary part of a command, will be given deliberately and distinctly; the last or executive part, which, as a rule, should consist of only one word or syllable, will be given sharply: as Battalion—Halt; Right—Form; Right hand—Salute. A pause will be made between the caution and the executive word. Men will be taught to act upon the last sound of the executive word of command.

3. When the formation is moving, executive words will be completed as the men begin the pace which will bring them to the spot on which the command is to be executed. The caution must be commenced accordingly (see also Sec. 29, 1, note).

4. Young officers and non-commissioned officers will be frequently practised in giving words of command.

5. Indistinct and slovenly words of command beget slovenly movements and must always be avoided.

6. The cautions and commands in this manuel are, as a rule, given with regard to one flank only, but the same principle applies equally to movements to the other flank, which will also be practised.

I. SQUAD DRILL WITHOUT ARMS.

Squad Drill With Intervals.

15. Formation of Squads With Intervals.

1. A few men will be placed in single rank at arm's length apart; while so formed, they will be termed a squad with intervals.

2. Instruction can best be imparted to a squad in single rank, but, if want of space makes it necessary, the squad may consist of two ranks, in which case the men of the rear rank will cover the intervals between the men in the front rank, so that in marching they may take their own points, as directed in Sec. 24.

3. Recruits will, in the first instance, be placed in position by the instructor; when they have learned to dress as described in Sec. 19, they will be taught to fall in as above described, and then to dress and correct their intervals. After they have been instructed as far as Sec. 29, they may wall in as directed in Sec. 30.

4. Recruits formed into a squad will be directed to observe the relative places they hold with each other; while resting between the exercises they will be permitted to fall out and move about; they will be instructed on the commapd Fall in, to fall in as they stood at first.

16. Attention*

Spring up to the following position:—

ATTEN—TION

Heels together and in line. Feet turned out at an angle of about 45 degrees. Knees straight. Body erect, and carried evenly over the thighs, with the shoulders (which should be level and square to the front) down and moderately back,—this should bring the chest into its natural forward position, without any straining or stiffening. Arms hanging easily from the shoulders as straight as the natural bend of the arm, when the muscles are relaxed, will allow, but with the hands level with the centre of the thighs. Wrists straight. Palms of the hands turned towards the thighs, and the heel of the hand and the inside of the finger tips lightly touching them, fingers hanging naturally together and slightly bent. Neck erect. Head balanced evenly on the neck, and not poked forward, eyes looking their own height and straight to the front.

The weight of the body should be balanced on both feet, and evenly distributed between the fore part of the feet and the heels.

The breathing must not in any way be restricted, and no part of the body should be either drawn in or pushed out.

The position is one of readiness, but there should be no stiffness or unnatural straining to maintain it.

17. Standing at ease. STAND AT—EASE.

Keeping the legs straight, carry the left foot about one foot-length to the left so that the weight of the body rests equally on both feet, at the same time carry the hands behind the back and place the back of one hand in the palm of the other, grasping it lightly with the fingers and thumb, and allowing the arms to hang easily at their full extent. (It is immaterial which hand grasps the other.)

Local Man Evaded Constable When Arrested Before—Seven Weeks Liberty

After having his liberty since about December 1st, when he evaded graph of the cheque which was reing that he had succeeded in eluding the officers of the law, John Leasure was arrested about 7 o'clock, last evening at his home in the south end of the City.

Leasure is wanted for horse stealing in the vicinity of Tara. About December 1st, last, he is supposed to have been arrested near there, and gave the name of John Langdon. Constable Mills, while taking him to a neighbouring town for trial, allowed him to go into the lavatory in the train alone, and he promptly climbed through the window at the first station and made his escape.

Detectives Newhall and Meagher, and Constable McCarthy rounded him up at his home, here, last night, after about seven weeks' liberty, and he is now in the local gaol awaiting the arrival of Constable Mills of Tara, who is expected here to-morrow.

Leasure is a young man and married, but his wife is not residing in the City at present. He has several relatives here.

INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS

Guard—H. Flood.
Chairman of Standing Committee—Charles Murty.

east bound freight arrive a little earlier in the morning and with a little more regularity so that the morning papers would be available at an earlier hour. Mr. Dodd went on to say that was so far as he was concerned he was continually recommending changes that would improve the local service supplied by the company, so much so that he had come to be regarded as a "chronic kicker." He intimated that two of the trains now running on the lakeshore line would probably be discontinued for the same reason that prompted the company to reduce the passenger service over the Peterborough line. He suggestgested that a deputation of two or more be appointed to wait upon Mr. Arundel in Toronto, and present the memorial that was before the meeting.

Memorial Endorsed.

Mr. E. N. McWilliams brought matters to a head by moving the adoption of the memorial and endorsing the suggestion of Mr. Dodd. This was seconded by Mr. Robt. Fair, who pointed out the advantages that would accrue to the city by having an improved passenger service.

Mr. Basil Hall, President of the Board of Trade, outlined the action that had been followed by the Board, which consisted of a communication being addressed to Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, President of the company. A courteous reply was received in which it was stated that a falling off in passenger receipts necessitated a reduction of the service. Sir Thomas also laid emphasis upon the fact that only two trains had been taken off the Peterbo high line.

It was decided to leave the matter of appointing a deputation in the hands of the committee who will undertake to see that Peterborough's justification for an improved train service is placed before General Superintendent Arundel.

Which latter will be the figures used herein.
Whereas, the aggregate population at C.P.R. stations, from Smith's Falls to Peterborough, exclusive, equals only 10,306
And from Peterborough to Toronto 1,985
Or a total between Smith's Falls and Toronto, exclusive of Peterborough, of 12,293
Which number is 6,707
Less than that of Peterborough alone.

And whereas the total population of the shore line from Trenton to Toronto is 34,709, and assuming there is an equal division of business between the three trunk lines, this would give to the C.P.R., for the sake of argument, the very liberal figure of 11,570, which is 7,420 less than that of Peterborough. In other words, the population of Peterborough upon this basis is, we believe, equal to and has a revenue producing power of that of all stations on both C.P.R. lines between Smith's Falls and Toronto.

And whereas the existing freight and passenger business of Peterborough is much in excess of any division on either line of C.P.R. between Toronto and Montreal, and, as such, is entitled to and demands railway service in accordance with its commercial importance.

And whereas the present time table of the C.P.R., judging from orders heretofore made by the railway commissioners in other similar cases, would not, in view of the paramount importance of Peterborough, meet with the Board's approval.

And whereas your memorialists have decided that their rights and interests and those of their fair city have been overlooked by your company, Peterborough being the only point between Montreal and Toronto that should control and regulate all traffic arrangements in that district, whether the new shore line be considered or not, the following requests and observations are made:

1. That the local express from Tweed to Toronto, in view of the population between Peterborough and Toronto being altogether about one-tenth of that of Peterborough City alone, be made a fast express between Peterborough and Toronto without stop, except at Burketon Junction, for Lindsay connection, and that upon the return trip the same policy should be observed, but timed to leave Toronto an hour or more later.

2. That an accommodation train be added between Peterborough and Toronto to take care of the intermediate stations and the milk business.

3. That whereas there is no morning mail from Toronto until after the arrival of the 12.18 p.m. train, that a local to Peterborough from Toronto, to leave at say 7 a.m., be added to accommodate the stations as far east as Peterborough, and that the train now leaving the Union Station at 9.20 a.m. b made a fast train as far as Peterborough at any rate.

4. That the accommodation just mentioned do return to Toronto in the early afternoon, so that the regular afternoon express be a fast train to Toronto from Peterborough without stop, except at Burketon Junction, for Lindsay connection.

5. Your memorialists point out that there is little use in running two trains in the same direction, as has been heretofore done, within an hour of one another.

6. That the time-table should be so amended as to give passengers on through trains connection with St. John, N.B., Chicago, and other points East and West.

7. To accomplish these requirements it may be necessary to restore the "Canadian," "Dominion," and "Wolverine" to the Peterborough line, which should have adequate accommodation, even if the shore line with its three parallel trunk lines prove a failure. We are convinced that if the next season's time-tables are made popular to our citizens the C.P.R. would profit thereby.

8. Your memorialists wish to call your attention to lack of consideration towards Peterborough in the preparation of their time-tables, both as published in the newspapers and in folder form. A cursory examination will satisfy the company as to this. All trains by the old line should be stated as via Peterborough, and not via Havelock, which is not and never will be recognised by the travelling public, and all train boards and announcements should be so made.

9. Efforts should be made to give Peterborough a standard sleeper to Montreal, so that its patrons could retire at a reasonable hour, and upon return would not have to get out in the middle of the night, and to this end, Peterborough ought to be properly equipped without delay. It may be alleged by the company that there are not enough Pullman travellers to warrant such a step, but if accommodations were made acceptable many more might be induced to travel by night. Furthermore, a little judicious advertising would make Peterborough a sleeping car centre for the whole of the Midland District, inclusive of through traffic to and from C.P.R. steamers via Peterborough and Port McNicholl route.

10. Parlour and cafe cars are necessary on all through day car expresses and parlour cars on local expresses to Toronto.

Your memorialists are surprised to learn that certain parlour cars have recently been discontinued, to the annoyance and inconvenience of Peterborough citizens, whose reservations in both parlour and sleeping cars should in future be duly honoured.

FAIR MEN TO PROTEST.

Ontario Committees Resent Cutting of Provincial Grant.

TORONTO, Jan. 19.—Committees on fairs and exhibitions throughout the province are declaring themselves up in arms against the action of the Ontario Department of Agriculture in cutting the annual grant in half. Representatives claimed yesterday that when the annual convention assembled in Toronto on Feb. 2 that a monster deputation will approach the Government and urge that their support be made the same as in the past. Some were very outspoken in discussing the affair, and stated that it was a most inappropriate year to launch such a policy. If the department pursued such a course how could they expect that the farmers would rally in a great production campaign.

The official explanation of the Department is learned to be that an announcement of this change was given early last fall, and that the majority of the fairs will not suffer much because of their present strength.

Dispensation Granted Catholics.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Because of the high price of fish in England, special dispensation has been granted by Cardinal Bourne to all Catholics in England permitting them to eat meat Fridays and fast days.

BRONCHIAL COUGHS

When the bronchial tubes are affected with that weakening, tickling cough, they need immediate and sensible treatment. The breath seems shorter because of mucous obstructions; usually fever is present and your head jars with every cough. Your chest aches and the inflammation often spreads to the lungs.

The food-tonic that has proven its worth for forty years—is Scott's Emulsion. It drives out the cold, which is the root of the trouble, and checks the cough by aiding the healing process of the enfeebled membranes.

If you are troubled with bronchitis or know an afflicted friend, always remember that Scott's Emulsion builds strength while relieving the trouble.

ACID STOMACHS ARE DANGEROUS

Common Sense Advice by a Distinguished Specialist.

"Acid" stomachs are dangerous because acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach, thus hindering and preventing the proper action of the stomach, and leading to probably nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble from which people suffer. Ordinary medicines and medicinal treatments are useless in such cases, for they leave the source of the trouble, the acid in the stomach, as dangerous as ever. The acid must be neutralized, and its formation prevented, and the best thing for this purpose is a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia, a simple antacid, taken in a little warm or cold water after eating, which not only neutralizes the acid, but also prevents the fermentation from which acidity is developed. Foods which ordinarily cause distress may be eaten with impunity if the meal is followed with a little bisurated magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist, and should always be kept handy.

"Bravest Chaps on Earth" Is Surgeon's Tribute to Belgians

British Medical Officer Says Most Badly Wounded of King Albert's Troops "Just Grin and Bear It," with Never a Complaint

That the Belgian army, though greatly reduced in numbers, is still to the fore in the most desperate of the hand to hand encounters with the invaders of their country and that they are unexcelled for absolute pluck and daring, is shown in a letter from a British medical officer engaged in the removal of Belgian wounded from a port on the French coast to Britain. The letter was reproduced in a recent issue of the Edinburgh "Scotsman" as follows:

"We were pitchforked on board a Belgian hospital ship to carry wounded Belgians to Southampton. We had a busy party—four doctors, two nurses, and twenty rattling good fellows of the Royal Army Medical Corps. My word, we did work! There were 409 wounded Belgians that trip, and out of that number 230 were stretcher cases. Some of them were horribly injured and we dealt with them on the way over.

"One man, a major, had ten shrapnel bullets in each leg, causing compound fractures. The wounded were a patient lot. They are most wonderful fellows, the Belgians. I think they must be just about the bravest chaps on earth. You never hear a groan or a complaint from any of them. They just grin and bear it, the devils.

"You people at home cannot possibly realize what war is like. I know I didn't till I came out here, but I know now. The need for establishing new hospital accommodation as the fighting moves backward or forward will be recognized, and you will understand how it is that we must be ready to be pitchforked anywhere at a moment's notice and even to find patients from the fighting line awaiting us. This happened once. And to see the poor chaps (Belgians) in the streets, with nowhere to sleep, and no grub, and some of them almost collapsed with exhaustion—and one man helping another—would almost make you cry. That didn't last long. We had a good hospital going in no time at all; but it was one of the things which must happen in war.

"On a subsequent voyage with 300 patients we had a fearful passage owing to a storm. Half the staff went down seasick, and nearly all the wounded. It was an awful time for the poor beggars. And there we were, grabbing here and there and sliding around helping them all we could. But we landed them all right, and not a death. How's that? No deaths out of 700 taken over in two journeys. I was a proud, proud lad. We all were."

Installation Of Officers

The members of Lansdowne Lodge, Sons of England, held their installation of officers at their regular meeting held January 18th. District Deputy Supreme Lodge Officer conducted the installation ceremonies. The following were the officers installed for the year 1915:

Past President — Bro. T.

President—A. Frick.

Vice President — Bro. R.

Chaplain—Bro. A. Fallis.

Financial Secretary — Bro.

Recording Secretary—Bro. Skinner.

Worthy Treasurer—Bro. C. Wood.

1st Committee Chariman—Bro. W. Taylor.

2nd Committee Chairman—Bro. C. Whalley.

3rd Committee Chairman—Bro. B. J. Lennox.

4th Committee Chairman—Bro. H. Land.

5th Committee Chairman—Bro. H. Colt.

6th Committee Chairman—Bro. F. Record.

Inner Guard—T. J. Goodwin.

Outer Guard—Bro. R. Redman.

After the installation several letters were read from members serving with the British Regulars, the Navy, and the First Canadian Contingent, and reference was also made to the members of the Lodge who have recently joined the Overseas Forces. Bros. Dr. T. Young, D. Eldred, H. Fallis, T. Fairbiss, H. Wellford, W. R. Field, and R. W. Stevens being among the latest to volunteer.

The Lodge has already given twenty-four members to the Overseas Forces and has guaranteed to keep each one in good standing until his return, a record that is probably not equalled by any Fraternal Society in the City.

After the installation refreshments were served and the members enjoyed a social hour together.

INFORMATION ABOUT TRAINS

Citizens Are Asked to State Cases of Inconvenience

The Editor, Examiner:

Dear Sir,—At the last meeting of the Board of Trade the question of the curtailment of the train service on the Canadian Pacific Railroad, by taking off two of the best trains running through Peterborough each way daily, was discussed, and it was decided that an effort would be made to ascertain the full effect of such change. The trains that have been discontinued are the trains going East at 4.34 a.m. and 2.03 a.m. and going West at 3.31 p.m. and 5.24 a.m. These being the only trains on the line of the C. P. R. through Peterborough making direct connection with trains through to Chicago on the West and Boston on the East, the Board has ascertained that a very serious inconvenience has been felt by citizens travelling further West than Toronto and further East than Montreal by reason of the cancellation of these trains, and, moreover, that the service to Toronto and Montreal is seriously affected and the Board intends to do its utmost towards having the present condition improved. To this end it will be necessary for the Board to have full particulars of the inconvenience experienced by the citizens, and will require expressions from parties interested in the City of their opinions, based upon actual knowledge, of the effect of the change, and before the next meeting of the Board, to be held on Tuesday, the 9th proximo, will require letters expressing these opinions, to be given through the press, addressed to the editors of the different papers. Unless this information is given over the signature of the writers the Board will be seriously hampered in its efforts, and all persons having knowledge of the facts will be giving the City a benefit by giving them publicity.

I would personally be obliged, Mr. Editor, if you would publish this letter in your paper with or without the courtesy of the publication of letters in response to it if signed by the writers. Yours truly,

BASIL D. HALL, President.

Russians Attempt To Separate German Armies

Advance Movement of Grand Duke's Armies Along the Vistula Is Evidently Intended to Prevent a Junction of the German Army in North Poland With That Defending East Prussia

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Gen. von Hindenburg continues to pound his huge machine to pieces against the Russian defences in Poland. After five months the German offensive has absolutely failed to attain its objective. Now the Russians, in conjunction evidently with the vigorous offensive on the western front, have commenced a big sweeping movement to prevent a junction of the German troops in Poland and East Prussia. With the [illegible] reinforcements now at his disposal, the Grand Duke Nicholas is apparently hurling his weight once more on the enemy's left flank, which may be forced to abandon its attack on Warsaw.

The Russian troops which crossed the Carpathian Mountains are reported to have emerged into the plains of Hungary and to have effected a junction. When the plans for an advance into Transylvania are complete an attempt will be made, it is said, to invade Hungary from the north and east.

The war area here has been the scene of extraordinary activity during the last ten days, and it is clear that new dispositions are under way. Masses of cavalry swarm over the country along the Vistula to smother such forces of the enemy's mounted troops as they encounter. One cavalry division had considerable success in an engagement at Radsonow, and another pushed the enemy's patrols beyond Blizpe. The Cossacks are now skirmishing beyond Blizpe, backed by important forces of mounted infantry and field artillery.

So successful has been the deployment of this army that the Germans are trembling for the fate of the Vloclawek - Lowicz - Thorn Railway, which at Sierpe makes a bend that brings it close to the Vistula. The present Russian march threatens this link of the enemy's communications.

Large fires are reported in this vicinity, and the inference is that the enemy is devastating the country previous to his retirement. The collapse of the Warsaw campaign was not expected so early.

Two Sides To The Story

Germany Seizes Four Torpedo Boats Being Built For Dutch Government

LONDON, Jan. 20.—When the British Government at the beginning of the war exercised a pre-emption on the two Turkish battleships, a group of Chilian Soldier leaders, and the three Brazilian monitors, the German press made the most of the incident in order to poison the minds of neutral nations. In particular, they made great use of the purchase of the Turkish battleships in order to influence the opinion of the people of the Porte. It was urged that in seizing these ships the British government had committed an unwarrantable act, placing Turkey at a serious disadvantage. Then followed the escape of the Goeben and Breslau, and the report that Germany had sold them to Turkey with the object of winning the good opinion of the Turks, injuring the British cause, and at the same time saving their ships from internment during the period of war. We now have the other side of the picture. When war opened four torpedo boats were being built by the Vulcan Works at Stettin, for the Dutch Government. They were vessels displacing 365 tons, and, provided with four torpedo tubes. Germany made a great flourish in announcing that the Greek battleship Salamis, which is still far from complete, would be handed over to the German Government when she was ready. It is said that the four Dutch torpedo boats building at Stettin, which can be got ready for sea in a comparatively short time, were immediately seized, and thus Germany will be able to make good at one stroke the loss which the Underseas, with a number of British destroyers, recently inflicted upon her.

SIXTY WIDOWS ONE STREET.

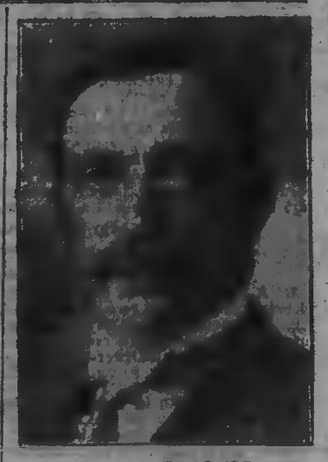
They Suffer Their Bereavement With Splendid Fortitude.

CHATHAM, Jan. 18.—There is a road in Gillingham which deserves to be called the Street of Sorrows. There are 139 houses in it—two monotonous rows of small, plain houses along less than a quarter-mile of drab street, with only its name, Chaucer road, to distinguish it in peace from a score of others in this unlovely neighbourhood.

Now it has a sad distinction. The war has made sixty women widows in that street. Sixty widows in 139 houses. It is a poignant example of how Chatham and the district near, including Rochester, Strood, Gillingham and Rainham, have suffered by the naval losses since August.

The Formidable is the ninth boat manned by men of the Chatham division that has been lost. The others are the Aboukir, Hogue, Cressy, Hermes, Pathfinder, Speedy, Hawke and Ramilla.

The Mayor of Chatham, Alderman Payne stated that there were over 500 families bereaved in the district. "The splendid fortitude of the women," he said, "is an inspiration to us all."



MR. J. H. GARBUTT

Who was re-elected President of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, at the annual meeting which was held to-day.

Major Gault Writes From The Trenches

MONTREAL, Jan. 19.—A letter from Major Hamilton Gault dated "In the trenches, January 3rd," has been received by R. E. MacDougall of Montreal.

Major Gault describes his personal experiences on the duty before Christmas, when he with a few others spent some time in the trenches and were vigorously shelled by the Germans. This engagement was the first in which the Princess Pats came under fire. Major Gault's reference to the engagement follow:

"A few of us went up to the trenches, which are not so very far away, to get a general idea of the situation.

"It was an interesting experience and one that I shan't soon forget. We got a nasty bit of shelling on the eve of Christmas Eve, and for about fifteen minutes I really thought it was all, or very nearly all, over. The Huns got a nice bunch on us, and their direction was perfect, and, before you could say 'Knife' they plunged in eight or ten 'Weary Willies' (small Jack Johnsons, from howitzers) which burst just behind our back parapet within ten yards of the 'dug-out' in which we were lying. The crashes were deafening, and six yards shorter would have found us nicely.

"Our division is off to the firing line to-morrow or Tuesday, so as a battalion, we shall soon be in it.

Mrs. Gault's Letter.

Mrs. George Washington Stephens, 393 Dorchester Street, received a letter this morning from her daughter, Mrs. Hamilton Gault, from London.

"In my last letter," Mrs. Gault says, "Hamilton told me that he had been chosen to go with the division staff for three days into the trenches on Dec. 24. He is tickled to death, as only ten officers have been chosen out of the whole brigade, and he will have been the first Canadian in the trenches in 1914. Hamilton took his headquarters company into the trenches next an English regiment, 400 yards away from the Germans. Some of the English made a bet with our men that they would not capture a German gun which was opposite to them. They jumped out of the trench, captured the gun and cleared the Germans out of their trench just to show their pluck."

Mrs. Gault also says: "They were mad with joy at going into action," and before they were in the trenches they "were in billets some miles from the firing line, where the peasants were goodness itself to the men, who were sleeping in barns and cowsheds,"

THE WORLD OF SPORT

KEEN ICE ASSURED FOR FRIDAY'S GAME

Weather Man Promises Good Weather and Everything Points to a Real Battle All the Way---Petes Came Through Whitby Game in Good Shape

The weather man promises a cold snap for to-morrow, which will insure a keen sheet of ice for Friday night, when the Oshawa intermediates will battle with the Petes at Brock Street rink. The game should be one of the season's features. Oshawa have always been an awkward proposition for the homesters and on slippery going they will be worthy adversaries. The Petes must win this game to keep in the running and will have their strongest line-up on when they go into action. Picton already have a victory over Oshawa to their credit and it is up to Ack. Hunter's braves to follow suit. The team came through the Whitby game in good shape and they should be at the top of their form on Friday night. The reserved seat plan is on sale at the Morgan Hardware Co. and the tickets are going fast. This is the second last home game in the group race and will attract a big crowd.

JUNIORS PLAY PORT HOPE TO-MORROW NIGHT

The Peterborough junior O. H. A. team will leave for Port Hope on the 11.40 G.T.R. train to-morrow morning to play the postponed game with the Ontarios. This is the all important game for the young Petes. They must beat Port Hope to stay in the running and they are fully alive to the situation. The prospect of fast ice pleases the Petes just as much as it does the Ontarios and it should be a grand battle. The Peterborough team has improved 100 per cent. since it met the Ontarios before, and the boys are anxious to show the fans that they are a better team than the Lake Shore bunch. A Peterborough win will likely cause a three-cornered tie-up in the district, provided Cobourg does not spill the beans.

The following team will represent the Petes:

Goal—Legros.
Defence. Morrow and Long.
Rover—Rose.
Centre—Jackson.
R. Wing—Knapman.
L. Wing—Richardson.
Spares—Smyth and O'Connell.

HOCKEY GOSSIP

JUNIOR CHURCH LEAGUE.

Last night Mark Street Church won from George Street Church, 7 to 2. The boys were inclined to be a little rough, however, and many penalties resulted. For Mark Street, Nellist, Lipsett and McIntyre starred, while Simpson and Graham played good hockey for George Street. The teams, at half-time, stood 4—1. Mr. Alf. Austin referred. Following is the line-up:

To-night, St. John's play Knox, at 8 o'clock.

The Peterborough juniors and intermediates will practice at Brock Street rink to-night at 7 o'clock in preparation for their games with Port Hope and Oshawa. The juniors will practice from 7 to 7.30 and the intermediates from 7.30 to 8 o'clock. A full turnout of both teams is expected.

Last night in the Brock Street Rink between 10 and 11 o'clock the boys of the G. N. W. Telegraph Co. and the Grand Trunk blanked the C.P.R. in a fast, exciting game of hockey by the score of 3—0. The score would no doubt have been much larger had it not been for the good work of Holyman in goal for the C.P.R., who had a lot of hard stops to his credit. Some rough play was started but it was soon stopped by "Scorcher" Bartley, who handled the bell quite satisfactorily. Following is the line-up:

BOWLING

In the Y. M. C. A. High School Bowling League the Elegantes won two out of three from the Nemos. The following is the score:

Austria Massing Against Servia.

ATHENS, Jan. 20. — A despatch from Salonika declares an important concentration on the part of the Austrians is under way on the Servian frontier. The army which, re-formed under Archduke Eugene, after it had been driven out of Belgrade, has been reinforced by fresh troops and by a contingent of Saxons detached from the German reserve force, originally intended to go to Poland.

Old Country Football News

The news that terms were arranged between Swindon Town and Chelsea, as a result of which the former played their F. A. Cup-tie at Stamford Bridge, will cause a big surprise in the football world.

This is the first, and will probably be the only, instance in which a club drawn at home in the First Round has foregone the right to play on its own ground. The reason for the change of venue is apparent. Swindon, in common with the majority of other clubs, have been losing money steadily since the season opened, and while the terms upon which they agreed to visit Chelsea have not been made public, it may confidently be assumed that the Wiltshire organization would benefit financially to a considerable extent.

It is interesting, in view of the arrangement made between the clubs to recall that the record attendance at an F. A. Cup-tie—apart from the Final tie—was at Stamford Bridge, on March 11, 1911, when Chelsea met Swindon in the fourth round. The receipts amounted to £2,549 18s., the number of spectators who paid admission being 75,017; but the gates were rushed and several thousands gained admission without payment.

There hangs to-day in the directors' room of the Swindon Club a photograph o fthe cheque which was received from Chelsea on that occasion, and it amounted to four figures.

For The Refugees.

An international football match took place at Milan between a Franco-Belgian and an Italian team. The proceeds were devoted to the assistance of the refugees from the Italian provinces of Austria. In spite of the rain the Arena was packed. Among the spectators were the Belgian, French and British Consuls.

The two teams were greeted enthusiastically upon entering the field, and the respective National Anthems were played. The Italian team won by six goals to two.

In the evening a banquet was given in honour of the Franco-Belgian team which afterwards attended a gala performance at a theatre.

"For Our Sakes"

Rifleman W. Richards, 2nd Batt., Rifle Brigade, —th Division, who is at the Front, writes to the Chelsea Club stating how interested his comrades and himself are in what is happening in the football world.

"The boys want you to know," he says, "how we get the football results in the trenches. We get an issue of newspapers every now and again, and they are passed down one man to another, till everybody knows how their teams are getting on.

"I can tell you, you don't know how football gives encouragement to our troops in the trenches. It cheers every man who takes an interest in football, and I can tell you that I feel downhearted if I don't know how Chelsea are getting on. To talk about stopping football is all 'Tommy rot,' because if they were to stop football they would make the troops in the trenches downhearted; so I do hope it wont be stopped, just for our sakes, who are at the Front."

MORE SHOCKS RECORDED.

Greek Islands, Switzerland and France Have Tremors

PARIS, Jan. 20. — Violent earthquakes occurred Monday in Zante and Cephalonia, islands in the Ionian group, in the Mediterranean, according to an Athens' despatch. It is feared that considerable damage has resulted.

An earthquake occurred throughout Switzerland last night. The shock was felt between 11.30 and 11.40 o'clock. It extended from Lugano to Basel and from Lausanne to St. Gall. Berne also felt the shock, which was severest, however, at Neuchatel, where several houses were damaged. Elsewhere the shocks were slight. The disturbance caused many avalanches in the Alps.

A severe earth shock shook the houses in Belfort Monday night about 10.30 o'clock. In some cases furniture was overturned and the doors of residences were burst open.

Germans Fail To Make Good At Soissons

Blinding Fall of Snow Prevents Activity From Flanders to the Vosges—Capture by the French of La Boisselle Near Albert Upsets German Offensive

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Complete victory in the battle for the possession of La Boisselle, northeast of Albert, defeat of the German purpose to make good their gains north of Soissons, and capture of a new field work, with the occupation of five hundred yards of hostile trenches northwest of Pont-a-Mousson in their movement to take St. Mihiel and carry out their drive on Metz, were the features of the French official report published last night.

Snowstorms of blinding fury have intervened to disrupt the offensive plans of the allies along the whole battle line from Flanders to the Vosges. The valley of the Aisne alone afforded the hostile forces a field for combat.

Despite the snow, the French artillerists in the region of Arras attacked heavily the German batteries, which, after a terrific cannonade, were reduced to silence.

At La Boisselle, where previous official statements from Paris had been chronicled, the recovery by the French of their positio n in the town the futility of a counter-offensive evidently has been effectively impressed upon the German commander, for the expected attempt to retake the town failed to materialize, and the French remain in full possession.

Paris looks upon the situation in the west with optimism, and these is a disposition to await with patience the fulfillment of Gen. Joffre's promise that the real offensive movement will be carried out in the spring.

Last night's official statement from the French War Office merely said: "There is no incident of importance to report."

The afternoon communique at Par is said:

"In Belgium there has been snowstorm and also intermittent artillery exchanges at certain points. There was also a fall of snow yesterday in the region of Arras, whose our heavy artillery on several different occasions silenced the batteries of the enemy.

"As we set forth yesterday, a fairly spirited engagement has been developing at La Boisselle, where, following the breaking out of several fires, we were compelled during the night of Jan. 17-18 to evacuate our positions. These, however, we recaptured Jan. 18 at daybreak. The enemy has not renewed his attacks on this part of our front.

"In the section of Soissons the bombardment of the suburb of St. Paul during the night of Jan. 17-18, was not followed by any infantry attack, and the day of Jan. 18 passed in absolute calmness.

"In the Valley of the Aisne, to the east of Soissons and in the section of Rheims, there were yesterday artillery exchanges.

"To the northwest of Pont-a-Mousson we yesterday occupied another field work of the enemy in the forest of Le Pretre, where we to-day occupy 500 yards of the trenches of the enemy.

"In the Vosges yesterday saw a snowstorm. Here also there has been artillery fighting, particularly in Ban De Sapt and in the neighborhood of Thann."

French Close To Metz.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20. — A Paris cable to The Tribune says: "By a determined assault the French have captured nearly a third of a mile of strongly fortified German positions in the forest of Le Pretre, about three miles from the German border east of St. Mihiel, and within ten miles of Forts Sommy and Wagner, in the outside ring of earthworks surrounding the stronghold of Metz."

"PATS" DID NOT CHARGE

Wounded Officers Say Regiment Was In Trenches, However

LONDON, Jan. 20—Capt. Cuthbert Smith of the Princess Patricia's who has been in an hospital here, wounded, was positive when see yesterday that all stories of the "Pats" being in a charge and so forth were pure imagination.

Capt. Smith met with his own injury the day before Capt. Newton was killed. He was in the trenches along with the "Pats" for four days and nights. It was towards the end of this spell of heavy duty that he had the misfortune to stray away from his own line. From the darkness he fell into a German trench. Fortunately, it was only occupied by many dead Germans. The enemy had evacuated that particular position for some time and Capt. Smith lay there a long time while waiting to ascertain if the Germans were in the vicinity. At length, having satisfied himself on this point he crawled out with the greatest difficulty, the fall having injured his knee considerably.

The casualties among the Princess Pats so far, he says, have been five killed and sixteen wounded.

Turkish Ships Torpedoed.

SEBASTOPOL, Jan. 20. — (Via Petrograd.)—A detachment of Russian torpedo boats have entered the Bay of Sinope, a Turkish port of the Black Sea in Asia Minor, and have sent to the bottom a Turkish steamer and three sailing vessels. The crews of all four ships were saved. The name of the steamer appears to have been the Meorgee. No date of this engagement is given. The news is trustworthy.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

According to a despatch from Copenhagen The Berlin Tageblatt states that Roumania has purchased in the United States $9,650,000 worth of war supplies.

A Venice despatch to The London News says that the official Giornale D'Italia fully confirms reports that Hungary is attempting to make peace apart from Austria.

The Kingston police commissioners will take up charges made against Chief of Police Wm. Baillie, by Ald. Hugh Nickle. He declared that the police system is very lax.

Geo. Frothingham, the original "Friar Tuck" of the old Bostonian Opera Company, died suddenly yesterday in Burlington, Vt., of heart failure. He was 75 years of age.

Mrs. Robt. H. Sherard, the authoress, known as "Irene Osgood," was granted a divorce yesterday in London from her third husband, Robt. H. Sherard, on the ground of misconduct and cruelty.

A. W. Wheatley, general manager of the Canadian Locomotive Co., left Kingston yesterday for Europe. Mr. Wheatley will visit Russia in an attempt to secure contracts either for locomotives or shrapnel.

Total casualties, officially reported, among the Canadians at Salisbury Plain so far number 57, 20 of them due to meningitis. Nothing has yet been heard of the Patricia's casualties aside from the death of Capt. Newton.

Sir William Osler, Regius Professor at Oxford has offered his services to aid the McGill Base Hospital, which with students and professors from McGill and nurses from local hospitals, will leave for the front in the spring.

Italian Officials Missing In Turkey.

ROME, Jan. 20. — The Secolo states that the Italian Foreign Office is about to make energetic representations to Constantinople to ascertain the fate of the two missing Italian officials who left Smyrna Oct. 31 and who were believed to have been arrested by Turks.

INDIA IS ENTHUSIASTIC

Recruiting Among East Indians is Going on Briskly

LONDON, Jan. 20. — (Through Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—A special despatch from Delhi says:

All India re-echoes the tribute paid by his excellency the viceroy at the recent opening of the council to the commander-in-chief of the army. The work of the military departments is regarded as splendid. Large numbers of Indian army reserve officers are offering to serve with the Indian regiments.

Recruiting for the Indian army continues with remarkable enthusiasm. The fighting races have been greatly stirred by the news of Indian successes at the front. Indian wounded who have returned are most enthusiastic in their praise of the kindness and attention which they have received in Europe. The volunteer movements has been given great impetus throughout the country, and useful gifts to be forwarded to the combatants and the sick are being received daily.

Terrorism In Constantinople.

SALONIKA, Jan. 20.—It is declared here by arrivals from Turkey that a reign of terror now prevails in Constantinople compared to which the worst days under the rule of Sultan Abdul Hamid were mild.

The city is now ruled by Enver Pasha, former Minister of War. Anyone attempting to spread the news of the latest defeats of the Turkish army is summarily hanged on Galata bridge. The truth of the setbacks in the Caucasus and the abandonment of the designs upon Egypt is becoming gradually known to a large part of the population, however. The people, it is said, are ripe for revolt against the rule of the "Young Turks" party and domination of the Germans.

Province Retrenches on Park Work

TORONTO, Jan. 20.—As a part of the general policy of economy which the Ontario Government is pursuing this year Hon. Finlay Macdiarmid yesterday announced that the proposed building at Table Rock in Niagara Falls Park would not be undertaken. The handling of this matter has provided Government consideration for some time because of the fact that it was a popular pleasure resort and under the control of the park commission.

German Leader Killed.

PAID RESPECTS TO DEAD SOLDIER

Private John Lightfoot Laid to Rest With Military Honours

The funeral of the late Pte. J. Lightfoot took place under military auspices this afternoon, and the large number of citizens attending testified to the esteem of the deceased.

Rev. J. R. Wilson, Pastor of Charlotte Street Methodist Church, conducted a very impressive service at the residence of Mr. W. H. Collier, 408 Walton street, from which the funeral took place.

A large number of members of the 57th Regiment of which the late Pte. Lightfoot was at one time Sergeant, of No. 6 Company, were present in uniform.

The firing party, in charge of Sol.-Sgt. Dodds, consisted of twelve privates, one corporal, and one bugler. The guard numbered about sixty, including Captain Lech, Lieut. Cameron, and Captain Spencer, the latter a member of the Third Overseas Contingent, two members of the Police Department and two members of the Fire Department.

The pall-bearers were Q.M.-Sgt. Edwards, Staff-Sgt. Matchett, Staff-Sgt. Roberts, Col.-Sgt. Dawes, Col.-Sgt. Dummitt, and Sgt. Targett, of the 57th Regiment.

Corp. O'Connors, of Winnipeg, a former Brantford boy, who was escort with the remains to Peterborough, accompanied the mourners.

The floral tributes were very numerous, being from friends both in Winnipeg and Peterborough.

"Gee Whiz! We Are Getting Silly"

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—The meeting in the Council Chamber showed that this City had better freight and newspaper facilities than before, but not so good passenger. Our people seem to be going crazy. They want everything they can think of or hear of. Gee whiz! We are getting silly,

Yours truly,

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—Fluttering out of export demand today pulled the ground from under the bulls in wheat. After being heavy from the start, and at one time 3½c down for May, the market closed unsettled at 2½c to 2½c under last night. Other leading staples, too, all showed top losses—corn 1½c to 1¾c, oats 1c to 1¼c, and provisions 10c to 22½c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 19.—Quite a sharp reaction took place in wheat prices today. Opening figures were ¾c to ⅞c lower and a further decline of 2½c to 2¾c had occurred. The influences causing the break were weaker Liverpool cables, heavier arrivals there and Argentine wheat now in competition.

Inspections on Monday totalled 397 cars and in eight today were 190 cars.

Wheat futures closed 2¾c to 2¾c lower, cash closed 2c to 2½c lower on contract grades and oats ¼c lower.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Jan. 19.—There was no improvement in the overseas demand for Manitoba spring wheat today and business in consequence was very quiet. Cables stated that there was considerable reselling at less money than stocks were bought for. The market for coarse grains is quiet, with a steady trade passing in car lots. Spring wheat flour was in demand and a few sales were made. Local and country demand was also better and the market on the whole is more active, with a firm undertone.

Millfeed was in good demand, butter was unchanged, cheese steady and eggs active and firm.

Foresters Hold Open Meeting

Officers Installed at St. Peter's Court 225, C. O. F., Last Evening

The open meeting of St. Peter's Court, No. 225, Catholic Order of Foresters, held in the Auditorium of St. Alphonsus Lyceum last evening, was well attended. The Order is in a very flourishing condition, and the local court is credited with making the best showing of any court in Ontario.

Rev. Father Phelan occupied the chair, and D.H.C.R. J. P. Shevlin installed the following officers:

C.R.—Jos. Denne.
V.C.R.—Wm. Garvey.
P.C.R.—Wm. Perdue.
Speaker—N. Trombley.
Rec. Secretary—J. P. Bryson.
Fin. Secretary—F. Eano.
Treasurer—James Ciancy.
Trustees—John Halpin, Wm. McAuliffe, Chas. Meyette.
S.C.—Peter Collins.
J.C.—Wm. Woodhouse.
Sentinels—James Tobin and M. J. O'Toole.

Among the speakers of the evening were His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, Rev. Father J. O'Brien, of the Sacred Heart Parish; Prov. Chief Ranger L. V. Dusseau and High Trustee M. F. Morgan, of Toronto; Mr. L. V. McElderry and Dr. McNulty.

Messrs. Hanrahan, Daly, Bartley and Minicola were heard in a quartette. Mr. John Armstrong was the accompanist of the evening.

St. Peter's Court, No. 225, was organized on August 31, 1891, and has made remarkable progress. Since organization there has been paid out in sick benefits $19,000; funeral benefits, $1,280. There have been 25 deaths, and in this connection $25,000 was paid from the High Court.

Formerly Lived In Yarmouth

Mr. H. Carter of 468 Stewart Street, was very much excited and interested over the Zeppelin bombardment of the English east coast towns. Mr. Carter formerly lived in Yarmouth and has a number of relatives there. He shewed the Examiner some very interesting post card views of Yarmouth, including one showing St. Peter's church, mentioned in to-day's despatches.

To Keep Skin Healthy, Youthful, Wrinkleless

Now that the social season is here, be especially careful to keep your skin in fine condition. You know how unpleasant complexion defects appear under the bright light of the drawing or ball room. Also how very evident are some makeups when examined illuminated. I have myself discarded cosmetics entirely, using a process which gives the better results, and which leaves no trace on the skin. At night I smear on a thin coat of ordinary mercolized wax, washing it off next morning. This gradually absorbs the devitalized particles of surface skin; just as gradually the more youthful skin beneath comes forth, providing a complexion as clear, smooth and delicately tinted as a young girl's. Get an ounce of mercolized wax at your druggist's and try this remarkable treatment.

Remember, too, that wrinkles, even the finer lines, are not easily concealed in a brilliantly lighted room. You can quickly obliterate these hateful marks by bathing your face in a solution of powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in witch hazel, ½ pt. And your face won't look sticky, as Elsie using pastes.—Aunt Sally in Woman's Realm.

WEDDING BELLS

PROFIT—McMAHON.

A pretty wedding was solemnized in East City, last evening, by the Rev. Father McCarthy, when Miss Della Profit, only daughter of Mr. F. G. Profit, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Matthew McMahon, both of East City. The bride looked very charming gowned in white silk and wore a large picture hat. The bride was attended by Miss Johanna McMahon, who wore a dress of Alice blue silk, with hat to match. The groom was supported by Mr. Thomas Tobin of Auburn. Mr. and Mrs. Matthew McMahon will reside with Mrs. Maurice McMahon at 260 Euclid Avenue, City.

Presentation To The Rev. J. A. McKenzie

LACHUTE, Que., Jan. 20.— At the annual meeting of the Presbyterian church, a very pleasing event took place. It was the presentation of a beautiful gold watch and a purse of gold to Mr. McKenzie, made on behalf of the congregation by the Rev. J. L. George, who spoke in most kindly terms of the good work effected by Mr. McKenzie during his sub-pastorate of a little better than two years. His faithful service has been greatly appreciated and he goes to his new pastorate in Peterborough with the good wishes of the entire community.

Mr. J. A. McKenzie, B.A., won the gold medal in the honour class, also the Hugh McKay scholarship of $60. He was born at Kirk Hill, Glengarry, and is the son of the Rev. D. McKenzie, now retired and living at Vankleek Hill. He received his school training at the High school, Alexandria, and entered McGill University in 1905, taing the B.A. degree in 1908. Mr. McKenzie entered the Presbyterian College as a student in 1909, and took his B.D. degree in the spring of 1912, and was ordained in Lachute Dec. 3rd.

WANTED MEN EVADED ARREST

Detective Sam. Newhall's Message Arrived Too Late

Chief of Police Short received word from Detective Newhall to arrest Charles Rome and James Martel, alias Wm. Dykes, who were wanted in this city for fraud. They posed as agents of the Canadian Countryman.

Upon receipt of the message, Chief Short started out in pursuit of the pair, but found they had taken the 6.15 G. T. R. train for Toronto. They arrived in Lindsay on Saturday night and registered at the Pym House. Had Chief Short received the message earlier in the morning, the pair would have been arrested, but they were well on their way to the Queen City when he was asked to take action.

Germans' New Assault on Soissons

ALLIES HAVE REPELLED MANY ATTACKS

ADVANCE IN BUKOWINA

Czar's Troops Gaining New Territory on Way Into Transylvania

PUSHING ENEMY

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Jan. 21.— Probably the most important development in the whole eastern theatre of war at present is the determined offensive movement on the part of Russians in North-west Poland. Within a day's march of the German frontier a force of at least six infantry corps and two cavalry divisions is steadily forcing the Germans backward toward Thorn and the defences of southern East Prussia. The Russian battle line stretches from Dobrsyn, on the Vistula, to near Mlawa, a distance of sixty miles.

For a week the fighting has been very heavy along this front, and the results have so far been favourable to the Russian arms. The Germans attempted to take the offensive at Dobrsyn early this week, but were repulsed after very heavy losses, and the Russian forward movement continues.

A secondary battle line stretches eastward along the right bank of the Vistula from Dobrsyn to Wissogrod, where the Ektra River unites with the Vistula. This line maintains the communications of the Russian army of the Mlawa front with the forces defending Nowo-Georgiewsk, Warsaw, Ivangorod and the hole line of the middle Vistula. Holding this line the Russians block the Germans from reaching any position near the fortress of Nowo-Georgiewsk, where heavy guns might be used to advantage, and also to prevent any movement to outflank the defenders of Warsaw. Day after day the Germans have attempted to drive the Russians from their trenches and field works along the left bank of the Vistula, but have found the effort too great for flesh and blood. They have lost heavily without gaining a foot.

The situation west of Warsaw meanwhile has undergone no change. There has been no diminution in the violence of the German assaults on the Russian lines from Sochachew southerly to Rawa, but the Russian official statement says all recent attacks have been repulsed, in some cases with a net loss of ground by the enemy. The attacks are being carried on, as usual, by night, under the glare of searchlights and bonfires of straw.

In Galacia the Austrian offensive movement against Tarnow and the Russian front along the Dunajec River east of Cracow seems to have failed, even though 42-centimetre guns have been brought into action. In Bukowina the Russians are advancing slowly through the mountains on the Transylvania frontier, and are approaching Darne-Watra, a town of some importance near the Roumanian border.

HAS THERE BEEN AN INSULT TO THE STARS AND STRIPES?

If Great Britain Admits Charges of Hauling Down Cotton Steamer's Flag American Government Will Demand Reparation.

SPECIAL CABLE:

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—If Great Britain admits the charges of hauling down the cotton steamer Greenbrier's American flag, the government undoubtedly will demand reparation. The State Department to-day had its International law experts busily engaged in searching precedents to determine whether this alleged action constitutes an insult to the Stars and Stripes. Some doubt existed at first as to whether Great Britain was not within her rights when she replaced the flag with the Union Jack, following the detention of the Greenbriar.

But the State Department insisted that Great Britain's general procedure was apparently entirely arbitrary.

The British consul has certified the cargo. There was no good reason, the department believed, why in these circumstances, the British ship should detain neutral Greenbriar cotton laden, search her, and subject her to the ignomy of hauling down her ensign.

As far as the American investigation now goes, there is no ground for the belief that Great Britain could have claimed the vessel as a prize. If this is true, the International law furnishes no precedents for the flag incident, experts were inclined to believe. Aggravating the situation in the view of some authorities was the fact that the incident occurred only four days after this government had voiced a strong protest to the British Foreign Office against England's alleged high-handed treatment of American commerce.

The State Department will not officially pass judgment on the case in advance of receipt of the British note of explanation.

There was a feeling in official circles, however, that the incident is a serious affair, and strong demand must be made on England.

Four Days To Bury The Dead

Heights Around Soissons Are Thickly Strewn With German Bodies

BEFORE SOISSONS, Jan. 21.—German men perished during the eight days of the bitter struggle for the heights across the river from Soissons that to-day, the fourth day after the conclusion of the battle, the plateau and gorges are still strewn thickly with dead, although 4,000 members of the Landstrum have been engaged without a pause in clearing up the battlefield.

Most of the German dead have been given to the earth, but many bodies of the French are lying still on the heights and across the valley of the north shore of the Aisne.

TURKISH RETREAT

From Caucasus Has Become a Rout—Forces Disorganized

MANY PRISONERS

SPECIAL CABLE:

PETROGRAD, Jan. 21.—The Turkish retreat from Caucasus has become almost a rout, according to official reports received here to-day. In their precipitous flight toward Erzerum, portions of the Turkish forces are becoming disorganized and their rearguard is falling victim to the bands of the Russian cavalry pursuit.

In a series of recent engagements with remnants of the retreating Turkish army, the Russians have captured "numerous prisoners," to-day's official statement claims. The Russians have occupied Ardjevansh, about sixty miles northeast of Kopri. A Russian torpedo boat operating in the Black Sea detachment of Batum, sank twelve Turkish cargo boats during the last few days.

REPELLED ATTACKS

Allies Succeeded in Beating Back the Enemy—Fine Engagement in Flanders

BELGIAN WORK

PARIS, Jan. 21.—The operations at the front to-day were characterized mostly by German attacks, which were directed in force at several points, and which were all repulsed, according to the official communiques of the French War Office issued to-night. At La Boisselle, where an important action has been developing for several days, the Germans made three assaults in succession, but could gain no ground. Other German attacks told of were at Notre Dame de Lorette and between Thierval and Albert. At Notre Dame the Germans got to the first line of allied trenches but were driven out later. At Thierval they encountered barbed wire entanglements and were easily driven back. The afternoon War Office announcement tells of further progress in the forest of La Pretre, where the allies are aiming to cut into the German lines and isolate the wedge at St. Mihiel.

Beaten Back in Flanders.

There was a fierce engagement also in Flanders. There the enemy tried to destroy a bridge head held by the Belgians on the Yser, but were beaten back by a severe artillery fire. The Belgians retaliated for this attack by driving the Germans from some of their fortifications in the district. Other engagements told of were at Lens, Glancy, Camp de Chalons, Perthes, Le Mesnil, Ville sur Tourbe, Thann, all principally with artillery.

The lack of action at Soissons recently is hard for the military experts to understand. Some reason that the Germans are taking plenty of time for reinforcements, and that they will begin a more violent attack as soon as their arrangements are completed.

Would Destroy Soissons.

A correspondent who has been allowed in and out of Soissons returned last night. He said the town was being bombarded intermittently yesterday afternoon. The city hall and barracks, rather than the cathedral, seemed to be the principal mark. Several streets were burning. Enraged apparently at their inability to occupy Soissons the Germans seem bent on its destruction.

Fourteen German soldiers were killed to-day when a German military supply train fell into a canal between Hasselt and Turnhout, in Belgium, where the invaders had previously blown up the bridge themselves.

Owing to the reports that the Germans are appropriating gifts of unperishable foods to the French prisoners in Germany the French authorities threaten reprisals by submitting German prisoners in France to the same treatment.

It is reported here that Prince Joachim, youngest son of the Kaiser, who was wounded, has been cured, and has returned to the front, on the Russian frontier.

Over five million cups of Salada tea are consumed every day. This is proof positive of the public appreciation of quality.

GERMAN GUNNERS ARE NOW SHELLING SOISSONS

SPECIAL CABLE:

PARIS, Jan. 21.—The new German assault on Soissons has begun. German gunners to-day have resumed shelling the city; many buildings are reported to be in flames, and fresh infantry regiments are taking positions for a general assault on the French position north of the Aisne.

Reinforcements are being rushed to the allied trenches both at St. Paul, north of the Aisne and southern bank. While showing no alarm, officials are fully prepared for an attempt by the Germans to force a passage of the Aisne. The most desperate fighting of the past few weeks on French soil is anticipated. Military experts have expressed divergent opinions as to the real object of the German efforts at Soissons. While the Kaiser's armies, if they succeed in occupying Soissons, are expected to follow up the advantage with a fresh march on Paris, it is believed by many military men that this is not the primary purpose of the present forward movement.

Hand-to-hand fighting for possession of the trenches in the forest of Le Pretre continued to-day with the Germans endeavouring to resume the offensive.

NO MENACE IN MADE-IN-CANADA PLAN

Mr. Chas. Nixon, Formerly of Peterboro', Gives Address on the Subject

"Is there danger and a real menace in the "Made-in-Canada" campaign? Is there justification for fears and forebodings growing out of this new movement—as reported from a speech by R. C. Henderson, of the Manitoba Grain Growers' Association in convention in Brandon this week?"

"Some will have it that this whole "Made-in-Canada" idea is going to make it necessary to start all over again in the fight for real constructive legislation and economic justice."

That there is little ground on which to build these fears was the contention of Chas. C. Nixon, vice-president of the Continental Publishing Co., Limited, in an address given to the Toronto retail furniture dealers and their salespeople at the annual banquet of the Canadian Feather and Mattress Co., in the Foresters' Hall, College street. Quite the contrary may well be the outcome, for with the right kind of sentiment developed for "Made-in-Canada" goods, and a proper appreciation of what it means to each Canadian to support home industry, the tariff would become less and less necessary as protection to Canadian manufacturers.

Experience of the past few weeks, as told by Mr. Nixon, points to the conclusion that the purchasing public and the merchants are now fully awake to an appreciation of the sentiment favouring products made in Canada. He affirmed that the principal effort to make the movement an entire success must come from the manufacturer. It is absolutely vital that goods shall be produced by the Canadian manufacturer not only on a basis of the retail prices being satisfactory to the customer, but attention must be given to turning out goods that will prove satisfactory in every way.

An improvement was suggested on the present slogan and have it say "Better Because Made in Canada." When the Canadian manufacturer has satisfied himself that he is in a position to produce goods to meet the public demand he should advertise that fact freely, so that the public will be aware that his line of goods is manufactured in Canada.

While it was shown that the serious part of the situation justifying the "Made-in-Canada" movement is that according to the statisticians we have been sending out of Canada all of our immense borrowings from Great Britain to pay for goods brought in from foreign countries—and now, that we cannot borrow readily, Canadian industries might become in a very bad way—there are certain foreign made goods that we will still want and need to buy, there is, however, no conceivable reason why Canadians should prefer an "imported" label to a superior product of Canadian manufacture.

More than 100 of the Toronto retail furniture dealers and their salespeople were present. Mr. W. H. Smith, president of the Canadian Feather and Mattress Co., Ltd., was chairman of the evening. Amongst others at the head table who spoke quite impromptu when called on by Mr. Smith, were Mr. F. C. Burroughes, president of manager of the Burroughes-Furniture Co.; Mr. Robt. Colwell, vice-president of the Adams Furniture Co.; Mr. Scott, of the T. Eaton Co., Ltd., Furniture Department; Mr. O. Thompson, of Johnson & Washington, and Mr. H. F. Handy, of the Canadian Feather and Mattress Co., Owen Sound.

CASUALTIES UNDER TWENTY

Examiner Special:

LONDON, Jan. 21—The German airships—for they are thus described by the German official report—which suddenly attacked undefended cities and helpless non-combatants in the coast town of Norfolk Tuesday night dropped twenty or more bombs. Three killed four persons, injured ten or more others and did considerable damage to property. The report that a fifth person, a soldier, had been killed proved to be incorrect.

Yarmouth and King's Lynn, the largest towns visited, suffered the greatest damage. Eight bombs were dropped in the former town, one of them killing an old man and an old woman, injuring three others and smashing every window within a radius of several hundred yards.

In King's Lynn a woman and a boy were killed by bombs which demolished a row of cottages.

The Zeppelins also visited Cromer, which, however, was not attacked; Sherringham, where four bombs were dropped; Dersingham, Grimston, Snettisham and Heacham, each of which received one missile. Snettisham and Heacham are within three miles of the King's Sandringham residence, and near the former place, where the windows of the village Church were shattered, Queen-Mother Alexandra has a Summer bungalow.

The prevailing opinion in regard to the raid is that it was even more criminal and insensate than the naval bombardment on the east coast. The aircraft flew over Holland in leaving their base and the Government of the Netherlands has protested to Germany. The leading newspapers call upon all neutral countries to protest against the bombardment of unfortified cities.

The nearest bomb to the King's residence at Sandringham fell four miles away. Eye-witnesses are positive the raider was a Zeppelin.

Outbreak of Meningitis

In the Canadian Camp at Salisbury is Now Checked

Special to The Examiner:

SALISBURY, Jan. 21. — Colonel Carlton Jones, director of the medical service, stated yesterday that the outbreak of cerebro-spinal meningitis in the camps of the first Canadian contingent has been completely checked.

Canadian military hospitals at Hampstead and at Cleveden, Bucks, will be opened with a few days.

GREAT EVENTS SOON EXPECTED

French Leaders Confident They Can Triumph Over Any German Force Before Them

PARIS, Jan. 21.—L'Intransigeant prints extracts of an interview by a representative of "Lectures Pour Tous" with Generals Foch and Durbal. The former, who commands the French army in northern France, shows the greatest optimism. "The situation is wholly satisfactory," he says. "The Germans can do nothing against us. My Generals, Durbal and Maudhuy, are heroes. Grossetti is commanding the Ypres army, and is invulnerable, though he exposes himself recklessly. You may expect great events soon. We are determined to win, and will never abandon the task unless victorious."

General Durval is equally confident. "When I first arrived at the post in the north I was forced to attack the Germans daily, owing to the necessity of making them think my weak force strong. Now that reinforcements have arrived, I tell you the Germans will never pass. I do not believe the bluff about their wonderful fortifications. I know about that. Why, we could break their line at any point any minute we want. Already they are trying peace negotiations through the Belgian King. How childish! They are beaten, I tell you, whenever, wherever we attack."

Just Apply This Paste and the Hairs Vanish

(Helps to Beauty)

A safe, reliable home-treatment for the quick removal of superfluous hairs from your face or neck is as follows: Mix a stiff paste with some water and powdered delatone, apply to objectionable hairs and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This simple treatment is unfailing and no pain or inconvenience attends its use. But to avoid disappointment be certain you get genuine delatone.

First of all knock out the hindrance to health, then vigour of body and mind naturally follows.

Thousands, finding coffee a hindrance, have struck it from their daily diet and now use

POSTUM

Coffee contains a powerful irritant—caffeine (also in tea)—which first races the body functions to unnatural speed, and then leaves them in a state of exhaustion. Result—weak heart, nervousness, biliousness, headache, sleeplessness and many other ills and discomforts.

Postum—made only of prime wheat and a bit of wholesome molasses—is a pure food-drink, absolutely free from caffeine or any other drug or harmful substance.

Postum has delightful flavour, and comes in two forms: Regular Postum—must be boiled, 15c and 25c packages; Instant Postum—soluble, made in the cup instantly, 30c and 50c tins. The cost per cup is about the same for both kinds.

Suppose you leave off both coffee and tea—ten days and try Postum—and better health.

"THE BATTLE CRY"

CHAPTER XXI.

She stood as he left and watched him striding down the slope; and he went back to his house and found it suddenly dark and cheerless and unsatisfying. His retainers noted that he was silent and abstracted, and often when the fingers of the cold rains were drumming at midnight on the roof, they heard, too, his restive feet, tramping his room. For into the soul of Bad Anse Havey had come a new element, and the prophet which was in him could descry in the future a new menace; a necessity for curbing the grip of this new dream which might easily outgrow all his other dreams and bring torture to his heart. Here was a woman of fine fibre and delicate culture in whose eyes he might at best be an interesting barbarian. Between them lay all the impassable barriers that quarantined the tangled coves of the mountains from the valleys of the rich lowlands. Between their lives and viewpoints lay the same irreconcilable differences.

And yet her image was haunting him as he went his way, and in his heart was awakening an ache and a rapture. He told himself that it would be wiser to stay away. He could no longer think of her as a school teacher. Her school was nothing to him, but she herself had come and awakened him, and he dreaded what might follow.

On several of her buildings now the hammers were busy shingling the roofs. Her influence grew and spread among the simple folk to whom she was unostentatiously ministering; an influence with which the old order must some day reckon. It was a quiet and intangible sort of thing, but it was gradually melting the hardness of life as spring sun and showers melt the tusterity of winter.

Anse Havey set his face against crossing her threshold with much the same resolution that Ulysses stuffed his ears against the siren song—and yet with remarkable frequency they climbed at the same time from opposite directions and met by the poplar tree on the ridge.

"It's the wrong notion," he told her obstinately when her enthusiasm broke from her in new plans and prophecies. "It's teachin' things that's goin' ter make the children ashamed of their cabins an' their folks. It's goin' ter make 'em want things ye can't hardly give 'em.

"Go to any cabin in these hills an' ye'll find the pinch of poverty, but ye won't find shame for that poverty in none of 'em. We ain't got so many virtues here, maybe, but we've got a few. We can wear our privations like a uniform that we ain't ashamed of . . . yes, an' make a kind of merit out of it."

"I'm not out of sympathy with that," she argued. "I think it's splendid. Ye'll breed discontent an' then ye'll go away, an' all ye'll have done will be to have knocked their one simple virtue down round their ears."

"How many times do I have to tell you I'm not going away" demanded the girl a little hotly. "Just watch me."

Again he shook his head and into his eyes came a look of sudden pain. "I reckon ye'll go," he said. "All good things go. The birds go when winter comes an' the nowers go."

So in an impersonal way they kept up their semblance of a duel and mocked each other.

"When the crusaders went to Jerusalem," she told him smilingly, "and Richard, the Lion-hearted, met the Saracen, he admitted that he had come to know a galant enemy—but a heathen none the less, and war went on." She paused and her challenge was a thing that danced in her eyes and at her lips, all tangled up with the banter of cordial friendliness. "Now, Mr. Havey, "I admit that you are a brave enemy, but you stand for the heathen order, and I'm going to wipe out that order. You'd better surrender to me while you still have a chance to do it with honours of war"

The naive smile came to his lips again for a moment and made him seem a boy.

"I'm much obleeged, ma'am," he acknowledged. "It's right well-favoured of ye to offer me so much mercy, but if I remembers rightly, them crusaders didn't take Jerusalem away with 'em, did they?"

He looked down at her and indolentyl stretched the long arms in which the sinews were like raw-hide thongs, and the ripple of muscles like those of a racehorse on the very edge of his training.

"I may be foolish," he said slowly, "but I could pick ye up like a doll. Somehow hit's right hard fer me ter realize thet ye're a-going ter smash me."

"Yes'm, a poet said that," She was now quoting from one of the few writers he knew as well as she did herself. "But a soldier once said, 'Git' on the side of thar heaviest battalions.' When the battle's all over the poet comes in handy, but whilst it's still goin' on, I'd ruther take the evidence of the soldier." It was very easy for him to think of her as supreme in the conquest of love, but very difficult to take her seriously as a force for altering the conditions that had stood so long.

"Well, now, I'm not so sure ye ain't kinder doin' hist'ry an injustice," he contended. "The lesson I reads is that whenever civilization gets drawn too fine, an' weakens, it's a barbarian race that overruns it. It's the strong blood. Some day soon there won't be no pure American blood in America, except right here in these mountains. Thar's still a few of us left here."

Bad Anse Havey was raw material. He treasured on his bookshelf a half-dozen volumes. These he knew as a wise man knows his own soul. Through them he had had the companionship of a few great minds, and beside them he had scant erudition. There lay in his life the materials for a human edifice of imposing lines and proportions — and the question was whether Life, the builder, would rear them or leave them lying in unformed piles of possibility.

Once Judge Sidering rode over from Peril to visit the school and express gratification at its building Judge Sidering presided over the "High Court" of the circuit, and with him came Anse Havey. Juanita knew that His Honour had gone down to the State's metropolis and had sat as chairman in a convention to name a Governor. She knew that she had proved himself the most astute, the most audacious, and the most successful of politicians. He had written a chapter into State history, not admirable, perhaps, but admirably bold. Such a man must have iron in his make-up, and yet when he was in the presence of Bad Anse Havey his attitude was that of vassal to overlord, and she knew that he wore his judicial ermine at the behest and will of Anse Havey, and that he performed his duties subject to Anse Havey's orders.

In an office which overlooks the grey stone Courthouse in Louisville, sat a youngish, broad-shouldered man of somewhat engaging countenance. In the small ante-room of his sanctum was a young woman who hammered industriously on a typewriter and told most of the visitors who called that Mr. Trevor was out. That was because most of those who came bore about them the unmistakable hall-mark of creditors. Mr. Trevor's list of creditors would have made as long a scroll as his list of business activities. Yet for all these cares Mr. Trevor was just now sitting with his tan shoes propped on his broad desk and his face was untroubled. He was one of those interesting gentlemen who give a touch of colour to the monotony of humdrum life. Mr. Trevor was a soldier of fortune who sold not his sword, but the very keen and flexible blade of his resourceful brain.

Roger Malcolm of Philadelphia knew him only as the pleasant and chance acquaintance of an evening spent in a New York club.

He had impressed the Easterner as a most fascinating fellow who seemed to have engaged in large enterprises here and there over the face of the globe. So when Mr. Malcolm presented his card in the office anteroom the young woman at the machine gave him one favouring glance and did not say that Mr. Trevor was out.

"So you are going to penetrate the wilds of the Cumberlands, are you?" inquired Mr. Trevor in his pleasing voice, as he grasped his visitor's hand. "Tell me just where you mean to go and I'll tell you how to do it with the least difficulty. The least difficulty down ther is plenty."

"My objective," replied Mr. Malcolm, "is a place at the headwaters of a creek called Tribulation, some thirty miles from a town called Peril."

"I know the places — and their names fit them. I'd offer to go with you, but I'm afraid I wouldn't prove a benefit to you. I'm non gratis with Bad Anse Havey, Esquire, and Mr. Milton McBriar, who are the local dictators."

Mr. Malcolm laughed. "In passing," he said, "I dropped in to talk over the coal development proposition which you said would interest me."

Mr. Trevor reached into his desk and brought out several maps.

"The tentacles of the railroads are reaching in here and there," he began with the promoter's suave ease of manner. "It is a region which enterprise can no longer afford to neglect and the best field of all is as yet virgin and untouched."

"Why did you drop the enterprise yourself?" inquired his visitor.

"I didn't have the capital to swing it. Of course, if it interests you and your associates it can be put through."

Malcolm nodded. "I am going primarily by way of making a visit," he said. "I meant to go before you roused my interest in your proposition, and it occurred to me that I might possibly be able to combine business with pleasure."

"You have friends out there in that God-forsaken tangle?" he inquired. "God help them!"

"A lady whom I have known for a long while is establishing a school there."

With the mention of the lady, Malcolm's voice took on an uncommunicative note and Mr. Trevor at once changed the topic to coal and timber.

COLDS OR COUGHS
Should Never Be Neglected.
If They Are, Some Serious Lung Troubles Are Sure To Follow.
DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP
CURES COUGHS AND COLDS on their first inception, and will thereby prevent you from becoming affected with some serious lung trouble, such as bronchitis, pneumonia or even consumption.
When you ask for "Dr. Wood's" see that you get it as there are many imitations on the market.
"Dr. Wood's" is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price, 25c and 50c; and manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.
Mrs. Thomas Bridges, Gorrie, Ont., writes: "I was so bad with a cold I gave up work, and I was in bed four weeks being unable to do anything. I thought the cold was turning to bronchitis, so I changed my medicine to Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I used three bottles, and they completely cured me, and I am as strong as ever. I highly recommend it to all sufferers.

WOMAN IN BAD CONDITION
Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
Montpelier, Vt. — "We have great faith in your remedies. I was very irregular and was tired and sleepy all the time, would have cold chills, and my hands and feet would bloat. My stomach bothered me, I had pain in my side and a bad headache most of the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me lots of good and I now feel fine. I am regular, my stomach is better and my pains have all left me. You can use my name if you like. I am proud of what your remedies have done for me." — MRS. MARY GAUTHIER, 21 Ridge St., Montpelier, Vt.
An Honest Dependable Medicine
It must be admitted by every fair-minded, intelligent person, that a medicine could not live and grow in popularity for nearly forty years, and to-day hold a record for thousands upon thousands of actual cures, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, without possessing great virtue and actual worth. Such medicines must be looked upon and termed both standard and dependable by every thinking person.
If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

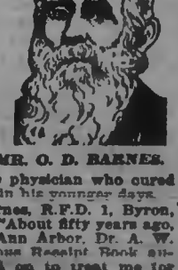
Here is a letter from an aged gentleman who consulted Dr. Chase, long before his Receipt Book attained a world - wide circulation or his family medicines became known to the ends of the earth.


MR. O. D. BARNES.
Like most people of advanced years his kidneys were the first organs to break down and when doctors failed to help him he remembered the physician who cured him of pleurisy in his younger days.
Mr. O. D. Barnes, R.F.D. 1, Byron, Mich., writes:—"About fifty years ago, when living in Ann Arbor, Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous Receipt Book author, was called on to treat me for pleurisy. Ever since that I have used and recommended Dr. Chase's Medicines, and have two of his Receipt Books in the house.
"Some time ago a cold settled in the kidneys, causing backache, frequent urination, dizziness, and affected the eyesight. My appetite failed and I could not sleep nights. Two doctors failed to do me any lasting good, so I started using Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Nerve Food. The results have been highly satisfactory to me. Appetite improved, I gained in weight, sleep and rest well, and feel strong and well. My kidneys resumed their natural functions, and I believe that my cure was due to Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Nerve Food. I am 78 years old, superintend work on my farm, and can turn in and do some work myself."
Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box. All dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Woman's Weapons.

A number of married men were recently sitting together at their club. The question was asked, "What trait in your wife do you consider the most expensive one?" The answers were as numerous as the men in the party. With one it was vanity, another religion; or charity or love of dress. The last man to whom the question was put answered oracularly, "Her tears."

Getting Even.

Eddie's grandmother had been scolding her. Eddie felt indignant, but had been taught never to "answer back." However, she got even. Taking her kitten in her arms, she then soliloquized:

"Kitty, I wish the ol' ma was dead this minute. Not you, kitty nor me, either, but one ol' ma'mma in this room."—Exchange.

Otonabee Society Receives Thanks For Relief Sent to Belgians

Secretary of Otonabee Belgian Society, Keene—

Dear Sir,—On the 14th of December we received by G.T.R. a consignment of 17 barrels, and 1 bale of clothing, being a contribution from the Belgian Relief Society of Keene.

Please accept our heartiest thanks for this magnificent donation from your town, and convey our expressions of deepest gratitude and our thanks to all generous contributors to this splendid gift. It is greatly appreciated by us and will be a great help in our endeavours to clothe the destitute population of Belgium, who have to face such terrible privations during this coming winter.

Once more allow me to thank you for your generous and valuable gifts.

Yours faithfully,
Hector Prud'homme,
Hon. Treas., Montreal.

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat Less Meat, Also Take Glass of Salts Before Eating Breakfast

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a teaspoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

Infantry Training

The Matter in This Column is From the Official Manual 1911 and is Published According to Orders of the Home Guard

Notes. 1. In marching order without the rifle the arms will be retained as in the position of attention.

2. When a recruit falls in for instruction he will stand at ease after he has got his dressing.

18. Standing easy
STAND—EASY

The limbs, head and body may be moved, but the man will not move from the ground on which he is standing, so that on coming to attention there will be no loss of dressing. Slouching attitudes are not permitted.

Note. If the command stand easy is given to troops at attention, they will stand at ease only after a pause to stand easy. Troops standing easy who receive a caution, such as squad, company, etc., will assume the position of stand at ease. If the caution is followed by an executive word of command, eig., quick—march, the troops will first come to attention and then carry out the order received.

19. Dressing a squad with intervals.
RIGHT—DRESS

Each recruit, except the right-hand man, will turn his head and eyes to the right and will then extend his right arm, back of the hand upwards, finger tips touching the shoulder of the man on his right. At the same time he will take up his dressing in line by moving, with short quick steps, till he is just able to distinguish the lower part of the face of the second man behind him. Care must be taken that he carries his body backward or forward with the feet, keeping his shoulders perfectly square in their original position.

EYES—FRONT

The head and eyes will be turned smartly to the front, the arm dropped, and the position of attention resumed.

20. Turning by numbers.
1. TURNING TO THE RIGHT—ONE.

Keeping both knees straight and the body erect, turn to the right on the right heel and left toe, raising the left heel and right toe in doing so.

On the completion of his preliminary movement, the right foot must be flat on the ground and the left heel raised, both knees straight and the weight of the body, which must be erect, on the right foot.

TWO.

Bring the left heel smartly up to the right without stamping the foot on the ground.

2. TURNING TO THE LEFT—ONE.

Turn to the left, as described above, on the left heel and right toe, the weight of the body being on the left foot on the completion of the movement.

TWO.

Bring the right heel smartly up to the left without stamping the foot on the ground.

3. TURNING ABOUT—ONE.

Keeping both knees straight and the body erect, turn to the right about on the right heel and left toe, raising he left heel and right toe in doing so.

On the completion of this preliminary movement, the right foot must be flat on the ground and the left heel raised, both knees straight and the weight of the body, which must be erect, on the right foot.

TWO.

Bring the left heel smartly up to the right without stamping the foot on the ground.

4. INCLINING TO THE RIGHT—ONE.

TWO.

As described for turning to the right.

4. INCLINING TO THE LEFT—ONE.

As described for turning to the left, but turning only half left.

TWO.

As described for turning to the left.

21. Saluting to the front.
1. By numbers.
SALUTE BY NUMBERS—ONE.

TWO.

Cut away the arm smartly to the side.

2. Judging the time.
SALUTE, JUDGING THE TIME—SALUTE.

Go through the motions as in para. 1, and, after a pause equal to two paces in quick time, cut away the arm.

How To Get Rid of a Bad Cough

A Home-Made Remedy that Will Do It Quickly. Cheap and Easily Made.

If you have a bad cough or chest cold which refuses to yield to ordinary remedies, get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Start taking a teaspoonful every hour or two. In 24 hours your cough will be conquered or very nearly so. Even whooping cough is greatly relieved in this way.

The above mixture makes 16 ounces—a family supply—of the finest cough syrup that money could buy—at a cost of only 54 cents. Easily prepared in 5 minutes. Full directions with Pinex.

This Pinex and sugar syrup preparation takes right hold of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough in a way that is really remarkable. It also quickly heals the inflamed membranes which accompany a painful cough, and stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough. Excellent for bronchitis, spasmodic croup and winter coughs. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children like it.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, which is so healing to the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

HEART WOULD PALPITATE.

HAD WEAK and DIZZY SPELLS.

Palpitation of the heart is one of the most common of all heart troubles. The heart will beat fast for several seconds, then slow, then start to flutter, and a feeling of utter depression will come over the system accompanied by weak and dizzy spells, making you feel that you are surely going to die. When you feel this way what you require is a real good heart and nerve tonic; one that will strengthen the weak heart and build up the nerve system. For this purpose we know of nothing that can equal Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. J. S. Nicholls, Listowel, Ont., writes: "I was weak and run down, my heart would palpitate, and I would take weak and dizzy spells. A friend advised me to try your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills so I started at once, and found that I felt much stronger, and my heart was ever so much better within a short time. I cannot praise your medicine too highly for it has done me a world of good. My husband has also been bothered with heart trouble ever since childhood and finds great relief in using your valuable pills."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

NOBLEMAN'S SON, SLAIN AT YPRES, CALLED WAR "BEST LIFE"

Makes Long Trip to Get Cholera Serum for Allies

Dr. John Freeman, of London, Goes Half Way Around Europe for Cultures in Galicia—Will Be Used to Protect Armies Fighting in the West.

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Jan. 16.

A journey half round Europe for a few bottles of cholera microbes might strike one as heroic at any time, but especially in time of war. Dr. John Freeman, a well known bacteriologist of St. Mary's, Paddington, London, has just returned from Galicia laden with this curious trophy, and Mr. Louis Cahon, who went with him as interpreter, gives an account of their varied experience.

They had to go around the Gulf of Bothnia, as the Baltic was "up" with German mines and no Swedish vessels would cross. They took with them seven big cases of antiseptic as a present to the Russian army medical service, and this precious consignment caused endless trouble on the journey out. They got tired of waiting for their special permits in Petrograd and completed their expedition without them. They got within sound of the guns at Mosciska, near Przemysl. What is more, they were "created" officers of the Russian army, which is an honor that comes to few, and certainly a godsend to men who want to do a double quick traverse of the Tsar's dominions in time of war.

Cholera, like influenza, is protean in its character, and never takes the same form in two different epidemics, so that the microbes in one epidemic are useless for combating the next. The bacillus cultures must be freshly obtained to be efficacious for inoculation purposes, and that is why it was necessary to send to Galicia for the means of protecting the allied troops on the western front of the war.

Ever since cholera was reported from Austria it has been feared that the deadly germs would be carried to the west by the "tiger springs" which Germany is making in transporting her troops from Poland to France and back; and while there may be some doubt regarding where the epidemic arose, cholera is sufficiently serious at any time to warrant heroic and vigorous precautions.

Dispute Over Epidemic's Origin.

The Austrians say it arose with the Cossacks of the Don; the Russians that it invaded the Russian ranks through the Austrians, having arrived there, stage by stage, from Bulgaria, Roumania, and, in the first instance, Turkey. At any rate, Dr. Freeman conceived the idea of the mission, and Mr. Lloyd George's Medical Research Committee found the funds. The main result, besides the cultures obtained, is that the outbreak has proved to be less virulent than in any previous campaign, and that while the death-rate has never risen above 50 per cent, the winter is reducing it well below that level.

In everything but allowing the travellers to see the fighting the Russian authorities were complaisance personified. It is true that there was the usual delay in producing the necessary permits in Petrograd and the travellers utilised the interval in the best possible way. They finally started off and succeeded in reaching the all important destination on their own account, with the result that when they got back and reported progress the embassy expressed good natured surprise at British initiative. But, as Dr. Freeman explained, the need for the cultures was urgent and time was pressing. Moreover, they could never have done it as they did if Prince Oldenburg, head of the Russian medical service, had not obtained for them the rank of lieutenant colonel and lieutenant in the Russian army, with field service uniforms, swords and badges.

The sensations are not unenviable of Englishmen suddenly endowed with Russian military rank like this, but the experience has its duties as well as its pleasures. One had to remember on entering the company of brother officers to salute in due form, bow and click his heels to every comrade present. But it was no less important to remember when one passed troops on the road and the sergeant in charge called "Smirno!" ("Attention") that it was imperative to answer "Voine" (or "Carry On") unless you wanted those docile troops to remain at strict attention till the next officer came along and gave them their release. Such is the discipline in Russia.

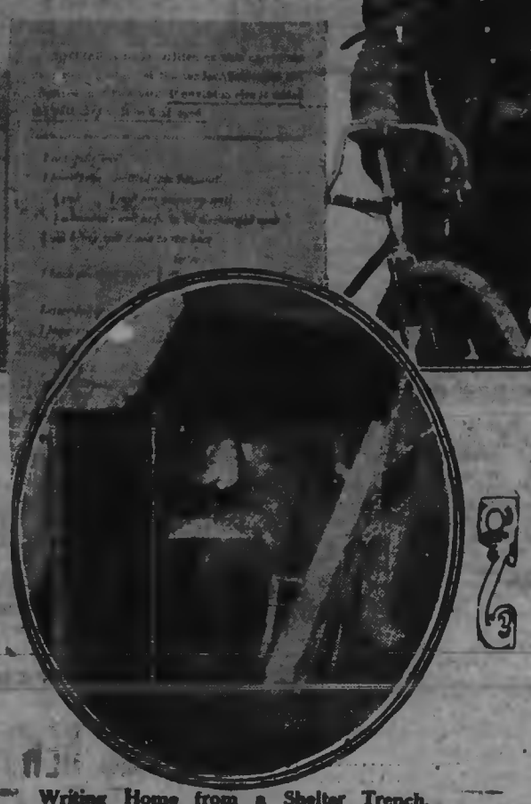
Meets Distinguished Scientists

The scope for observation was endless throughout the trip. At Lemberg the Governor General is Prince Orbeliani, a Caucasian noble, who was at school at Eton, and he entertained Dr. Freeman for two delightful hours in excellent English with a full account of the Army Medical Service in Galicia, which he controls. At the same centre Professor Zaboulotny, the renowned bacteriologist, is the leader of a distinguished group of experts in this line, and revealed himself as a veteran of conspicuous cordiality and humor. "They have mobilised me," he said, "against the Triple Entente." Dr. Freeman expressed surprise. "Yes," said the Professor, "the Triple Entente of Cholera, Dysentery and Typhoid."

One day a Hungarian woman was found in possession of five pint bottles filled with what looked like a suspiciously medicated liquid and bearing Hungarian labels which contained the word "Cholera." Suspicion spread that this was a plot for poisoning the wells with germs and the woman was arrested. The bottles were sealed and packed off to Lambert, where Professor Kutchera, a renowned expert, represented Austria in a group of notable bacteriologists. Professor Zaboulotny, perhaps the most famous of them all, undid the seal, sniffed the contents and boldly took a big "swig" simply as what he called a "first test." It seems he had detected a faint odor of carbolic, and knew from this that the bottles were filled with anti-cholera vaccine for benevolent purposes. The woman was released and sent back to Austria.

THE TWO MENTAL RELAXATIONS OF THE TRENCHES---READING AND WRITING

The card shown below is issued by the authorities to the soldiers on active service for writing home. The lines not required on the card have to be struck out, and nothing beyond the printed matter may be written.



Writing Home from a Shelter Trench.

Writing Home from the Firing Line.

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Jan. 16.

The task of writing is not an easy one in the trenches, but the mental relief is very great. I send you herewith extracts from several letters written by English soldiers to their loved ones at home.

Writing Home from the Field of Battle.

"I am beginning this letter more or less on the champs de bataille as it is so difficult to find time to write. I got your letter from ——. It was handed to me by the —— when I passed them going on a message to their brigade, just as they were finishing taking a village and crossing a river and canal. * * * A letter a parcel all at once was like having a birthday. I do hope mine got through to you. In case they have not I will tell you again that I am now on —— Staff. The last four days have been awfully wet and cold and I fear the winter is on us, so I am going to ask you to send me some things. The mud is awful, and the going across turnips and stubble and plough most awfully heavy.

The Need for Papers.

"To-day we are having a fight which I hope will knock the stuffing out of the Germans. * * * What I want is daily papers. I wrote the enclosed, as I usually do in action, as one has time to spare then, but could not post it. Last night we got into a house and got dry."

Capturing German Trenches.

"When I last wrote to you after these three weeks in the trenches we were going into reserve for rest. We started for our billets, and just as we were getting there the order came, 'About turn,' and off we marched. We heard that the Germans had taken a trench and we were to retake it. It was not our own trench. We started at one end and took it piece by piece. We captured about 250 Germans. The general whose trench we had retaken said we had 'covered ourselves with glory,' and the congratulations on all sides, including those of the French, have been very flattering."

"Here I am in the thick of it. This may interest you, as I am writing it in the firing line. All last night we intrenched, and at five A. M. this morning we got our first glimpse of the Germans. They advanced in solid masses. Their shells at first fell rather short, but they soon got the range, and at 6:30 A. M. their shells started to pitch into the trenches. The first one killed three of my poor fellows, including my sergeant. * * * I never realized what an awful thing war is. You cannot imagine at home the horror of it."

A Letter from the Trenches.

"I am writing this in a little dugout in the reserve trenches. My house is only 6 feet by 4 feet and only 3 feet high. I share it with our French staff interpreter. We dug most of it out ourselves one freezing night. It is roofed in with branches and twigs, with earth thrown on top, and we have lined the floor with dry straw. Here we both lie and act as a warming pan to each other. It has been freezing the last two nights and is now snowing. We have been here forty-eight hours and there is no word of our being relieved yet."

Lord Aberdare's Son Writes Cheery Epistle

Killed in Charge at Ypres, Said:—"It Is Finest Life I Ever Lived."

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Jan. 16.

Among the many battle stories which reach this country from the front every day there is hardly a grander and at the same time more pathetic one than that which tells of the death of Captain the Hon. Henry Lyndhurst Bruce, of the Scots Guards, son of Lord Aberdare. It was not until after he received the news of his son's death that Lord Aberdare received his son's last letter, a merry, breezy epistle, full of hope, in which he said:—

"I wish that you could see me in conditions that would stop even you from shooting golden plover, but, by Jove! I enjoy it. It is the finest life I have ever lived." It was written just a day or two before the great charge at Ypres, in which the captain was killed.

Further interesting details were related in London yesterday by an officer of the Royal Scots who fought with the gallant Captain Bruce, who was shot in the forehead. Among those who have paid high tribute to the gallantry of the dead officer is General Haldane, who was at the front at the time, and he is among those who have written to tell Lord Aberdare how much the services of his son were appreciated, and what skill and bravery he displayed.

"We were at the time in the neighborhood of Ypres, where, indeed, we had been for five weeks previously, holding back the enemy. All through that long period Captain Bruce and his men had been under almost continuous fire. They took part in many brilliant charges and, in trenches in which the mud was feet deep, and endured the discomforts and hardships with a cheerfulness that was little short of amazing. As weeks went by our losses in officers and men were so considerable that Captain Bruce himself was left without any subalterns. At that time he was second in command of the battalion.

"We received the order for the offensive on December 7, and we now knew that the movement was very successful. The Scots had a difficult position to attack and the conditions were unusually unhappy, the ground between the trenches being a muddy swamp. Our men, however, entered the charge with good spirits, and, to the credit of Captain Bruce, he led the men with that gallantry which was characteristic of all his earlier fighting. Our attack was resisted with great vigor, but we advanced in face of a hurricane of shot and shrapnel. Our pace was slow; indeed, so slow that to call it a charge is to involve a possible misconception of what the assault was like. For the fellows were nearly up to their knees in mud and could not travel very fast without the certainty of falling. This was a circumstance that naturally multiplied the perils of our task.

"Captain Bruce received a bullet wound in the forehead when the Scots had advanced to within thirty yards of the trenches from which the enemy had to be driven. His death was instantaneous. But the charge was continued with all the vigor we could command, and we had not long to wait before the Germans went helter-skelter out of the trenches, and we, of the Royal Scots, became the possessors of them. Then we came back to help those who had been wounded—and there were many of them—and then to bury the dead, among whom, the last, was Captain Bruce.

"We laid him to rest near the place where he gave up his life, and the sorrow of the men was inexpressible, for they loved Captain Bruce, who had been such a brave, intrepid and devoted leader."

Lieutenant the Earl of Kingston, of the First Irish Guards, ought, according to his own estimate, to be dead. He is now lying at the Military Hospital, Denmark Hill, in Southeast London, suffering from the effects of three bullet wounds and a fractured thigh. Telling how that came about, he says:—

"We had a bad day on November 1. About half-past seven o'clock in the morning the most damnable shell fire started, salvos of their big high explosives intermittently with what they call 'universal.' It has three distinct bursts—one forward, one segmental and straight down, third segmental backward. This lasted till half-past one o'clock. I called the roll in the trench, and found I had only one killed and two wounded in spite of the spiteful fusillade. Of course, if we had not had a good trench we were all in.

"I walked down to the next trench, where Captain Micheland was, reported all well, &c., and that I expected an attack. He had not had such a bad shelling, but had lost two more men than I. About two o'clock suddenly they started shelling again. Our guns answered their fire, but there was no sign of an attack. The howitzers, however, had our range exactly. Suddenly I saw the Gordons retiring, followed by thousands of Germans. We could do nothing. If we must there was as much chance of killing our own men as the enemy, as they seemed all mixed up—Gordons, Uxfords and Germans.

"They were enfilading our trenches, so we drew back on our left fifty yards and I made our men start throwing up a breastwork

Miss A. Starke has returned to Devon.

A house social will be held on Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Fife, Asphodel, by the congregation of the Baptist Church. Conveyances will be at the church in the evening, and a very pleasant sleigh ride is anticipated.

Mr. Robert Tudhope went to Ottawa last week, having accepted a position in the post office.

The very sudden death of Mr. John T. Wildman, Asphodel, occurred at his home on Monday evening. Deceased had been troubled with his heart for some time, and it appears, by accident, took an overdose of the medicine, which resulted in his death. The funeral took place on Wednesday afternoon from his late residence. Sympathy is extended to the sorrowing ones in their sudden, sad bereavement.

Mr. George Buck and son, Harold, who have been guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Buck, left on Tuesday for their home in High River, Alta.

Mr. Maxwell McNaughton, of Peterborough, spent the week-end at his home here.

Rev. Mr. Glover, of South Dummer, occupied the pulpit of the Methodist Church on Sunday evening.

An excellent address on "Life on the Seas — Its Dangers and Its Charms," was given on Friday night in the Methodist Church, by Rev. C. G. Williams, of Consecon.

Mr. Williams, who spoke from actual experience, having spent twenty years in the British Navy, gave some very instructive information which was greatly appreciated by his audience.

On Monday evening, the members of the Baptist Church, the Sunday School, choir, and B.Y.P.U., assembled at the home of their pastor, Rev. Mr. Waddell to say farewell to one of their associates, Miss Pearl Matthews, who leaves on Wednesday for Kingston.

A very pleasant social time was spent in music, games, etc.

Several recitations were given by Miss Winnifred Rorabeck, Miss Would, and Mr. Simpson, of Campbellford.

During the evening the following address was read by Mr. E. Patterson, and Miss Matthews was presented with a beautiful brush and comb set.

Norwood, Jan. 18, 1915.

Dear Miss Matthews,—It was with a feeling of deep regret that we learned of your intentions to leave our midst, to train as nurse in a hospital in Kingston.

During your stay among us you have endeavoured to do your part in the working out of God's plans in this little part of the vineyard, but your ambitious, progressive spirit is leading you to another part, to a different work, but we know you will carry with you the same helpful, Christian spirit which characterized you here, and we trust you will always be the kind, useful worker you were in the Norwood Baptist Church.

We will always look back with real enjoyment of the times spent together with you in the Sunday School, Baptist Young People's Union Choir, Church and socially, and our hearts will be as warm to you in the future as they are today—we trust, warmer.

You will be greatly missed in each of those departments of the church in which you have always been interested, and in which you have taken such an active part. So we take this opportunity of expressing in a tangible form our appreciation of your valuable services and ask you kindly to accept this little gift as a slight token of the attachment we each hold in our hearts for you. We sincerely trust that each time you use it, it may remind you of the many friends in Norwood who have only the kindest thoughts for you.

We earnestly pray for God's richest blessings to rest on you always. May he ever keep you faithful and may your life on earth be such a success that you will be admitted to the higher school where there are no separations.

Signed on behalf of the Sunday school choir, B.Y.P.U. and church.

MRS. EDWARD PATTERSON.

A hockey match was played on the Norwood rink on Tuesday evening between Norwood High School and Hastings.

The Ladies' Aid, of the Methodist Church, are making preparations for a chicken-pie supper to be held early in February.

COTTAGES AT CHEMONG ARE BROKEN INTO

Miss Madeline Yates intends going to the West with her brother, this Spring. She will be very much missed as she was a great help in the Epworth League.

A number of the young Village people skated down the Lake to the Indian Village on Sunday last and attended Divine service, there.

The Epworth League will hold a social on Thursday, Jan. 28th.

Some cottages in the Park have been broken into again; also some grain stolen from the farmers' granaries.

The ice harvest will soon commence again. There are lots of harvesters to cut the ice.

KEENE NEWS

KEENE, Jan. 20.—The death of Mr. Dennis Kenneally last Friday morning came as a great shock to his many friends. He had been ill only a few days and death was entirely unexpected. He was 45 years of age and the son of the late Martin Kenneally, and a life-long resident of the village. The funeral took place from St. John's church, Keene, on Sunday morning at 10 a.m., after which the remains were conveyed to Little Lake cemetery at Peterborough, where they were interred. The pallbearers were his three brothers, William, Patrick and Michael, and Messrs. Thomas O'Neil, W. Maher and James Bowie. Those attending the funeral from a distance were: Mrs. Moher, son and daughter, Mrs. Hendry, Mrs. William Clancy, Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Wedlock, son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Daly and son, Messrs. N. and P. Maher, all of Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. George Whittie of Sterling, Mr. Joseph White of Whiterville, Mr. and Mrs. O'Reilly of Norwood, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O'Neil, son and daughter, and Mrs. Kenneally of Hastings, Mr. and Mrs. P. Kenneally and daughter of Toronto.

Mrs. William Carter, who underwent an operation at Brantford last Tuesday, we are pleased to report, is getting along very nicely.

Dr. W. T. Harrison was in Peterborough on Monday on business.

Mrs. J. J. Moore visited friends at Toronto the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pue of Monaghan, visited Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Howson over Sunday.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. F. Gamy on Thursday last, a daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gillespie of Peterborough, spent the week end at the home of Mr. Henry Humphries.

Miss Dixon of Zion, was the guest the past week of Miss Belle Weir.

Last Thursday night a hockey match at the Keene rink was played by the Keene junior hockey team and the juniors of Mather's Corners. The Keene team won the game by a score of 8 to 3.

Miss Alice Lumsden was called to Peterborough on Saturday on account of the serious illness of a niece.

Miss Susan Moore has returned to Coldsprings, New York, where she will be engaged at her profession of trained nurse.

Mr. Gus Bolin and sister, Miss Annie, were called to Coe Hill on Monday on account of the illness of their brother, Alphonsus.

The Farmers' Institute, which was held on Tuesday afternoon and evening was well attended, the speakers for the afternoon and evening session being Messrs. Hawthorn and McDowell. A very interesting programme was prepared for the evening by local talent.

Mr. John C. Reid of Peterborough, was in the village on Tuesday.

The W. M. S. of the Methodist church, Keene, will hold an entertainment in the Town Hall, Keene, on the evening of Jan. 29th. Mr. M. H. Staples, B.A., of Knox College, who has lately escaped from Germany, will give a talk on "A Peep Into Germany." An interesting programme of music will also be given. Admission 25c. and 15c.

Strengthening the Sound Waves

AFTER travelling a certain distance the electric wave which carries the human voice along the telephone wire becomes attenuated and speech becomes too faint to be heard.

Just as in the old stage-coach days fresh relays of horses at regular intervals along the way, enabled the traveller to continue his journey with undiminished speed, so by means of the newly invented "loading coils" inserted at proper intervals, the electric waves are strengthened and long distance telephoning is made easy.

We have lately finished the "loading" of our long distance lines and speech transmission has been very greatly improved. This is especially noticeable on extra long talks. Our "long-haul" transmission is better than ever.

Begin the New Year by making systematic use of the Long Distance Telephone in your business. It will save you time and labor, as well as much money in the shape of travelling expense.

Every Bell Telephone is a Long Distance Station.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?

FAIR DIRECTORS SEEK ASSISTANCE OF LADIES

Appoint Lady Superintendent and Three Lady Directors to Advance the Work in Special Departments—Past Year Successful in Spite of Upsetting Events—J. H. Garbutt Retained as President.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition held on Wednesday afternoon in the Council chamber brought out the fact that in spite of the extreme conditions that broke about the 1914 fair, it proved to be entirely successful. A satisfactory balance is shown in the credit column, the directors are all working harmoniously, and there is every promise of greater achievements in the next few years.

President—J. H. Garbutt.
1st Vice-Pres.—Geo. A. Gillespie.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Roland Denne.
Sec.-Treas.—F. J. A. Hall.
Auditors—Wm. Collins and Ed. Elliott.

The Board of Directors were re-elected with two exceptions, Mr. Allan B. Mann of Bridgenorth and Mr. Albert Roberts of Otonabee, were substituted for Mr. R. Neill and Mr. W. E. Conway.

Mr. Garbutt stated that he had been president during the past three years and felt that it was about time some other director moved up. He nominated Mr. R. M. Glover, but the latter replied that the Exhibition at the present time could not afford to be without the services of Mr. Garbutt. "Even if we had a dozen good active citizens in sight I would not put one at the head of the board just now. We will get better results with Mr. Garbutt in for another year at least. It is a hard job and we appreciate the fact that he feels it better than any one we have in sight.

Mr. Garbutt responded with an expression of willingness to put forth his best efforts with the generous co-operation of the directors.

The audited financial statement was as follows:

Receipts—

Balance, 1913	$ 243.41
Legislative grant	650.00
Municipal grant	775.00
Membership fees	91.00
Donations	171.45
Membership fees (1915)	153.00
Admission to Ex.	2946.55
Rent of grounds	700.00
Field crop grant	50.00
Miscellaneous	725.12
	$6283.53

Expenditure—

Prize money	$2237.75
Other year's prizes	31.00
Field competition	25.00
Delegates to conventions	12.50
Dept. prizes for field competition	50.00
Special attractions	1,009.50
Rent, etc.	766.47
Services of officers	126.00
Working expenses	902.65
Advertising	576.00
	$5,529.92
Balance on hand	753.61

Fears Evaporated.

Mr. Garbutt, in his opening address stated that the first fears in August were not realized during fair week. By the middle of September the conditions were much more favourable than those expected when war broke out. The exhibition proved equal to that of the previous years in many respects. Any deficiency in the middle of exhibits was more than equalized by the higher quality in practically every class and particularly in the light horses. There was a falling off in attendance and a corresponding decrease in gate receipts. Mr. Garbutt heartily thanked the members and directors for their generous support and united effort during the past year of unusual contingencies.

No Horse Show.

On motion of Mr. Glover and Mr. F. Wise it was decided not to hold a spring stallion and seed fair for 1915 because of the unresponsiveness of possible exhibitors in former years. It was pointed out that many find it too far. Mr. Denne suggested that it might be advisable to hold the show early in the year and possibly in conjunction with the poultry exhibition.

Their Own Judges.

Mr. Garbutt stated in regard to securing judges that notice had been received that the government grant would be cut in half this year. Mr. Thos. Brown stated that the department should be urged not to diminish the grants.

Mr. Glover supported their suggestion and pointed out that the government's desire to secure heavier grain production this year might be an influence in favour of maintaining the usual grant for the effect the larger fair prize would exert.

Moved by Mr. J. Cox, seconded by Mr. Brown, that the department be notified that the Peterborough Exhibition would not call upon them for judges this year.—Carried.

Mr. Denne considered that better results were secured last year when the directors secured their own judgments. The difference was only about $25 and the absence of complaints was worth the extra. Under the former system the department supplied judges and called upon the Exhibition for $5 a day for the expenses of each man.

Field Crop Competition.

It was decided on motion of Mr. Denne, seconded by Mr. Miller, that the directors hold a field crop competition with white oats as the particular grain.—Carried.

The Fair Dates.

The exhibition this year will be held on September 16, 17, 18, Thursday to Saturday.

Moved by Mr. Glover, seconded by Mr. F. Wise, that Mr. Garbutt be a delegate to the convention of Eastern Ontario Agricultural Societies, to be held in Belleville.—Carried.

Privilege Cancelled.

A communication notified the Board that this year the free return freight privilege would be cancelled. Mr. Garbutt named Norwood, Bobcaygeon and Hastings exhibitors who would be affected. Formerly exhibits were returned free by the companies. Mr. J. J. Turner, Sr., suggested that this matter be brought up at the meeting of the Provincial Fairs Association in Toronto.

Dairy Prize Question.

Mr. Reilly's query in regard to the disposal of the $25 prize for milk tests presented by the Holstein-Friesian Association was left with Mr. Chas. B. Moore's committee with power to act.

Pay Auditors.

On motion of Mr. Denne and Mr Turner Mr. Wm. Collins and Mr. Ed. Elliott, auditors, were voted an honorarium for their services.

Special Committee.

Moved by Mr. Brown, seconded by Mr. Bert Duffus, that John Gillespie, Jos. Reilly and R. Devell be a special committee to assist the directors when required.—Carried.

Lady Directors.

Mr. Brown urged that the assistance of the ladies should be secured for fine arts and similar classes. He moved, seconded by Mr. Denne, that Miss Mina B. Davidson be appointed lady superintendent with Mrs. E. B. Clegg, Mrs. V. Eastwood and Miss Bennett as directors.—Carried.

Delegates Appointed.

Wm. Collins and Chas. E. Moore were re-appointed delegates to attend the Provincial Association of Agricultural Societies' Convention.—Carried.

Prize Lists Out Earlier.

It was pointed out the desirability of issuing the prize lists in April or May. Last year some progress was made in this respect, but with prize lists in the hands of possible exhibitors early in the year an almost certain way is open to securing more numerous and better entries.

"TIZ" FOR ACHING, SORE, TIRED FEET

"TIZ" for tender, puffed-up, burning, calloused feet and corns

You can be happy-footed just like me. Use "TIZ" and never suffer with tender, raw, burning, blistered, swollen, tired, smelly feet. "TIZ" and only "TIZ" takes the pain and soreness out of corns, callouses and bunions.

As soon as you put your feet in a "TIZ" bath, you just feel the happiness soaking in. How good your poor, old feet feel. They want to dance for joy. "TIZ" is grand. "TIZ" instantly draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause sore, inflamed, aching, sweaty, smelly feet.

Get a 25 cent box of "TIZ" at any drug store or department store. Get instant foot relief. Laugh at foot sufferers who complain. Remember your feet are never, never going to bother or make you limp any more.

In Regard To That Whistling

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I was on my homeward journey last night, at quite an early hour, too, and as I came on George street, on to Brock, I happened to be whistling some tune, I think it was "Tack me in my Trundle Bed." Well, just when I was about in it, or just nicely past the ear-specialists, who heard it not, some chap's voice broke the silence, exclaiming: "Cut it out, old top! Cut it out! Cut it out!" I say, an Irishman, I surmise. Well, if I had not read your paper last night I could not have fathomed his queer actions. However, I remembered reading his letter which, at the time, I put down as lack of common sense, or troubled with sleeplessness. Now, our friend of the Kaiser's spirit, wants to remember that it is quite lawful for one to go along, whistling, in this country. It is more musical than howling, anyway. My word! I do like to see a person bright and happy. You will get a great reward hereafter if you but sacrifice a half minute's sleep an occasional night; by thus doing I fully believe you will relive considerable pressure off some lover's heart. You are not getting too old are you, bachelor, for a little whistle, yourself?

However, in the future, if I happen along that way, I shall not whistle, as I go by your place, and if you prefer it, I shall also remove my shoes. As for my socks, better wait till Spring.

Wishing you a happy New Year of peaceful repose, I am,

A Nightingale.

A LUMBERMAN'S OPINION.

"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and sleeplessness," writes Mr. Wm. Pritchard, Lumber Inspector, Lumsden Mills, Ont., "and used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with very great benefit, as my whole system was strengthened and built up." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood and restores the feeble, wasted nerve cells.

Bad Light In East City

Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I would like a little space in your valuable paper to ask why the streets in East City are so poorly lighted during the night. Is it that the Hydro-Electric officials, hearing of raids on coast towns in England, and of orders to keep the cities there in darkness, fear Zeppelin raids here and are keeping the lights out? East City residents, would like more "light on the subject."?

It is certainly not very pleasant for anyone who has to travel East City streets after dark with such poor lights and several without lights at all. Someone in authority should take the matter up in the proper quarters and see what can be done. If the Hydro Electric propose to light the city why do they not get at it?

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I remain,

Yours truly,

EAST CITY.

Farm and Dairy Market Report

Toronto, Monday, Jan. 18.—Wholesale produce men have now had an opportunity to sum up the year's operations and take a look into the future. The general tendency is to be somewhat optimistic and it is generally admitted that Canada must suffer along with the rest of the world in the disastrous effects of war. The most optimistic view is taken by those who look further into the future. There Canada's opportunities are boundless. They lie largely along the line of increased agricultural production which will be made possible through irrigation. Everything should be done to facilitate the settlement of people on the land and to this end the Manitoba Grain Growers' association at their recent annual meeting again endorsed the taxation of land values for all purposes. Such a system of taxation they believe will do more than anything else to restore normal business conditions in Canada.

Wheat has assumed a new high level, coarse grains generally are strong, weak-spots have proved only to buy and grow, eggs and cattle.

WHEAT

An unprecedented war demand has caused an advance of 10c in wheat during the week. United States figures are reported to be holding for $1.50. When prices reach these altitudes, however, they are always in danger of a slump. The directional point in the present situation is the opening of the Dardanelles. If the allies were to be successful in this venture it would release [illegible] bushels of Russian wheat, and also cause a severe decline in quotations. No. 1 Northern is now quoted $1.49½; No. 2, $1.46½; No. 3, $1.44½. Ontario wheat has also advanced, now being quoted at $1.39 to $1.37.

COARSE GRAINS

Western oats want more decidedly higher prices, and since the rolling of restrictions, fair volume of business has been done. Prices now, however, have regained their old altitude. Other grains generally are stronger. Oats, C.W. No. 2, 43c; No. 3, 42c; No. 1 feed, 41½; Ontario oats, 41c to 42c; corn, 80c; peas, 92c to $1.05; barley, malt, 60c to 62½; buckwheat, 90c to 92c; rye, 94.80 to $1.00. The Montreal market quotes as follows: Oats, C.W. No. 2, 47½; No. 3, 45½; extra No. 1 feed, 45½; local, white, 44½c to 45c; barley, malt, 58c to 60c; feed, 56c to 57c; buckwheat, 85½c to 90c; corn, $1.00 to $1.01.

MILL FEEDS

Quotations here are: Bran, $27 to $28; shorts, $29 to $30; middlings, $32 to $34; feed flour, $3.20 to $3.40. In Montreal bran is quoted $25; shorts, $27; middlings, $30 to $32; feed flour, $3.20 to $3.40.

HAY AND STRAW

There is no large movement to the hay market. Quotations here are: No. 1, hay, $16 to $17; No. 2, $14 to $15; No. 3, $11 to $12; baled straw, $8.00. At Montreal prices have been reduced $2, all round: No. 1, $20 to $20.50; No. 2, $17 to $18.50; No. 3, $15 to $15.50.

POTATOES AND BEANS

The potato market is still quiet, with quotations here 80c for Ontario and Montreal, 67½c to 70c.

Beans are here quoted: Primes, $2.75 to $2.80; hand picked, $2.80 to $3. Montreal quotes three-pound pickers, $2.40 to $2.50; hand picked, $2.85.

EGGS AND POULTRY

New laid eggs are easy. Refrigerator stock is benefiting somewhat. Probably the warm weather has been favorable to increased receipts of new laids, which has caused prices to go to 30c wholesale. Cooks are quoted 25c to 26c and storage, 25c to 25c. At Montreal the mild weather has induced larger shipments, and quotations have been reduced 2c down around 30c. No. 1 storage, 27½c; selects, 32c.

Dressed poultry is quoted here as follows: Chickens, alive, 12c; dressed, 16c; fowl (a.), 10c to 11c and (d.) 13c to 14c; ducks (a.), 11c and (d.), 16c to 17c; geese (a.), 11c and (d.), 14c to 15c; turkeys (a.), 16c to the end (d.), 22c.

DAIRY PRODUCE

The butter outbreak is now decidedly pronounced and dealers who met large specs were disturbed selling, are now from 2c to 3c above quotations of last week. To the wholesale trade fresh creamery prints bring 34c to 35c; dairy prints, 30c to 32c; and bakers, 28c to 29c. At Montreal finest September and first of October creamery has been sold at 33c to 33½c, and as high as 34c has been reported. Fine creamery is quoted in round lots at 32½c. There is just a chance that if quotations advance much higher some New Zealand butter may be shipped in from London as has been done in previous year.

Fast Hockey At Warsaw

WARSAW, Jan. 20—Dr. Munro was called to Nairn, Ont., on Tuesday, on account of the death of his father.

Mrs. Cora Bullock moved from Lakefield last week and is living in a house recently purchased from Mr. G. W. Reid.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. McMillan left last week for their new home in Petrolea.

Miss Edna Darling, a friend of Lakefield were guests of Mrs. Bullock, Sunday.

A grand masquerade carnival will be held on the Warsaw Skating Rink on Wednesday evening, Jan. 27th. Prizes will be given for the best costumes and for several racing events.

Mrs. Ernest Schneider of Detroit, Mich., is home to the celebration of the golden wedding of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Harding.

Rev. Mr. Delliville, Havelock, conducted service in the Methodist Church on Sunday.

The opening of the hockey season was marked by one of the best games ever seen here, when on Saturday the Lakefield All Star team met the locals in a three-period game, which resulted in a tie. The score at the finish was 6 to 6. Messrs. Blewitt, Hill and Rowe did the best work for the visitors, while R. Darling, C. Selkirk and F. Bell were strong for the locals. The line-up was as follows:

Warsaw.
	W. Aitken
	J. Selkirk
	C. Selkirk
	H. Darling
R. Payne	R. Darling	F. Bell
C. Murdoff	F. Simpson	B. Blewitt

"CASCARETS" RELIEVE SICK, SOUR STOMACH

Move Acids, Gases and Clogged Waste From Liver and Bowels

Get a 10-cent box now.

That awful heartburn, belching of acid and foul gases; that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, bloating after eating, dizziness and sick headache, means a disordered stomach, which can not be regulated until you remove the cause. It isn't your stomach's fault. Your stomach is as good as any.

Try Cascarets; they immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the bowels. Then your stomach trouble is ended. A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your stomach sweet; liver and bowels regular for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

Russians Nearing The Prussian Frontier

DESTRUCTION OF A BIG GERMAN AMMUNITION DEPOT IS CONFIRMED

Explosion Shook the Earth for Miles Around—German Field Works Destroyed In Vicinity of Rheims—Furious Fighting Along the Battle Line Extending From St. Mihiel to Metz.

OFFICIAL COMMUNIQUE WITHELD COMMENT

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

PARIS, France, January 21.—Official Statement Thursday noon.—The destruction of a big German ammunition depot, from which German forces operating near Rheims drew their supplies, was reported in the official despatches this afternoon. According to unofficial reports, the explosion of huge supplies of powder resulted in many deaths. British aviators located the ammunition depot and furnished the range to the allies' gunners. The guns had scarcely been trained on its destruction when a shell burst through the roof. A tremendous explosion followed which shook the earth for miles around.

DEMOLISHED GERMAN FIELD WORKS

Before the depot was blown up the allies' artillery succeeded in demolishing the German field works in the same locality. Immediately after the explosion an infantry charge was ordered, and the allies took several of the enemy's trenches.

Furious fighting along the German battle line, extending from St. Mihiel to Metz, with first one side and then the other having the advantage, is reported. On the north, artillery dueling at long range continued throughout yesterday, the British taking three German positions northwest of Beausejour, after steady shelling had rendered the Germans' positions untenable. The French arms operating toward Mulhausen in Lower Alsace, are reported to be "advancing."

PREDICTION CAUSED UNEASINESS

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

ROME, Italy, January 21.—The prediction of a toothless old woman seer that Central and Southern Italy would be visited by the most terrific earthquake in the world's history on January 25th, caused widespread panic among the populace and the superstitious to-day. When the news reched Rome active steps were taken to have the clergy and the officials in the stricken districts call the people together and ridicule the story.

The bitter gale that hindered the work of rescue yesterday had somewhat abated to-day, and the work or digging into the wrecked buildings in the ruined cities continued.

SIXTEEN MILES FROM THE RHINE

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

LONDON, January 21.—It is rumoured here that British troops would shortly be sent to Belfort to participate in any possible advance on the Rhine. The French advanced trenches, according to reports received here, are now only 16 miles from the Rhine.

MOUNTED RIFLES FOR EGYPT

OTTAWA, January 21.—It is believed here that a brigade of Canadian Mounted Rifles, which it is stated Colonel Victor Williams will command, will be for service in Egypt. One regiment of this brigade will likely be from Ontario.

GERMAN ADVANTAGE AT SOISSONS WON AT COST OF MANY LIVES

ON THE BELGIAN FRONTIER, January 20.—The temporary advantage to the Germans on the Aisne to the north west of Soissons, was gained at heavy cost. Many trains of wounded, who were victims of the deadly shrapnel fire of the French, have arrived at Louvain on the route to Cologne, while the local hospitals in the towns behind the centre of the German lines, are filled with wounded whose condition is too serious to permit of their removal to Germany.

THE RUSSIAN ADVANCE

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, January 21.—The Russian advance along the east bank of the Vistula in Poland, toward the Prussian frontier, is proceeding in spite of the Germans' threatening the Grand Duke's army. The German bombardment of the Russian works on the east bank of the Vistula to the confluence of the Vistula and the Bzura, continues intermittently, but the Germans have been prevented from throwing pontoons across the river by the effective work of the Russian guns. The Russian forces in Bukowina continue to advance in a southwesterly direction, despite the stubborn Austrian resistance.

DACIA WILL PROCEED

Despite Warning From the British Government—Officials Convinced of Genuineness of Dacia's Purchase

OWNERS NOTIFIED

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—The proposed voyage of the cotton steamer "Dacia" will be undertaken despite the warning that the British Government would seize the vessel. The State Department has notified the owners of the "Dacia" of the British Government's decision, and has left to them the responsibility of making the proposed voyage. Convinced of the genuineness of the "Dacia's" purchase the Department officials reiterate the belief that the vessel will have a good case before a prize court.

More Boxes For the Soldiers

Women's War Fund Committee Sent 129 Pairs of Socks

The Women's War Fund Committee this week sent several more boxes to Salisbury Plain. These contained 129 pairs of hand-knit socks and several cholera belts. They were sent direct to Miss Plummer, with the request that they be distributed among the Canadians in the most need. The Committee wish to thank the ladies of Bridgenorth and of the Gilmour Memorial Church, and the other ladies who made it possible to send these boxes off much sooner than was expected. Those interested in knitting are reminded of the fact that wool is given out at the Armouries every Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

DR. G. CLINTON OF BELLEVILLE IN THE CITY

VISITED COUNTY BUILDINGS

Dr. George Clinton, District Officer of Health, is in the City. This morning he accompanied Sanitary Inspector Spence on a tour of inspection, taking in the County Buildings, a number of restaurants and other public places, where sanitary conditions are required. Dr. Clinton appeared to be fairly well satisfied with the way in which the regulations were being carried out, although he suggested a number of changes that would tend to improve matters.

This afternoon Dr. Clinton will meet the Board of Health, when the annual meeting will be held. Reports of both Dr. McPherson, M.H.O., and Sanitary Inspector Spence will be presented and other business common to the annual meeting transacted.

DOCTORS OFF TO MONTENEGRO

Dr. Howard Burndam, Nephew of Mr. J. H. Burnham M. P. at Head of Red Cross Party

LONDON, Jan. 21.—A British Red Cross party left for Montenegro on [illegible] Buxton, of Canada.

Lieut. C. E. Parker, King's Royal Rifles, formerly Sixth Duke of Connaught Rifles, Vancouver, is now reported as missing and is believed to have been killed.

It is quite possible that the Dr. Burnham mentioned is Dr. Howard Burnham, son of Dr. G. H. Burnham, of 2 Bloor Street East, Toronto, who stated to The Star this morning that as far as he knew his son was the only medical man in the contingent with that name. His father received a letter from him a few days ago, in which no mention was made of any transfer, so that if he is the man mentioned, the arrangements for the transfer were very likely completed within the last two weeks.

Dr. Howard Burnham is 24 years of age, and since his graduation in 1914 from Toronto University, had been engaged at the Toronto General Hospital in the capacity of house surgeon. When hostilities broke out at the beginning of August, he joined the Canadian Field Artillery and left for the concentration camp at Salisbury as medical attendant to No. 2 Company from Montreal. He had no previous military experience.

Dr. Howard Burnham is a nephew of Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., of this City.

THE FINANCE COMMITTEE WILL MEET

To-morrow Afternoon to Discuss Ways and Means of Reducing Our Form of Civic Expenditure

TO CONSIDER EXPENDITURE

To-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, the Finance Committee of the City Council will meet to consider Ald. Edgar's resolution respecting the proposed reduction of salaries paid to all City officials and also to consider whether it will be possible to reduce the present number of officials employed.

It will be remembered that this matter was brought up by Ald. Stratton about a year ago, when it was decided to let the matter stand until the Public Utilities department had been organized.

	Former salary.	Present salary.
Mayor Pascoe..	$3,000	$1,500
Commissioner Mackie ..	4,000	3,000
Commissioner Heal:...	4,200	2,500
City Treas. Goudie.. .	2,400	2,000
Assessor Moffatt.. ..	1,800	1,650
Elec. Supt. Peters. ..	3,300	2,400
Dr. Bayly, M.H.O. ...	3,000	2,400
Fire Chief Baines.. ..	2,100	1,600

War Literature For The Schools

The Daughters of the Empire Are Doing a Commendable Work

The Peterborough Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire is doing a commendable work by distributing literature dealing with the present great European war.

They have furnished each of the Public schools with copies of the war number of the Round Table Magazine; also the pamphlet entitled, 'Why the Empire is at War,' by Sir Edward Cook, and other literature.

In this and other ways they are assuring a patriotism which is both a young ga patriotism which is both a sentiment and a principle, because it is based on justice and reason.

Two Freight Cars Left the Track

Broken Wheel Caused Slight Tie-up on Belleville Line Last Night

A broken wheel on a freight car caused two cars of the 'extra east' on the Grand Trunk, to leave the track two miles west of Campbellford about 7.30 o'clock last evening. There was no damage to rolling stock or track, but a few ties were broken on a small bridge. The line was clear for the early morning mail to-day.

The train which had the mishap, was a freight in charge of Conductor McElroy, en route to Belleville.

The auxiliary with a wrecking crew in charge of Messrs. Mallillan and Yarrow passed through the city at 10.35 o'clock last night on the way to the scene of the wreck. At 12.07 o'clock this morning they reported the line clear for the regular trains.

The Lakefield train in charge of Conductor Jobbitt, was despatched last evening to convey the passengers from the Belleville train to Peterborough.

Orders All Land Cropped

Prussian Government Stipulates For Harvesting Next Year

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 21.—The Telegraaf publishes a despatch from Berlin saying the Prussian government has ordered all administrators of forests to turn over free of cost all such lands under their jurisdiction that are suitable for the growing of crops. The government of the Grand Duchy of Weimar has taken similar action.

Among the regulations concerning this transfer is the stipulation that the first crop from these lands must be harvested this year.

SECOND ANNUAL MEETING LOCAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN

Opened This Afternoon—The President's Address—The War Has Handicapped the Efforts of the Organization.

OFFICERS ELECTED

The second annual meeting of the Peterborough Local Council of Women, which was held in the Public Library building at 3 o'clock this afternoon, was largely attended. The different reports showed gratifying progress. The Council has handicapped by the condition of the country, caused by the war.

President's Address.

At this the second annual meeting of our Peterborough Local Council of Women, we have necessarily few definite acts to report as having been done in the last six months. Our minds have all been so filled with the terrible war, that most of our local work has been practically at a standstill.

However, during the first part of the year, there was work done, of which you will hear in the various reports, and even in the early autumn the "Better Baby Contest" was a great credit to our fine Public Health Committee, and through them to our whole Council.

Some of our committees have not been holding meetings, while others have been doing steady, quiet, but none the less effective work.

During the coming year, I hope great things for this Council, as you are about to elect a strong body of women to be your leaders.

We all keenly regret losing Miss Weir as our corresponding secretary. She was always a tower of strength to this Local Council.

During this anxious time, in our National History, let us all be brave and strong and look confidently forward to a righteous and abiding peace—and let each of us do what in her [illegible]

Before closing, may I now thank all the members of the Executive for their ever ready help and support in our two years of co-labour for this Council.

It will always be a great pleasure to us to look back on our two years of association in this work.

And may I bespeak for our successors the same loyal support from the whole Executive which, it has been our privilege to receive.—

F. M. DAVIDSON,
President L. C. W.

Officers Elected.

Pres.—Mrs. (Dr.) F. C. Neal.
Vice-Presidents—Mrs. (Dr.) W. D. Scott, Mrs. Kendry and Miss A. Staples.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. (Dr.) Mann.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. W. H. Morris.
Treasurer—Mrs. (Dr.) Sutton.

Committee on Suppression.

The report of the Committee on the Suppression of Objectionable Printed Matter was presented by Mrs. B. Gardiner, convener. It was as follows:

1. That the Librarian at the Public Library inspect all books that come in, and not allow any that were of an undesirable tendency in regard to morals, to be given out to the public.

2. The Postmaster has been interviewed in regard to postcards and parcels [illegible] through the post and has assured the committee that for nearly a year no parcels of any objectionable matter have passed through the mails. Some very unpleasant postcards were disposed of in one store in the city. The manager was duly warned—a warning which has borne good fruit.

3. The proprietors of the book stores and the newspaper men have all promised to give any assistance in their power towards helping the committee in their work, and we have everywhere received the greatest encouragement, and courtesy, in the pursuit of our duties.

4. In regard to false advertisements, the committee cannot do anything, as long as they keep within the law.

5. The committee feel that it would be most desirable to obtain lists of objectionable literature, and send these lists to the Postmaster-General and to the Customs Department, asking to have the importation of such matter barred in both these departments.

Committee on Education.

The Committee on Education and Supervised Playgrounds submitted the following report:

In April, at the suggestion of your convenor, a meeting was arranged with representatives of the following bodies: City Council, Board of Trade, Canadian Club, Big Brothers' and the Y.M.C.A., to devise some scheme for inaugurating a movement towards securing public playgrounds and suitable places for our City. At the meeting each of these bodies was re-

No. 5 Company of The Home Guard In A Bun Fight

Honour to Two of Their Members Who Have Enlisted for Overseas Service—Another Recruit This Week

On Wednesday evening the officers and men of No. 5 company of the Home Guard met for social intercourse in Coleman's parlours to do honour to two of their number who have enlisted with the third overseas contingent, namely, Mr. Thos. H. Griffith and Mr. Jas. C. Sturgeon.

After a sumptuous repast, daintily served by Coleman Bros., the chairman, Capt. Ackerman, in a few neat remarks, explained the object of the gathering, after which a very enjoyable programme was gone through.

Special mention should be made of the toast to the Army and Navy, proposed by J. J. Turner, Jr., which was, indeed a fine effort and appealed to everyone present.

The toast of the evening was "Our Guests," presented by Mr. J. H. Knapman in brief, well chosen words complimenting the officers and men of No. 5 Company Home Guards in having such stalwart men accepted for service in the third overseas contingent.

Mr. Hendry in his character song fairly brought down the house and had to respond again.

Mr. Nicholls performed in his usual able manner at the piano.

Toast, "The King"—Lieut. R. H. Turner.
Song, "Soldiers of the King"—F. Edwards.
Toast, "Army and Navy"—J. J. Turner, Jr.
Song—Sergt. Sewell.
Song, "And Old Way to Cook Chicken"—Lieut. R. H. Turner.
Toast, "Our Guests"—Mr. Knapman.
Song, "We Parted on the Shore"—R. Hendry.
Toast, "The City"—Lieut. Worth.
Song, "Red, White and Blue"—F. Edwards.
Song, "Which Was a Joke"—Sergt. Chris. Graham.
Toast, "Our Allies"—Lieut. R. H. Turner.
Song—Mr. Howland.

Before closing Capt. Ackerman mentioned that one other member of No. 5 Company had enlisted this week, namely, Mr. Taylor, so it will be noticed that No. 5 Company, though none too strong, in numbers, is made up of good men and true.

Great credit is due Coleman Bros. for the dainty way in which the tables were laid. Flags of the Allies were very prominent all over the tables.

JUNIOR EPWORTH LEAGUE DRIVE

The Junior Epworth League of George Street church held their annual sleigh drive Tuesday, Jan. 19. There was a fine attendance of the younger boys and girls. Three sleighs left the church at 6.30 p.m., returning about 7.30 p.m., where refreshments were served to about eighty merry young folk. After the refreshments the Leaguers enjoyed themselves with games for the rest of the evening.

The enjoyable evening was brought to a close by a short address from the pastor, Rev. Mr. Peever, who reminded the League members of what they stood for—Christ and his cause.

OUR WAR RESOURCES.

"We've got the ships, we've got the men; we've got the money too"; the burden of the jingo song, is not more figurative rhapsody, but contains more truth than poetry. One great source of the Empire is its incalculable monetary wealth, in both resources and cash. Great Britain itself is easily the richest country in the world, that is in the matter of liquid resources—ready cash. She is financing this exhausting war "without," to use a racing expression, "turning a hair." And while Britain is rolling in ready cash, the outlying elements of the Empire are contributing heavily to the imperial funds. The world's annual production of gold, which is the real and chief fibre of the "sinews of war," is about 453 million dollars. To this enormous gold production, the colonies and dominions of the British Empire contribute nearly half, or a total of 240 millions. Canada's annual production of gold is about 17 millions, the South African Commonwealth mines 181 millions, Australia 51 millions, and India 12 millions. It is, therefore, seen that the British Empire is very largely self-contained in the case of raw material of money, the greatest engine in prosecuting successfully, an especially prolonged, warfare. In addition she is self-contained in the matter of other resources, especially food supplies, which, next to money, are the most important agents in successful campaigning. The Empire has practically inexhaustible resources to draw from in the way of men; and when it comes to a consideration of will and patriotic spirit, loyalty to right and spirit of sacrifice in the cause of right, the Empire's resources are simply inexhaustible. The war seems to drag very slowly; but the progress of the Allies, like that of a glacier, is irresistibly onward. We shall in the not distant future see developments that will urge forward the success of the Allies with a rush. In any event time is fighting upon the side of the Allies. While their resources in all essentials are undergoing development, the resources of the enemy are becoming exhausted, if not rapidly, steadily and surely. We are not down-hearted; we have no reason to be when we look forward to the inevitable victorious outcome.

PENALTY OF BREACH OF FAITH.

There's a coolness between two great members of the Imperial family. Australia has made a new tariff, and strange to say, Canada has been given no preference in the markets of the Southern Cross Dominion. This country is treated like an outsider. Goods from Canada must enter Australia at the higher rates of the general tariff, such as are applied to the goods of the United States, Germany, and other alien countries. This is disappointing. Sir George Foster, Canadian Minister of Trade and Commerce, spent some time in Australia last summer, using his well-known eloquence to induce Australia to facilitate trade with Canada by granting a preference to this country. But he didn't succeed; and we see the result in Canada being left out in the cold in the matter of preferential tariff treatment. When Sir George was in Australia it was stated that his cool reception was due to the fact that Australia resented Canada's failure to live up to the solemn agreement made with Australia in 1909, to establish a fleet on the Pacific for the protection of British and Imperial interests in these waters. There is something of poetic justice in Sir George being the personal object of the rebuff. It was Sir George that, in the course of a splendidly eloquent speech, in March, 1909, moved the resolution, unanimously adopted by the Canadian Parliament, affirming and adopting the policy of a Canadian navy built in Canada.

One may not go so far as to justify Australia in penalizing Canada, by exclusion from tariff favours; but there is something in the way of excuse. In the present conjunction of circumstances, breach of faith—disregard of the sanctity of agreements—with Germany as the "horrible example"—becomes a conspicuous offence. Australia is likely to feel strongly upon this point, for she has faithfully implemented her share of the agreement, and recent results tend to make her feel that her course has been the right one. Premier Fisher, of Australia, has declared that the events of the war has dispelled any doubt that Australia's naval policy is the right one. It is not too much to say that events have proved that a Canadian navy built in Canada is the right policy for this country. If Canada had acted upon Sir George Foster's resolution, as promptly as Australia carried out her part of the agreement, Canada might at this time have had a navy like Australia that might have done with the elusive Karlsruhe, what Australia's navy did with the Emden; and besides Canada would not have suffered the humiliation of being excluded from the sisterhood of the great Dominion in the matter of tariff preference.

BUSINESS AS USUAL.

This war deranges business, interrupts the ordinary course of human activities; but it does not justify a suspension of individual, or civic or national effort. Of the population of Canada and the Empire, only a comparative handful is actually engaged in the work of the war. The Dominion Government proposes asking Parliament to vote a 100 million dollars to carry on the war as Canada's share. No doubt this amount will be readily voted, and the people will as readily and whole-heartedly endorse the vote. But all our eggs should not be put into one basket; all our resources need not be banked on war. We should find money to keep business going as usual. Now, if ever, is the time to give employment by prosecuting public works. Such a course would be contributing to the prosecution of the war by maintaining ourselves in good national condition. We should keep the ordinary machinery of life running as usual. We send a few thousand soldiers to the front to fight. In going and in fighting they are doing their duty; leaving us at home to do our duty—to keep things going as usual.

While war devastates the countries where it rages, here in Canada; here in Peterborough, the current of every day events, is not rippled; the sun will continue to shine, the showers to fall, the grass to grow, the trees to leaf, and all the processes of nature will, in action, invite the cooperation of man to make harvests of food, war or no war.

The days are lengthening; spring will soon be here, and we must be ready for it. This injunction applies, to be specific in one case, to the Board of Education. That body has wasted a great deal of money in a small way, in attempts to plant trees that will grow around the grounds of Queen Mary's School. These attempts have been abortive because, evidently, the idea of getting a cheap job done, prevailed. It was cheap, and a "job" too; for out of a large number of trees planted two years ago, hardly one is in thriving growth. The money it cost to plant them was wasted and two years' time lost. Unsuitable trees were improperly planted; no after attention was given, and the result is a ghastly line of bare poles where there should be trees with full sized tops. Will the board learn a lesson from this double failure, and order suitable trees in time; have them planted properly, and looked to after planting—staked, protected and watered, if necessary? We can do these and other things, even if war is going on. While our soldiers are doing their duty at the front, we—from the national trustees down to the humblest individual—must keep the machinery of civilization and progress running in all departments—in a word, must keep going, "business as usual."

GERMAN WOMEN AND THE WAR.

Many official orders regarding the conservation of foodstuffs are beginning to indicate the serious economic situation which is developing in Germany, as a result of the ever-tightening iron ring which the Allies are forging. The most illuminating article in this direction which has yet come out of Germany is one written in a Socialist's woman's paper, Die Gleichheit, published in Stuttgart. This article says:

> Like a child's soap-bubble which bursts at a touch, so has the legend been dissipated that the war would be a short 'military promenade' to Paris and Petrograd. We know that we are in the midst of a world-war which will last a very long time, and we must face the fact that Germany for many months to come will remain cut off from commercial intercourse with other nations, and will be compelled to feed her own people from her own reserves.
> Therefore we women must be as economical as possible and must husband all existing resources. More than that, we must see to it that these resources are equitably and widely distributed. It does not benefit the farm-labourer or the small official to tell him cheerfully that the harvest of corn and potatoes is said to have been large enough to feed the Empire until next summer if the price he has to pay for his meals continues to rise to breaking-point. The war has robbed many families of their chief support; it has shaken the economic fabric of the nation to its foundation, and has brought unemployment and low and uncertain earnings to many. Millions of women children, aged parents, and people in weak health must henceforth rely for their means of existence upon the pittance they receive from public funds and charity. . . . . The cattle are fed—the poor man cannot buy food. Millions are in want; millions more trembling before the menace of greater hardships still to come. In the hour of the greatest danger speculators are profiting by the wretchedness of the poor.
>
> The picture thus presented shows how terribly the German nation is already suffering as a result of the German Junker's "death or glory" outburst. Contrasted with the conditions which prevail in England or France, it is a startling reminder of the fact that time fights on the side of the Allies.

DON'T MENTION IT.

It is reported from Europe that official Germany has dropped the word "neutralitat," their equivalent for neutrality, and are now using "ohneseitigkeit," which means literally without-sidedness. The cancelled word seems to have been too reminiscent of Belgium, scraps of paper and other torn things. There is an old proverb to the effect that in a family whose relative has been hanged one must never say rope. Germany feels that way.—Colliers.

KEEP THE WHEELS MOVING.

Parliament is to be asked to vote $100,000,000 to enable Canada to continue to play her part in the great war for the balance of the year. That's all right; make it double the amount if necessary. But why not a few millions to enable us to carry on "business as usual' 'at home? Why halt important and needed public works at a time when employment is so scarce that men are forced to bury their pride and cry for charity? Why not some assistance for the manufacturer and farmer who are hampered by lack of capital from carrying on "business as usual," much less expanding? —Brantford Expositor.

RUSSIAN CULTURE.

"Bewhiskered barbarians" is the way many still think of the Russian Cossack atrocities in former wars, Siberian convict trains, Jew baiting, assassination, are with many persons the only things associated with the Russians. They do not think of the Slav as artistic, literary, poetic, musical. And yet Russia is possessed of a very real and vital culture. This has moved a committee of leading English authors to issue an appreciation of the literature and art of the Russian nation.

In fiction particularly does Russia lay claim to a high place in the world of culture. Russian fiction, it is true, is largely one of protest, the cry of a people that has for ages been ruled by an iron autocracy, but its vividness and virility grip and hold as only great literature can. Russian music, too, is judged by many to lead both that of Germany and Italy. With the drama there is nothing in England, Germany or France that stands higher than the productions of the great theatres of Petrograd or Moscow. It is well that the world should know just now that Russia has great resources in literature and art as well as in men.

WILL UNITED STATES FORBID THE EXPORTATION OF WHEAT?

The rise in the price of wheat and flour to an abnormal level is so clearly the result of the exceptional demand by European countries that some surprise may be felt at the popular pressure upon the government to investigate the situation. The department of justice will conduct an inquiry to determine whether the present prices are to any degree the result of an unlawful combination, and doubtless it is bound to do this if among consumers the suspicion prevails that monopolistic manipulation has been a factor in the case.

It seems extremely improbable that there has been anything more questionable at work than a general tendency among wheat producers since the war began to hold their crop for high prices. The dullest among them, with a fair amount of information, could see that while this continued for many months the price of the cereal would soar to a height unprecedented for years. It would be absurd to regard as a monopolistic conspiracy a widespread tendency of intelligent wheat farmers to hold their grain under such unprecedented conditions. An ordinary corner in wheat by speculators in Chicago has nothing in common with the phenomenon now commanding public attention. Speculators take advantage of a rising market to make money, but their actual control of wheat prices to-day seems negligible.

If the British government could be forewarned by the Admiralty that the British isles would become blockaded within the next six months, and thus isolated from the sources of food supply, it would probably begin buying American wheat on such a scale that the Chicago price would jump to $2 a bushel within a week. The present conditions are not so extreme as conditions one can imagine, yet what has happened already to the price of wheat is the natural result of the short European crop last year, the blockade of Russia's normal wheat exports at the Dardanelles by the present war and the unusual purchases of American wheat by all European countries which have had other supplies cut off or are now trying to anticipate their future needs by laying in exceptionally large stores. The present situation is precisely what observers of the grain market forecasted last August, and no gift of prophecy is needed to see that the buying pressure on the wheat market will grow severer in the coming year if the war is prolonged and stubbornly contested.

The suggestion that an embargo on wheat be declared by the government is made in the interest of the American consumer, who was sure to be heard from when the price of flour threatened to make the loaf costlier. The consumer must command sympathy. With less employment, he is forced to pay more for his daily bread. Yet an embargo on grain would be bitterly fought by the farmers because it would destroy their foreign market at a time when foreign countries must pay almost any price the seller may fix. An embargo, also, would destroy the chief economic resource of the United States in meeting its financial obligations abroad and in maintaining the balance of trade in its own favour. Thus far the country's international position in finance and commerce has been safeguarded in the war period mainly by the record wheat crop of 1914. Had the crop been so short that no surplus was available for export, the economic catastrophe to the United States would have exceeded beyond all experience what has actually occurred.

Congress is not in the least likely to pass legislation imposing an embargo on wheat. From a constitutional point of view, there seems to be no obstacle, inasmuch as an embargo would not necessarily involve a violation of the prohibition against a tax on exports. An embargo might be placed on wheat, it would seem, precisely as an embargo was placed on exports of munitions of war to Mexico a few years ago. All exports of wheat would be forbidden under such a ilaw, and the question of an export tax would not be raised. The embargoes of Jefferson and Madison were placed on shipping, not on merchandise or products of the soil. But their constitutionality was never tested in the courts.—Springfield Republican.

WHY BRITAIN FIGHTS.

"We Germans love the French and Belgians who were forced into the war," said Barnard Dernburg in his address Sunday at New Rochelle. This explains why the British are fighting so desperately. Judging from the experience of France and Belgium, only a rugged and husky nation can survive German affection. After the first demonstration of German love toward Belgium, Great Britain naturally decided that it was better to fight. Otherwise the Germans might take a notion to love the British, too. Certainly, if the Germans love the French and Belgians as Dr. Dernburg says, the British can hardly be blamed for preferring German hatred, as giving them at least a fighting chance.—New York World.

STRANGE EFFECT OF BEER.

The following issued by the Temperance and moral Reform Department of the Methodist Church, shows, if the statements made are correct, that beer is not the harmless, and simply soddening beverage it is popularly supposed to be:

The New York Mail and Express says:. "The attention of the New York hospital surgeons has been called to the number of bartenders that have lost fingers off both hands. The first case was that of an employee of a Bowery Concert Hall. Three of the fingers of the right hand and two of the left were almost rotted away when he called at the Bellevue Hospital and begged the doctors to explain the reason." They told him that it was due to the fingers being constantly wet with beer. His duty was to draw beer for the thousands who visited the garden nightly.

Other cases have ben observed and physicians say that many bartenders have their fingers ruined in the same way. The acid in the beer and the resin are said to be responsible.

Judge Clark, Chairman of the Royal Commission expressed surprise that nearly every doctor he asked the question of said that beer was much more harmful than whiskey. It was many years after that when the great Doctor Von [illegible] that this was due to an acid developed in the beer during fermentation which caused it to ruin the kidneys very rapidly.

I practiced for ten years in a village where I knew the habits of every one. Inside of that time all the bad beer drinkers were dead of Bright's disease before there was any break in the ranks of the whiskey drinkers with the exception of one who was drowned by falling off a bridge when very drunk. Since that I have advised men who must have drink to give up beer and drink whiskey as it is not so likely to shorten life as beer.

Even the Brewers' Journal admits that 66,000 is a fair estimate of the number killed by drink in the United States, and my experience would lead me to believe that three-fourths (¾) of these are caused by beer. When we examine the figures we find that drink kills hundreds for every one killed by war. When will people learn what an awful poison lies concealed in a glass of beer.—H. Arnott, M.B., M.C.P.S.

Seat of Government Moved.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 21.—The seat of the Commonwealth Government has been transferred temporarily from Melbourne to Sydney.

Minister of Defence Pierce has declared that there is no limit to the number of troops the Australian Commonwealth will send to the front.

A German lieutenant has been arrested at Cloncarry, Queensland, on a charge of espionage. Plans of wireless plants and maps of various parts of Australia were found in his possession.

PETES MUST WIN TO-MORROW'S GAME

Picton's Win Last Night Puts It Up to the Homesters--They Cannot Afford to Drop a Game---Oshawa Will Chase Them to the Limit Too.

Picton's defeat of Whitby last night makes it doubly imperative for the Petes to hand the Oshawa team a lacing at Brock Street Rink to-morrow night. A slip on the part of either the Petes or the Pests will be fatal to one or the other, so that the homesters cannot afford to take any chances in to-morrow's battle. The game will be called at 8.30 o'clock sharp. Oshawa beat Bowmanville last night, and as there was never any love lost between the two teams, the visitors will trot out their strongest combination in an effort to stop the Petes. Judging by the interest around town another big crowd will see the clash. After to-morrow there is just one more Picton game in the group, that with Whitby on Wednesday night next. The Petes had a lively practice last night, and are in good shape for to-morrow's game.

THREE GAMES IN THE CHURCH LEAGUE TO-NIGHT

There will be three fast games in the Senior Church League to-night at Brock Street Rink, and in view of the good hockey played last week, there should be a big crowd on hand for the triple bill of fare this evening. Here is the programme:

8 to 9—St. John's vs. St. Paul's.
9 to 10—St. Luke's vs. Murray Street.

Midnight Sons Beat The R.U.W.

That loud noise you heard between 10 and 11 o'clock last night was not, as you might have imagined, a German Zeppelin bombarding the City. The huge sounds simply indicated that the annual hockey game between the Midnight Sons and the R. U. Well Club. The Midnight aggregation repeated their victory of last year, beating the R. U. W.'s 6 to 3 in a game that surpassed anything seen at Brock Street Rink in a decade. The losers put all the blame for the loss on Goalkeeper, Buster Leach, of the Sons, saying he robbed them of the victory. Buster's defence work was as hard to beat as the British line at Ypres. Every man on both teams was a star; they said so themselves. The referee declined to make a statement; he was reading a newspaper all through the game.

JUNIOR CHURCH LEAGUE HOCKEY

In an interesting game last night from 8 to 8 o'clock Knox beat St. John's 9 to 1. Mr. James Milloy handled the bell. The stars for Knox were Montgomery and Wright, and for St. John's, Soward and Heard. Montgomery was the fastest man on the ice. The line up:

St. John's—Goal, Pidgeon; r.d., Frost; l.d., Cavanah; rover, Heard; centre, Parks; r.w., Boobichon; l.w., Soward.

To-night Charlotte Street and All Saints' meet at 7 o'clock.

OSHAWA BEAT BOWMANVILLE

OSHAWA, Jan. 20.—Oshawa intermediates came from behind and nosed out a nine to six victory over Bowmanville intermediates here to-night after playing ten minutes' overtime. The game was fairly clean. Fair for Oshawa again proved the star. The last hockey was played in the last fifteen minutes, and victory was again due to combination. The score by periods: 1st — Bowmanville 2, Oshawa 1; 2nd — Bowmanville 5, Oshawa 4. Full time, 6-6, and overtime—Oshawa 9, Bowmanville 6. L. Whitehead refereed.

CHURCH LEAGUE

St. Paul's will give St. John's a hard argument in their Church League contest to-night, from 8 to 9 o'clock. They will have a new man in the nets and a new defence man, the defence man being Davidson.

The Examiner is only too pleased to accept the challenge of the Review to a game of hockey. Memories of past distress in this regard, make the acceptance all the more pleasurable.

Curling Games Produced Close Finishes in Last Night's List

Several of the scheduled games at the Chalmette Street Rink last night went beyond the regulation twelve ends. Considerable good curling was displayed, as evidence of the fact that most of the players have reached mid-season form. T. F. Matthews defeated R. M. Waddell in an extra end, a feature of the game being two six stone ends, Matthews tieing it up on the twelfth end with one big six. The score was as follows:

A. E. Coulthard	G. W. Green
R. Dobbin	J. Brightman
E. G. Patterson	J. Skinner
T. F. Matthews	R. M. Waddell
Skip 17	Skip 15

Matthews—3, x, 1, x, 1, 1, x, 1, x, 2, x, 6, 2—17.
Waddell—x, 2, x, 2, x, x, 2, x, 6, x, 2, x, x—15.

Another good finish was followed on the centre rink, where Geo. Stevenson nosed out a win over Bob Sturgeon, requiring an extra end to do it. This game was close all the way, each rink taking a turn with the lead. Stevenson got four on the eleventh and Sturgeon came back with three, only to lose it on the extra.

J. Edgar	R. P. Gollop
H. Taylor	J. Wiley
W. Menzies	E. L. Bowen
G. E. Stevenson	R. G. Sturgeon
Skip 11	Skip 10

Stevenson—x, 1, 1, x, x, 1, 2, x, 1, x, 1, x, 1—11.
Sturgeon—2, x, x, 1, 2, x, x, 1, x, 1, x, 2, x—10.

Still another close score was hung up on the No. 5, where W. G. Ferguson won out on his last end over W. M. Lang. The score indicates the way the game went:

J. Hill	E. P. Murphy
F. Brownscombe	C. Seymour
A. McNabb	A. Kay
W. G. Ferguson	W. M. Lang
Skip 12	Skip 11

Ferguson—1, 1, 2, x, x, x, 4, 1, x, 2, x, 1—12.
Lang—x, x, x, 2, 1, 1, x, x, 2, x, 2, x—11.

The other games resulted as follows:

J. Comstock	E. Stewart
R. Deane	H. J. McCanpan
R. P. Best	G. H. Greux
F. M. Dela Fosse	D. Reesor
Skip 11	Skip 6
C. S. Browne	M. Comstock
H. Martin	W. R. Turner
A. Archibald	W. McCracken
H. F. Foote	R. Marstone
Skip 21	Skip 13
Jas. McCabe	J. Wilson
W. B. Sloan	Dr. Tennant
G. Hill	P. D. Fitzgerald
A. Moore	J. W. McDermid
Skip 12	Skip 8

Jan. 26—District Cup games at Lindsay.
Feb. 2-3-4—Open bonspiel.
Feb. 12—Two rinks of Detroit curlers here in afternoon.
Feb. 15-16-17—Local bonspiel.
Feb. 18—Ladies' Tankard.

It will be observed from the above that the Tankard games will not be held on Friday as at first expected.

WOULD RELEASE SHIPS.

Shipping Interests Want German Captured Craft Put Into Service.

OTTAWA, Jan. 21.—Advices have been received by the Government to the effect that British and Canadian shipping interests have made representations to the British authorities for the release of a number of captured German ships. This action results from the taking over of so many ships of British register by the Admiralty and the consequent congestion of traffic. While the ocean routes are practically safe from German raiders the rates rule high by reason of the great number of vessels removed from commerce for purposes of war.

The shipping interests deem it perfectly proper to release some of the German ships, man them by British crews and let them engage in commerce. More than 400 ships have been seized, and a few of them sold by auction, but the latter course may not be followed generally.

The Admiralty has the request under advisement.

TWO DAYS IN TRENCHES.

Drummer of Patricias Tells of First Spell at the Front.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—Writing his parents under date of Jan. 15, William Miller, a big drummer with the Princess Patricias, son of ex-Provost Miller, says: "On the evening of the sixth we marched over 18 miles. Tired and hungry we were nearing the battlefield, going closer to the guns, and had to be very careful going into trenches, as that is when most casualties occur. It must be done in the dark and every precaution taken to get in as quickly as possible. I am glad to say we got in without losing a man.

"The Germans have what we call light bombs, which they throw into the air by hand, lighting up a radius of 500 yards. When we were going into the trenches we had to lie flat on the ground, when one of these bombs was thrown into the air. If we moved, the enemy would spot us and open fire.

"The Princess Pats remained in the trenches two days and two nights, getting relieved on the evening of the eighth for two days. We had three men killed and about twenty-five wounded."

Publicity Wanted For Societies.

TORONTO, Jan. 21.—Friendly societies of Ontario desire to have their organization placed on the same basis as that prevailing in New York. They want to ensure the fact that every society must be on a sound financial footing, and seek the co-operation of the Government in embodying means of publicity and valuation towards the attainment of these ends. To lay these suggestions before the Cabinet prior to the assembly of the Legislature, when a general insurance bill will be brought in, a large deputation waited upon Hon. I. B. Lucas yesterday and received a favorable hearing. It is likely that their requests will be acted embodied in legislation to some extent.

Orders All Lands Cropped.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 21.—The Telegraaf published a despatch from Berlin saying the Prussian Government has ordered all administrators of forests to turn over free of cost all such lands under their jurisdiction that are suitable for the growing of crops. The government of the Grand Duchy of Weimar has taken similar action.

Among the regulations concerning this transfer is the stipulation that the first crop from these lands must be harvested this year.

THE GREAT WORK OF THE RED CROSS SOCIETY

It is hard, in fact almost impossible for those who have not actually visited the hospitals at the base, in France, at the present time, to realize the suffering that our soldiers and our allies are experiencing in their battle of the freedom of Europe. Although the casualities from wounds are heavy they are not to be compared to those caused by exposure to the elements and other diseases brought on by continual exposure. The cold, wet weather has, for the past month or more, wrought a dreadful havoc amongst our soldiers, and the base hospitals at Boulogne and St. Omer, where the British headquarters are located, are filled to overflowing. The nurses and officials of the Red Cross Society are called upon to work night and day on behalf of these men who bear their misery with true British courage.

Hospital ships, bearing the Red Cross flag, ply continually between the coasts of France and England, bearing their quota of wounded soldiers and those suffering from pneumonia and other diseases. The scenes of horror and misery beggar description. Never before in the history of the world have such pitiable cases come before the authorities and were it not for the great work that the Red Cross Society is carrying on at the present time, the loss of life would be appalling.

Few people realize the awful state of affairs existing in Servia and until Lady Paget went to those stricken people with a band of faithful nurses, wounded Servians were dying in the streets of Belgrade for want of ordinary Red Cross appliances. Great credit and gratitude is due to the American Red Cross Hospital in Servia, which has been doing a wonderful work under the guidance of Miss Emily Simmonds, a British Red Cross nurse, who arrived back in New York recently. In an interview with a correspondent of the Associated Press, this lady said she had been working with the wounded and, with even young girls, she had ministered to the Servians in the trenches four hundred yards from the firing line, and for 48 hours at a time.

Miss Mary Burn has given a graphic description of life under the Red Cross flag in France. Miss Burn says: "There are staying in Caen some ladies of the French Red Cross waiting for orders to take their hospital train to the port of Cherbourg to bring a trainload of wounded back to the hospitals. Madame la Comtesse de Genes, who is at their head, invited Lady Bagot to come down and see their train, and Mr. Farquhar took a party down in the ambulance which he had fixed on to his car as soon as the war broke out. He drives it himself and being cheerfully ready at any hour of the day or night to transport wounded of any sort, he is in great request, and has saved much suffering and loss of life."

Miss Burns then goes on to describe a ride in the ambulance van to the railway station where she visited the ambulance train, which consisted of forty carriages. She thus describes the train. "First we visited the sleeping carriages of the Sisters. Each one had a sort of little cabin formed out of one of the divisions of an ordinary corridor carriage, a little larger than an English compartment, with a bed on one side, a seat on the other and rare as boxes and shelves for a little luggage stowed away above and below. They had lately installed a stove in the passage in view of the wintry weather, and here they had been living, eating and sleeping for many months together. One of them said she had not slept in bed for a month.

"Then we came to the carriages for the wounded," continued Miss Burn. "They are like big, square refrigerator vans, opening at the side with three great stretchers hung one above the other in each corner—twelve in a waggon with room to get between each set and move freely about as there is no other furniture. Each carriage has one infirmier, who tends these in his carriage but cannot get out or communicate with the other carriages till the train stops. They told me that the infirmiers are often priests and that when the patients are dying they perform for them the last rites.

Miss Burn was informed by the Sister that the train often went close up to the rear of the action, and the workers could hear the cannon booming and the mitrailleuse.

"You cannot know la guerre que c'est terrible," said the Sister, "and you have travelled through miles and miles of devastated country, black, empty of man and beast, ruined houses, corpses by the railside unburied, such sadness; and then to come where the people seem lively and careless—plenty to eat and the ordinary life going on. Oh, the suffering we have seen and the cruelty to women and children."

This is a description of the work that the Red Cross is carrying on in the devastated places of a country that was once the admiration of the world. Now it is a blackened ruin, and its people are homeless, and in many cases starving while the heel of the despot tramples them down. In spite of these and conditions the Red Cross is endeavouring as far as possible to alleviate these conditions as they exist. Hospitals have been equipped at Boulogne and at the base of operations and Red Cross workers are engaged night and day with little time for sleep or recreation, in their errand of mercy. But they need assistance if this work is to be carried on. What are you, reader, doing to help?

In many towns and cities of the Dominion parties of ladies have joined together and formed sewing classes where they are doing a splendid work in making comforts for the troops. While the society has received a goodly quantity of these articles, the demand is always being made for more. Those who are unable to join these classes can perform quite as useful a work by giving a cash contribution, for money it always the first need of the Society for it can be converted at any moment into the most necessary supplies, and can easily be sent to any place.

For the benefit of those who are occupied in making comforts the following information may be useful: Women organized for sewing should not spend money on buying the supplies which have simply to be shipped away as bought, as these can be bought at Headquarters, but they are recommended to spend money on materials to work into such garments as shirts, pyjamas, dressing gowns, bed jackets, night shirts, socks, wristlets, mitts, cholera belts and scarves, or kit bags, all of which require careful making.

The following instructions are of use: Cholera belts. Most men prefer the woven belts. Flannel belts are used in some cases. As all knitting wool is scarce it is better to use it for socks and not for cholera belts. Socks, Grey or Khaki yarn, natural or heather mixture. Socks with heels are preferred. Needles size 12 to 14, according to wool used. Scarves, 72-90 inches long, 9-12 inches wide, in grey or Khaki. Loose stitch, No. 7 or 8 needles. About 96 stitches. Double yarn. Sleeping or Balaclava cap. No. 9 bone needles (4), pointed both ends, four-ply yarn in grey or Khaki.

Our soldiers will soon be taking their places in the trenches which are not comfortable under any circumstances and for the last two or three weeks have been filled with water and mud. It is absolutely essential that the men should be warmly clothed and have a large number of changes. The Society will be glad to receive any kind of comfort and also cash contributions.

WOULD ELIMINATE BOTH.

Carranza and Villa Must Go, Says Mexican Peace Party.

EL PASO, Texas, Jan. 21. — The elimination of both Venustiano Carranza and Francisco Villa is proposed by a new movement in Mexico. This was learned last night in most authentic reports from the interior. The movement is headed by Gen. Alvaro Obregon, Carranza's military chief, and Gen. Eulalio Gutierrez, the national convention's provisional President who recently fled from the capital.

They have agreed together, and with several of the Carranza and Villa leaders, it is reported, to organize an independent movement to establish a lasting peace.

"I will use all my power in a last effort to restore peace in Mexico, and to that end I will insist upon the elimination of both Carranza and Villa. If my life is spared I believe that the effort will be successful."

TO INVADE SERBIA.

Bavarian and Austrian Troops Are Concentrating on Border.

BUCHAREST, Jan. 21.—Four hundred thousand Austrian and German soldiers are being concentrated for a new invasion of Servia.

Railroad communication between Roumania and Austria-Hungary has been interrupted for several days because all lines are being used for the troops.

ROYAL RESIDENCE SANDRINGHAM

QUEEN ALEXANDRA'S BUNGALOW—SANDRINGHAM

Where Germans Tried to Vent Spite on Edward VII. — Sandringham Estate and country house near King's Lynn, was the personal property of the late King Edward, being purchased by him with his minority accumulations. He willed the estate to King George, but the house remained the property of Queen Alexandra, and the present King has never lived in it, but occupied York Cottage, in the grounds, during his visits. The recent attempt to wreck the grounds is vindictive of German 'kultur'. The picture shows the big house at Sandringham, which is undamaged, though a bomb was dropped on the estate; also Queen Alexandra's bungalow on the sea at Snettingham, where another bomb was dropped.

If You Are Your Own Dressmaker You Must Have A DRESS FORM

The New Models Show Many Improvements

IT ISN'T the cutting of the dress—it isn't the putting of it together—that distracts and delays you. Isn't it the "fitting" of it on—the stretching and squirming in front of the mirror, trying to make the back tighter, or the sleeve looser, or the yoke shorter?

So the "Dress Form" is a boon inestimable to the home dressmaker. The professional dressmaker could not get along without it. Small wonder the interest created by the new models of the HALL-BORCHERT—which represents the latest word in Dress Form convenience. Come in and see the new models—in the Dress Goods Department.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

Ald. Nickle Says Kingston Is A Very Immoral City

Is as Bad, He Declares, as Any Place Between Halifax And Vancouver—Compared it to the Tenderloin District of New York—Had Three Strange Detectives Unearthing Evidence of Kingston's Alleged Immorality —A Trip To The Jungles

KINGSTON, Jan. 21.—That he hired three detectives at a personal cost of $300 and that these detectives were in the city for ten days and made a thorough investigation into affairs that concern the city from a moral viewpoint and that they had prepared a report that was handed over to him, the contents of which would make every alderman in the City Council blush with shame and would if known almost compare with the tenderloin of New York City in the eyes of the citizens of Kingston, was the sensational statement of Alderman Hugh C. Nickle at the meeting of the City Council in the Council Chamber Tuesday evening.

The statements were made after Ald. Nickle had received a communication from the Police Commissioners in answer to a number of questions which he had asked the police department during the sessions of the 1914 council. These conditions, Ald. Nickle said, were as a result of the rotten police department, for which the citizens of Kingston paid $19,000 yearly — as much he pointed out as was paid for the upkeep of the Board of Works or the City Fire Department.

Mayor Sutherland, after the communication from the Commissioners had been read, answering the numerous questions which Ald. Nickle had asked the police department to explain, asked Ald. Nickle if the questions had been answered for him.

Questions Not Answered.

"No, I should say, not," answered the alderman; "they are not answered but evaded. It was just about one year ago that I began to ask questions of the police department. The answers, which I receive now for the first time, do not answer my queries, but evade them in every possible manner."

He said that, at his own expense, he had brought three detectives from a well-known detective agency to the city for the purpose of probing into the matters which are under the control of the local police. These detectives cost him $300, but they gave him evidence which would startle the whole city were it made public. The detectives stayed in Kingston for ten days, at the end of which time they made out a report, which they gave him on the immorality which was common here and the number of by-laws which should be but were not enforced by the Chief of the Police Department.

Pool Rooms Violate Law.

The poolrooms, he pointed out, were not obeying the law. Gambling was allowed to go on and boys under the age forbidden by law to frequent such places, were allowed to do so.

"In the answer which I have received from the Chief of Police," he said, "I am told that these places are visited each night by the men of the department. What good does that do? They might better send no one at all than a man in uniform. What they want is a man in plain clothes, who can get around these places without being noticed."

"In reference to children attending moving picture shows, not very long ago," he said, "two children were brought to the police station for breaking this by-law, but nothing was done with them. They were allowed to go. Children still frequent these places although there is a by-law against their doing so, still it is not enforced by the Chief of Police or his men."

Streets Unprotected.

Ald. Nickle had also asked where the men coming off duty changed their beats. He stated that the men coming on duty on Princess and the other streets met the police going on duty on the Market Square, while the streets were left unprotected by them.

The police, he said, were all found in the streets in full view of everyone. Not one was found concealing himself in a lone or other place where he could watch what was going on without being seen.

The detectives found that, on trying to obtain liquor from each of the licensed hotels in the city, they were unable to do so in any case, which spoke well for the proprietors with regard to selling after hours. The Grand Opera House, he pointed out, was the only place where children under age would not be admitted by those in charge of the theatres. This was also learned by the detectives during their stay in the city.

White Slave Traffic.

"I have unearthed the disorderly houses in the city," he continued, "and there is a veritable White Slave Traffic going on under the very eyes of each of us and the police. When I brought this matter up last year in Council, I was laughed at and it was treated in a joking manner. I can tell you, gentlemen, that it is far from being such. I have information in my possession, which is sworn to and for which there are witnesses, to show that what I say is correct in every detaail. The number of disorderly houses in this city is incredible. Still they are allowed to go on until rooted out by the Military Police.

"It is pretty hard to get into a disorderly house and find out what is going on, but I have done it through these detectives. I know exactly what conditions are like and, if possible, I am going to bring them to an end. I have made up my mind that the people will be shown what they get for their $19,000 police department.

"It has been said in the Commissioners report that all these licensed places are sanitary. These licensed places are inspected before the license is issued. Many of them are disorderly houses of the worst stamp."

He said that the detectives went to a number of licensed places and [illegible] and that he had witnesses who would testify to the same. Money was paid to those running the places for immoral purposes. Their system is so good, he declared that $35 a week is made by them.

Girls Brought to City.

Young girls are brought to the city as in New York, and dances are held for them right in Kingston, he continued. Here the girls are started on the wrong path. He also said that it would be impossible to believe how many girls were leading this kind of a life in different houses in the city.

"I can say without exaggeration," he went on, "that there is not a more immoral town from Halifax to Vancouver, than the same City of Kingston in which we are living." This drew several protests from the aldermen around the horseshoe, but Ald. Nickle held that what he said was true. Chief Baillie, he said, was only too glad to see the soldiers come to the city and raid these disorderly houses and he mentioned a number of places where the soldiers had been instrumental in making arrests.

He referred also to the gambling which, he said, was being carried on in the city right under the eyes of the police, but without any attempt whatever to put a stop to it.

"So long as Chief Baillie remains inactive just so long will I remain active," said Ald. Nickle as he closed his remarks.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

Since the first of the year, the desks that form the horseshoe in the City Council Council Chamber have been decorated with new desk blotters of a colour that is very much in evidence on the seventeenth of March.

Meetings in Prospect.

The annual meeting of the Board of Health is called for this afternoon, commencing at four o'clock. To-morrow afternoon at the same hour the Finance committee of the City Council will meet.

Wanted a Free Skating Rink

A well known East City youth waited upon Ald. Weir a few days ago and asked the worthy east ward representative if he would have the fire department flood a certain corner lot so as to convert it into a free skating rink. He was referred to Ald. Duffus, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light committee.

Taxes Are Coming In.

That the taxpayers are liquidating their accounts with the city is evidenced by the fact that up until the end of the year only about twenty thousand dollars was outstanding out of a total of three hundred and two thousand dollars that figure on the tax roll.

Patriotic Association.

The Peterborough branch of the Patriotic Association and the local Relief Association will hold a meeting in the City Council chamber next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. A full attendance is requested.

WITH OTHER COUNCILS.

London city has reduced the salaries of the Board of Control from $1,000 to $500.

Seven Men Added.

Seven men will be added to the strength of the Hamilton Fire Department, ten horses will be sold, and replaced by eight new ones.

New Main Sewer.

Stratford ratepayers will be asked to spend $72,000 on a new main sewer as advised by the Provincial Board of Health.

Fewer Marriages.

There were 1,057 fewer marriages in Windsor during 1914 than in the year previous.

Re-elected Mayor.

Patriotic Fund.

The Stratford City Council will contribute $1,000 a month to the Patriotic Fund.

For Relief.

The Hamilton Relief Association will apply for $40,000 more from the city.

Majority of 108.

By a majority of 108 over Dr. U. Archambault, Joseph Bourque was re-elected Mayor of Hull.

Will Investigate.

At a meeting of the London City Council a special committee was appointed to report on the advisability of establishing a cattle market, and County Judge Macbeth was asked to investigate the charge against Mr. H. J Blaubitz, of aiding a German reservist leave the country.

TIPPERARY TEA AT THE Y.M.C.A.

The Kitchener Club is doing an excellent work in providing warm clothing for the Canadian soldiers on service. Every patriotic citizen should help by patronising the Tipperary Tea given by the club in the Y.M.C.A. parlours to-night (Thursday), from 8:30 to 10:30. Refreshments and a good musical programme. Silver collection.

Moroccans Made Great Stand In Retirement At Soissons

SOISSONS, VIA PARIS, Jan. 19.—The rear guard of the Moroccan rifle regiments, who covered the retreat of the French centre across the river on the 14th, covered themselves with glory. They had been posted in the village of Crouy.

At four o'clock in the afternoon the Germans, in serried ranks, debouched in the road and advanced toward the village. The riflemen carefully concealed their quick firers and posted themselves on each side of the road. Not a murmur arose, and nothing was allowed to show itself above the blackened ruins. The Germans thought the road was clear and ran to the village to get shelter from the French heavy artillery.

When they were within five hundred yards of the place the riflemen opened fire suddenly. The Germans were surprised. There was no room to deploy and they fell back to the brook of Braye.

BAYONETS TWISTED.

Reinforced, they reformed their ranks and tried to turn the French position by way of the east side of the village. Three companies of riflemen were detached and charged. The shock was awful. Bayonets were twisted out of shape and then the dusky soldiers used the butts of their rifles. For a second time the Germans gave way.

The Moroccans were told to hold the place till five o'clock. It was then six o'clock, but they still refused to retire. They did so only after a staff officer was sent to them twice with an order for retreat.

During the night the German artillery roared ceaselessly in a bombardment of Soissons, but at dawn of the 15th the artillery fire slackened and gave place to infantry fire.

At seven o'clock a battalion of the line occupying the farms of St. Paul, were ordered to protect the advanced trenches which were threatened by the German attack. They charged and broke the German ranks, driving them as far as the Crouy railroad station and taking one hundred prisoners. Hardly, however, had they got back with the prisoners when they were assailed by fresh German forces, and for two hours St. Paul was subjected to a furious assault over ploughed fields, through orchards and in gardens, courtyards and in barns.

The tide of battle ebbed and flowed in the angle of a stable wall. Here te German dead were so numerous that some stood upright, lacking room to fall.

The good practice of the French 3-inch guns, guided by aeroplanes, prevented German reinforcements from debouching from the western slops of the Vregny plateau, and the Germans, exhausted and discouraged at their lack of success, retired in a body to Crouy at noon.

French War Minister Calls For $1,206,086,432 For Six Months

PARIS, Jan. 21—Provisional credits applicable to the first six months of 1915 amount to 8,525 264,407 f., (about $1,705,052,881) for the general budgets, and 473,441,928 f. (about $94,688,252) for supplementary budgets, according to a statement published in the Official Journal, yesterday. The military expenses naturally call for the largest credit, the Minister of War's budget being estimated at 6,699,433,162 f. (about $1,206,086,432). The principal sums in the war budget are for artillery materials, aggregating 1,474,462,500 f. (about $294,892,500) and for the subsistence of the troops 1,133,465,930 f. (about $226,693,184).

U. S. SAILORS ARRESTED

WASHINGTON, January 21.—The arrest of a number of American sailors of the cotton freighters Greenbrier and Caroline, by the German authorities at Bremen, was reported to the State Department to-day by Ambassador Gerard at Berlin. Gerard added that assurances had been given that the sailors would be released in time to join their ships before departure for the United States.

The messages contained no particulars of the incident and furnished no reason for the detention of the U. S. sailors. Action in the matter was deferred until receipt of further information from Gerard.

Meeting of Trades and Labour Council

Was Held Last Evening — Officers Elected

The Trades and Labour Council held a meeting last evening at which officers for 1915 were elected. The meeting was addressed by Organizer Kennedy, of the Sheet Metal Workers, Toronto. The following officers were elected:

Mr. J. J. Hartley was re-elected president; Mr. C. Hammacott, vice-president; Mr. Wm. Stevens, recording secretary; Mr. C. J. Seymour, financial secretary; Mr. G. L. Myland, treasurer, and Mr. G. A. Hamon, official scribe. The trustees are Messrs. D. Wires, H. Robertson, H. Gainey, G. O'Hearne, and C. Hammacott. The auditors are Messrs. C. F. Brown, R. Mitchell and R. Frost.

February A Freak Month

It Will Have No Full Moon—Venus is Visible Daily

Rise with the sun on a clear morning. Look above the eastern horizon and you will se a bright star. At noon scan the sky almost directly south, and far up in the heavens, through diligent searching, you will observe the same body, a little fainter than before. It goes ahead of the sun and sinks in the west early in the evening. Peterborough citizens have gazed skyward many times in the last two months, having caught a momentary glance of this luminary. They have since wondered what it was, and have called the attention of other to it. One short-sighted man thought it was a German Zeppelin.

It is only Venus. For the last 60 days Venus has been quite visible in the sky if one only knows where to look, says Astronomer F. L. Blake, of the Toronto Meteorological Office, and it can be seen daily for the next month, except when clouds come between. On February 6th Venus will be at her greatest western elongation which is 46 degrees, 54 minutes, west of the sun. On September 12th next, it will come into superior conjunction with the sun, that is on a straight line with King Sol, and remain hidden for a time. At present Venus is a morning star but when she comes to the east of the sun she shines brightly in the western sky after sundown. Venus was at greatest brilliancy on January 2nd at 7 a.m.

Mr. Blake stated that it took Venus 200 days to go around the sun.

The planet Mars is as far away from the earth at times as 236,000,000 miles and as close as only 35 or 40 million miles. Venus is plainly visible in the daytime every year.

No Full Moon Next Month.

February, 1915, will be a freak month for it will have no full moon. There is one on January 30, and the next is on March 1. This has occurred at only rare intervals since the calendar of Cæsar was adopted.

Retailers' Profits Are Reduced

The Merchants Complain That They Must Bear the Brunt of the Bread Situation

TORONTO, Jan. 20.—That retailers of bread will find the increase in price press very hard upon them is the opinion of Mr. Edward M. Trowern, Dominion Secretary of the Retail Merchants Association of Canada.

"Some of the bakers are increasing their price to the trade and others are increasing it to the consumer," said Mr. Trowern. "The whole situation is like this. For some reason or other it is claimed that it is the shortage of wheat; grain has gone up, and it is up to the wholesaler and up to the baker to force the wholesale price up.

Cuts the Profits.

"This cuts the profit away from the retailer, and the question is whether the retailer should sell at a loss or put it up to the consumer. That is the situation in a nutsnell, and, so far as I can see, the bakers are afraid to put up the cost to the people—that is, the consumers—and they are trying it out on the retailers to see how it works, leaving them to face the people.

"But why should the retailers suffer and do business at a loss?" continued Mr. Trowern. "Even if the advance were only a small one, these retailers have heavy overhead charges. They have to pay for the wrapping of the bread, and for the paper and string; for the entering of the sale in the books, and stand the delay in payments, together with the possible loss from bad debts. Even if there were none of the accounts unpaid the cost to the retailer is a heavy one."

Despatchers Will Be Transferred

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 21—A number of C. P. R. despatchers stationed here will shortly be removed to Toronto, and the system between London and Windsor will be operated from Toronto.

Opening of Federation Hall is Postponed

The opening of the new Assembly Hall of the Protestant Federation has been postponed from Friday, Jan. 22 to Friday, Jan. 29th, owing to delay in the arrival of seats. However the rooms are otherwise fully prepared for use and will be opened for inspection on Friday of this week. Ticket holders are asked to remember the change.

THE OFFICERS WERE RE-ELECTED

Ladies Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A.

One of the most active departments of the Y.M.C.A., is the ladies Auxiliary. The annual report of this department, which was contained in yesterday's issue of The Examiner, was presented by Mrs. S. Clegg. The officers of last year were re-elected as lows:. President, Mrs. J. C. Shook; vice-president, Mrs. Wm. Davidson; secretary, Mrs. S. Clegg; assistant-secretary, Mrs. B. Shortly; treasurer, Miss Nina Davidson.

GERMANS SLEW RUSS WOUNDED

Duplication of the Extreme Brutality Reported in the West, Now Charged by Russians Against Germans

PETROGRAD, Jan. 18.—Foreign Minister Sasonoff to-day presented to the Spanish Ambassador a protest against atrocities committed by German soldiers upon Russian soldiers and civilians. He requested that this protest be transmitted to both the German and Austrian Governments. The note of protest contained charges that the Germans often despatched Russians found wounded on the battlefield, some of these crimes being committed under the eyes of the retiring Russian troops.

KILLED IN COLD BLOOD.

"Our wounded were methodically despatched in cold blood, according to the statement of men who escaped massacre by simulating death," the protest continues. "The odious character of these crimes was aggravated in several cases by the shocking mutilation of victims.

"On August 29, at Friedland (East Prussia) two officers were found with their eyes gouged out by bayonet thrusts. German ambulance men also committed similar acts of cruelty, finishing wounded Russians with revolver shots.

"Russian prisoners on several occasions were shot by Germans and Austrians, who persecuted with particular ferocity their Cossack prisoners."

The note then quoted an order alleged to have been given by the commander of a German Cuirassier squadron named Von Modeiskithw, that all Cossacks should be hanged, and continued: "Two unfortunate Cossacks were hanged at Laipuni as a consequence of this order. According to Polish peasants, a Cossack was burned alive on October 1 in the village of Seuki, government of Suwalki.

"A Russian general reports that the Germans shot at Radom in October an officer and Cossacks. Another was hanged near Ratchki. Four others were shot near Monastiriek by Austrians."

CIVILIANS ALSO TREACHEROUS.

German civilians are accused in the note of "treacherously assailing Russian troops by firing upon them from the windows and roofs of houses."

In conclusion the note cites alleged instances of the unjustifiable shooting of Russian civilians, the taking of hostages, violation of women and girls, the use of explosive bullets and the profanation of churches.

Another Whistler

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Having noticed a letter published in your paper last evening in regard to a young man who goes down Brock street between the hours of 12 p.m. and 2 a.m. whistling some of his favourite melodies. Now, as to my part, I wish to say that these Brock Street residents who have been so kind as to put in this complaint on me, as I feel it is me they refer to. I wish to say that if a person is not allowed to whistle where he pleases, it is a funny thing to me. Besides, as to my idea, I should not be able to hear any whistling if sleeping at the hours mentioned above. But some people have no one to "chew the rag" with, and they feel it a pleasure to themselves to cause a disturbance with any one. It seems to me as if Brock Street is a noted street for grumblers, as they were grumbling when the roller rink was going, and as that is cut off they have to look for a new subject to begin on. People of this City will not be able to stick their heads out of their doors without some one puts up a kick.

Hoping this is satisfactory to the Brock Street residents, and thanking you for this valuable space, I remain

Yours truly,

Whistler.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

It is a great pleasure for the Association to place a part of its building at the disposal of the Kitchener League to-day for the Tipperary tea, in aid of our soldier boys at the front. We trust that this tea will be well patronized.

On Wednesday our building would have been an ice house but for a few grate fires which were kept up, for the heating plant was out of commission as new fires were being put in the boiler. Repairs were finished about midnight, and the fires were rebuilt.

Percy Fitzgerald is making some necessary carpenter repairs at the building this week.

On Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. P. M. McCarrel entertained Mr. McCarrel's Sunday School Class of George Street Church at our building, and a pleasant time was enjoyed by about fifteen boys.

We again have good ice on the skating rink, which is now well lighted by a street lamp, and it is at the disposal of the boys afternoon and evening.

A letter was received to-day by Boys' Secretary Galley from H. Parkinson, who is with the First Contingent in England. Among other things Bert says: "One hears a lot over here in regard to how well Canada has come forward with men and money. It makes one feel a little proud to be one of Canada's representatives over here. I hear trade is rather bad in Canada at present. Things are bad here, but some of the trades are extraordinarily busy, such as shipbuilding. Most of the engineering works are busy making shells. I am looking forward to coming home and rejoining you in the gymnasium work."

We have on file many interesting letters such as the above from our boys who are serving their country in the present war.

A PATRIOTIC PROTEST ENTERED

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I notice in your edition of the 20th inst., what is evidently an advertisement, under the heading "Tipperary Tea."

I do not know who the ladies and gentlemen are who compose the Peterborough Branch of the Kitchener League, but I certainly think they have shown very bad taste indeed in having inserted such a low and vulgar caricature of the Irish.

As a loyal Canadian, and son of an Irishman, I wish to enter a most solemn protest against such caricature.

There are as many or more of the Irish—in proportion to their population—fighting for the Empire to-day on the battlefields of Europe, than any race on the face of the earth, and surely they are entitled to some consideration and respect from loyal and enlightened Canadians. I have contributed to the Patriotic Fund to the very best of my ability, and was one of those who made a house-to-house canvass for the same purpose in a section of our City, and I will continue to do whatever little I can for the cause we all have at heart, and I can assure my readers, with all sincerity, that the writer of this letter—or his remains—would not to-day be a thousand miles from the firing line were he eligible for enlistment, but as a son of an Irishman, I certainly do protest as strongly as I can against this caricature of the race from which I am sprung.—Respectfully yours,

J. W. FITZGERALD.

Peterborough, Jan. 21st, 1915.

Police Court

A local man was charged in police court to-day with passing unlawfully and fraudulently obtained food at the Munro House to the amount of $15.50.

If proved this is a very serious offence, and anyone against whom there is a conviction on this charge is liable to a fine of $100.00 or three months' imprisonment.

Magistrate Dumble thought the ends of justice would be satisfied in this case with an adjournment to give the defendant another chance to pay the board account.

REPORTS INDICATED DECIDED ADVANCE OVER PREVIOUS YEAR

Annual Meeting of St. Paul's Church Held Last Evening ---Review of the Work by the Session

The annual meeting of St. Paul's Church was held last evening in the Sunday School hall. After devotional exercises by the Pastor, Mr. John Crane was elected chairman. The reports were all of the most encouraging character, and nearly all showed a decided advance over a year go. The report of Session is supposed to pase in review all the work of the Church. That report says in part:

"At this time the nations of the world are being drawn closer together than ever before. When we note the part that heathen countries, such as Japan, India and Turkey are taking in the European conflict, we realize the strength of the call that comes to us to prosecute with diligence and consecration of purpose the work of carrying the Gospel to all people. This is not a time for retrenchment, but rather for a bold advance and for an increase in giving and sacrifice, in order that we may take full advantage of the doors that God is now opening for us. We record, with great gratitude, therefore, that our resident Pastor, in Korea, Mr. D. A. MacDonald, has been vigorously extending his activities in the special field assigned to him, and that his efforts have been attended with an increasing measure of success. Our Church organizations have been active in extending him their support. The ladies of the congregation forwarded him and Mrs. MacDonald a sum of money as a Christmas gift. In addition, the members of the Young Men's Bible Class have been informed by Mr. MacDonald that $100 of the $900 previously forwarded to him by them has been used to wipe off the debt on one of the local Churches, while part of the money has been employed to purchase the site for a new Church for still another congregation. The Young Men have also set aside a sum of money with the object of defraying the expenses in due time of sending a missionary from our own congregation to the foreign field, and ask for the prayers of the congregation that a missionary may be raised up among us for God's service abroad. As yet, St. Paul's has never sent any of its own members to the foreign field. In our petitions to the Throne of Grace we would ever remember Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald and their little one, that God's power may abide with them. In this connection we would note with gratitude that the missionary givings of the congregation are in advance of last year, notwithstanding the financial depression occasioned by the war.

The missionary work of the women of the Church with the amalgamation of the Home and Foreign departments, has been widened, and the field of their endeavours has been enlarged. Now, we refer to the Women's Missionary Society, rather than to the Women's Foreign Missionary Society, as formerly. Our women have not fallen behind other years, either in their interest in missions or in the gifts which they have made. It is worthy of note that the total raised this year was $1,383, of which the Fraser Mission Band contributed $236, and the Faithful Workers Mission Band, $29. This, we believe, is a larger amount than was raised by any other society in the Presbyteran Church in Canada. Much of the enthusiasm and interest which the members show in their work has been due to the President, Miss Charlotte Dickson, who has been untiring in her efforts to make this Society a great power for good. The Session would urge every woman in the congregation to become a member of the Women's Missionary Society. The Fraser Mission Band continues its good work under the respected and efficient leadership of Mrs. Adams Hall. Mrs. Allan has taken charge of the Junior Mission Band. With a leader so well informed, so interested and capable, we can prophecy for this year a more extended usefulness than ever before.

The work of our Sunday School continues to show evidences of God's favour. The classes have been well attended, new methods have been introduced, the teachers have put forth much painstaking and consecrated effort, and a valuable work has been accomplished. We would especially commend the labours of the Superintendent, Mr. Wm. Madill, whose faithfulness in the performance of his arduous duties, notwithstanding the exacting nature of his business responsibilities, affords an object lesson for us all. One of the best testimonies that can be given to the excellent and thorough character of the work done by the Sabbath School teachers is the fact that thirty-two of those who united with the Church during the year by profession of faith, were members of the Sunday School. There is no finer band of workers in the Church, and none whose work counts for more than our Sabbath School teachers. The pressing character of his professional duties has made it impossible for Dr. Moir to continue his leadership of the Young Women's Bible Class. The work carried on by him with such marked success has been taken up by our Pastor, who has thus assumed this responsibility in addition to his other heavy duties. This class is gaining in numbers and influence. The Mitto Adult Bible Class is being efficiently led by Mr. Robert Harrison. Space forbids us giving the extended reference that the work conducted in the kindergarten and primary departments by Miss Cameron and Miss Munro and their assistants, merits. The most scientific methods in child teaching and training are being followed with marked beneficial results in both departments. The services of Mr. Fisk, as Secretary, and Mr. Connal and Mr. Johnson, as librarians, are invaluable. The Session desires to express its appreciation of the work done by Mrs. Sharpe and her helpers in behalf of the Chinese in our City.

The Ladies' Aid Society has done good work throughout the year. Owing to the amount of distress in our City, due to the war, demands were made on its members for time, money and work, far in advance of other years. The ladies of the congregation ought to be connected with this Society, as it offers a splendid field for that kind of social service which the Master has laid on His followers and which will be rewarded by His "Well done good and faithful servant."

We would make special mention of the services so freely and joyfully rendered by the Choir, under the able and competent leadership of Mr. John Allan. The high standard of music which St. Paul's has for so long upheld, has been maintained throughout thee year. The service of praise is worshipful, dignified and helpful. The Session gladly commends the members of the Choir for the time and effort which they so freely give to this important department of the Church's life and work.

The Session would commend the Young People's Guild to all the young people of the congregation and urge their attendance at its meetings. This should be one of the great training services of the young of the congregation. It is from the ranks of such organizations as these that leaders and workers are to be found for the work of the Church in future.

The membership of the congregation, notwithstanding the loss sustained by death and removals to other places, shows a considerable increase over a year ago. We began the year with a Communion roll of 1010 members, and there was added during the year, on profession of faith, 45; on certificate, 51; making a total of 1,106. There was removed during the year, by death, 10; by certificate, 26; and by being dropped from the roll, 36. Our net membership is now 1,032. The sympathy and prayers of the congregation are extended to all who have been bereaved throughout the year. The congregation lost two faithful members and liberal supporters of its work in the death of Mr. A. G. Dickson and Mr. R. E. Wood. Both were men of high Christian charcter and an honour to religion and to the Church of Christ.

The Sabbath services have been well attended during the year. The messages and worship at the morning service continue to fulfil the purpose of deepening the spiritual life, and the building up of God's people in Christian character. In the evening service our Pastor aims to bring the claims of Christ home to the hearts and consciences of the unsaved. This is a responsibility which is laid upon us all. We should cooperate earnestly with him in strengthening this service, and as individuals we should watch daily for opportunities to speak a word in season to those who have not yet responded to the call of the Master.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

A British Red Cross party left London for Montenegro yesterday in charge of Doctors Clemow and Burnham, of Canada.

Henri C. Chapleau, a Montreal letter carrier, who pleaded guilty to theft from the mails, was sentenced yesterday by Judge Leet to four years in the penitentiary.

Word has been received by Mrs. E. Burns of Moose Jaw, of the death of her husband, while fighting at the front in France. Burns was a Socialist lecturer in Moose Jaw.

Lieut. C. E. Barber, Kings Royal Rifles, formerly Sixth Duke of Connaught Rifles, Vancouver, is now reported as missing, and is believed to have been killed at the front.

At an executive meeting of the South Waterloo Reform Association, it was decided to contest the riding in the bye-election necessitated by the death of George Clare, M.P.

While on his way to a euchre held in the Orange Hall at North Bay, Archie Smith, a prominent Orangeman, and an engineer of the T. & N. O., dropped dead with heart failure.

The U. S. Senate yesterday, by a vote of 40 to 38, refused to suspend the rules and permit a vote on Senator Sheppard's Prohibition amendment to the District of Columbia Appropriation Bill.

Fourteen German soldiers were killed yesterday when a German military supply train fell into a canal between Hasselt and Turnhout in Belgium, where the invaders had previously blown up the bridge themselves.

Dacia May Run Blockade.

GALVESTON, Texas, Jan. 21.—Officers of the steamer Dacia yesterday still awaited sailing orders, though the Dacia's cargo of cotton will be completed to-day. Belief is growing that the Dacia will attempt to reach Norfolk without interference by keeping within running distance of the three-mile limit. It is rumored that British warships are waiting in the gulf and watching the Florida Straits for the former German steamer which is now under American registry.

The Recovery Will Be Rapid

Political Economist Says There is Exaggeration of Ill Effects on Agriculture and Industry

A writer in the New York Sun has had a talk with Prof. Edwin R. A. Seligman, political economist in Columbia University on the after effects of the war in Europe. The professor is an optimist on the outlook, and has no fear of Europe being crippled or defaced for a generation. He does not anticipate that there will be a surplus of females even as the outcome of the death rolls.

Professor Seligman, the interviewer says, "buttresses with statistics that emphasize his contension. And you find yourself saying it's no wonder, as you note the thousand of volumes in his study—a young municipal library in fact, with a gallery extending all about its upper shelves. Here are data, you think, from the dawn of recorded history, with enough figures and facts about war lurking in the tomes to clinch the statements made.

COUNTING THREE YEARS' WAR.

The purpose of the talk with Prof. Seligman was to get his views as to the effects of the present war upon population, agriculture and industry. It was assumed several times in the interview that the war might last three years and a good share of the professor's conclusions were based upon the assumption that peace might date from 1918.

Undoubtedly the most surprising thing said by the professor was with respect to the restoration of the normal population increase after a great war, and the rebalancing of the sexes. Said Mr. Seligman:

"Just as soon as the war ends it may be expected that an unusual percentage of male children will be born. I cannot tell you the reason and I don't believe there is a man who can. Analysis of statistics points to such a conclusion, but it is unexplainable. It verges on the occult. If you try to discuss it to a satisfactory conclusion you find you have entered the domain of medicine and psychology, with the danger of losing yourself in a labyrinth of mist and indirection."

PATRIOTIC "AT HOME"

The ladies of St. Luke's Church are holding an 'At Home' at the residence of Mrs. J. J. Turner, 491 Water Street, on the afternoon and evening of Friday, Jan. 22, in aid of the Canadian Military Hospital at Shorncliffe an the Belgian fund. There will be a programme of music. Refreshments will be served. Miss Peck will give a short account of the work of the hospital. Home-made cooking and candy for sale. Silver collection.

KINGSLEY'S "FAREWELL"

In the reference to the concert in St. Paul's church Mr. Hollinshead's encore was Charles Kingsley's poem, "A Farewell," with setting by Liddle. It was credited to Robert Louis Stevenson, whose epitath with music by Homer was Mr. Dixon's encore. Mention might also have been made of the fact that the piano used by Mr. Hesselberg was a beautiful Heintzman Grand of ringing tone and apparently perfect mechanical adjustments.

Hurries To The Kaiser

Austrian Heir May Carry News of Franz Josef's Abdication

LONDON, Jan. 21.—A despatch to Reuter's Telegram Co. from Amsterdam, says a despatch received there from Vienna asserts that Archduke Charles Francis, the heir apparent to the Austro-Hungarian throne, left Vienna last night to visit the German Emperor at the German headquarters.

ARCHDUKE CHARLES FRANCIS.

Josef, while fully realizing the danger of the secession of the sovereignty of Hungary, at the present time, has decided to abdicate. It is for the purpose of bearing this news to the Kaiser that Archduke Charles Francis, the heir apparent to the Austrian throne, is believed to have left Vienna for the German headquarters where the Kaiser now is.

FOREST FIRES IN CANADA

Careless Settlers, Thoughtless Campers and Railways Blamed

OTTAWA, Jan. 21.—Some idea of the serious loss inflicted on the country by forest fires was given at the annual meeting of the Commission of Conservation yesterday by R. H. Campbell, chief forester for the Department of the Interior.

Last year there were 1,406 forest fires in different parts of the Dominion, mostly in the west, which destroyed 488,545 acres of forest and 350,000,000 feet (board measure) of merchantable timber. The spring and summer of 1911 were exceptionally dry. In 1910, another dry year, there were 1,227 forest fires, which destroyed 345,660 acres of trees and 195,250,000 feet of timber that could have been used for manufacturing purposes.

Most of the fires are caused by careless settlers, with the railways a close second and thoughtless campers third.

Dr. Eugene Haanel, director of the Dominion Mines Branch, referring to the oil fields of Alberta, said that in his opinion the discoveries made so far and the prospects of future discoveries, do not warrant or afford any guarantee for people to invest their money.

They Should Make Protest

Neutrals Should Reprehend Senseless Cruelty

LONDON, Jan. 21.—The News, in an editorial, calls on neutral countries to protest against the barbarous German action. It says: "A serious question is raised by the methods to which Germany is resorting, and it concerns the whole world just as much as this country. It is perhaps impossible to bring home to the German conscience in its present state the full monstrousness of this course of conduct, and all that it eventually entails but neutral powers owe it to themselves and to the world to make it clear that they, for their part, utterly reprehend the senseless cruelty which regards as a glorious military exploit the murder of helpless old women and shoemakers."

Madness of Despair?

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Under the caption of "More Slaughter of Innocents," The Herald this morning comments editorially on the German aerial raid of Tuesday night on the east coast of England as follows:

"Is it the madness of despair or just plain every-day madness that has prompted the Germans to select for attack the peaceful and undefended resorts of England's east coast?

"What can Germany hope to gain by these wanton attacks upon undefended places and this slaughter of innocents? Certainly not the good will of the neutral nations, who know that the rules of civilized warfare call for notice of bombardment even of places fortified and defended."

GERMANS WERE IN WORSE FIX THAN THEY WERE BEFORE

SITUATION CRITICAL

LONDON, Jan. 21.—The enemy, so far has been unable to pursue the temporary advantage obtained during the heavy fighting around Soissons last week. The Germans are busy with their dead and wounded, for they paid a dreadful price in human life for the few villages which lay between them and the Aisne. It is reported, however, that they are bringing up fresh reinforcements, and public opinion in Paris in spite of its supreme confidence in the French troops, is not altogether easy at this profound calm which seems to herald another attempt to storm a way to Paris by the passage of the Aisne and the capture of Soissons. It is possible that the heavy losses experienced by the enemy, and the knowledge that the French are now in the strongest position possible on the south side of the Aisne and to the east of the German position and on the northern bank, may have discouraged the German Headquarters' Staff from making another offensive movement for some time. But, on the other hand, it is considered probable that the enemy will resume the offensive in a desperate desire to break a way through before their position becomes more intolerable.

Owing to certain facts with which they are perfectly familiar, but over which discreet silence must still be maintained, they are two miles nearer Paris than they were after their first retreat to the Aisne, but further away than ever from a military point of view.

French censors have permitted the publication of certain information regarding the defences between Soissons and the capital, which are at least full enough to show that the way would be a via dolorosa to any German army which endeavors to force even a mile or two of the road. Paris had no more need to feel nervous now than before the affair at Crouy.

The Daily Chronicle's correspondent in Northern France telegraphs:

"In the last week considerable success has been scored by troops following up repeated artillery successes in the neighborhood of Lille.

"The British have in the last few days taken from the Germans the little town of Frelinghen, on the Franco-Belgian frontier, three and a half miles from Armentieres.

"The British had set up an observation post about three-quarters of a mile from Frelinghen when the Germans started to mass a considerable force in Frelinghen, with the object of making an assault upon the British trenches. The British officers at once communicated with the batteries at Armentieres, which a moment later was engaged in demolishing Frelinghen and sowing death and confusion among the German troops, who beat a hasty retreat.

"The British turned a perfect rain of shells upon the German trenches, and the enemy's first line was rapidly evacuated. In a few moments not a German soldier remained in Frelinghen, and the little town could no longer be said to exist."

The afternoon statement said:

"From the sea to the Somme, in the region of Nieuport, there was yesterday a fairly spirited artillery engagement in the course of which the enemy endeavored in vain to destroy our bridge at the mouth of the Yser. In the meantime we were successful in demolishing a portion of his defences at this point; also we were successful at the Union farm, near St. Georges, where the enemy had strongly organized his position.

"In the sector of Ypres and near Lens there were yesterday artillery exchanges of varying intensity. There was also a very violent bombardment of Ablain, near Arras, but it was not followed by an infantry attack.

"From the Somme to the Argonne there has been nothing to report, nor has there been any activity in the sector of Soissons, or in the vicinity of Craonne or near Rheims.

"In the region of Camp de Chalons, as well as to the north of Perthes and of Massiges, our artillery directed a very effective fire on the field works of the enemy.

"In the Argonne, in the forest of La Grurie, the enemy delivered a violent attack upon one of our trenches. Our troops, who for a moment, gave way under the shock, later recaptured in two counter-attacks all their positions and maintained themselves therein. The first of these attacks gave us a greater part of these positions, and the second completed the work.

"At St. Hubert the Germans blew up by means of a mine the northeastern projection of our trenches. Our troops threw themselves into the excavations caused by these explosions and prevented the enemy from taking possession of them.

"To the northwest of Pont-a-Mousson, in the forest of Le Pretre, we established ourselves at a distance of 100 yards in front of the German trenches captured by us the day before yesterday. At the end of the day Tuesday the enemy here delivered a counter-attack, but without success.

"In the vicinity of Thann there have been artillery engagements in which the advantage rested with us."

EVIDENCE IS TAKEN

Symons' Statement Put in at Union Life Trial

TORONTO, Jan. 21. — Only one witness was called by the crown yesterday in the case of Dr. F. G. Hughes and Harry K. Symons, K.C., who are charged with conspiring to defraud the public in connection with the Union Life Assurance Co. and National Agency.

Practically the whole day was spent by the crown reading the report of the examination of Mr. Symons, taken in 1913 before George Kappelle, K.C., official referee under the Winding-Up Act, at the time of the liquidation of the company.

Two agreements were produced and read by counsel. These are dated July 1, 1903, and March 13, 1910, the first being a declaration to the effect that the National Agency Co. and the Union Life Co. mutually agreed to discharge each other from all debts.

Under the second agreement, that of 1902, was mutually surrendered and the Union Life Co. consented to pay the agency an annual amount of $40,000 in half-yearly instalments, and agreed to cover all expenses without the agency's assistance.

The kind hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Crowley was very much appreciated. Dainty refreshments were served, and altogether a very pleasant time was spent.

BOY HAD RUN AWAY FROM FARM NEAR READORO

Adjutant McElhiney's investigation into the story of the boy who said he was sent away from a farm near Franklin reveals the fact that some of the particulars are at variance with the truth. He had been placed with a farmer named Fleming, residing near Readoro, from whom he disappeared of his own accord. In short the boy ran away and the authorities are to-day dealing with his case. This does not palliate the lack of underwear which the boy displayed when he was found wandering the streets.

Bail Was Granted in the Case of Edgar Grose Who is Awaiting Trial on Charge of Murder

APPLICATION GRANTED

This afternoon Police Magistrate Dumble endorsed the order granted in Osgoode Hall yesterday by Mr. Justice Middleton respecting an application for bail in the case of Edgar Grose, who is awaiting trial on a charge of murder. Dr. Johnston and C. R. Nixon gave personal sureties for $2,500 each. As a result Grose's release will take effect right away. Prior to the fracas which resulted in the death of William O'Brien on Christmas Eve, for which Grose was apprehended, the accused was suffering from jaundice. This became worse after Grose's incarceration, so that his counsel, Mr. G. N. Gordon, decided to make application for bail, with the above result.

TO LOOK FOR EXPLORER.

McConnell Wants Hydro-Aeroplanes For Stefansson Relief Party.

OTTAWA, Jan. 21. — The Naval Service Department has been asked by Burt M. McConnell, who was secretary to Stefansson and meteorologist of the Canadian Arctic Expedition, to buy two hydro-aeroplanes for the use of a search party to go after Stefansson and his two companions. He says the whole affair would be about $110,000.

The other eight men, separated from the main party after the sinking of the Karluk a year ago, might also be found by means of the hydro aeroplanes, McConnell thought. He said that if the Canadian Government did not send a search party he would appeal to the United States Government to do so.

The reply of the Naval Service Department is that there is no doubt that the party of eight men are lost. As for Stefansson and his two companions full arrangements have been made for an expedition to search for them if they are not heard from next spring.

Germany Has Plenty of Meat.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 21. — A despatch to The Telegraaf from Beverwyk, in the north of Holland, states that the export of fresh butchered meat to Germany, which has been heavy for several months, has ceased, owing to the lack of demand. Presumably Germany is butchering its own cattle freely, the despatch declares, owing to the high price of fodder.

presented, and after some discussion a committee was appointed (with Mr. James Connal as convenor) to collect the needed information on the subject, to look up possible sites, etc., and to meet again at the call of the convenor. In answer to this call, some four or five weeks later, so few appeared that nothing was done.

This may have been largely owing to the fatigue consequent on the excitement occasioned by a visit to our City of Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia on June 1st, and also by the feeling that it was too late to do anything that year.

Owing to the outbreak of the war, the "Child Welfare Exhibition," at which it was intended to have a model playground in miniature, was dropped.

A communication from your committee was addressed to the Board of Education and read at their first meeting of 1915, urging them to consider favourably, and as soon as possible, the request of the Public School Principals for skating rinks at the different schools. This was referred to the Property Committee, to be acted upon at once, as far as possible. I understand that preparations are being made at three of the schools, the Central, S. Central and King Edward.—A. E. MOWAT, Convenor.

The Morning Musical Society.

President, Mrs. John Allan.
Vice - President, Mrs. (Dr.) Frederick.
2nd Vice-President, Mrs. (Dr.) Buchanan.
Treasurer, Mrs. C. Fessenden.
Secretary, Mrs. G. E. Porter.

The Morning Musical Society now meets in Greene's Studio, Charlotte Street, instead of at the homes of its members. The many requests for membership necessitated this change in order that the restriction limiting the membership to twenty-five might be cancelled. Another advantage gained is in having more than one piano available for piano quartettes, etc. The meetings are held fortnightly, on Thursday mornings, at 10.30, and are proving both enjoyable and instructive, and have been well attended.

The course of study this season embraces "The History of Music," tracing its origin and development from its most primitive stage up to the present time; along with this "The Music of all Nations" is being studied, four mornings having been devoted to the French School, and the musical programmes have included examples from Saint-Saens, Chaminade and Godard, Meyerbeer, Gounod, Bizet and other French composers, and have consisted of solos, duets, and trios for the violin; solos, duets and quartettes for the piano and vocal solos and duets. The Italian School of Music is our present study, and it affords large scope along all lines.

The sole object of the Society is to play its part worthily in cultivating and fostering in our city a steadfast appreciation and love of all that is really ennobling and uplifting in the realm of music, and to discourage the practice of that which is cheap and vapid and without purifying influence.

The Society aims not at public advertisement but hopes by honest and quiet study to instil within all who come within its scope of influence a desire that music shall gain a higher place and a truer appreciation in the hearts and minds of the citizens of Peterborough. Signed, S. C. Porter, Secretary.

Graduate Nurses Association.

During the past year, the Peterborough Chapter of O.G.N.A. had a membership of twenty-five nurses. Meetings were held the first Wednesday of each month. Average attendance of twelve nurses at each meeting.

During the year, the doctors of Peterborough gave very instructive lectures at the monthly meetings in the Public Library. Since the war started, the nurses have met once a week at Miss Dixon's home, or at the Public Library, in order to make supplies for the Red Cross Society. We have made quite a supply of gauze and cotton bandages and handkerchiefs. The nurses also gave a collection of forty dollars and twenty-five cents.

I might mention that the annual meeting of the Graduate Nurses' Association of Ontario, held at Toronto, in September, Miss Dixon, President of the Peterborough Chapter, read a report of the Chapter, and the Peterborough Chapter is considered one of the most progressive in Ontario.—Lillian Simons, Rec.-Sec.

Furious Night Attack By Germans

THE BRITISH CAPTURE MANY TRENCHES

GERMANS LOST 260 IN KILLED AND WOUNDED

British Losses Are Reported to Have Been Comparatively Light—117 Germans Were Taken Prisoners

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

LONDON, Jan. 22.—A furious night attack in the region of Vieny, in which the Germans repeatedly stormed the British trenches, but were finally beaten back and forced to give ground for 600 yards, is reported in despatches from Amsterdam to-day.

Creeping out of their trenches the Germans advanced over the ground that had been converted into a quagmire by rain and snow and succeeded in reaching the wire entanglements before the allied trenches. British infantrymen leaped to the attack and repulsed three desperate attempts by the Germans. Then an advance was ordered, and at daybreak the British, fighting their way through mud and frequently resorting to the bayonet, captured rows of German trenches for more than half a mile.

The Germans lost 260 in killed and wounded, and 117 were taken prisoners, the despatches stated. The British losses are reported to have been comparatively light.

Collision in Mid-air Results in Machines Being Hurled to Ground

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 23. —An Austrian aviator, bearing messages from the beseiged fortress of Przemysl, collided in mid air with a Russian aviator trying to intercept him, according to dispatches received here to-day. Both machines were hurled to the ground from a great height and their pilots were killed.

CANADIANS ARE ITCHING TO GET TO THE FRONT

Their Physique, Freeness and Intelligence Are Most Manifest—Kipling sings Their Praise

Mr. Rudyard Kipling is writing a striking series of articles in the Daily Telegraph on "The New Army in Training." That appearing on Dec. 19th dealt with the Canadians, and from it we make the following extracts:

The Canadian Army wants to get to work. It admits that London is "some city," but it says it did not take the trip to visit London only. Armageddon, which so many people in Europe knew was bound to come, has struck Canada out of the blue, like a noonday murder in a small town. How will they feel when they actually view some of the destruction in France, these men who are used to making and owning their homes? And what effect will it have on their land's outlook and development for the next few generations? Older countries may possibly slip back into some sort of toleration. New peoples, in their first serious war, like girls in their first real love affair, neither forget nor forgive. That is why it pays to keep friends with the young.

A Splendid Lot.

And such young! They ran inches above all normal standards, not in a few companies or battalions, but through the whole corps; and it was not easy to pick out foolish or even dull faces among them. Details going about their business through the camp's much mud; defaulters on fatigue; orderlies, foot and mounted; the procession of lorry-drivers; companies falling in for inspection; battalions parading; brigades moving off for manoeuvres; batteries clanking in from the ranges; they were all supple, free and intelligent, and moved with a lift and a drive that made one sing for joy.

Larkhill is where the Canadian Engineers live, in the midst of a profligate abundance of tools and carts, pontoon waggons, field telephones, and other mouth-watering gear. Hundreds of tin huts are being built there, but quite leisurely, by contract. I noticed three workmen at eleven o'clock of that Monday forenoon, as drunk as Davy's sow, reeling and shouting across the landscape. So far as I could ascertain, the workmen do not work extra shifts, not even, but I hope this is incorrect, on Saturday afternoons; and I think they take their full hour at noon these short days.

Every camp throws up men one has met at the other end of the earth; so, of course, the Engineer C.O. was an ex-South African Oldtimer.

"Some of our boys are digging in trench over yonder," he said. "I'd like you to look at 'em."

The boys seemed to average 5 feet 10 inches, with 37-inch chests. The soil was unaccommodating chalk.

"What are you?" I asked of the first pickaxe.

"Private."

"Yes, but before that?"

"McGill (university understood). Nineteen twelve."

"And that boy with the shovel?"

"Queen's, I think. No; he's Toronto."

Beautifully Fit.

And thus the class in applied geology went on half up the trench under supervision of a Corporal-Bachelor-of-Science with a most scientific biceps. They were young; they were beautifully fit, and they were all truly thankful that they lived in these high days.

In all their talk I caught no phrase that could be twisted into the shadow of a boast or any claim to superiority, even in respect to their kit and outfit; no word of implication of self-praise for any sacrifice made or intended. It was their rigid humility that impressed one as most significant— and, perhaps most menacing for such as may have to deal with this vanguard of an armed nation.

Regularity

of the bowels is an absolute necessity for good health. Unless the waste matter from the food which collects there is got rid of at least once a day, it decays and poisons the whole body, causing biliousness, indigestion and sick headaches. Salts and other harsh mineral purgatives irritate the delicate lining of the bowels. BRIEF BULLETINS OF LATE HAPPENINGS

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 22—Berlin despatches say the German Minister of War, Von Falkenhasen, has resigned, and will be succeeded by Von Honehorn

PETROGRAD, Jan. 22—An official announcement to-night says "a new frontal attack has developed on Warsaw, but the Russian guns have so far succeeded in throwing back every German advance The Russians have gained several positions in Northern Poland.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 22—It is stated by a courier from German territory that British aviators yesterday dropped bombs again on the Krupp Works, at Essen, doing considerable damage.

TORONTO, Jan. 22.—The Amsterdam despatches, coupled with unofficial reports reports from Paris, Berlin and Berne, indicate that the Germans are endeavouring to resume offensive operations all along the battle line, excepting in the vicinity of Rheims.

Amsterdam also reported that violent German attacks are being made near Lens and Arras, but that in the last twenty-four hours they have been repulsed, though losses on both sides are heavy.

The German offensive is developing at Botzenne, which is reported to be again under severe bombardment, and in Argonne, the Le Prette woods and in Lower Alsace, where the Germans have made slight gains in the infantry assaults.

STEAMER IS SUNK

CREW RESCUED

SPECIAL CABLE:

LONDON, Jan. 22 — The British steamer Durward, running from Leith to Rotterdam, was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine yesterday, off Flushing, near the mouth of the Maas River. It was officially announced to-day. The crew was rescued by a Dutch pilot boat.

Some time ago the German Minister of Marine, Von Tripitz, said that Germany would isolate Britain by destroying her merchant marine by submarines. This may be the first effect of that threat.

Forty-three Children Were Cared For At The Summer Camp For Children

Assistance Was Freely Given—The European Conflict Brought the Camp to a Premature Conclusion—Additional Reports of the Various Branches of the Local Council of Women.

Among the many important functions performed under the auspices of the Local Council of Women was the summer camp for children that was conducted by the Supervision Committee of the Health Association. The appended report that was presented at the second annual meeting that was held yesterday afternoon outlines the work that was accomplished in this regard. A total of forty-three children were benefitted as a result. The camp closed in August following the outbreak of the war.

The report contains the following:

The Summer Camp for Children.

Believing in the old saying that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," the officers of the Health Association have long been anxious to establish a Summer Camp for Children. However, lack of finances loomed up as a barrier, and not until last Spring were any definite steps taken.

Even then the finances were not on hand, but the Committee, composed of Dr. Cameron, Rev. Webb and Dr. Neal, to whom were added later Dr. J. Birnie, Mrs. Travers and Mrs. Geo. Scott, determined to go ahead and make a start anyway, and trust that when people came to see that a real effort was being made, they would readily respond and the story of the summer's work goes to prove that their faith was rewarded.

First, the Parks Commission was approached and permission gained for the use of Jackson's Park. Then the Street Railway Company allowed the Committee to make use of their buildings at Jackson's Park and even offered to make some necessary repairs. They also gave free transportation for any parcel or passenger going to the Camp. The Big Brothers' Club, hearing of the scheme, offered to provide a large tent, 25 ft by 30 ft. for the use of the children. In this were placed cots upon which the children rested for a definite time each afternoon.

Railway Company Assisted.

In one room of the Street Railway buildings a stove was placed, kitchen utensils were donated by the Daughters of the Empire, and soon the place took on the appearance of a well-equipped kitchen. In a larger room a long dining-table, covered with oil-cloth, was arranged, and here the little folks gathered for a light lunch upon arrival in the morning, a good substantial dinner at noon and another lunch before leaving in the evening.

Granite plates, cups, saucers, etc., were secured, free of charge, through Mr. Webb, and these were supplemented by dishes from various ladies. The kitchen and dining-room were under the charge of Mrs. [illegible]. The entire amount of groceries used during the season was donated by Mr. W. H. Hamilton.

A trained nurse (Miss Dickson) was placed in charge of the children, and accompanied them from the time they were called for by the 'bus, in the morning, until they returned at night.

She supervised their play, meals, [illegible] and instructed them in the proper use of soap and water, tooth brushes, etc. A generous supply of tooth-brushes was donated by Dr. Middleton.

The total number of children who enjoyed and benefitted by the outing was forty-three, and the ages ranged from 5 to 7 years. The children were chosen from the poorer homes where some members of the family were suffering from tuberculosis, or from other homes where it was impossible for them to thrive during the hot summer weather. Some surgical cases of tuberculosis were taken, too, but no child was taken whose presence would endanger the others.

Practically all the children showed marked improvement. The camp lasted from early in July to the middle of August, when the outbreak of the war so diverted people's attention that funds were not available. (Signed)—F. C. Neal, M.D., Secretary Supervision Committee of the Health Association.

Following is a number of additional reports that were presented:

Missionary Society.

During this year our Society has experienced many joys and sorrows. Our report to the Branch Meeting was encouraging, showing an increase has proved very helpful and inspiring. During this year Mrs. Fisher, our Branch President, also [illegible] "Hot mercury is potent," Mrs. Parker, President of the Auxiliary, has been successful in getting such meeting an inspiration and blessing. We truly thank God and take courage.—Mrs. J. K. Moore, Rec.-Sec.

Chancel Guild.

The Chancel Guild of St. John's Church has a membership of ten ladies of the Church.

Their duties consist of the care of the Altar hangings, linen, silver and brass, and all other duties pertaining to the upkeep of the Sanctuary.—E. E. Coulthard, Secretary.

Murray Street Baptist.

In answer to your request for a report of the year's work of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Murray Street Baptist Church, I can only say we have continued our usual work of helping the needy, visiting the sick and the new families of the congregation, and helping in the care of our Church building, by raising funds, or in any way where our assistance was needed.

We have had a very successful year's work and have raised about five hundred dollars. Sincerely yours —M. Stenton, Sec. L. A. S., Murray Street Church.

over the previous year. The "Outlook" and "Annual Report," from which we glean our information regarding the work done on in our Home and Foreign Fields, are widely read. The monthly meetings were frequently held in the homes until our bloved Pastor was called higher. It was his constant wish that every woman in the Church should belong to the Women's Missionary Society. After Rev. Mr. Mansell's death each home was canvassed, which resulted in the addition of seventy-four new members as a tribute of love to his memory—"The being dead, yet speaketh."

The meetings are now held in the Guild Room, with an average attendance of thirty-five. Watch-tower Heralds give brief reports of work done in their fields, and our study book

South Reading Circle.

I beg to report the work of the South Reading Circle to the National Council of Women.

Our Circle has a membership of eighteen, and we meet every Monday afternoon. Mrs. Peter Campbell is President, and Mrs. Magie, our leader.

Our work, for some time, has been the study of the Epic poems of the different nations, beginng with the Lumerian Epic This year we are taking up French Romances. With these epics as a basis we study, in a very interesting way, the national, social, and religious life of the different nations.—E. S. Matthews, Secretary South Reading Circle.

Mothers' Club.

We held regular meetings during the year and feel that the Society has grown in strength as well as in numbers.

Through our efforts there have been three branch "Mothers' Clubs" formed—one in the Queen Mary school, South Central, and King Edward schools, and we expect, in the near future, to have them in the three other schools. These Clubs did excellent work in distributing Christmas cheer and in the King George and Central schools, where there are no Clubs, the Club of the W.C.T.U. did the work.

Our meetings are held the second Wednesday of each month and all are welcome.—Florence Shortly, Secretary Mothers' Club.

The George Street Auxiliary.

As a society, we have had a very successful year. We have had an increase in membership, also in givings, for which we thank our Heavenly Father. During the past year the money raised was from fees, thank offering and donations, to the amount of $269.11. The expenses were $6.35. Balance, $261.76.—(Signed) B. Pentland, Rec.-Sec.

Women's Christian Temperance Union.

During the year ten regular and two special meetings were held.

We have [illegible] active members and one Honorary member.

Collections have been taken at every meeting and the sum of $10 put in the Missionary Fund.

Beautiful bouquets of flowers have been sent to the hospitals and to sick members.

Special programmes along the lines of temperance education have been very helpful.—N. Fife, Secretary W.C.T.U.

North End Circle.

The North End Reading Circle has a membership of twenty, which meets each Monday afternoon, under the able leadership of Mrs. Jas. Kendry.

The reading done so far this season has been in connection with the war —"The White Paper," "How the War Began," "Germany and England," and many interesting articles which would give us a better understanding of the reasons and results of the present conflict.—N. H. Goodsell, Secretary.

St. Luke's Branch.

Following is the report of St. Luke's Branch of the Womens Auxiliary:

Our work is entirely missionary.

Meetings are held every Thursday in each month, with the exception of June, July and August. The last Thursday of each month is devoted to business and religious exercises. We have a membership of from thirty to thirty-fifive.

We make youths' and boys' trousers, quilts and rag carpet, which we send in bales to schools and homes in the North West.

In 1914 we shipped two bales which contained: 73 yards of carpet, 41 pairs of trousers, 13 quilts, 27 pairs of mittens.

These are all made from new material, at a total value of $111.40.—Respectfully submitted, Margaret Butcher, Cor Sec. St. Luke's W. A.

BAD COLD IN THE CHEST.

"I am happy to tell you that I used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and was promptly cured of a very bad cold in the chest," writes Miss Josephine Gauthier, Dover South, Ont. You can depend on Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine to relieve and cure all inflammations and irritations of the throat and bronchial tubes.

"THE BATTLE CRY"

Charles Neville Buck.

CHAPTER XXII.

The girl from Philadelphia had for some days been watching the road which led in tortuous twists from Peril to the gap. She herself hardly realized how expectantly she had watched it. Her lips fell into a wistful droop and the little line between her eyes bespoke such a poignancy of pain that she seemed to be all alone in the world. She was thinking of the man she had sent away and wondering what their meeting would be like. And the girl of the hills, sitting near by, would look, with her fingers gripping themselves tightly together and an ache in her own heart. Deep in Dawn's nature which had been coming of late into a sweetly fragrant bloom, crept the rancour of a fierce jealousy for the man from Down-below whom she had never seen, but whose letter could make Juanita forget present things and drift away into a world of other days, and other scenes; a world in which Dawn herself had no part.

Juanita was wondering if after all she had not misjudged Roger Malcolm. She wanted to think she had, because her heart was hungry for love. She had written to him sternly forbidding his coming, and if he obeyed that mandate he would, of course, prove herself still weak and lacking in initiative. So she was waiting with a fluttering heart.

But on the day that he came she was not watching. He had pushed on at a rate of speed which mountain patience would not have countenanced, and had arrived in two hours less than the journey should logically have required. The heaving sides of his hired horse told almost as much of the eagerness that had riven him as did the frank worship of his face.

At the front fence he hitched his mount and walked noiselessly up to the larger house. Two feminine figures sat sewing in the hall as he silently opened the unlatched door and let himself in. One of them was a figure he well knew, even with its back turned; a figure which, because of something distinctively subtle and wondrous, could belong to no one else. The other was a mountain girl of undeniable beauty, but, to him, of no interest.

It was Dawn who saw him first, and, with a glance that brought a resentful flash to her eyes, she rose silently and slipped out through a side door. Then as Juanita came to her feet with a little gasp and held out both hands, the man's heart began to hammer wildly, and he knew that the fingers he held were trembling.

He would have taken her at once in his arms, but she held him off and shook her head.

"I told you not to come," she rebuked in a voice that lacked conviction.

"And I flagrantly disobeyed you," he told her, "as I mean henceforth to disobey you. Once I lost you because I played a weak game. You want a conqueror and I have always been a suppliant. Now I have changed my method."

"Oh!" said Juanita faintly. For just an instant she felt a leap at her heart. Perhaps after all he had grown to her standard. That was how she must be won, if ever won, and she wanted to be won.

She saw him draw out of his pocket a small box and take from it a ring which she had once worn, but again she shook her head.

"Not yet, dear," she said very softly, "you haven't proved yourself a conqueror yet, you know. You've just called yourself one."

Then her heart misgave her, for after gazing into her eyes with a hurt look, the man masked his disappointment behind a smile of deference, and said, "Very well, I can wait, but that's how it must be in the end."

In the end! Juanita knew that after all he had not changed.

He was still the man of brave intents and words—still the man who stood hesitant at the moment for a blow.

It was while Malcolm was Juanita's guest that Anse Havey broke his resolve and, for the first time, came through the gate of the school. She saw him come with a pleased little sense of having broken down his reserve, and a mild triumph of feminine victory.

It was a brilliant night in early November, with a moon that had lured the girl and her guest out on the cold porch. The hills stood up like everlasting thrones through the glitter of moon and stars and frost and both of them were silent, both steeped in the wizardry of the night and the sense of mountain mystery. Suddenly the girl heard a familiar voice calling from the road.

"Ooh Mmome in? It's Anse Havey."

A moment later the mountaineer was standing on the steps and shaking hands with Roger Malcolm, whom he greeted briefly and with mountain reserve.

"I've heard of you, Mr. Havey," said the man from Philadelphia, and the man of the hills only met the other's gaze and turned to Juanita.

"I was down at Peril with a couple of teams," he said, "an' I found a lot of boxes at the station for ye. I 'lowed ye didn't hardly have any teams handy, so I fotched 'em back to my house. I'll send them over in the mornin', but I thought I'd ride over to-night an' tell ye."

She had been wondering how, at a time of mired roads, she was to have those wooks, which she would soon need, brought across the ridge. Now he had solved the problem for her. Anse Havey stood leaning against a porch post, with his broad shoulders and clear-cut profile etched against the moonlight as he studied the Philadelphian. Suddenly he asked abruptly:

"Have ye found anything that interests ye in the coal an' timber line?"

Roger Malcolm glanced up and knocked the ash from his pipe against the rail of the porch. He had not suspected that his rambles about the hills with a set of maps and a geologist's hammer had been noted. He had not even mentioned it yet to Juanita, because he hoped to surprise her with the record of his activities when he had accomplished more.

But he showed no surprise as he answered, and answered with perfect frankness, "Yes and no. I came primarily to see how Miss Holland was progressing with her work. It's true I have thought something of investing in mountain resources, but that lies in the future."

Havey nodded, and said quietly, "I hope ye decides to invest elsewhere"

"So far as a casual inspection shows, this country looks pretty good to me," said Malcolm easily. "I may buy here—provided, of course, the price is right."

"This country's mighty pore," said the head of the Haveys slowly. "About all it can raise is a little corn an' a heap of h——l, but down underneath the rocks there's wealth."

"Then the man who can unlock the hills and get out that wealth and make it available, ought to be welcomed as a benefactor, ought he not?" inquired the Easterner with a smile.

"He won't be," was the short response.

"Why?"

"The men from outside always aim to get the benefit of that wealth an' then to move us off our mountains an' there ain't nowheres else on earth a mountain man can live. Developin' seems pretty much like plunderin' to us. We gen'rally asks benefactors like that to go away."

"And do they usually go?"

"No, not usually. They always goes."

"Do you expect me to believe that, Mr. Havey?" queried Malcolm, still smiling.

"I don't neither ask ye to believe it nor to disbelieve it," was the cool rejoinder. "I'm just tellin' it to ye, that's all."

Malcolm refilled his pipe and offered the tobacco pouch to Havey. Anse shook his head with a curt "Much obleeged," and the visitor commented casually, "Well, we needn't have any argument on that score yet, Mr. Havey. My activities, if they eventuate, belong to the future, and when that time comes perhaps we shall be able to agree after all."

"I reckon we won't hardly agree on no proposition for despoilin' my people, Mr. Malcolm."

"Then we can disagree, when the time comes," remarked the other man with a trace of tartness in his voice. "There is no need of it as yet."

"Then ye don't aim to develop us just now?"

Malcolm shook his head, the glow of his pipe bowl for a moment lighting up a face upon which lingered an amused smile. "Not this time. Another time perhaps."

"All right then." Havey's voice carried a very masked and courteous, but very unmistakable warning. "Whenever ye get good an' ready—we'll argue that." He bowed to the girl and turned into the path which led down to the gate.

* * * * *

It was one of those nights under whose brooding wings vague influences are astir and in the making. Dawn had gone back for a few days to her brother's lonely cabin on Tribulation to set his house in order and look after his simple mending. Perhaps in her own heart there was another reason, an unconfessed unwillingness to stay at the bungalow while she must feel so far away from Juanita, and see Roger Malcolm seeming so near. In her heart vague things were stirring, too, and in another heart. The fact that she had not been allowed to see young Milt McBriar had given him an augmented importance which had kept the boy prominently in her thoughts despite her denunciations. Once she had met him on the road and he had stopped her to say, "Dawn, do ye know why I don't come over thar no more"

The girl had only nodded, and the boy went on.

"Well, some day when ye're at Jeb's cabin, I'm a-comin' thar. I hain't a-goin' ter come slippin', but I'm comin' open an' upstandin' an' Jeb an' me are goin' ter talk about this business."

"No! No!" she had exclaimed, genuinely frightened and in a voice full of quick dissent. "Ye mustn't do it, Milt, ye musta't. Ef ye does I won't see ye."

"We'll settle that when I gits thar. I jest 'lowed I'd tell ye," said the boy stubbornly. "I reckon I mustn't talk ter ye now—I'm pledged," and without another word he shook up the reins on his horse's neck and rode away.

So to-night while the moon was weaving its spell over sweet hearts, the son of the McBriar leader was riding with a set face over into the heart of the Havey country, to openly visit the daughter of Fletch McNash.

Jeb was sitting before the fire in his cabin with a pipe between his teeth, and Dawn was idly plunking on a banjo—not the old folk-lore tune that had once been her repertoire, but a newer and sweeter thing that she had learned from Juanita Holland.

Then as a confident voice sang out from the darkness, "I'm Milt McBriar an' I'm a-comin' in," the banjo fell from the girl's hands and her fingers clutched in panic at her breast. She saw her brother rise in angry astonishment from his chair, and heard his voice demand truculently, "What ther h——l does you want hyar?"

PEOPLE OFTEN SAY
"How Are We To Know When The Kidneys Are Out Of Order?"
EASIEST THING IN THE WORLD!

The location of the kidneys, close to the small of the back, renders the detection of kidney trouble a simple matter. The note of warning comes from the back. The kidneys become overtaxed and fail to do their work at nature's call.

Backache is the signal sent out by the kidneys the minute they become overtired. Those who heed the warning when it first comes, usually have but little trouble.

The danger lies in delay. Doan's Kidney Pills stimulate the action of the kidneys, and enable them to perform their duty perfectly.

Mrs. Greig Murphy, Lower Ship Harbor, East, N.S., writes: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills in my family with great success, and don't think there is a better pill for the kidneys. I was very miserable with my back, and could hardly get about. I got a box, and tried them, and found that they were really good, so I took in all about six boxes, and soon found my back cured, and my kidneys as well as ever."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25; for sale at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Justice of Peace Praises Dr. Chase's Ointment

After Nine Years of Agony He Escaped an Operation by Using This Great Healing Agent.

MR. HEATH.

As a means of healing sores and wounds that defy ordinary treatment Dr. Chase's Ointment has long stood supreme. It is known far and wide as a positive cure for eczema and piles. Whatever uncertainty there may be about the results obtained by the use of medicines taken internally there can be no question of the healing of the skin when Dr. Chase's Ointment is applied. You can actually see with your own eyes just what takes place. The sore parts are cleansed and gradually the new skin is formed and the sore becomes smaller and smaller, until it finally disappears. It is often wonderful the results which are accomplished in a single night by the use of this great healing ointment.

Mr. N. A. Heath, J.P., Fitch Bay, Que., writes:—"Nine years ago I was taken with an abcess, and cannot begin to describe what I have suffered as a result. I was examined by two doctors, both of whom said I would have to undergo an operation to be cured. Thanks to Dr. Chase's Ointment, it has rendered an operation unnecessary, and has completely cured me. I cannot say enough in praise of this wonderful ointment which cured me after nine years of agony."

A BAD COUGH FOLLOWED GRIPPE

Wapakoneta, Ohio.—"I am a farmer by occupation and the grippe left me with a bad cough and in a nervous, weak run-down condition, and I could not seem to get anything to do me any good. I decided to try Vinol, and soon began to improve, and after taking one bottle I feel like a new man. Vinol has built me up, and my cough and nervousness are all gone, and I can truly say Vinol is all that is claimed for it."—JAMES MARTIN, Wapakoneta, Ohio.

The many letters which we are continually publishing from reliable people should prove to you that Vinol is a reliable body builder and strength creator; in fact we feel safe in saying that we have never found in our store a more dependable, upbuilding tonic for the convalescent, weak and run-down than Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic without oil. Therefore if you need such a medicine, we ask you to try a bottle of Vinol, and if you don't think it helps you, we will return your money.

Vinol is a constitutional remedy for all weak, nervous and run-down conditions of men, women and children.

BRASS BANDS IN BATTLE

Napoleon I. was a firm believer in the inspiring effects produced by music on armies and utilized it with telling results. During the peninsular campaign the British bands had a conspicuous part. At Busaco, where the English, weakened and starving, were hard pressed by the French, the Duke of Wellington sent forward the bands to play the national anthem. Instantly the men fought with renewed vigor and the battle was won.

An officer said, "I saw one company waver, but a non-commissioned officer shouted that as long as the music lasted the fighting would go on and threatened to put a bullet into the first man who showed signs of cowardice. He did not have to fire."

At Talavera two bands were entrenched in a ravine and played stirring music to goad the men to fight against the enemy.

During the Schleswig-Holstein War of 1848, Prince Frederick Charles, the father of the Duchess of Connaught, ordered his regimental bands to play a religious chorale praying for victory—and victory came. During the Franco-Prussian War a general wrote to headquarters, "Send me a thousand men and the music of the 'Marseillaise' and I will guarantee you a victory." Before Plevna in the Turco-Russian War, Skobeleff, a Russian general, was about to order a retreat when he caught sight of the Imperial Guards' Band standing in the rear. He at once ordered it to play the Russian national anthem, and the disheartened soldiers, with a great access of courage, swept over the Turks, utterly routing them.

About the Cossacks

The word Cossack is a derivative from the Turkish prototype of "adventurer," which is a typical word for the description of these roving horse riders. The Cossack population of Russia amounts to roughly 2,500,000 men and women, and they collectively own some 146,500,000 acres of Russian territory. Their living is chiefly obtained by the pursuit of agriculture, together with cattle and horse-breeding.

STORIES OF BOTHA REVEAL CHARACTER

Hated to Ruffle and Incapable of Unfair Tactics in War, Yet Withal Possessed Scads of Grim Humor

"Let us fight like men," said General Louis Botha to some who counselled tactics of a particularly savage character during the Boer war, when he was fighting the British, "but do nothing revengeful or mean." And there we have the keynote of the character of the man who fought, lost, and has since done everything he could to heal up the old wounds and restore prosperity to South Africa.

A favorite story concerning Botha is that relating to a meeting between himself and Lord Kitchener. Just before the finish of the Boer war, when they discussed the possibilities of peace, there were several fruitless interviews before a working basis was agreed upon. At the end of one of these conferences Botha got up and remarked: "Well, I am afraid I really must be off." "There is no hurry," Kitchener answered pleasantly, "you have not a train to catch, you know." "That is just what I have," was Botha's reply. Next morning the chief of staff reported a successful Boer raid on a British armored train on the Pretoria line only a few miles off. Botha had caught that train.

At home General Botha lives a quiet life, happy in the society of his wife and children, but in action he is the live, vigorous, hard-hitting fighter. Perhaps the best pen-picture of Botha in the field is that of Dr. Arthur Lynch, M.P., who commanded the Irish Brigade in the Boer forces, was sentenced to death for high treason, pardoned, and then released.

"I remember," he says, "one incident at Vereeniging. Everything was going wrong for the Boers. Botha was almost the last to leave the field. I came to him for orders and found him seated on a little box before a large deal case, and there eating a dish of Irish stew. Our defences were all abandoned; at any moment a troop of Lancers might have dashed over the bridge; a large contingent of the advanced guard did enter some afterwards. But Botha was entirely unruffled. He finished his Irish stew in his usual solid, serious, healthy style, and then, reaching into his covered van, he brought out two bottles of whiskey and, explaining laughingly that these were all he had left, offered me one. Neither Botha nor myself was a drinking man, but I took that bottle like a benediction."

CURIOUS WEAPON USED BY GERMANS

Short Range Trench Howitzer Fires Explosive Shell Weighing More Than Gun Itself

In one of the official stories sent from the front by "Eye Witness" allusion was made to the "minenwurfer," or trench howitzer, which the Germans are using. This trench howitzer is another of the productions of Krupp, but, though small, it is undoubtedly a factor serious to reckon with in trench fighting.

The howitzer "itself" is only three feet or so long and weighs 130 pounds. Its mounting is a small affair of about 100 pounds, but it is attached to a heavy bed or platform of 920 pounds dead weight. This complete mass of a little over half a ton is provided with wheels and a couple of handles, and can readily be transported by two men.

Its small size and mobility permit of it being moved about in the trenches. When in position the howitzer, with its bed, is removed from the travelling wheels, and the weapon can then be fired from the ground. It is a decided novelty in munitions of war.

The calibre of the howitzer is less than three inches, but the shell thrown is a sphere over a foot in diameter, weighing, with its charge of high explosive, close upon 200 pounds.

To enable the little howitzer to accommodate such a huge shell, an "adapter" as to be used. When the howitzer is fired the adapter and shell are forced out together. The two are soon separated, however, the air, forcing its way between them, causing the adapter to fall apart and to allow the shell to travel on its way alone. The lowest elevation employed is 45 degrees, and at this angle the shell travels a distance of 550 yards, the maximum range obtainable. The accuracy of fire is said to be very good.

Although this range is so small, the shell takes no less than 10 seconds in its flight, and reaches a height of 410 feet in the air. It is difficult to imagine the feelings of those in the trenches against which the howitzer is operating, as they see the large circular shell lobbing toward them. The projectile consists of but a thin steel envelope, the greater part of 1 389 pounds weight consisting of high explosive.

Four pounds of dynamite or guncotton are considered sufficient to demolish breastworks of two to three feet thickness, composed of earth rammed between planks or railway sleepers. It is not, then, difficult to estimate the destructive powers of such a mass of high explosive falling into the trenches.

The effect of ordinary shrapnel shell is obtained by the bullets and splinters of the envelope when the shell bursts. With the "minenwurfer" shell the effect is almost entirely explosive. The walls of the shell are too thin to be capable of doing much damage and it is not in this direction that the effect is expected.

When the trenches are less than 500 or 600 yards apart a shorter range can be obtained by elevating the howitzer to a greater angle than 45 degrees. At 60 degrees, for instance, the range would be 470 yards. The shell would then reach a height of 630 feet in the air, and would take 12½ seconds to complete the trajectory.

The highest angle at which the "minenwurfer" can operate is 80 degrees. At this elevation the range would be only 190 yards. Nearly a quarter of a minute would elapse between the moment of discharge and the instant the shell falling into the opposing trenches, a maximum height of 800 feet being attained in its journey. One has but to remember that a crack runner can cover 100 yards in approximately 10 seconds to appreciate the slowness with which the shell completes the distance between the trenches when fired at this high elevation.

HAD INDIGESTION FOR OVER 10 YEARS.

ALMOST DESPAIRED OF EVER GETTING WELL.

Indigestion is one of the worst forms of stomach trouble. The stomach becomes upset and you have a raw, debilitating feeling in it. After a meal you feel that you must get rid of that nasty, bilious, burning sensation. It is not necessary for you to be troubled with indigestion if you will only try that old and well-known remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters, which is a combination of nature's best known roots, herbs and barks for the cure of all stomach and blood troubles.

Mrs. Mary MacKay, Hunter's Mountain, N.S., writes: "I was troubled with indigestion for more than ten years. I tried several doctors' medicines claiming the power to cure, but all without success. Having heard of the many cures effected by Burdock Blood Bitters, I decided to give it a trial. After taking two bottles I was completely cured. My appetite which was very poor is now good, and I can eat most everything without any disagreeable feelings.

LABOR AND THE WAR

International Unions Had no Time to Work Against Armed Conflict

"If the declaration of war could have been delayed a month there would have been no war. There would have been a general international industrial revolution on the part of the forces of labor, which would have made a war impossible."

This statement was made by Mr. J. A. Seddon, President of the British Trade Union Congress, and an ex-Labor member of the British House of Commons from Newton-le-Willows, Lancashire. Mr. Seddon was chairman of the Trades Union Congress Parliamentary Committee which conferred with the British Government and issued a manifesto to the trade unionists of Great Britain urging active enlistment in the army and participation in the defence of the Empire.

Speaking of the war Mr. Seddon said that the rapidity with which hostilities were declared swept everybody, including the labor organizations, off their feet. The impetus came from Germany, where attempts to hold peace demonstrations were crushed with severity by the Kaiser's military strength. "If we had had a month," he said, "we should have made war impossible. In Germany it will be found when the war is over, and if the historian deals with it correctly, that this terrible conflict was due to the bidding of the younger class, the controlling, ruling military class, whose power was becoming speedily undermined by the Socialist Democratic movement.

"The ulterior motive of the war in the mind of the German ruler was to check that rising tide of democratic sentiment which was fostered and encouraged by the labor unionists."

WHAT THIN FOLKS SHOULD DO TO GAIN WEIGHT

Physician's Advice for Thin, Undeveloped Men and Women

Thousands of people suffer from excessive thinness, weak nerves and feeble stomachs who, having tried advertised fleshmakers, food-fads, physical culture stunts and rub-on creams, resign themselves to life-long skinniness and think nothing will make them fat. Yet their case is not hopeless. A recently discovered regenerative force makes fat grow after years of thinness, and is also unequalled for repairing the waste of sickness or faulty digestion and for strengthening the nerves. This remarkable discovery is called Sargol, this strength-giving, fat-producing elements of nature-lodged search have been combined in this peerless preparation, which is endorsed by eminent physicians and used by prominent people everywhere. It is absolutely harmless, inexpensive and efficient.

A month's systematic use of Sargol should produce flesh and strength by correcting faults of digestion and by supplying highly concentrated fats to the blood. Increased nourishment is obtained from the food eaten, and the additional fats that this people need are provided. Leading druggists supply Sargol and say there is a large demand for it.

While this new preparation has given splendid results as a nerve-tonic and vitalizer, it should not be used by nervous people unless they wish to gain at least ten pounds of flesh.

Stunned by Honor

Lieut. Dimmer, of the King's Royal Rifles, who has just been awarded the Victoria Cross, learned the news of his good fortune in the following dramatic manner: The young officer, lunching with a brother officer, bought an English newspaper.

Suddenly Dimmer turned pale and fell back in his chair. The other officer rushed forward, saying: "What is the matter? You are ill?" Dimmer answered in a weak voice: "It is nothing; but I have just read that I have got the Victoria Cross."

Officers Must be Competent

Every young British officer on joining the service is put through precisely the same course of training as the raw recruit in the ranks. He drills with him, shoots with him, does physical training and gymnastics with him, learns how to lay down a kit, how to keep his rifle and accoutrements clean.

BOY SCOUT'S ADVENTURE

Nervy Belgian Lad Rifles German Officer and Took Coat and Helmet

The spirit of revolt which inspires the Belgian nation against the German invader is well illustrated by the adventures of Gilston van Hecke, a Belgian Boy Scout. Refused a place in the ranks on the score of his youth, young Van Hecke positively declined to be suppressed. He attached himself to the first battalion he could find marching to the front and defied all efforts to drive him off. Wherever the battalion went, Van Hecke was sure to arrive on the scene, managing to be allowed the privilege of fetching or carrying for anyone, officer or private, who would patronize him, and doubly delighted if only the commission would take him up to the fighting line. At length it became a recognized thing that Van Hecke was irrepressible, and must be endured.

The following is one of the many adventures which befell him. It was at Ramscapelle where, after enduring heavy shell fire and bayonet charges, the battalion to which he had attached himself was driven out of its trenches, being under fire from both sides, were left empty.

Towards nightfall, young Van Hecke made his way into the most advanced trench, armed with a revolver. Presently he heard footsteps approaching, and, peeping over the edge of the trench, saw a German officer making his way to the same trench from the same side. Van Hecke promptly dodged down and waited his time. In a few seconds the German's head appeared, cautiously peeping into the trench.

The Boy Scout promptly shot him dead, through the forehead. Determined to secure a trophy, he hauled the body into the trench and hastily stripped off the coat and helmet, judging it wise to make his departure immediately afterwards. The coat and helmet was shown at the Belgian War Exhibition, in Piccadilly, London.

When Britain Erred

There can be no doubt about it—in the eyes of official Germany, Great Britain was a nation of fools. So was France; so was Belgium.

For years we and our our allies, like simpletons, allowed thousands and thousands of men from the Fatherland to come to our shores, and when they told us their one aim in life was to settle among us as waiters, hotel porters, business men, manufacturers, correspondents, and all the rest of it, we believed them. We did more, we made friends of them.

In short, we treated them as gentlemen, seeing which, official Germany chuckled to itself and called us fools. —London Answers.

AS SOON AS THE FIGHT IS FINISHED THEY PLAY, THESE BEARDED FELLOWS AND THERE IS IN THE GAIETY OF THEIR PLAY A SORT OF SERIOUSNESS OF INNOCENCE.... IN THE HOUR OF WAR, THE OFFENSIVE MAN IS REGENERATED BY ANOTHER. GUILE.... FEARS TO KILL — IN ORDER NOT TO BE KILLED.

Au Cantonnement — Soirée de Repos.
IN QUARTERS — AN EVENING OF REST.

PERHAPS these three words, "at the front," and many of the recitals that invoke this title have nothing of the real thing but the name. I have the good fortune to be able to offer you a few true impressions. Lived and taken indeed here on the line of fire.

One does not always do what one would wish. For three long days, notwithstanding our ardent desire to rejoin the advance guard, we are blocked at the back of the army. It is not permitted to us, for the moment, to take part in the combat. It is our turn to rest; to-morrow it will be necessary to have men fresh and rested to take the place of those who are slain—wounded—missing.

The troopers gathered here where I am writing these notes have lately been making supreme efforts. This can be read in their drawn features, in the uniforms splashed with mud, plastered with dirt; in their prodeguous (flaked boots), which at the ends of the legs seem but enormous clods of earth strolling about.

Our camp shelters itself in a little Flemish village halfway between Furnes and Dixmude; we have established ourselves in the only farm which the shells have partially spared. Some of the soldiers are lying in the lofts, others are in the barns and stables; a certain number of us are staying in the vast kitchen. In the wide, high fireplace is slowly dying a little fire. No windows, no shutters—the artillery fire has broken all. In order to protect us a little from the cold wind that comes in blasts some overcoats are hanging at the window frames.

Night and day, without respite, one hears the whistling of the "Black Marias," of the German 220 and the missiles of our 155. The cannonades succeed each other in tornadoes. However, this evening near the fire where I keep myself the voice of the cannon promises us some leisure. I hear it in the distance at regular intervals. It seems as if the snow which is beginning to fall has calmed the bellicose ardor of the artillerymen. I have some hours before me to classify a little all the images, heroic or picturesque, that my eye has caught during three days. After several nights without sleep it would be good to doze in the straw. It needs more courage sometimes to look one's pencil in the face than to use one's rifle.

• • •

"Oh! I say, Mr. Artist, you are not going to make my jaw now, with my toothache," exclaimed one. "For me, I say, you are not to sketch me; it is three weeks since I shaved," cries another.

All of us are badly shaved. We have the air of regular old soldiers, with rough beards, tunics rumpled, pipe in the mouth..... We were around the modest fire, thirty or forty of us; the majority had had a rough day and we were analyzing our impressions.

"I," said one comrade, "have felt the same sensation that the hunter has when, his gun in hand, he awaits the animal—you know that sort of anguish which you experience. It tightens your chest, and you hold your breath..... At early dawn I received orders to go on sentry duty; it is just at this moment that you commence to have again at the pit of the stomach that little anxiety which possesses you at the opening of the shoot. Rifle in hand, I peered in front of me, in the ditches, and among the grasses of the river:..... I paid no attention to the shells passing in gusts over my head; all my being was concentrated on the end of the plain that I had before me.

"Suddenly this part of the plain seems animated. It is no longer level; it appears to lift up. Some shadows move about in the woods. Some others creep along the ground.

"Behind the shadows come compact masses appear, and behind the groups a multitude surges up. It is a mass of German infantry, rushing to the onslaught. Never could I have believed that so many men could go out from a wood, and so quickly. I ran toward the battalion. We fired, while the mitrailleuses began their tap, tap, tap. There was in the gray lines something like a giving way, and distinctly I could see men falling. But others continued forward, and still others came out of the wood. Then it was a frenzy of shooting an unending firing. Before us we saw human bodies spring up, then fall down. The problem was this:—Would there be more Germans than bullets? To sum up, the bullets had the best of it: the attack withdrew, leaving on the plain corpses by hundreds. We were at the end of firing, at the end of killing, and the wood of the rifles themselves was weary.

"Oh, as for me," said a young lieutenant, "instead of having had very much to fire at, I have had very much firing at me. That was near about Dixmude. My company was discovered, and a German battery never ceased showering shells upon us. We could not see it, hidden as it was by a little rising ground, but the distance could not have been more than 1,400 yards, and by a strange chance the projectiles always were falling a few steps from me. I went to the right—Vlan—Plan!—Ping!—Bang!— the shells were following me.

"When this sort of joking continues for about two hours one ends by being quite exasperated. For my part I had but one idea—it was to see the battery that wanted my skin; it was to meet the man who commanded it. I shouted:—'N— de —d! I have had enough of that! En vieln assaut! En avant, mes enfants, en avant! Go forward, my boys, go forward!'

"We descended a hill like a whirlwind—went down the length of the road, hustled over two lines of the enemy's infantry and fell upon a piece of cannon which had not had time to get away. Five minutes later my men brought the commandant of that battery.

"'Monsieur,' I said to him, 'it is two hours that you have been annoying me; I am very glad to make your acquaintance. You are a brave man!'"

"And what did he reply?" we asked the young officer.

"Nothing. He hesitated to take my hand. He understood neither my words nor my gesture. He believed that I was going to injure him. But, you know, those people at bottom are really neither cultured nor courteous.

• • •

Now it is the turn of a soldier in the ranks. He recounts—his emotions, his adventures, and all without finesse—roughly, but so sincerely—in a straightforward fashion.

"It was just as the night was falling and I was singing while filling my pipe. The fine rain was trickling down my face. Suddenly at the opening of the lane that looked upon the main road I saw the general on horseback.

"'Why are you bareheaded?' he asked.

"'I have lost my kepi, my general.'

"'And where did you lose it?'

"'This morning, while we were taking a trench with the bayonet.'

"'Wait! Here, take mine,' said the great chief. Bewildered, I asked if he were not making fun of me.

"'Take it, I say,' he repeated, and then put it on my head. And there was I, all flattered with mud, wearing the glorious headgear of my general. Already the general was gone toward the next encampment, where he was going to find another cap."

Raising up our admiring eyes the kepi of the grand chief, he continued:—"Yes, some of them wanted to make me take it off, of course, for it was not within the regulations, but I—I wouldn't, you know; the general gave it to me to wear it, so I wear it. That's his order, you see."

• • •

"You would like very well, eh," said a brave soldier, the father of two children, "for me to tell you why I have wept twice since the beginning of the war?

"Well, the first time was quite at first. In the middle of the night, rain still more adding to the horror of the black sky, there is a call from the side of the road. We see rise up before us a shadow, which on coming nearer proves to be a woman holding in her arms an infant. She is drenched with the rain, a miserable fichu clinging round her shoulders and her thin dress revealing her tottering legs. Looking at her closely, we distinguish through the meshes of her wind blown hair two haggard eyes that I shall never forget in all my life. She cries to us in a hoarse voice, 'Oh! my child, my child!' Then she uncovered the baby of six months, that she is holding desperately close to her breast, and at the sight of the little ashen face we understand the frightful truth—the poor little one is dead!" Upon all our little group a heavy silence falls. One began to arrange the overcoats at the windows. Others suddenly fixed the embers of the fire too glaring. Can it be the French are too emotional? Let us listen, for the soldier continues:—

"That was my first tear. And the second time was one Sunday. I was quartered with my battery in a village reduced to powder by the enemy's shells. The sun, a pale sun, rose against the stroke of eight in the morning the bell of the church called the faithful to the mass. A hymn resounded, 'Mon Dieu, plus près de Toi' ('Nearer, My God, to Thee'). A little way off the soldiers in the cantonment were singing the 'Marseillaise.' The war song and the religious hymn did not jar against each other; they mingled and they went up together to the cloudless sky. Now and again the crackling of mitrailleuses came from the horizon and, occasionally a dry and violent explosion was heard, and a straying shell burst open some more cottages; but stronger and above all the song of the soldiers and the hymn of the women rose up, grand, wild, ardent. There was something in the mingled sounds that tightened my heart—I, who had seen all the fields of battle, who had passed by a thousand corpses. With my eyes fixed on that little belfry, my ears listening to the 'Marseillaise,' I was seized with a strange emotion and once again I felt the tears rolling down my cheeks."

And I, looking at the French soldier, believed that I could see the third tear pearl into his eyes. • • • Some instants passed in silence, only the sound of the wind sighing through the trees. Then the one who had the toothache suddenly broke the lugubrious monotony with:—

As for me, I remember only the gay things. Our trenches were so close to those of the enemy that one could in a loud voice, in the manner of the heroes of Homer, throw over some defiant challenges. You can guess the thousand little incidents that would occur in such a neighborhood.

"One morning in our trench an officer, Lieutenant Marcel, was taking his bath in an improvised tub. One of his comrades, impatient to succeed him, called out, 'Have you finished taking your tub, Marcel?' The Germans heard it. For eight days after, in succession, from the German trenches voices interrogated chaffingly, 'Have you finished taking your tub, Marcel?'

"Exasperated by the patriotic exclamations, the lieutenant called us together to thrash them. We charged before the morning tub and not one escaped. Then through a little word we advanced that day about eighteen yards.

"It is your turn, Monsieur Artist with the pad, to tell us some droll adventures or some soldier stories." "No, my friends, I have no heart for that this evening—I am still suffering from a real loss. That is all that I can recount to you—the story of this loss. Three months of campaigning without repose and the life in the camps had definitely drawn us together—Fred and I. When we chatted together in the evenings of our Paris we did so with a spirit of repose, without waiting with fear for the morrow. What a good companion is a companion of arms! I did not know that when I used to read such recitals as a child—I did not know all that this fine expression carried, 'companion of arms.' On the 20th we occupied with the staff major an old military house at the side of the plain. We were awaiting orders which were to be carried forward. The enemy was suspected to be near by and they had to be found at any price. Fred and I were chosen for a first reconnoitre. Against my habit, I was nervous—I found the spot as sinister as the circumstances.

"At six o'clock the darkness had already spread over the leaden sky and invaded the plain; this facilitated our reconnoitring duty. In front of us nature formed a large black mass, immobile and hostile. I was on the point of jumping a ditch when Fred grasped my arm. 'Let me pass first,' he said. There was a sudden shot, then a second one. I saw him stagger, then fall to the ground. One ball had struck him full in the heart and one in the forehead. There he lay, stretched on his back, his large eyes open.

"I stayed there, kneeling beside him, offering my body to the rage of the bullets, forgetful of all save that he was no more. Then a tear rose and stole silently down my feverish cheek. I wept from despair, rage and my powerlessness. I wept just like a poor, sick child.

"Fred is no more, but his image is always with me. He was the great joy of those days of sadness. He carries with him into the tomb, hollowed out in the damp Flemish soil, the best of my tenderness. My heart is torn. But I still seem to hear his voice, saying, 'Cheer up, old chap.' At this moment there must be many friendships like ours, equally broken."

• • •

In looking around me I saw by the eyes filled with tears that each one of us had a brother, a friend, a comrade to avenge.

In human distress the memory of the dead is a ferment of energy and not a source of despair.

You understand now why we are in such great haste to return to the front?

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A SCRAP OF PAPER

A Story For Thanksgiving

By RUTH GRAHAM

Edward Olcott was convalescent, and the morning was a most delightful one. There is a delicious feeling about that convalescence that I fancy is explainable from the contrast between suffering and the relief from suffering. It seemed to Olcott that he was never so well in his life, and yet it would have been well nigh impossible for him to get out of the invalid chair in which he had been wheeled to the glass inclosed porch of the hospital.

He had not been there long before an attendant dropped a newspaper in his lap. Unfolding it, he noticed some words written in pencil in a woman's hand on the margin. They read:

Dear Patient—I am very sorry for you. I hope you will get comfort from this paper, which I intend to put in the box at the terminal of the railroad for papers to go to the hospitals. I pity you especially being confined on account of illness when Thanksgiving is coming on. Cheer up! On next Thanksgiving day I trust you will be in condition to enjoy a fine Thanksgiving dinner.

This communication to an unknown dear patient was signed with two initials, E. A. The newspaper was a weekly issued at a place called Edgewater, some twenty miles from the city.

"That little note," said Olcott to himself, "was written by a girl. No one else would have signed her initials. The place in which she lives is made up of residences of well to do people. I question if in all there are 500 houses. I shall have no difficulty in discovering who E. A. is, and I propose to dine with her next Thanksgiving. I would do so this year but for the fact that there isn't time and I couldn't eat a Thanksgiving dinner."

Olcott was a young man of means. The reason why he was at a hospital instead of his own home was twofold—first, he was a bachelor, without a near relative, and, second, he had been recommended by his physician to go to a hospital as the most convenient place in which to be ill. Possibly in his convalescent state he was especially impressible. Be that as it may, he read the paper that had been given him, conjuring up visions of the person who wrote the message on the margin. When he had finished the paper's perusal he tore off the message for preservation and future use.

Olcott was at an age when an appreciation for the pleasures of social life begins to lose its edge. When he was twenty he fancied that he was courted because of his attractiveness. Now that he was twenty-seven he had come to understand that he was courted principally for what his income represented. He had not lived at home since the death of his mother, when he was nineteen. His illness, during which he had been under the care of paid nurses, had made him sensible of what might be the tender solicitude of one who loved him. Sundry young ladies he had met in society had endeavored to make it appear to him that they appreciated him for himself, but he believed that any other man who could give them a home would do as well.

For these reasons he was attracted to this person who had a heart to take in an unknown person in a hospital from whom there was scarcely a possibility that she could derive any benefit.

She might possibly be old and homely, but he did not believe she was. At any rate, as soon as he was discharged from the hospital he proposed to hunt her up—that is, if she lived in Edgewater. If, not, there was not much hope of finding her.

When the next Thanksgiving season came round Olcott had made the acquaintance of Miss Edith Arnold of Edgewater and had proved by securing a specimen of her handwriting that she was the person who had contributed the newspaper that he had read as a convalescent. There had been no great difficulty in this. All he had to do was to go to Edgewater, join a club there, consisting of young men and women, make the acquaintance of the residents and look out for a girl whose initials were E. A.

Miss Arnold was, as he had supposed, very young. She was barely eighteen. Olcott paid her a great deal of attention, at which she was naturally flattered. He discovered that her heart was as tender for the afflicted as he had supposed, and it was not long before he had won that heart for himself.

All this while he had the pencil message that he had torn from the newspaper in his portmanteau. But he said nothing about it to Miss Arnold, who supposed that their meeting had occurred by chance. Olcott had resolved when in the hospital that he would eat his next Thanksgiving dinner with her, and he was working up to that point. This, too, was very easy, for a few weeks before Thanksgiving he asked her to be his wife, and she accepted his proposition. Under the circumstances it was quite in order that he should be invited to take his Thanksgiving dinner at the Arnolds'. Toward its close he took from his portmanteau the scrap he had torn from the newspaper and passed it around the table. It was easily recognized as Edith's work. Then Olcott said:

"When ill in a hospital I tore this message of sympathy from a newspaper that fell into my hands. I vowed that I would eat my next Thanksgiving dinner with the writer, and I have kept my resolve."

Think of ease, but work on.—George Herbert.

THE CRUISER'S SHARE

The cruiser has to perform, perhaps, more varied functions than any other class of warship in the fleet.

It is her business to stop and fight when the circumstances are, from her point of view, favorable, and also to possess a high speed to enable her to run away when the position is unfavorable.

The cruiser is admirably termed the policeman of the fleet, for her capacities of mobility and long passage-making without replenishing her bunkers are her chief attributes.

Although the introduction of wireless telegraphy has somewhat lessened the responsibility placed upon the cruiser for scouting work, she is still regarded as the "eyes of the fleet."

The armored cruiser's advent has almost extended that class of ship to be considered to come within the scope of the battleship. Indeed, in some cases they are so perfectly equipped in aggressive policy as to be deemed competent enough to lie in the battle line with the "capital ships."

SKIN SOFT AS A CHILD'S.

"I was a great sufferer from eczema and salt rheum for years," writes Mr. John W. Mass, Lunenburg, N.S. "Five years ago three boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment cured me and the old trouble never returned. My skin is soft as a child's now, and I shall always say a good word for this Ointment."

Even when a man is a crank he may feel that he has a turning point in his life.

Why should a woman use a hammer to drive a tack if there is a hairbrush handy?

There is nothing in which men strive deceive themselves than in what they call zeal.

Life to possess its full savor must of necessity consist largely of plans and ambitions.

DOGGING INTERNMENT

Even Being a Prisoner of War Preferred by British Soldiers

Mr. Percival Phillips, war correspondent of the London Daily Express, had walked into Belgium for a distance of nearly two hundred yards when he saw a queer figure dressed in the garb of a peasant, but in the boots of a British soldier, making for the boundary of Holland.

He crossed over to him, and the figure introduced itself.

"Drummer ——, of the 2nd Battalion ——," it said. "Fell out with sore feet on Tuesday week. Been dodging Germans ever since. Is that Holland on the other side of the wire fence? Let's get into Holland and then talk."

"Now let the Germans find me," he said.

The correspondent explained that some hundreds of British sailors and soldiers were interned in Holland, and explained the disadvantages of internment at length.

"Oh, Lord," said the drummer, "then let's get back into that corner of Belgium again!" And he got back.

Soldiers Must Have Teeth

Many Canadians have complained that they were not allowed to go and fight the Kaiser because their molars weren't mates, and the public has been examining its own outfit and wondering just what kind of teeth the Germans like. This is the regulation: A man must have on each side of the mouth three molars in opposition, either two in the upper jaw biting on one in the lower jaw, or one in the upper jaw biting on one in the lower jaw. That makes six molars in all. Partial plates are allowed, and bridges but no entire plates.

Britons First, as Sailors

The true basis of England's naval power, says Prof. Usher, professor of history at Washington University, lies in the natural ability and genius of Englishmen as sailors. This, in fact, is the vital thing, and, no doubt, the English owe it to the location of their country, to its isolation, and to the stormy character of the waters around it. Practice makes perfect. With hardly any exception, the world owes every feature of modern maritime architecture, seamanship and naval strategy to the British race.

Weak Heart

Many people suffer from weak hearts. They may experience shortness of breath on exertion, pain over the heart, or dizzy feelings, oppressed breathing after meals or their eyes become blurred, the heart is not sufficiently strong to pump blood to the extremities, and they have cold hands and feet, or poor appetite because of weakened blood supply to the stomach. A heart tonic and alterative should be taken which has no bad after-effect. Such is which contains no dangerous narcotics or alcohol.

It helps the human system in the constant manufacture of rich, red blood. It helps the stomach to assimilate or take up the proper elements from the food, thereby helping digestion and curing dyspepsia, heart-burn and many uncomfortable symptoms. Stops excessive thirst in convalescence from fevers; for the run-down, anemic, thin-blooded people, the "Discovery" is refreshing and vitalizing.

Deep, round yokes that button at the side front are well liked, with a plaited lower part, as in the accompanying illustration, or with circular lower part. The box plaits are now and are going to be popular, if for no other reason than the fact that it is such a long time since they have been in. Side plaits are good also, either in clusters or extending all the way around the skirt. The pattern for the skirt illustrated is numbered 6969, and comes in sizes 22 to 32 inches waist measure.

This skirt is made in French serge, which is perhaps the most prominent among the materials for separate skirts. Serge wears well, scours easily and satisfactorily and appears to advantage. Poplin is a good skirt material, though not particularly to be recommended for plaits of any sort. The wool mixtures are better, in browns, greens and black and white. Covert cloth is very smart for the skirts of suits and cloths in mud and putty color generally. The last two colors mentioned are anything but warm winter shades; they are so cold they are wintry, but fashion has decreed that we shall wear them now regardless of the temperature.

Price, 10 cents.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required and age of a child.

Canadian Boy Wounded At Ypres Tells Of His Fighting Experience

Is Now Ready to Return to the Front—Was the Idol of the Boys at Salisbury Plains, on a Recent Visit There

A despatch from Salisbury Plain to-day contains an interesting account of a Canadian boy who was wounded in France. He is Joshua Gee, who was formerly a bandsman of the Ninety-First regiment, and his family resides at 73 Sirton street, Hamilton. When war was declared Mr. Gee, who had served several years in the British army, at once enlisted and went to England, where he joined the Highland Light infantry. About two months ago it was reported that he had been wounded at Ypres. He is now out again, and the following was sent by a correspondent at Salisbury:

Salisbury, Eng., Jan. 20.—Private Joshua Gee of the Highland Light infantry, a famous British fighting regiment, has just been released from the local hospital. Now he may be seen hanging around the streets of Salisbury aided by a heavy stick and escorted by Canadians who may have come to town on leave. Gee is an idol of the Canadians, for the simple reason that he himself comes from Canada. Two months ago he was badly wounded in Ypres. He was struck by shrapnel on the left shoulder and by bullets on the left foot and leg below the knee.

Recognized by Friends.

Gee had just left the hospital the other evening and was limping down the main street when suddenly a squad of Canadian Highlanders literally pounced upon him.

"Well, if it ain't Josh," said one.

"Josh Gee, do my eyes deceive me?" yelled another.

And thereupon Private Gee was carried through the crowds on several shoulders to the nearest "pub," and the spectators couldn't understand why the Canadians made such a fuss over an English regular. But they didn't know that Gee had an accent with a drawl a yard long.

Born in Toronto.

When they had taken their comrade to the hotel they fired a thousand questions at him, and demanded that they all be answered. Gee's life since war was declared may be told briefly. He was born in Toronto, but for three years he lived in Hamilton. Early in August, being a reservist, he was called to the colours. He boarded the first boat he could and was in action on September 7. On October 31 he was wounded, sent to Boulogne Hospital, and three days later to Bridport, Dorsetshire. Eleven years ago he joined the Highland Light Infantry and served eight years principally in India. Three years ago he returned to Toronto.

"Well, I am," replied Gee. "I was born on Burton Avenue, Toronto, and my sister, Mrs. George Crehar, lives at 186 Woodbine Avenue, there."

Joined Hamilton Corps.

When Gee retired from the regular army and returned to Canada he joined the Ninety-first Highlanders of Hamilton.

"You see soldiering was in my blood, and although I cursed it, I could not quit," explained Gee. "To me it was like the cigarette habit, which is blamed hard to shake. When this war broke out I saw a chance to do some real fighting after eleven years' service without taking a shot at anything human. When you fellows carried me in here it reminded me of four months ago—it seems like four years ago—when I was carried down James Street, Hamilton, to the train. However, there was no band to-night. That's the only difference."

"You're the first Canadian in a Tommy's uniform I've seen," said an old friend.

"Guess I was the first put out of commission, too," he replied.

First, Last, only War.

"But you're terribly anxious to go back, Josh!" said another.

"Don't pull my leg," replied Private Gee. "I got to return on the fellows believe me, after being in the battles of the Aisne, Marne and Ypres, I'm not eager to return. This is my first, last and only war."

And then Gee told of some of his experiences. He said that he was endeavouring to be transferred to the Ninety-First Highlanders of Hamilton, but didn't know whether it could be arranged.

"I should be with the Hamilton bunch," he said. "Nearly all my old pals are on the Plains. When I rejoined the Highland Light infantry I didn't know a soul, but, of course, it doesn't take long to get acquainted."

Made Endurance Record.

Gee was only 24 hours in England after joining the colours. He was only a day in France when he was fighting. He arrived in France during the retreat from Mons, but his first engagement was really in the battle of the Aisne. He was in one of the regiments which marched 196 miles in nine days with 36 hours' sleep, the endurance record of the British Army.

Fighting Desperate.

"I was with the boys on the Aisne and Marne," he said. "The fighting was desperate. I don't know how I came out alive with that constant rain of lead. My chum and I used the same loophole to shoot through in one of the trenches, and he was shot through the head. See, I got his belt on me just in memory of him. He was the whitest boy I ever knew. A bullet went through my cap, but I didn't get touched till we got in firing distance of Ypres. We were attacking for several days and on October 18th, I was wounded in three places. I wasn't picked up for four hours.

"You see the stretcher bearers are not allowed to collect the wounded until nightfall, because the Germans shoot at them if they see 'em. They are rotten fighters. Shoot at the doctors, too!"

In three Bayonet Charges.

"In any bayonet charges, Josh?"

"Just three," he replied. "They were enough. But the Germans are yellow when it comes to using the bayonet. Cold feet every time. They squeal like pigs and run when they get the chance. They adopt all sorts of mean tactics, as you all know from the papers. But they don't like the British because they are wise to them. Of course we were caught napping once or twice. I remember once while we were in a trench about fifty yards from them they hoisted a white flag and their front line came out and laid down their rifles. Of course, all we had to do was to go and get them. Our Company got out of the trench, but we had no sooner reached the open when the Germans fell flat on the ground and another line in the rear rose up and shot at us. How I escaped I don't know. Just bulldogged luck, I guess."

Charges Made Quickly.

Then he mentioned the bayonet charges and how they were executed. Each trench zig-zags across the fields and each man constructs steps in the earth so that he can get out quickly when ordered to charge. When the command is given the men are out in a twinkling and dashing for the enemy.

Enemy Fears Bayonet.

"You wonder how you have the nerve after it is all over," said Gee. "But you have no fear. You are stark crazy and rush at them in the teeth of the fire, regardful of everything but to stick them. In my three experiences I never got a scratch, but I can truthfully say that a few Germans did. We rushed at them and they we missed, well, we got them coming back. It's a great army, is the Kaiser's, but they can't parry STUFF the bayonet worth a rap. When we should meet them we could hear them using German oaths, but only one word that sounded like English. That was 'swine.' To them we are swine. To us they are—well, I'm not saying. Using the bayonet is a terrific strain on a fellow.

"I hear you got doped before a charge," spoke up a Hamiltonian.

Fear Indians and Highlanders.

Above everything else the Germans were afraid of three things—the bayonet, the Indians and the Highlanders. The Indians were the greatest fighters he had ever seen, and one of them was equal to three Germans. They were especially brilliant in charges. The Highlanders were daredevils and nothing could stop them.

"I think the reason the Kilties are such good fighters," said Gee, "is that there is keen rivalry between regiments. For instance, when the Camerons do something big the Seaforths or Argles or Gordons try to make it one better. And the Scotch are great pals of the Indians, too. It is because the Indians believe that the Kilties are the hill tribe of England, and as they are the hill tribe of India, why, naturally they are brothers. This is especially true of the greatest little fighters of them all—the Ghurkas. A little Ghurke will walk up to a Highlander, shake him by the hand and say just one word, 'Brudder.'"

Gee said he would return with the H. L. I. on January 28th, if he could not be transferred, and providing his foot was all right.

"Going out to the Plain to-morrow to see the boys," he said. "Will speak to the commanding officer and find out whether my transfer can be fixed. I want to go back with the Canadians and get another shot at those savages."

SICK, SOUR STOMACH, INDIGESTION OR GAS

"Pape's Diapepsin" Makes Upset Stomach Feel Fine in Five Minutes

Wonder what upset your stomach—which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in a revolt; if sour, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented into stubborn lumps; head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food; breath foul, tongue coated—just take a little Pape's Diapepsin and in five minutes you wonder what became of the indigestion and distress.

Millions of men and women to-day know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps this delicate organ regulated and they eat their favourite foods without fear.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless relief is Pape's Diapepsin which costs only fifty cents for a large case at drug stores. It's truly wonderful—it digests food and sets things straight, so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. Please, for your sake, don't go on and on with a weak, disordered stomach; it's so unnecessary.

MOTHER! IS CHILD'S STOMACH SOUR, SICK?

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if tongue is coated; that is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour waste.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, indigestion, diarrhoea, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul waste, the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels and you have a well and playful child again. Children this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" clean and sweet.

Keep it handy, Mother! A little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow, but get the genuine. Ask your Druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Remember there are counterfeits sold here, so surely look and see that yours is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

FOR RELIEF OF VICTIMS.

Italian Cabinet Will Submit Decrees to Alleviate Conditions.

PARIS, Jan. 21.—The Italian Cabinet is about to submit several decrees, having for their purpose the alleviation of conditions in the earthquake district, for the signature of the King, says the Rome correspondent of the Havas Agency.

First, authorizing the expenditure of 30,000,000 lire ($6,000,000) to aid the victims of the earthquake; second, suspending the collection of taxes in the affected area; third, establishing a moratorium for five months for bills of exchange and commercial paper in the province of Aquila and the district of Sora; fourth, guaranteeing the payment of salaries of school teachers.

HOW SICKLY WOMEN MAY GET HEALTH

If they could only be made to see that half their ills are caused by impure blood, it wouldn't take long to cure them with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. THE WEATHER

The temperature took a decided drop last night. This morning the thermometer showed a temperature of 15 degrees below zero at 7 o'clock. No lower during the night. Yesterday morning the figures were 4 degrees above zero.—W. P.

EGYPTIAN RAID WILL FAIL.

German Officers Admit That Conditions Are Hopeless.

LONDON, Jan. 21, 10.20 a.m.—A despatch from Cairo, Egypt, to Reuter's Telegram Company says:

"A refugee who was recently employed in an important post by the Turkish Government in Syria states that German officers recently made an urgent report to Berlin via Constantinople, recommending the postponement of the Egyptian expedition until its organization and equipment were improved and reinforced. The reply from Constantinople was that the advance must be pushed at all costs.

"German experts declare that the expedition under present conditions can only result in small raiding parties reaching Egypt, as the main body must advance along a route well known to the enemy, making opposition easy."

Infantry Training

The Matter in This Column is from the Official Manual 1914 and is Published According to Orders of the Militia Council

Notes. 1. Saluting to the side (Pl. II), is carried out as in Sec. 21, on the command RIGHT (OR LEFT) HAND SALUTE, except that, as the hand is brought to the salute, the head will be turned towards the person saluted. The salute will be made with the hand further from the person saluted.

2. Recruits will be practised in marching two or three together, saluting points being placed on either side. When several men are together, the man nearest to the point will give the time.
3. When a soldier passes an officer he will salute on the third pace before reaching him, and lower the hand on the third pace after passing him; if carrying a cane he will place it smartly under the disengaged arm, cutting away the hand before saluting.
4. A soldier, if sitting when an officer approaches, will stand at attention, facing the officer, and salute with the right hand; if two or more men are sitting or standing about, the senior non-commissioned officer or oldest soldier will face the officer, call the whole to ATTENTION, and alone will salute (as above).
5. When a soldier addresses an officer he will halt two paces from him, and salute with the right hand. He will also salute before withdrawing.
6. When appearing before an officer in a room, he will salute without removing his cap.
7. A soldier, without his cap, or when carrying anything other than his arms, will, if standing still, come to attention as an officer passes; if walking, he will turn his head smartly towards the officer in passing him.
8. A soldier, when riding a bicycle, will turn his head smartly towards an officer in passing him, and will not move his hands from the handle bar.
9. A soldier driving a vehicle will bring his whip to a perpendicular position, with the right hand resting on the thigh, and turn his head smartly towards an officer when passing him.
10. A soldier riding on a vehicle will turn his head smartly towards an officer when passing him.
11. Warrant and non-commissioned officers when wearing the sword will salute with the right hand.
12. The term "officer" include naval officers, certain naval warrant officers* and military and naval officers of foreign powers. (See King's Regulations, Paras. 1709 and 1788.)
13. Officers† or soldiers passing troops with uncased colours will salute the colours and the C.O. (if senior).
14. Officers and soldiers, passing a military funeral, will salute the body.
15. Officers and soldiers in command of unarmed parties, when paying or returning a compliment, will give the command "Eyes right (or left)" and at the same time salute with the right hand.

*Chief gunners, chief boatswains, chief carpenters, chief artificer engineers, and chief schoolmasters in the Royal Navy rank as 2nd lieutenants in the army and will be saluted by warrant officers, N.C.Os., and men.

22. Length of Pace, and Time in Marching.

1. Length of pace.—In slow and quick time the length of a pace is 30 inches. In stepping out, it is 33 inches, in double time, 40, in stepping short, 21, and in the side pace, 12 inches.

When a soldier takes a side pace to clear or cover another, as in forming fours, Sec. 46, the pace will be 30 inches.

2. Time.—In slow time, 75 paces are taken in a minute. In quick time, 120 paces, equal to 100 yards in a minute, or 3 miles 720 yards in an hour, are taken. Recruits, when not in marching order, may be ordered to increase the cadence to 140 paces per minute for short periods. In double time, 180 paces, equal to 300 yards a minute, are taken. The time of the side pace is the same as for the quick step.

Distances of 100 and 300 yards will be marked on the drill ground, and non-commissioned officers and men practised in keeping correct time, and length of pace.

Marching in slow time will be practised only when required for ceremonial purposes. For detailed instructions for marching in slow time see "Ceremonial."

23. The Drum and Pace Stick.

Recruits are not to be taught to march without the constant use of the drum, and pace stick.

The drum will first beat the time, in which the men are to march, when the squad is halted; then, occasionally, when it is in motion. While the drum is beating, at the halt, the men will give their attention to the time; when it ceases, the instructor will put the squad in motion.

As direct to ascertain whether the time is beaten correctly, a pendulum should be used.

The length of the pace in marching will be corrected with the pace stick, the accuracy of which should occasionally be tested by measurement.

24. Position in Marching.

1. In marching, the soldier will maintain the position of the head and body, as directed in Sec. 14. He must be well balanced on his limbs. In quick time the arms must not be stiffened, but should swing naturally from the shoulder, the right arm swinging forward with the left leg, and the left arm with the right leg. The movement of the leg must spring from the haunch, and be free and natural.

The legs should be swung forward freely and naturally from the hip joints, each leg as it swings forward being bent sufficiently at the knee to enable the foot to clear the ground. The foot should be carried straight to the front, and, without being drawn back, placed firmly upon the ground with the knee straight, but so as not to jerk the body.

THE CONGESTION FROM A BAD COLD LOOSENED UP IN ONE HOUR

Nerviline Rubbed On At Night—You're Well Next Morning.

NERVILINE NEVER FAILS.

When that cold comes, how is it to be cured?

This method is simplicity itself; rub the chest and throat vigorously with "Nerviline;" rub it in good and deep; lots of rubbing can't do any harm. Then put some Nerviline in the water and use it as a gargle; this will ease the cough, cut out the phlegm, assist in breaking up the cold quickly. There is no telling how quickly Nerviline breaks up a hard racking cough, eases a tight chest, relieves a pleuritic pain. Why, there isn't any liniment with half the power, the penetrative qualities, the honest merit that has made Nerviline the most popular American household liniment.

A large 50 cent bottle of Nerviline cures ills of the whole family, and makes the doctor's bills small. Get it to-day. The large size is more economical than the small 25 cent size. Sold by dealers everywhere, or direct from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

HEROIC RUSSIAN NURSES.

PETROGRAD, Dec. 30 (by mail to New York, Jan. 21.)—Seventeen women nurses in the Russian Red Cross service have been killed on the battlefield or died of wounds received while in the performance of their duty. An official "eye-witness" attached to the staff of Grand Duke Nicholas, the Russian commander-in-chief, says that the nurses have shown conspicuous bravery.

The latest victim was Mlle. Ludmila Alexinsky, who has just died at her home near Odessa of blood-poisoning which followed a wound. Mlle. Alexinsky was wounded in the hand at the battle of Gumbinnen. After her recovery she was transferred to the army of General Ruszki in Galicia. At Horwadek, a doctor, whom she was assisting, was killed by a bursting shell and Mlle. Alexinsky was badly stunned. During the Rzgow-Tuschin battle she was under fire 17 hours. She was wounded through the shoulder at the storming of Petrikoff, which wound caused her death.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Colour, Gloss and Thickness

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn grey, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, grey or dry, scraggy and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of mess.

While wispy, grey, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all grey hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

Russian Offensive Is Progressing

The Germans Have Bombarded St. Die

RUSSIANS ON OFFENSIVE ON A FORTY MILE FRONT

Bloodiest Engagement Since the New Russian Offensive Developed--Czar's Troops Are Pressing on Thorn --The German Move on Warsaw Has Been Once Again Checked.

THE SITUATION ON THE WEST FRONT

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

PARIS, January 22.—The German bombardment of St. Die, one of the most picturesque of the old cities in the Vosges region, was reported in the official despatches to-day. The residents of St. Die fled in terror, but no mention is made of any loss of life. The news of the bombardment aroused intense indignation here.

"Our forces, under a violent bombardment, were compelled to evacuate 150 yards of trenches southeast of St. Mihiel," reads the official report. "The enemy recaptured part of a trench northwest of Pont-a-Mousson." The Germans have resumed a violent bombardment of Nieuport, near the sea coast, but the British have made an advance in the region near Lombaertayde. In the vicinity of Rheims slight gains were made near Berry-au-Bac and wst of the Argones. A German attack near Beausejour was repulsed. The French artillery bombarded successfully all along the line from Ypres to the River Oise. Most bitter hand to hand fighting continues near Hartmannsweiller, north west of Mulhausen, according to the official reports.

PETROGRAD, January 22.—Along the 40 mile battle front, extending at one point to within 10 miles of the German border, the Russian troops were being hurled against the Germans to-day in one of the bloodiest engagements since the new Russian offensive against East Prussia developed. The fighting along the Muln River was most desperate to-day with both sides suffering heavily. The Russian infantry that captured Skeme is pressing forward with the Prussian city of Thorn as its objective. The German forward movement against Warsaw from the west has again been halted. The Germans however continue bombarding Vysogrod on the east bank of the Vistula. The Russian advance in Bukowina and in the Caucasus continues.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The Navy Dept. will advertise soon for bids for the construction of a Zeppelin model airship, and for a number of a new type of aeroplane, it was learned to-day. All the new air craft including the Zeppelin, are to be constructed in the United States.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 22.—A big flotilla of German submarines and destroyers have left Hellogoland, and the whole of the German fleet appears to be on the move.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—In an interview in Berlin, Lieut.-General Count Von Moltke, former chief of staff, said: "The war will last long yet. Our victories in Poland are of the greatest importance. To the allies they are bitterly disappointing, spoiling their hopes of an advance. The Russian masses have entirely collapsed. You may be firmly convinced that Germany will not perish; but we will be victorious."

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—The reports of the casualties sustained by the Princess Patricias in the first engagement with the enemy are still coming in. Lance Corporal H. G. Bellinger of Ottawa, is reported killed. Pte. W. Draycott of the same regiment is wounded. The next of kin is H. Draycott, Liverpool, Eng. This makes the third casualty list for the regiment.

VIENNA, Jan. 22.—Diplomatic circles were interested to-day in the news that Duke A Varna, the Italian ambasador to Austria, held a three hour conference with Baron Burian, the new Foreign Minister. It was given out unofficially that Italy had no intention of abandoning her position of neutrality.

ROME, Jan. 22.—Speaking at the Consistory to-day Pope Benedict recommended that the Germans "Exercise more moderation in their devastation with respect to priests and churches."

Three Months In Common Gaol

John Donoghue Could Not Find Work--Is Now in Employ of Gaoler Nesbitt

"I am willing to work but cannot find anything to do," said John Donoghue, when he appeared before Magistrate Dumble in Police Court this morning, charged with being drunk in a public place.

John had been awakened from a deep slumber to appear before the card and showed marks of a "night before." "I asked a dozen farmers yesterday to take me out and let me work for my board. I am not a broken man when I am not drinking, and what am I to do when I cannot get work?"

John has appeared before His Worship several times in the past, and Magistrate Dumble thought twenty days would about fit his case. "If you are going to send me to gaol you might as well make it until spring because I have no place else to go," said Donoghue. There being "no visible means of support" in his case, the charge was accordingly altered to one of vagrancy and John will spend the next three months the guests of Gaoler Nesbitt in the common gaol. Donoghue has been in the habit of spending some of his time in the hospital and the Chief thought he might as well be working at the gaol as boarding in an hospital at the expense of the city.

SHOWING IS POOR

Recruiting for the 3rd Contingent Has Been Quiet Outside of the Cities and Towns

A SLOW RESPONSE

TORONTO, Jan. 22.—Is rural Ontario losing its Imperial spirit? Must the stalwarts of the breezy uplands, the vigorous manhood of mountain and plain be granded as laggards in the Empire's shoulder-to-shoulder march to the trenches? Will the rural regiments allow the city regiments to put them to shame?

So far they have, according to the figures in No. 2 Division. Only three weeks ago the order was issued to fill the ranks of Canada's third overseas contingent. Over a week ago practically all the city regiments had enrolled their full quotas, the volunteers far outnumbering the places to be filled. Not a single city regiment but could have given double the number of volunteers called for.. At the present moment Toronto's garrison regiments have their quotas ready for any move to any concentration point. It was almost a neck-and-neck race between the Queen's Own Rifles, the 10th Royal Grenadiers, the 48th Highlanders, the 36th Peel Regiment and the 12th York Rangers for the first place on the last of full detachments. The response was splendid, and but one disappointment was experienced—the allotted quotas were too small to absorb the eager volunteers.

A Poor Response.

But a different situation exists in the rural regiments of this division. The call went out to them simultaneously with that to the city regiments. Yet, the last reports sent in to headquarters show that out of approximately 900 required volunteers only 245 have been enrolled. No explanation of the situation is forthcoming, but the figures speak for themselves. As in the city regiments, the quotas demanded of the rural regiments has been proportionate to their strength. None has been asked for more than its establishment warrants.

Are there not 900 volunteers in this part of rural Ontario?

HOCKEY

Mr. Robert Wilson, of Melville, Sask., in reply to various comments on the composition of the hockey team which represents that town in the Saskatchewan League, says that the attacks in eastern papers have been inspired by jealousy because Winnipeg, Toronto, and Peterborough were unable to secure the services of some of the Melville players.

It will be news to Peterborough fans and to the Peterborough Hockey Club that any Melville players were in demand here.

The Grand Trunk employees have received a challenge from the Quaker Oats Company employees to a game of hockey to be played some time in the near future. Arrangements are being made for the encounter.

FOUR KILLED IN EXPLOSION ON U. S. WARSHIP

Negligence on Part of Crew is Supposed to Have Been the Cause of the Disaster

EIGHT ARE INJURED

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—Four men were killed and eight seriously injured in an explosion aboard the United States cruiser "San Diego," on the west coast of Mexico, about 6 o'clock last night, according to a navy department despatch, to-day. The "San Diego" had just completed a four-hour speed trial. It is assumed that in the excitement of the speed trial possible negligence on the part of the crew resulted in the water becoming low in one of the tubes in the fore boiler. The "San Diego" was formerly the cruiser "California." All the casualties were to the stokers.

HATS OFF TO THE "I WILL MAN"

The visit of the "I Will" man to the Grafton & Co. store the past two weeks has been a revelation of what could actually be done when such a high-grade stock as that of the Grafton store was placed at the mercy of the "I Will" Man.

This sale has simply taken the town by storm, because it knocked out all previous price slashing events. As he announces in the large ad. on another page, the "I Will" Man also takes off his hat to the people of this district who have shown good judgment in recognizing great clothing values. The best of it is he has done as he promised in every instance.

Envoy Brewer Brown will arrive in the city on Friday and will start a special campaign of soul-saving in Peterborough and the districts nearby.

The Envoy is a great illustrator of the power of the grace of God to save from the very dregs of sin and change the heart and consequently the home life, of all who put themselves in touch with it. He will give special addresses on Saturday night and Sunday at the Temple. Announcement of the special programme will be made on Saturday.

Dr. Sutton will deliver a special address to the men of the First Aid class on Friday evening at 8 o'clock. All the men are urgently requested to be present.

WEEKLY PARADE OF PETERBORO' HOME GUARD

Was Largely Attended—New Members Signed Service Rolls—Orders for the Week

CHURCH PARADE

Between three and four hundred members attended the regular weekly parade of the Home Guard, which was held in the Armouries last evening. A number of new members signed the service rolls. Company drill was practiced and, judging by the results obtained, it is evident that the men are becoming familiar with the movements.

Lieut.-Col. Goodwill was unavoidably absent.

The Orders.

The following orders were issued: Orders by Lieut.-Col. J. E. I. Goodwill, officer commanding the Home Guards, Peterborough Civilian Rifle Association:

Battalion will parade with Bands, at 10 o'clock, Sunday, January 31, to attend divine service at St. Peter's Cathedral and All Saints' Church.

A class of instruction will be organized and the first class will be held on Monday, Feb. 1, at 7.30 a.m. Every officer and non-commissioned officer is expected to attend these classes.

Attention is drawn to the members that the authorized drill is being published nightly and all the members are requested to closely study it.

Officers of Companies will arrange that all the members of their respective companies who have not yet started target practice shall start at once.

Sergeant Dugan of No. 10 Co., is transferred to No. 2 Company to act as Col.-Sergeant. Sergeant Pratt is appointed Quartermaster Sergeant.

Society May Secure Ten Options

In Place of Twenty—Government Grant May Be Cut in Two

That the government grant to the Horticultural Society may be cut in two, is the prospect that is anticipated by more than one local member. The Society held a directors' meeting last evening and among other things decided to leave the matter of options with the same committee as last year with the suggestion that ten varetics of plants and flowers be secured instead of twenty.

Messrs. P. Campbell, H. B. Cowan and Walter Stocker were appointed a delegation to wait upon the City Council in connection with the annual grant.

The question of holding a flower show was taken up. The committee that was appointed to deal with that matter was represented by Mr. W. H. Young. The latter suggested that the Society might co-operate with the Agricultural Society in having an amateur class added to the flower department. This suggestion was endorsed by Mr. S. Jordan, who recommended it to be taken up at the next meeting of that Society.

In connection with the government grant it was stated that the government had notified the Agricultural Society that the grant would be reduced fifty per cent. It was believed that such a course might be adopted in the case of the Horticultural Society. The government grant is worth about eighty cents per member, so that a reduction of fifty per cent. would amount to no inconsiderable sum.

Those present were Messrs. C. H. Williamson, W. Stocker, W. H. Young, S. Jordan, W. Kennedy and Fire Chief Howard.

DEPARTMENT NOT NOTIFIED

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—The proposed reduction of wages on the Grand Trunk Railway has not yet been officially drawn to the attention of the Department of Labour. It is learned that the matter is still the subject of negotiation between representatives of the various labour organizations and the railways.

DECREASE IN NUMBER OF DEATHS FROM TUBERCULOSIS

Amounted to Thirty Per Cent. During Past Year—Report of the Medical Health Officer—Health of City is Good.

DIPHTHERIA OUTBREAK

That the death rate from tuberculosis has decreased thirty per cent. during the past year is the pleasing information that is contained in the annual report of Dr. A. W. McPherson, Medical Officer of Health for this city. A total of twenty-one deaths was attributable to tuberculosis during the year 1914 as compared with thirty of the previous year. The report is as follows:

"It gives me pleasure to state that the general health of the citizens has been good. This is no doubt due to a number of conditions such as climate, food and water, absence of dangenerous or injurious occupations, proper sanitary facilities and perhaps in a small degree to the wise provisions for caring for the sick and to the supervision over health matters as exercised by the health department. Some of these are beyond our control and as such have only a passing interest; those that can be influenced by us must be carefully studied and supervised, so that the health of citizens may be protected. When we compare the health conditions of the different towns and cities in the province, as shown by the annual reports from the provincial authorities, we have good reason for gratification.

Communicable Diseases.

	Cases.	Deaths.
Diphtheria	89	7
Scarlet fever	13	0
Measles	2	0
Typhoid	13	5
Tuberculosis	18	21

The difference in the figures relating to tuberculosis is accounted for by the fact that 18 represents the number of new cases that were reported during the year 1914. The death list of 21 is made up of both new and old cases. All cases of tuberculosis with in the city must be reported to the Medical Health Officer.

From the table it looks as if we had a small epidemic of diphtheria, and on account of some interesting features in connection with it, I would like to make a few remarks. This city has been comparatively free from diphtheria for the past twelve years. During December of 1913 a number of cases appeared, mostly in the western part of the city. In January and February 1914, more were reported in from the northern part. From this time until the middle of summer an odd case was reported in from different parts. In August and early September a number of cases were discovered in the south-east, but [illegible] limits. Whether this outbreak originated within or without the city, it would be hard to say. Be this as it may, it was not long after school opened that three children attending the Sacred Heart school were taken down with the disease and one died. I went to the school and gave antitoxin to the two rooms from which the cases had come. The children were then examined and all having any discharge from the nose were swabbed and sent home until a microscopic examination was made. Two of the cases were found to be positive. To confirm this and to strengthen my hand in the matter, I sent swabs of the positive cases to Toronto. The Provincial Laboratory confirmed my findings and the houses were duly placarded, although very strenuous objections were made. A few more cases were reported in from among those attending the school. This had the tendency to alarm the parents and the school attendance fell away seventy-five present.

Nurse Appointed

At our request the Separate School Board appointed a nurse to assist in controlling the outbreak. This was accomplished, first, by taking swabs from all suspicious cases and placing in quarantine any that were found to be positive; second, by following up absentees, and finally by giving antitoxin to every child in the school. After the antitoxin was given, we had no more cases. At the same time that this work was being done in the Separate school, a similar work was being done in two of the Public schools,

FIRE IN SPRINGVILLE

OVER-HEATED STOVEPIPE

Springville, Jan. 22.—Fire supposed to have been caused by an overheated stovepipe, destroyed the home of Walter Williams. The latter, together with his wife and seven children, were in the house at the time the fire broke out. It was only after considerable difficulty that the last of the children was removed from the burning building. The fire broke out about eleven-thirty o'clock, destroying both building and contents. The former, which was of frame construction, was owned by Mr. George Gibson, of this place. The loss on the building is estimated at $600, and on the contents about $400, bringing the total loss up to about one thousand dollars. The family lost all their personal effects in addition to furniture, etc., leaving them in destitute circumstances. They are being cared for by neighbours.

WILL BE DISMISSED

Drunkeness Among Over Seas Contingent Men Wil Result In Discharge of Culprits

It having come to the attention of the authorities that there has been a number of cases of drunkenness among the members of the Canadian Overseas contingent now in training, the Minister of Militia has issued a circular letter to all Comamnding Officers issuing orders that any member of the Overseas contingents convicted of drunkenness shall be instantly discharged. While there have been no complaints of misconduct on the part of the Peterborough men, the attention of the men of the Mounted Rifles and Infantry was called to the instructions this morning.

Quartermaster Sergeant Clinton of the Royal Canadian Regiment has been attached to the local Company of the 39th Battalion and was on duty at the Armouries this morning.

The second treatment for innoculation among the Mounted Rifles will commence this afternoon.

MADE THIRTY DOLLARS AT TIPPERARY TEA

The Tipperary Tea given by the Canadian Kitchener League last evening at the Y.M.C.A. was a grand success. Every feature was carried out in real Irish style, as well as patriotic. The League cleared about thirty dollars, which will be spent in preparations for the second and third contingents.

The League has been kept busy sending boxes at different times to the Peterborough boys in England and in Kingston.

PETERBOROUGH'S POSITION.

The establishment of a bank clearing house in Peterborough has been amply justified. It, of course, greatly facilitates banking operations; and not only that; the monthly record of clearings indicates pretty accurately the state of trade and industry. The report presented at the annual meeting and printed in another place, shows that in spite of the untoward conditions created by the war, the monthly bank clearings have maintained a consistent uniformity since last June when operations began. We may sometimes think that business is slow and trade dull in Peterborough, but the record of bank clearings in this city are far more important than those of some larger cities than Peterborough. We seem to be weathering the storm pretty successfully, and we may hope to find ourselves in a reasonably good position, when the clouds roll by and the financial and commercial skies clear, for a resumption of our activities in all the departments of local enterprise.

HE THAT IS NOT FOR ME IS AGAINST ME.

We see, through a mist of blood, how German ideals of humanity are at variance with civilised conceptions. We are told that the new premeditated murder of non-combatants in the recent bomb-dropping raid in England was received in Berlin with a delirium of rejoicing. But every civilised country condemns such barbarity, including leading journals of the United States, which are righteously indignant in condemnation and protest. The government of the United States, however, still preserves its attitude of quiescent approval of these outrages of conventions and of International law, the laws of civilised warfare, if there is such a thing, and the laws of humanity.

As a matter of fact, the United States government is as much morally bound to make armed remonstrance against these outrages on humanity and the violation of the neutrality of Belgium as was England. England is making war at unlimited sacrifice for a principle. She was in honour bound to protest against Germany's invasion of Belgium; and honourably she is meeting her obligation. But she was not more morally bound to come to the aid of Belgium than was the United States, which is uttering not even protest, but it on the other hand, taking an attitude over a petty matter of trade, that involves material aid to the enemy and despoiler of Belgium, whose neutrality and immunity from attack was protected by the second Convention of The Hague, as witness the following clauses:

Art. 1—The territory of neutral powers is inviolable.

Art. 2—Belligerent nations shall not have permission to convey troops, convoys of munitions of war or of provisions over the territory of a neutral country.

Art. 50—No pecuniary or other penalty upon a neutral nation can be imposed by reason of the acts of individuals.

Art. 52—No contribution shall be levied upon a neutral country, occupied by a hostile army.

This is plain, but no plainer than the fact that Germany has outraged every one of the articles as above quoted in substance. Among the signatures of nations to this convention were Great Britain, Germany and the United States. Great Britain alone was true to her signature. It was denied and outraged by Germany, overtly, and by the United States passively. This country, on principle, was as much bound in honour, as strongly morally bound, as Great Britain, to protect by force of arms, the neutrality of Belgium. If the United States could not face the common duty of the signatories to the convention by armed intervention, it seems evident that she could not, and should, honourably refrain from the most emphatic protest against the action of Germany. The United States makes appeal to a vague international law in the interests of a petty matter of trade, and conspicuously disregards the binding force of her signature to a solemn convention, every principle and article of which she sees outraged by Germany, without even protest or the mildest intimation of disapproval.

The United States is assumed to know its own business, but it seems that, great as the country is, it is making itself small in the eyes of the world. It may not become the people of a friendly country alongside, to criticize, but that cannot be so much amiss, when prominent citizens of the United States and its most influential journals, say harder things than any outsider ventured to do. Ex-President Roosevelt is one of the most outspoken critics. He was in power when The Hague Convention was signed by the United States. He now has this to say:—

> If it had been supposed for an instant that our (the United States) signature to The Hague Convention was only the expression of a pious wish; that every country was free to put aside its obligations with impunity, I should certainly never have permitted the United States to be a party to such an odious farce.

It may be said that Mr. Roosevelt's opinions are influenced by party considerations; but they may nevertheless be right opinions; as the United States considering its opinion justified in the interest of trade, and in the interests of party success—feels itself justified in denying its signature to a convention, to protect the neutrality of Belgium in the intesests of freedom and liberty in order to promote party interests. For it comes to this, that the conclusion is forced, that the votes of a million or so of naturalised Germans weigh more than soleman international obligations, more than international honour. Our neighbours, not the people, but the government, are not elevating themselves and the country in the eyes of the world by their present attitude. They are not only morally antagonizing the civilised world, but are not even carrying favour with Germany, which accuses the United States of favouring the domination of England, and reproaches the United States with permitting "the arrogant monopoly of the seas" exercised by Great Britain.

It seems, as a prominent United States citizen suggests, that the United States, is alienating the friendship of the whole of Europe. We may not expect the United States to fight, but we expect a great country that stands for the highest national embodiment of the principles of human liberty and human well-being, to utter strong words of protest against the actions of a nation that transgresses every code of civilisation, and ignores and outrages every claim of our common humanity, to decent consideration and observance. By failing to make such protest, which backed by her great strength, would be effective, the government of our neighbours, at least by default, becomes particeps criminis of the outrages of the baby killers—the warfare on women and children—and forfeits her right to be given a place in the settlement that must follow the end of the war waged between the forces of human enslavement and the forces of human enfranchisement.

THE COLONIAL SAILOR.

"I have great pleasure in stating that the behaviour of the ship's company was excellent in every way, and with such a proportion of young hands and people under training, it is all the more gratifying."—From the report of the Captain of the Australian cruiser "Sydney" in an account of the destruction of "The Emden."

How fine a tribute to these young colonial Australians, who comprise the crew of the colonial cruiser which reduced the most brilliant of German commerce raiders to a twisted heap of steel on the coral reef of Cocos Keeling sland.

These young Australian sailors are wearing the uniform of the Australian navy, just as their soldier brothers in Egypt are wearing the khaki of their native land. The Australian sailors are manning an Australian navy which has a record to make all the colonies proud of the fine young strength that the youngsters are able to show.

"Green though these young Australian sailors may have been, they stood the test when a great naval battle upon which the Empire's prestige depended had to be fought. The colonial ship and the colonial sailor need no apology!—London Advertiser.

U. S. PRESS OPINION RE THE BABY KILLERS

The following extracts regarding the recent raid of bomb-dropping aeroplanes show that press opinion is not in sympathy with the policy of the government of that country which by its silence approves and applauds the savagery of German modes of warfare. Just as much justification exists—just as much military advantage would be subserved—by some German in the United States dropping bombs on the building of the newspapers that make the following comments:

Boston Opinions.

Aircraft raids such as occurred in England Tuesday night damage private property and injure men, women and children who are not participants in the fighting.—Boston Globe.

The German air raid on the Norfolk coast can hardly be considered very gratifying to its projectors if their object was an attempt on the lives of the British Sovereign and his Queen or the serious destruction of towns.. and.. inhabitants. — Boston Transcript.

A Miserable Failure.

The one thing certain is that the raid, whether by airships or flying machines, whether for the purpose of creating panic or of doing damage, was a miserable failure.

Will Stimulate Recruiting.

The raid was just what England had been expecting for some time, and the damage was very little, but the good probably a great deal more, as it is likely to stimulate recruiting. — Pittsburg Sun.

Fruitless Savagery.

With her fine air fleet, Germany might attempt raids that would be entirely legitimate and reflect credit upon her organization and the individual skill of her pilots. Instead, she is employing her aerial resources in a war of fruitless savagery, in which the victims are the innocent and the helpless.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Futility of the Airship.

To drop bombs that kill old men, children and nursemaids, or make a splash in the sea somewhere near a warship, and then be driven away by nimbler aeroplanes or terrestrial gun fire—these are not effective exploits of war. And the futility of the airship, after all the antecedent proclaiming of its dread possibilities, ought to reassure our English friends. —New York Times.

Wanton and Brutal.

A wanton and brutal disregard of Hague rules and humane principles, the raid belongs with the worst acts of German militarism in the present war—with the invasion of Belgium, with the burning of Louvain, with the bomb-dropping on Paris and Antwerp, with the destruction of Rheims Cathedral, with the Scarborough-Whitby bombardment.—New York Tribune.

Cannot Be Justified.

The world will wait with interest for an official justification from Berlin of the German air raid upon non-combatants in undefended English towns. In truth, it cannot be justified. It has no warrant in international law. It is against the spirit and the letter of the Hague conventions. No military necessity can be pleaded for it. It is a bit of pure savagery in warfare. And what shall it profit Germany to terrify a few sleeping villages in England, if thereby she gets the repute throughout all nations of being willing to violate the rules of war and of making a mockery of her own professions of humanity?—New York Evening Post.

Nearly Twenty Million Men In Arms For European Fray

Letters from England tell of a great movement of British troops to the continent. Seventy thousand men were sent across two weeks ago. The movement is only beginning. It is probable that by the first of May Field Marshal French will have not less than a million men on the battle-front in France and Belgium, besides large numbers upon the lines of communication. The soldiers still in training in the British Islands after this great army has crossed the Channel will be not less than 1,500,000. They will be sent forward as speedily as equipment can be provided. The British military authorities make no secret of the fact that the training of the vast masses of men who have offered themselves has proceeded more rapidly than their arming and equipping. Now that Britain has turned her factories into arsenals the leeway will be made up rapidly, and before midsummer there is every reason to believe that Britain will be able to put 1,500,000 men into the firing line and make good the war waste of about five per cent., or 75,000 a month. France and Russia also are equipping new armies aggregating millions of men, who will be sent forward into the ranks of war in the Spring. The combined military strength of Russia, France, and Britain will be not less than ten million men when the decisive period of the war opens.

But Germany is far from the end of her resources in man power. The military correspondent of the London Times, discussing the ability of the German people to meet the hosts of the Allies, says that Germany began the war in August last with 4,000,000 fully trained men between the ages of twenty and forty-five. She has lost not less than a million of these men, making allowances for slightly wounded who have recovered and rejoined. Leaving Austria out of the calculation, she has still almost four million trained soldiers, of whom at least three millions are actually at the front, the remainder being on lines of communication. The new armies now being created in Germany consist of men who have never been trained, although, of course, liable to military service. There has been for many years a surplus of young men reaching the age of military duty, and it is from this surplus that recruits are now being drawn. The Times correspondent, dealing with the figures of 1911, the last available, shows that in that year 563,000 youths of twenty were examined for the first time, 288,000 aged twenty-one came up as having had their examination adjourned from the previous year, 220,000 adjourned from 1909, and 51,000 over the age of twenty-two. This gave about 1,271,000 young men liable to service. If the same conditions existed in 1914, Germany had a million and a quarter untrained young men when the war began who must now be in training or even in active service. Of older untrained men capable of bearing arms there are probably not quite three millions, and of lads between seventeen and twenty, who might in emergency be called up and incorporated in the army at least another million

These various sources of supply give Germany over 4,000,000 men to add to the 4,000,000 now in active service at the front. If Austria and Turkey fail her, as seems probable, and she is forced to put every available German into the field to defend the Empire from invasion she may meet the Allies' ten millions with eight millions. Can Germany in defence face with eight million men ten millions attacking her? That is the great problem set before the organisers of armies as the spring approaches. If she can, the Allies must raise and drill and equip not ten but twelve millions. They have illimitable reserves of men to draw upon, and Germany has not. That is the great outstanding, not-to-be-forgotten fact of the situation.—The Globe.

where a large number of positive cases were found.

By this means we located many children that were showing no symptoms of any diseased conditions except a discharging from the nose, but who, notwithstanding would be able to communicate the disease in a severe form to others. In following up absentees and by insisting upon a swab of the nose and throat being taken for examination before a pupil was readmitted to school, we located a number of cases of clenical diphtheria that from one cause or another had not been reported in.

Good Work of the Nurses.

During the year eighty cases were reported in, but forty of these were showing no signs of illness and were found through the work of the school nurses. As a result we are again free from diphtheria. I just wish to take this opportunity to express my appreciation of the good work done by the two school nurses and the active support received from those in authority in both the Separate and Public schools.

Typhoid has been light again this year, only twelve cases being reported in. Four of these had been living out of town prior to developing the disease and doubtless obained the infection there. The other eight were using either well water exclusively or well and city water. The cases were scattered throughout the year. The number of deaths was five.

No Smallpox.

Measles and scarlet fever gave us no cause for worry, and smallpox did not make an appearance. Before leaving this part of the report, I would like to call your attention to the number of deaths from tuberculosis. This year the number was twenty-one, as compared with thirty last year, or a decrease of thirty per cent. No doubt this is in a large measure due to the good work of the Peterborough Health Association. It is only two and a half years since the work began, but already the results are showing in the most practical and convincing form, in the lowering of the death rate, or in other words, in the saving of lives.

How many will be saved from the ravages of the disease through a reduction in the number of cases and through education in prevention and spread of infection among those suffering from the disease or among those who may be exposed, be it at home or elsewhere, or by caring for the delicate or poorly nourished children, only time will tell. In the meantime it is our duty to support the Association in their good work in every way that may be necessary.

The sanitary work has been carried on as far as possible with the help available, and is dealt with in the Sanitary Inspector's report. There is very little beyond the usual routine to report.

Laundries Inspected.

I might say that during the year the baker shops and laundries were inspected, and regulations controlling each drawn up. It was decidel to recommend to the Council that the laundries be licensed, the issuance of the license being subject to the approval of the Sanitary Inspector. A marked improvement in the laundries has resulted therefrom. In this connection I would suggest that the bakers also be licensed and that the license be issued only after the premises have been examined and found in accordance with the by-law. Licenses for butcher shops are issued by the police. It seems to me that they should be issued only after receiving a favourable report on the premises from the Sanitary Inspector. The milk by-law should be amended so as to compel the milkmen to have the Sanitary Inspector informed as to the sources of their milk supply.

We have received from the Provincial Board of Health, copies of the rules and regulations governing slaughter houses, and manure heaps, and it would be our duty to see that they are enforced.

Recommendations.

I have but few recommendations to make. Last year I suggested the advisability of an abbatoir and a small-pox hospital. In view of the hard times prevailing it may be advisable to postpone consideration of these.

Before closing I would like to draw your attention to the fact that Peterborough is to be honoured this year by being the first city outside of Toronto to have the annual convention of the Health Officers of the Province. The dates set for the meetings are May 25th, 26th, 27th and 28th. When you consider that there are about seven hundred officers in Ontario, you will see that we will have a large number of guests to look after and I ask your assistance in making it helpful and entertaining to them while in our city.

ESSEN IS BOMBED.

British Aviators Said To Have Visited Great Krupp Town.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—British airmen have been busy in Belgium, and, according to a report from Holland, have also ventured as far as Essen, Rhenish Prussia, where they destroyed some buildings.

Holland has asked Germany for an explanation of the report that the German airships passed on their way to England over Dutch territory.

Essen is the home of the famous Krupp works, where the big guns and munitions of war for the German army and navy are manufactured. Fifty thousand men are employed in the various works. Essen is in the Prussian Rhine province, situated between the Ruhr and the Emscher, 20 miles northeast of Dusseldorf. It is only 40 miles from the border.

YOUNG MAN TELLS WHY HE'S STAYING BACK ON THE FARM

Through Thinking for Himself Doing Important Work and Being Allowed Social Freedom, Farmer's Son Gained His Enthusiasm.

There has been a good deal of discussion on the subject of boys leaving the farm. I am a farmer's son, nearly 21 years old, and still live on the farm. Of course a great many leave after they are of age, but they would have gone long before if they could have followed their own inclinations. If a boy is interested in farming when he is 20, then he will stick to it, unless circumstances are very unfavourable.

Now that is just the point that many of the writers have been trying to make; anything to get him interested. The method most usually suggested is to give him something to call his own. I do not think that plan as it usually works is worth a rap. To give a boy an idea of stock raising in that way he should be made to pay for all feed and housing and finally to pay back the money invested in the stock, together with interest for the time he used it.

The biggest mistake, however, is not there. The farmer may furnish the money and work and yet do less harm than he does by furnishing the brains, which is the big thing in the whole scheme. Make him think. I have been acquainted with a good many farmer boys, whose views of farming run all the way from hatred through contentment and up to enthusiasm, and the policy of their fathers runs from keeping the boy under his thumb through giving him more or less freedom, and up to making him think for himself, and for the farm.

Some farmers think their 16-year-old boys can not be trusted with anything more valuable than the oldest, slowest horse on the place and can not do any more important work than hoeing weeds or pitching manure. If, a boy is 16 years old, and physically normal, and is not capable of handling a farm team, hitched to any farm implement, then he is a decided reflection on the father's methods of training, and ten chances to one he is casting longing glances toward the city.

Fortunately for me my father has always followed a different plan. I have been around stock since I can remember. I have handled a team in the field since I was 9. Since I was 12 I have handled all the machinery we used, from the plough to the corn shredder. Some neighbours thought it inhuman to make a small boy work in the fields, but father never said anything about the amount of work I was to do and so I did not work hard enough to hurt myself, but I took such absorbing interest in the quality that I soon was able to compete with the best farmers in the neighbourhood in neat ploughing and straight corn planting.

Of course I made some mistakes, but if they were of such a nature that I could see them myself, father never said anything about them. I was expected to set it right myself, and then see that it did not happen again. When I did anything really noteworthy he would make a complimentary remark about it that pleased me more than yards of gush. If there is anything that I can do better, or know more about, than he does, he admits it and always allows me to do or manage that part of the work.

HAVE BOOKS AND MAGAZINES.

Then there is the social side of this stick-him-to-the-farm discussion. Some of the writers suggest a comfortable home, with books and magazines, and popcorn and apples, and over all a loving mother. That is the right sort of talk. We can all pour our sympathies on the farmer boy in an unhappy home without fear of wasting any, and if he is without the faith and guidance of a mother he is desolate indeed. The fireside, with good reading is just the thing for the farmer-to-be—for about five evenings in the week. But he must, and indeed should, spend some time with the rest of the young folk around.

Some have suggested giving the boy a good horse and rig. Right again. As a matter of fact I would not stay on this farm two weeks if I did not have a horse to drive just about when-ever I wish. Any boy over 16 who has not a healthy desire to associate with boys and girls of his own age is abnormal, and so much so that he will never make two blades of alfalfa grow where one ragweed grew before. The farmer does not need to give his boy a horse, but should see that he has the use of one without begging for it. While you are slowly allowing yourself to be wheedled into letting him have the rig, some other fellow gets the girl; and then you should not expect him to take an absorbing interest in stock judging while the other fellow is feeding Nancy ice cream and whirling with her on the 'merry-go-round.

LET HIM IN ON THE PLANS.

Do not entangle the finances of the farm with partnerships or profit sharing plans, but just give the boy a chance to get in where the plans are being laid, where the big and important things are done. Give a word of praise when deserved, and never try to cut off his social life.—"A Future Farmer," in the Breeders' Gazette.

Indian Soldiers Go Sight-seeing

Convalescents in England Shown London by Squads

LONDON, Jan. 20. — Convalescent Indian soldiers are being given an opportunity for sight-seeing in London and roundabout. Parties of twenty-four at a time are being sent from the Indians' quarters on the coast.

Each party is composed of men of a single race, escorted by an English officer able to speak their language. They visit the Tower of London, St. Paul's Cathedral, the Houses of Parliament, Buckingham Palace, some of the parks and one of the large department stores. Careful provision is made for complying with the men's racial customs, dietary habits and caste restrictions.

Hindus Scorn China Plates

The Hindus dine at a private house as guests of a Hindu living here, where they are served on aluminum plates, the ordinary chinaware being objected to. The Mohammedans have their meals at the Indian Government's London headquarters.

Three of the Indians, ruling princes, have just left London after a visit here. They are the Maharajahs of Bikaner, Kishangarh and Jodhpur. The two former returned to France, while the latter, who is only 18 years old, took passage for Egypt, where his regiment of Lancers is serving.

Attached to Headquarters.

The Maharajah of Bikaner underwent a minor surgical operation while in London. He commands a camel corps which has seen service in a dozen campaigns since 1900, when he took it over. Its latest exploit was a successful encounter with a Turkish patrol near the Suez Canal. The camel corps remains in Egypt, while its commander is temporarily attached to the British General Staff in France. His Highness speaks English, and granted an interview to newspapermen during his stay in London.

European War Depressing.

"I find up-to-date warfare as waged in Flanders extremely depressing in its monotony," he said. "It is exasperating to a man trained to arms to have so little opportunity of seeing his enemy. The Indian soldiers, accustomed to operations in mountainous regions, deserve great credit for so quickly adapting themselves to the discomfort of standing hour by hour in trenches, often knee deep in mud. The war will link India and Great Britain by still closer ties and there will be an increasing identity of interest between the native States and British India."

"MAKE ME AS BRAVE AS THE ENGLISH"

Was the Substance of a German's Prayer

A German's tribute to the English soldiers was related by Private G. Temple, who is at Colchester wounded. He said:

"I stopped for a moment with a German who had seen the most of his days on earth. He wanted to talk, and what he said was this: 'We were told that the British Army was not worth much, and would crumple up before us.

"There never was a greater falsehood. Finer troops never stood on the battlefield than yours, and there is not a man in our army that does not take off his hat to your brave army when we talk of our fights in the trenches.

"I know of a lad in one of the Saxon regiments who had some experience of a fight with one of your Irish regiments, and every night when he was praying he used to say: 'Oh, God, make me as brave as the English.' We have lost heart now, and pray that the end may come soon.'"

DANDRUFF SOON RUINS THE HAIR

Makes It Lifeless, Dull, Dry, Brittle and Thin.

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will be silky, fluffy, lustrous, soft, and look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

Authentic News From Germany

A despatch from Paris states:

"A channel by which a certain amount of authentic German news comes from time to time into France has been open for some weeks past in the regular system by which French medical officers who have been made prisoners are exchanged against similarly captured German doctors.

One such doctor, writing in the Echo de Paris, declares that in one of the towns where he was in Germany, after he had been given liberty of movement, he found for himself that there was a considerable shortage of food, and that in the hotels, as in the houses, each man was put on rations controlled by the State, the quantity allotted to each being carefully weighed.

In the Figaro of yesterday a major who was taken prisoner with his ambulance in August has been interviewed as to his experiences in Germany. He had hardly reached German territory, he said, when a German medical officer told him that England would not declare war, and reproached France for having sent aviators over Cologne and dropped bombs there during the month of July. On their passage through with a train of German wounded they passed through a station where the Red Cross distributed delicacies. An Alsatian woman offered the doctor and his wounded a few cigars but was roughly told by a Prussian officer not to talk to these "indignes Francais." While the journey lasted the major saw a good deal of the conditions of the German wounded, and on one occasion was asked to treat them. He insists that, whatever faults the French medical service may have had that of the German is far worse, the German wounded being in a terrible condition. Among the French wounded that came through was an unfortunate man with both thighs broken. Nothing had been done to immobilise the bones, and the man was in agony. The major was refused permission to treat him, even to give him an injection of morphia. The day on which this happened was August 13, and suddenly there was loud cheering as a train of motor cars brought in a dispatch stating that 400 Germans were in Paris. The Parisians at the station showed their satisfaction by a hostile demonstration before the French prisoners. When he arrived at his destination he was told that he would be held as a prisoner of war because the French were not respecting the Geneva convention, were using dum-dum bullets, firing on ambulances and killing the wounded and putting out their eyes. About a fortnight later he was set free. "In Germany," he concluded, "what struck me most was the absolute ignorance in which the Germans are as to what is happening. One of my Alsatian friends has told me that on October 5 he was in a tobacco shop near Colmar. There he heard a German commercial traveller coming from Cologne, who was looking for a garage where he could find a motor car to take him to Belfort. The shopkeeper said: 'But Belfort's still in French hands.' 'What,' said the other, 'I know Belfort is occupied by Germany. I will get my information from the police.' Then he learned the facts and was furious, saying: 'When I get back to Cologne I will undeceive them. When I think that ten days ago the bells of the cathedral were rung in honour of Belfort's surrender.'"

Protection For The King

New High Angle Guns for Fighting Air-craft Are Mounted

SPECIAL CABLE:

LONDON, Jan. 22—Although the newspapers are minimizing the importance of the Zeppelin raid over the Norfolk Coast, the British War Office is taking more drastic measures to safeguard London against attack from the air.

The use of lights for outside advertising purposes, or for the illumination of shop windows is now prohibited entirely. Houses must be darkened and automobiles must not carry headlights. Instead small red lights will be placed upon the rear of motor cars and other vehicles, and the drivers are warned to move slowly and cautiously through the streets at night. Most of the lights are now extinguished at night and London, once one of the most brilliantly illuminated cities in the world, now resembles a cross roads village after sundown.

Protection for King.

The new high angle guns, for use against air craft, which the Government has just received from the factories, are being distributed throughout the City. It is reported that one has been mounted in the grounds of Buckingham Palace. Since it has been established that the German raiders tried to attack the royal family, suggestions have been made to King George that he keep his place of residence a secret in the future.

At Yarmouth, King's Lynn, and other places, where damage was done the work of cleaning up the wreckage is going on under the direction of the military authorities.

Where Flight Divided.

It is now established that there were three Zeppelins in the raiding fleet. They flew together until thirty miles from the British Coast, when they separated, one going toward Yarmouth another toward Cromer, and the third toward Sheringham.

The British Government is considering the possibility of lodging a protest with the neutral nations, on the ground that Germany violated the neutrality of Holland, because the raiding aircraft passed over the Frisian Island group of Dutch islands.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

THE THIRD ANNUAL REPORT OF SANITARY INSPECTOR SPENCE

During the Year the Inspector Made Nearly Four Thousand Calls—Number of Licenses Granted—Peterborough's Milk Supply—The Regulation of Slaughter Houses—Yards in the Business Section Are a Disgrace.

Few annual reports are of more local interest than that of Sanitary Inspector Spence. It indicates to some extent the work that is being accomplished by a department that had its inception three years ago, and which has for its object the enforcement of legislative enactments governing sanitation. The results that are referred to in the appended report are not accomplished without considerable effort on the part of the authorities responsible for the work.

Calls and inspections—3,950.
Calls and inspections (by F. Miller)—309.
Visits to dairy farms—165.
Visits to slaughter houses—45.
Notices issued—229.
Complaints investigated—186.
Samples of milk tested—184.
Licenses granted after inspection, since April 15th — restaurants 27, laundries 12, milk vendors 48, scavengers 9.

In addition to the foregoing figures a great proportion of the Inspector's time has been occupied in superintending the garbage collecting system, the working of the incinerator, and other details of sanitary work.

"I received valuable assistance in the Spring from Mr. Miller, who inspected the yards in East City, but the increased labours attached to his other offices curtailed this assistance later, and at the present time he has as much work in his own department as he can cope with.

Milk Supply.

The following particulars relating to the milk supply of the City may be interesting. The daily average quantity of milk sold in Peterborough by the fifty-five licensed vendors is about 4,500 quarts. Thirty-nine of these vendors procure their milk from sixty farms in the surrounding country, the remainder being persons who keep one or two cows and sell milk to their neighbours.

The quality of the milk is good, both as to fat percentage and cleanliness, the average test for the 184 samples being 3.59 per cent fat, a slight increase over last year's record, and well above the standard required by the by-laws, namely 3 per cent.

The highest individual average is 4.8, and the lowest, 3.05; highest individual test, 5.3, lowest, 2.8. Eleven vendors show an average test between 3 and 3.5; twenty-four between 3.5 and 4, and four above 4 per cent.

A greater number of dairy farm visits than last year has been made, and many improvements effected. Two new dairy barns and several milk houses have been erected as a direct result of these inspections. The water that the cows drink and that the cans and utensils are washed in, has been tested, and every effort has been made to secure the citizens wholesome, clean milk from the time it leaves the cows udder until it enters the consumer's door.

Slaughter House Regulations.

The slaughter houses have been periodically visited, and on the whole conditions are as satisfactory as could be expected under present circumstances. The regulations of the Provincial Board of Health however, passed two months ago, and now in force, will compel the City Council in the near future to take up again the question of a public abbatoir for this reason: There is not a slaughter house in the district that can comply with the rules. The enforcement of these regulations simply means that the slaughter houses now in use will have to be closed. The owners are, I believe, unanimous in their desire to see an abbatoir erected, in fact they have frankly admitted to me their inability to meet the requirements from a financial standpoint alone.

Complaints.

186 complaints have been received and investigated as against 129 in 1913. Of this number 25 had reference to outside closets, 18 to food products, 14 to noxious odors, 18 to stables, 15 to defective plumbing, 13 to premises being left in dirty condition, 11 to nuisances from fowl, and 7 to water supply; 30 of the total number were either exaggerated or unjustified.

Licensing of Laundries and Eating Houses.

As you are aware by-laws were passed which came into effect on April 15th, 1914, providing for the licensing of laundries and eating houses. These licenses are not issued until the applications are favourably reported upon by me after inspection of the premises and the result has been a radical change, especially in the Chinese laundries, all of which had to be remodelled or altered before the licenses were granted.

Market.

New market regulations relating to the selling of fowl by weight and the displaying of the names and addresses of the vendors come into force on May 1st of this year, and as usual with legislative innovations, met with some opposition at first. This, however, soon subsided, and at the present time the Market Square and building is quite inadequate to accommodate in comfort those who resort there on market days. I regret that my proposition to have fowl dressed with the heart and liver attached was turned down. The result has been that the buying public has suffered thereby, fowl after being dressed at home, often being found diseased. In connection with this it is significant to note that the local cold storage plant will only purchase turkeys that have been dressed.

Yards.

There are yards in the business section that are a disgrace to a City of this size and a positive menace to the health of those who unfortunately have to work near them. The difficulty of deciding the ownership of these places is an obstacle to their improvement. They should be paved and drained and until this is done it will be impossible to keep them in a sanitary condition. I would suggest this question be taken up by the Board of Health with the City Council with a view to ascertaining whether they could not assume control, and effect this under "local improvement."

In conclusion, I may say that the results achieved in every department of sanitary work show distinct progress, and though my duties are arduous and often unpleasant, there is a satisfaction in knowing that one is surely, though slowly, attaining the goal aimed at. The public are gradually awakening to the fact that the work of the Health Department for the prevention of disease is not simply a fad, but one that is deserving of consideration and support

REV. J. A. McKENZIE INDUCTED AS PASTOR AT KNOX CHURCH

Large Congregation Welcomes Successor to Rev. H. J. Keith—Many Visiting Clergy Present

A large congregation attended the services at Knox church last evening when their new minister, Rev. J. A. McKenzie of Lachute, Que., was duly inducted to that charge, as successor to Rev. H. J. Keith, now of Westminster Presbyterian church, Edmonton. Among the visiting clergy taking part in the service and welcome were Rev. W. D. McDonald, of Warkworth, moderator of the Presbytery for this district, Rev. D. A Thompson, Hastings, Clerk of the Presbytery, Rev. R. Pogue, St. Paul's, Rev. J. Rollins, St. Andrew's, Rev. W. D. Goodwill, Keene, Rev. J. P. McInnis, Onemee, Rev. J. R. Webb, Murray Street Baptist, Rev. R. B. Grobb, All Saints' Anglican, Messrs. Fairburn and Harrison, elders, representing Lakefield and St. Paul's respectively.

Rev. J. P. McInnis preached the sermon, after which Rev. R. Pogue, who has had charge of the congregation during the vacancy, made a few remarks with regard to the steps taken to fill the vacancy caused by Rev. Mr. Keith accepting the call at Edmonton. Upon Rev. W. D. McDonald the moderator, devolved the duties of performing the induction ceremony.

Rev. D. A. Thompson of Hastings, and Clerk of the Presbytery, addressed the new minister and was followed by Rev. R. Pogue in a discourse to the congregation. Both gentlemen dealt with their respective subjects in an able manner and were closely followed by everyone present.

After the induction services which were very impressive, the other visiting clergy were called upon for a few words of welcome to the new pastor and prospective member of the Peterborough Ministerial Association. Rev. Mr. McKenzie received a very hearty welcome from this quarter and several tributes were paid to the work of the late pastor, Rev. H. J. Keith, from whom many of the speakers had received personal letters asking them to assist Mr. McKenzie as much as was in their power.

The different organizations of the church were next heard through their respective representatives, who extended a hearty welcome to Mr. McKenzie as pastor of Knox church. They were represented as follows: Session, Mr. R. Shurter; Board of Managers, Dr. McCulloch; Brotherhood of St. Andrew and St. Paul, Mr. Yale; Sabbath school, Mr. R. Laing; Young People's Society, Mr. C. Williamson; and Ladies' Auxiliary, Mrs. Clifford.

Rev. Mr. McKenzie in a few well chosen remarks, thanked the people and clergy for their touching reception. He realized that he had a big task before him as pastor of Knox Church, but with their help would work for the welfare and upbuilding of the congregation.

Two Belleville Men Arrested.

BELLEVIELE, Jan. 22. — William A. McMichael and William Wallace, 27 and 25, both married, were arrested early yesterday morning by the police, after they had made a search of the men's homes and secured considerable booty alleged to have been stolen during the night of Aug. 27 last, when two C. P. R. box cars were broken into and 77 pairs of boots, four packages of cream cheese and many tins of coffee, valued at upwards of $200, stolen. A German silver purse which was snatched from a woman on Saturday was found in McMichael's house. The accused were remanded to jail.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

Thirty-three thousand dollars is the modest amount that Fire Chief Howard proposed to exact from the City Council in the way of an annual appropriation for the maintenance and operation of the Fire Department. This includes the price of a motor driven chemical.

On the Sick List.

Assistant City Engineer T. A. S. Hay is confined to his home and by all accounts will have to undergo an operation that will incapacitate him for some time to come. City Engineer R. H. Parsons has returned to his duties after being confined to his home for a few days with a severe cold.

Honk! Honk!

Mayor Buller has suggested the advisability of substituting a Ford runabout for the motor driven chemical engine that Fire Chief Howard will ask for in his estimates. When it comes to a fishing trip to Bobcaygeon, the former would be preferrable. Eh! What!

Patriotic Association.

The Peterborough branch of the Patriotic Association and the local Relief Association will hold a meeting in the City Council chamber next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. A full attendance is requested.

A Local Deputation.

On Monday next at two o'clock the Board of Trade will visit the Queen Mary Isolation Hospital. They will inspect the building with a view of ascertaining the work that was carried out last year and the new work that may be undertaken this year.

Sewer on Ward Street.

The local Board of Health has decided to recommend the construction of a sewer on Ward Street. This will give additional work to the unemployed and will enable the [illegible] to conform to sanitary conditions.

WITH OTHER COUNCILS.

At the annual meeting of the Gananoque Board of Trade it was decided to hold an open meeting on Friday, January 29th at which Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance, will deliver an address.

Municipal 'Phone System.

Hamilton is preparing plans for a 'phone system to connect all the municipal offices and departments.

Patriotic Fund.

$60,000 or Roads.

North Bay ratepayers will be asked to spend $60,000 on road improvements.

For Belgian Relief.

The township of Wilmott, Ontario, has subscribed over $8,000 for Belgian relief.

Penitentiary Investigation.

Dr. J. W. Edwards, M.P. for Frontenac, primarily responsible for the penitentiary investigation for the ago, is out with a letter in the press in which he condemns the delay in improving penitentiary conditions, and declares that "a long chain of facts" forces him "to the regrettable conclusion that the Minister of Justice has never been very keen to get at the facts and redress existing grievances and wrongs."

Harbour Board Gets More Lots

The Toronto Harbour Commissioners have completed an important agreement with the Grand Trunk Railway by which they come into possession of the riparian rights of all the water lots from York to Bathurst Streets.

Operation For Commissioner.

Property Commissioner Chisholm, of Toronto, has to undergo a slight operation on his throat, in order that his vocal organs will be in good shape for [illegible] battle when his estimates [illegible] before the Property [illegible] this afternoon.

FRENCH SAYS GERMAN ASSAULTS HAVE FAILED

Fiercest Conflict is at Pont-a-Mousson, Where Germans Have Assembled a Large Force

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The battle for the trenches in Flanders and France continues almost without cessation from the sea to the Swiss border. In the mud of Flanders, the floods of the Aisne Valley and the snows of the Argonne and the Vosges, the soldiers of Germany and the allied nations keep up a continual fight to hold what they possess and take something from that held by the enemy.

According to a long official report of the fighting during the past two months, issued by the French War Staff yesterday, this method of siege operations has hardly favored the allies, who, while they have gained ground on almost every part of the front, have been forced to give way in only one region—that of Soissons. They are being put to a test, however, similar to that which obliged them to retire from north of the Aisne, near Soissons, because the Germans, realizing the danger of their communications with Metz as a result of the French advance near Pont-a-Mousson, have sent reinforcements there and have begun a battle or the positions which they lost during the past week. The Germans apparently have regained a portion of them, and fighting for the remainder is now in progress.

Destruction of a big ammunition depot from which German forces operating near Rheims drew their supplies, was reported yesterday afternoon in the official despatches. Accounts of the explosion of huge supplies of powder resulted in many deaths.

French aviators located the ammunition depot and furnished the range to the allies' gunners. The guns had scarcely been trained in its direction when a shell burst through the roof. A tremendous explosion shook the earth for miles around.

Before the depot was blown up, French artillery destroyed German field works in the same vicinity. Immediately following the explosion an infantry charge was ordered, the French taking several of the enemy's trenches.

"The enemy violently bombarded our positions to the north of Notre Dame de Lorette; then at 5 o'clock in the morning, began a new attack which was soon repulsed.

"In the Champagne region two small woods north of a farm at Beausejour were occupied by us. The enemy delivered an unsuccessful counter-attack.

"In the Argonne the Germans made a strong attack on a salient of our line in the neighborhood of St. Hubert. After a violent bombardment of our trenches they began the attack, but were repulsed by the fire of our infantry combined with artillery fire.

New Officers Were Re-elected

New Members Also Initiated at Meeting of Loyal Order of Moose

Officers for the ensuing year were elected Wednesday night by the Loyal Order of Moose, who met in their rooms in the Bank of Commerce building. Initiations also took place, and final arrangements made for the visit of the Grand Dictator and the Secretary, who will come to Peterborough in the very near future. There was a large attendance. The new officers are:

Hon. Past Dictator—G. N. Gordon.
Past Dictator—R. N. McWilliams.
Dictator—W. B. Warne.
Prelate—Geo. F. Toone.
Secretary—E. B. Manning.
Treasurer—James Edgar.
Rec. Secretary—Chas. Lacheur.
Inner Guard—W. Montgomery.
Outer Guard—E. M. Jones.
Trustees—A. and E. Mieka, J. M. Greene, and Mayor Buller.
Executive Committee—R. N. Jones, F. Miller, M. Kirn, Dr. Frank, E. M. Beach, E. N. McWilliams, and Edgar Burnham.
Visiting Committee — E. H. Bartlett, F. Miller, W. B. Warne.
Entertainment Committee —Messrs. Haskins, Allan, Sturgeon, Barbeau, Brenton, LeBarr, Toone, Coster and Beach.

Dr. Amys Was Elected Chairman of the Board of Health at the Annual Meeting Which Was Held Yesterday—Account Passed

Dr. C. H. Amys will head the Board of Health for the ensuing year. He was re-elected to that position at the annual meeting that was held yesterday afternoon. He also had the satisfaction of having his bill for thirty-two dollars certified by the Board. This account represents a bill for services that he rendered during the two weeks that Dr. A. W. McPherson, M. H.O., was holidaying. It was passed by the Board at a previous meeting, but payment was delayed in order to give City Solicitor Gordon an opportunity to pass upon the validity of the account. Dr. Amys admitted that it was a case of establishing a precedent, as the by-law under which the Medical Officer is engaged makes no provision for holidays.

A Supply of Ice.

Mr. G. H. Duncan moved that tenders be asked for a supply of ice for the Queen Mary Isolation Hospital, and that the ice be taken off the Auburn dam. The chairman was authorized to let the contracts. The Board is anxious to have the water level of the Trent canal restored to its normal height. Dr. George Clinton, District Officer of Health, who was present said that this would be a matter for Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., to look into.

Dr. Amys remarked that the present low water level not only deprived the Board of a supply of ice, but had the effect of destroying the spawn.

Will Prosecute.

Sanitary Inspector Spence reported that a number of laneways and yards located in the business section of the city, were in an insanitary condition. He suggested that a few of the yards might be paved at a small cost. He was asked to notify the owners to have them cleaned up or police court proceedings would follow. It was stated that it was difficult to prove ownership of certain yards and lanes whenever the Inspector dropped around.

'You soon find out who owns the property when you go to put a pole down," put in Mayor Buller.

Those present were Dr. C. H. Amys (chairman), G. H. Duncan, James Murty, Mayor Buller, Dr. A. W. McPherson, M.H.O., Sanitary Inspector Spence and Dr. George Clinton, District Officer of Health, with headquarters in Bobcaygeon.

Manual of Usages in War Has Just Been Published in London by Prof. J. H. Morgan Says War on Non-combatants is Justified

TRANSLATED INTO ENGLISH

LONDON, Jan. 22. — Prof. J. H. Morgan has translated into the English language "The German War Book," a manual of usages in war on land issued by the General Staff of the German army. This is the most authoritative work of its kind in Germany. There is a reference in the introduction to "humanitarian considerations which not infrequently degenerate into sentimentality and flabby emotion."

The revealing passage is the following: "A war conducted with energy cannot be directed merely against the combatants of the enemy, their state and the positions they occupy, but it will and must in like manner seek to destroy the total intellectual and material resources of the latter."

According to this German war book, assassination and incendiarism are in given circumstances, justifiable, as will be seen by the following quotation:

"Bribery of the enemy's subjects with the object of obtaining military advantage, acceptance of offers of treachery, reception of deserters, utilizing of discontented elements in the population, support of pretenders and the like are permissible; indeed, international law is in no way opposed to the exploitation of crimes of the third parties — assassination, incendiarism, robbery and the like — to the prejudice of the enemy. The ugly and abhorrently immoral aspect of such methods cannot affect the recognition of their permissiveness."

Among the circumstances that "convey in this book are:

"Should peaceful inhabitants of an invaded country be exposed to the fire of their own troops?"

"Yes, it may be indispensable, but its main justification is that it is 'successful'."

"Should women and children and the old and feeble be allowed to depart before a bombardment begins?"

"On the contrary, their presence is greatly to be desired. It makes the bombardment all the more effective."

PRESENTATION TO MISS PAUL

At the Annual Meeting of Gilmour Memorial Church—An Appreciation

A pleasant feature of the annual [illegible] meeting of Gilmour Memorial Baptist church, held on Wednesday evening, Jan. 7, was the presentation to Miss Mabel Paul of a very appreciative address, accompanied by a handsome sunburst of pearls. Miss Paul has been for a number of years the efficient organist of the church, and the presentation was the expression of hearty appreciation of this service by the membership.

After the reading of the address by Mrs. Jos. A. Young, and the presentation by Miss Sadie Mann, the recipient expressed her pleasure in so serving the church in a few well chosen words, and thanked her friends for their kind words and beautiful gift. Rev. R. J. McLaren also spoke a few words of appreciation of the splendid services of Miss Paul.

The address was as follows:

Miss Mabel Paul,—There is an old and somewhat trite saying that we never know the worth of a thing until we lose it. Perhaps with the passing of years we are growing wiser. At any rate we have realised the splendid worth of your services as organist of our church for the past number of years and it is this growing realization of your worth that has led us to wish to express our appreciation, in some tangible way, however slight.

Luther has said, "Music is one of the most magnificent and delightful presents that God has given us." Yet it is a present and a gift that demands service and adoration from those who receive it. We realise that many times it has not been easy for you to [illegible] to fill the many demands upon your time, but your willingness to play for us, and the regularity of your attendance has been appreciated by every member of the church. May you long be spared to play for us the beautiful hymns of prayer and praise, which are but an echo of the music which will come to us when we have passed beyond, "unto the shining tables lands to which our God himself is moon and sun."

We ask you to accept this brooch as a slight expression of our appreciation of your services as organist of Gilmour Memorial church.

The Finance Committee

Will Meet This Afternoon to Consider the Advisability of Reducing Civic Salaries

Much interest will be manifested by civic officials concerning the outcome of the meeting of the Finance Committee that is to be held this evening at which Ald. Edgar's resolution to reduce the salaries of City officials, will be discussed. The resolution is not new to the Council by any means as Ald. Stratton shot the tail feathers out of it about a year ago, when he fathered a similar resolution which was subsequently shelved until the Utilities Department had been organized.

In Hamilton

By the proposed reductions in the City of Hamilton there will be a saving in the City's finances of $6,300 per year, while in the case of the Magistrate's and the City Solicitor's salaries a substantial reductions are yet to be made.

NEW MINISTER OF WAR

Von Falkenhayn Finds Two Posts Too Heavy For Him

BERLIN, Jan. 22.—(Via London.)—The official Nord Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung yesterday announces that Lt.-Gen. Erich von Falkenhayn, who is now chief of the German General Staff, has resigned his office as Minister of War. Emperor William on accepting Von Falkenhayn's resignation appointed him a general of infantry.

Maj.-Gen. Wild von Hohenborn, according to the announcement, has been appointed successor to Gen. Von Falkenhayn as Minister of War.

"I agree with your reasons regarding the appointment of a new War Minister and relieve you, according to your wish, from the office of Minister of State and War.

"My hearty acknowledgment of your excellent services in this important post I will express by leaving you in your office of chief of General Staff of the field army, and appointing you a general of infantry."

The retirement of Lt.-Gen. von Falkenhayn from the office of Minister of War, one of the dual functions of the Minister of the chief of staff with which he was entrusted after the withdrawal of Moltke, Count von Moltke, was occasioned by the fact that the work of the two posts was far too arduous for any one man.

Archduke Charles Francis Joseph the heir to the Austrian throne, arrived in Berlin yesterday morning and left at noon for the German great army headquarters in the field where he is to make a day's visit to Emperor William.

According to inspired statement published in the capital the visit of the Austrian heir is merely one of courtesy.

GRAND TRUNK HAS FINE EXHIBIT

At San Francisco Exposition

The Grand Trunk System has just shipped a special car containing a large proportion of its exhibit for installation in the Company's Building at the Panama Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco, which opens on February 20th next.

The shipment consists of a number of splendid oil paintings of scenes in the Canadian Rockies, on the route of the Grand Trunk Pacific, from the brush of the well known Canadian artist, Mr. G. Horne Russell. Among the other material shipped is a model of one of the Grand Trunk Pacific steamships, the North Pacific. There is also a model of Jasper Park—the 4,400 square mile National Park Reserve in the Canadian Rockies—in the Province of British Columbia. One of the finest collections of mounted fish and game, including a magnificent specimen of a buffalo head from the Buffalo National Park, Wainwright, Alberta, will be on view. A collection of transparencies depicting scenes in the Dominion of Canada, will be installed in an attractive and interesting manner, with framed photographic views of the principal attractions in Canada, illustrating fishing and hunting, tourist resorts, agricultural pursuits, mining camps, etc.

The decorations of the interior of the Grand Trunk Building are being carried out by experts, and will be made up of attractive features, composed of grains and grasses from the agricultural fields of Western Canada, including a fine collection of agricultural products from the Bulkley and Nechaco Valleys of Central British Columbia. Other features that will attract attention are a very fine fruit exhibit from British Columbia, and a collection of minerals. These have been artistically assembled and will be attractively displayed.

Perhaps one of the most interesting features of the Grand Trunk Building will be the Motion Picture Theatre which has been built as an annex to their Exhibit Hall, and in which will be continued regular moving picture shows, at which subjects which have been secured during the past year will be presented, and will include scenes in Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg, Edmonton, agricultural scenes in Western Canada, Rocky Mountain scenes, views of the Grand Trunk Pacific steamships, Skeena River salmon mining scenes, etc. No charge will be made for admittance to this theatre, and the Dominion of Canada will receive a large amount of advertising from this feature alone.

Registrars Want Increase

A deputation representing the county registrars of the province waited upon Hon. I. B. Lucas, Attorney-General, yesterday, to ask the Government to increase the scale of fees. The increase of fees has been urged upon the Government for several successive years. But for the war and the general reduction of revenue it is likely that this year the registrars would have had their request granted. As it is, however, the matter will probably have to stand over for another year.

$134.25 FOR THE RED CROSS FUND

The committee desire to thank the management of the Oriental for the use of the tea room, the ladies of Bridgenorth for 21 lbs. of butter, Mr. Conway of Grafton's for the loan of flags, and Jas. Bell, grocer, for sugar; also to thank all others who in any way contributed to the success of the undertaking.

A CONTRIBUTION DECLINED

The Examiner had sneaked to it this morning a letter for publication in criticism of Mr. Fitzgerald and his protest printed yesterday. "Sneaked" is the right word for the messenger that delivered it didn't know who wrote it, or said he didn't—"it was just handed to him by someone over there." The scrawl did not have any bona fide name signed. It was a contemptible blow from a concealed enemy at a gentleman who had the manliness to not only defend his own, but also to write like a man over his own name. "Another Irishman" must be a bad Irishman; he shoots from behind the hedge.

NEWS FROM SALISBURY PLAIN

Mr. Arthur Kingdon, of 572 Bolivar street, has favoured "The Examiner" with the following letter from a former employee of his, who is now serving with the Canadian Contingent encamped at Bustard, on Salisbury Plain, England, and which will, doubtless, prove of interest to some of our readers.

The letter runs as follows:

Bustard, Jan. 8, 1915.

Dear Arthur,—Just a few lines to let you know that the "sausage-eaters" have not got me yet; we are still in the land of plenty—plenty of rain for it has rained every day since New Year's Day. There are a lot of villages flooded around here. In the town of Tilshead the main street is like a river. We have been doing brigade manoeuvres this week, marching about sixteen miles and fighting sham battles. There are a lot of the Canadians in the hospitals, but so far we have very few sick, only an odd cold. Everybody is fat.

Walter Packwood came back, but had to go to the hospital again. I got seven days' leave at Xmas, and I went to Oldbury, near Birmingham, with one of the lads in our tent, and we had a fine time, as it was at a wedding. On Boxing Day the sister of the lad that I was with was married to a sergeant in the Nova Scotia Highlanders, and I also went to a football match.

Major Bennett has asked any of us who may be writing to any of our friends to thank the ladies of Peterborough for their Christmas present. We got it last night, and there was nothing that we did not need, and the tobacco and cigarettes came in handy!

Now, if you like, you can get a line in "The Examiner" for me as you can do it better than I can.

* * * * *

Yours truly,
DOUGLAS LEAL.

PETERBORO' JUNIORS OUT OF RACE BEATEN BY ONTARIOS LAST NIGHT

Blue and White Youngsters Lost in a High-Scoring Carnival by a 17-10 Score—27 Goals and 27 Penalties.

WINNERS NEVER BEHIND

The Peterborough Juniors kicked away all their chances for the group championship at Port Hope last night when they went down before the Ontarios in a game that was notable for the number of goals and penalties. There were exactly twenty-seven goals scored and the penalty total reached the same figure. Port Hope got seventeen of the goals, so that a little problem in mental arithmetic will show that the score was Port Hope 17, Peterborough 10.

Such a carnival of high scoring only comes once in a decade. It was a case of wide open all the way, with both defences as full of holes as a Swiss cheese. On the forward line it was a grand little battle, and both advance guards had it all over the defends, as the big score shows. Port Hope won the game on its merits. They played the better hockey in the last two periods and deserved to win, even if the superiority of their goalkeeper had a lot to do with the final result. Legros, who has been doing fine work all season for the Petes, had a real bad night in the nets, and after a couple of easy ones half beat him, went right up in the air and the Ontarios scored from any old place. On the other hand Edmunds performed in stellar fashion for the winners. He was unbeatable on a long shot, and nearly all the Petes' goals were scored from close in. Even when his defence was beat he was hard to fool, clearing splendidly on half a dozen occasions.

Peterborough's defence work was a crime. Long and Morrow failing to take advantage of their bulk, played the puck instead of the man, and as both generally went after the puck carrier, the Ontarios had little trouble in breaking through. Port Hope's defence was almost as bad. Big as the score was, it would have been bigger had it not been for the back-checking of both forward lines. Many times, when the wide-open defence had been penetrated, a back-checking forward mussed up the play.

At the end of the first period it looked like anybody's game. The Ontarios led by a goal, but one goal, the way the scoring was going, did not loom up very large and the Petes looked to have more than an even chance for the bacon. They tied up the score early in the second period, but the Ontarios came right back and scored on a shot that barely slid into the nets. Jackson and Legros both swung at the rubber and missed. The fluke goal seemed to get Legros' "goat" and when he was beaten, a moment later, on a wing shot, away went the old hockey game. He never came back to earth and took his defence up in the clouds with him. Port Hope raised the score 10 to 6 at the end of the period and outscored the visitors 7 to 4 in the last twenty minutes. Both forward lines played good hockey and were miles better than their respective defences.

Slowness in getting the rubber away from their nets cost the Petes four or five goals as the Port Hope hornets took every advantage of the carelessness of the blue and white defence.

For Port Hope, Edmunds' work in the nets was a feature. On the line, Bowden, the little right wing, and Hills, the diminutive centre, were the most spectacular, but Emmerson was not far behind them in effectiveness, proving a good goal getter. Hills contributed some beautiful stick-handling, while Rowden's rushing and shooting were high-class. The Ontarios played steadily and their passing was good.

For the Petes, Jackson was the most prominent and the most useful. He was always going, bagged five goals, and turned in some fine rushing and stick handling. Rose was good when he was on the ice, but he was a spectator on six occasions during the engagement, coming in for special attention at the hands of Referee McCreath. Knapman and Richardson both had a battle on their honour in looking after their elusive checks.

The penalty list sounds like a rough passage, but the game was free from any vicious work. There was a lot of hooking, holding and tripping, and Referee McCreath, who was as strict as the British censorship, kept a constant procession to the fence. This McCreath person looks like a real referee. He has an eagle eye for offsides and nothing escapes him on the ice. The only possible objection to his work was that he was perhaps a little too strict, but that is not a bad fault.

Here are the line-ups and summary:

Port Hope		Peterborough

BIG CROWD WILL SEE TO-NIGHT'S BATTLE

The best ice of the season is ready for the clash between Oshawa and Peterborough at Brock St. Rink to-night, and it promises to be some battle with a real old-time crowd in attendance. Oshawa are bringing their strongest team of the year, and they may be counted upon to put up a stubborn argument all the way. The Petes will be out with their best talent as well, and the fans should get their money's worth. The game will be called at 8:30 sharp, with Lou Marsh handling the bell.

Canadian Scottish Beaten In Game At Glasgow

Unlucky Newcastle Player--Death of a Prominent Celt ---Extra Half-hour for Cup Ties--Second League Races a Wonderful Record

News comes of a football game at Glasgow in which the Glasgow Highlanders won by a narrow margin from the Canadian Scottish. On the latter team were several Toronto and other Canadian players, although perhaps half of the line-up was drawn from Scottish players who have been attached to the Canadian overseas force for service.

Among the Canadian players were Botterill, the former Toronto Argonaut wing man; Price, formerly of Toronto Capitals and Argonauts; Alex. Sinclair, Argonauts; Bennett, St. John's Wanderers, Newfoundland; Muir, Toronto Argonauts; Lawson, Royal Military College.

Higgins Again Injured.

The return match between Newcastle United and Sunderland at Roker was marked by another injury to that unlucky player, "Sandy" Higgins, who, after having demonstrated in recent reserve games that his previously troublesome right knee was quite sound, had the misfortune to wrench the muscles of his left thigh in the opening half.

The ranks of Newcastle United have been strengthened by the acquisition of a likely looking young centre half-back named McGough, who was signed from Carlisle United. He did very well for his side in the two holiday games with the Reserves. The occupation of the usual dressing rooms, gymnasium and board room by the military at St. James' Park caused a peculiar situation as far as their Christmas Day match with Sunderland was concerned. The Newcastle players found emergency dressing rooms in the club's office on the other side of the ground, and the Sunderland players at an hotel.

Another Celt Dead.

One by one the Celtic veterans are passing beyond our gaze. A few weeks ago it was Mr. James Grant, to-day it is Mr. John McKillip. Both were very intimately associated with the administrative life of the great Celtic Club. Mr. McKillop was a man of action rather than words; he seldom spoke, but he had the faculty of making suggestions which has as their main object the furtherance of the club. Mr. McKillip, like his several brothers, worked his way to the front in ordinary life by genuine ability and enterprise. Mr. William, who sat as M.P. for an Irish constituency, died a few years ago, thus adding to the weight of Mr. John's cares, and it is feared that these have helped to shorten his life. Mr. McKillop was proprietor of the Grosvenor Restaurant, Glasgow.

Altered Rules.

The following alterations in the rules of the Football Association Challenge Cup Competition and the Football Association Amateur Challenge Cup Competition, for the present season have been unanimously adopted:

1. In all matches, after the First Round, which are undecided at the end of ninety minutes' play, an extra half hour must be played.

2. No Cup-tie shall be played except on a Saturday afternoon.

3. In case of a draw match the competing clubs shall play on the following Saturday.

4. The season be extended one day, to 1st May, to enable clubs to play postponed matches, and also for charity matches.

For Promotion.

The race for promotion is growing intensely interesting. With the exception of Preston North End, all the clubs in the running did much to improve their position during the holidays. The Deepdalers could only muster one point out of Lincoln City in two days. This isn't satisfactory for the North Enders, although Lincoln City are not weaklings. Derby County are well in front and they will take a bit of stopping. They have a good lead and this should be a good enough incentive. It is a long time since the baseballers had such a long run for success. After their many failures the success they are meeting with this season must be a source of pleasure to Manager Moore. The County got five points out of their Christmas engagements. They dropped a point where least expected at Nottingham.

Much Regretted.

"The decision of the S.F.A. to stop Cup-ties was an eye-opener, I am certain, to almost all followers of football in the country." So says Mr. Jack Fraser, the Dundee manager. I suppose we must swallow the pill no matter how bitter it may be. The future will show what the S.F.A. decision will entail. Many clubs are bound to be hard hit, for a source of revenue as been taken away. This point deserved careful study, and I am afraid that is just what it did not get from a number of representatives who voted for the stopping of the game.

'What a pity, the ties have been abandoned. All the enthusiasm evaporates with that decision, and pleasure is denied those at home and abroad. I fail to find a reason for it. If League football can proceed, why not Cup-tie football? A great mistake has been made."

Football Victims.

After J. H. D. Watson, Francis Oakeley. The second of the English international Rugby football players of last season has laid down his life for his country, the cheery halfback of the royal navy having been reported lost through some sort of submarine mishap.

Without having been really brilliant, F. E. Oakeley was a useful scrimmage-worker, fearless in defence and in his collection of the ball from the toes of the opposition, quick to dispose of the ball once he had gathered it, and a useful if not fast runner.

Dawson Hurt.

Dawson, centre forward of the Blackburn Rovers F.C., who was badly injured on Christmas Day, is not expected to return to the team for several weeks. His absence may have had much to do with his team's cup defeat at Swansea.

Hearts' Great Record.

The finest record of any club in first-class football in the United Kingdom is possessed by the Heart of Midlothian. Up to the end of December they had played 21 games in the Scottish League, of which they have won 19, lost 1, and drawn 1, their goal totals being 52 for and only 13 against.

Footballers Suspended.

The English Football Cup ties resulted in a number of unpleasant incidents resulting in players being sent off the field. The following suspensions have been inflicted: Harrison of Everton, on month; Parker, of Everton, one week; Barson, of Barnsley, one month; Orme of Millwall, Jones, of Clapton, a fortnight each; Martin, of Grimsby, two months; Davidson, of Middlesbrough, and Linsell, of Goole, severally cautioned.

St. Andrew's	1	2	0	2
St. Paul's	0	3	0	3

St. Luke's keep up their winning gait in the Church Hockey League. Last night the Butcher-Hagerman, etc., combination tucked away the Murray St. team by 3 goals to 0. St. Luke's have yet to meet defeat. They were always going last night.

St. John's had an easy win over St. Paul's, beating the Presbyterians 7 to 1, while George St. won from St. Andrew's by 6 to 0. There was a big crowd in attendance.

"Ack" Hunter refereed all three contests.

HOCKEY GOSSIP

Victorias beat Riversides in a Senior O.H.A. game last night by 7 to 5. Three Peterborough boys figured in the game. Denison and Crane for the Riversides, and Hefferman for the Vics. Denison is especially mentioned in the despatches.

Lindsay Juniors play in Cobourg to-night. Cap Simpson's bunch must win to keep in the running. Cobourg promises to beat both Port Hope and Lindsay, but the task looks like a big one for the Corktown youngsters. The group standing is as follows:

	W.	L.	T.	P
Port Hope	4	1	0	1
Lindsay	2	1	0	3
Peterborough	2	3	0	1
Cobourg	0	3	0	3

Junior Church League.

Last night from 7 to 8 o'clock, Charlotte St. won from All Saints' in the Junior Church League, by 5 to 1. The play was in All Saints' territory two-thirds of the time. The game was quite fast and made more interesting by individual rushes. Taylor and Campbell were all Saints' best, while the pick of Charlotte St. were Soden, Cherrett and McWilliams. The half-time score was 3-0. Mr. James Milloy refereed satisfactorily. The teams:

Tactics of Grand Duke Nicholas Prove a Mystery to the German Observers

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Mlawa is the objective of Russian forces that have advanced in Poland, and indications point to the beginning of an enveloping movement on the German armies posted along the Mazurian Lakes in East Prussia, the clearing of which theatre from enemy troops would greatly facilitate a forward advance into West Prussia, with its tremendous political effects. The strategy of the Russians in the eastern theatre of war still remains a puzzle to Berlin war critics. First it was believed to be Silesia that was most ardently desired by the Czar, and huge masses of Germans and Austrians were collected to relieve Cracow. The utmost these could do was to cause the Russians to fall back a few miles. If the Russians in their new drive seize some of the Prussian strategic railways anywhere, it will frustrate the plans of the German General Staff, which has apparently shot its best bolt in the person of Von Hindenburg, who has not done much so far of any great importance on the result of the war.

The presence of German troops in the rear of the Russian army which is moving along the road from Plonsk, 40 miles northwest of Warsaw, is reported here yesterday. But these are probably reconnoissance parties and appear only in small Austrians and Germans are apparently being tired out in their attack: on the Russians in Central Poland and Galicia, for they are delivering only intermittent attacks. These indicate an exhaustion of the supply of fresh troops, and either signifies that their forces are being used up or that considerable numbers have been withdrawn for another move, probably to attack the Russian advances in the north and into Hungary. The enemy, however, may be concentrating for an assault intended to be overwhelming.

Armchair critics who believed that the Russians would be content with defeating the Turkish invasion of the Caucasus and would stand on the defensive or divert their strength to Persia are not borne out by the latest announcement that the Russians have occupied Ardanutoch, 60 miles northwest of Kars, the scene of the famous defence by Gen. Williams, the Nova Scotian soldier, in the Crimean war. As an Anglo-Indian force is moving somewhere up the Tigris on the Euphrates river, against Bagdad, the Russians may decide to hurry on their advance, join hands with their allies, cut the Turks in Persia off from the Turks in Syria, and menace Syria. Turkish rearguards retreated precipitately when attacked by the Cossacks.

The Austrian force in Transylvania, across the border from southeramost Bukowina, has retired from Valis Potni and Petsekaniah, before the Russians, says a despatch from Bucharest to The Evening News.

The Russians crossed the border four days ago from Funel Moldowi to Csokanesehtie, and confronted the Austrians, who fell back rather than give battle at that point.

A Daily News despatch from Petrograd yesterday said:

"The Germans in Poland are beginning to realise that they are under the tragic compulsion of having to lay their hopes on the Austrians, who are protecting their right flank. Their two months' struggle towards the middle of the Vistula has brought them only enormous losses and has not prevented the Russians from steadily developing their advance in the Carpathians and Bukowina. Von Hindenburg is seeking to make virtue of the necessity and professes in Germany that he has successfully accomplished the first stage of his campaign and established himself in positions suitable for preparing a renewed effort. The exact contrary is the truth. His armies are in positions useless for them; really accidental positions where they have been halted from sheer exhaustion.

AN ADDRESS ON LLOYD GEORGE

Before the Life Problem Club by Mr. G. N. Gordon on Sunday Afternoon

At the meeting of the Life Problem Club, on Sunday afternoon next, Mr. G. N. Gordon will give an address on Lloyd George. The meeting is called for 4.15, and there should be a large attendance as the subject is of extreme interest. Mr. Douglas Carlisle will sing.

Millbrook People Call Rev. C. H. Cook

Successor to Rev. Wm. Johnston Is From Hamilton Presbytery—No Date Set for Induction

The Presbyterians of Millbrook have issued a call to Rev. C. H. Cook of the Hamilton Presbytery, to succeed Rev. William Johnston, now of the Whitby Presbytery.

At a meeting of the Presbytery of Peterborough held in St. Paul's Church, yesterday, Rev. Mr. Craw of Springville was appointed to prosecute the call. Provisional arrangements were made for the induction, but the date is not yet known. Rev. J. A. McKenzie of Knox Church will preach, Rev. Mr. Craw will address the minister, while Rev. R. Pogue of St. Paul's will address the people.

Copies of the proposed new Presbyterian Hymnal were distributed among the members of the Presbytery for their perusal.

PRESENTATION TO CAPT. CARRUTHERS

Former Manager of Dominion Express Company Will Take Up His New Duties In Kingston

The employees of the Dominion Express Company gathered in the Hunter Street office last night for the purpose of bidding farewell to Mr. A. G. Carruthers, who up until the time of his appointment to the position of Quartermaster with the second Canadian contingent, was manager of the Dominion Express Company, a position which he held for many years to the satisfaction of all concerned. Captain Carruthers was presented with a handsome set of pipes, which was accompanied by a few words of appreciation of his services to those with whom he was associated.

His place in the local office of the Dominion Express Company will be filled by Mr. D. F. Martin. Captain Carruthers left for Kingston last evening.

NO CONCESSION MADE.

Britain Refuses To Yield In Case of Steamship Dacia.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The official attitude of Great Britain in the case of the Dacia was declared last night in a formal statement issued by the British Embassy at Washington.

The statement follows:

"In connection with the transfer of the Dacia from the German to the American flag, the British Government, while anxious to avoid causing loss to the shippers of her cargo, have found it impossible to agree that the transfer in the circumstances in which it had been effected, is valid. In accordance with the accepted principles of international law, it, therefore, the Dacia should proceed to sea and should be captured, the British Government will find themselves obliged to bring the ship (apart from the cargo) before the prize court.

"It is stated that the cargo of the Dacia is to consist solely of cotton owned by American citizens. If this is so, and if the vessel should be captured, the British Government will guarantee either to purchase the cargo at the price which would have been realized by the shippers if the cargo had reached its foreign destination, or if preferred they will undertake to forward the cotton to Rotterdam without further expense to the shippers."

The State Department yesterday notified the owners of the Dacia that she must, of course, sail at her own risk. The Department has, after the receipt of the British Embassy statement, a very clear idea of the situation.

PERSECUTING JEWS.

Turks Have Begun a Campaign Against the Zionists.

LONDON, Jan. 22. — A despatch from Cairo to The Evening News declares that the Turks are busily concentrating in the vicinity of Beersheba and it is believed that their advance upon Egypt is timed to begin on Jan. 27, the Kaiser's birthday.

Prompted by Berlin, Djemal Pasha, commander-in-chief of the army intended for an attack on the Suez Canal, appears to have undertaken the systematic destruction of the entire work of Jewish colonization built by the labor of thirty years and the expenditure of millions of dollars.

A proclamation has been issued ordering the destruction, under pain of death, of all Zionist documents and all papers relating to Jewish colonization. In many cases the land settled by the Jews has been handed over to the Arabs and wheat collected by the Relief Committee of Galilee has been confiscated in order to feed the army.

CHURCHGOERS ROBBED.

TORONTO, Jan. 22.—When devout Roman Catholics rose from their knees in different city churches during the past few days a few found that their purses and chatelaines had disappeared. Detectives Cronin and Mitchell, who have been working on the case, and who made three arrests in connection with the thefts last night, state that although only two women have reported the loss of money, several other cases had occurred in the Roman Catholic churches.

Frank Kelly, 125 Lakeview avenue; Frank Barrett, 25 Euclid avenue, and John Smith, 523 Euclid avenue, were arrested and charged with the theft of purses belonging to Mrs. O'Connor, 558 Ontario street, and Mrs. Kate Harrison, 38 Pembroke street.

The police say that the three men, purporting to be Roman Catholics and acquainted with the services of the church, had little trouble in working unmolested.

Accused Soldiers on Bail.

WELLAND, Jan. 22.—Corpl. Archie Kayo and Privates Kissman and Macintosh of the 44th Canadian Infantry, charged with manslaughter in connection with the shooting of Walter Smith, the American duck hunter, at Fort Erie, Dec. 28, were released from Welland Jail on $60,000 bail yesterday. Eight Welland merchants provided the surety. The men at once joined their company at Bridgeburg.

AND STILL THEY WHISTLE.

Dear Critics—some people apparently do not appreciate art. Whistling may become an art just the same as any other method of producing music and I think I may say that I have raised whistling to that higher standard. If one goes into any vaudeville theatre, they will probably listen to an entire act put on by a whistler and will applaud most heartily, but when I, in my innocence, entertain freely, I receive nothing but abuse. But I have been told by several musical critics that my rendering of different pieces is superb, and as for my execution—they are in favour of it. I am caged up all day and my spirits become so depressed that on stepping forth again into the clear air I involuntarily burst forth into melodious whistling. Like any other art whistling requires daily practice, and if I appear to be exercising my talent at the wrong time, it is because I am detained and find it impossible to break away any sooner.

At the same time I would like to impress upon my critics the fact that by their objections they are nipping in the bud the hopes of a rising young artist, and that the hour of my practice does not arise from choice, but by force of circumstances, which I am unable to set forth in this brief space, but it is sufficient to say that the earlier hours of the evening are satisfactorily occupied. Taking the circumstances into consideration I pray my critics for some indulgence, which if not given, I will have to resort to the mouth organ of which instrument I am also a master. Thanking you,

NIGHTINGALE.

RUSSIAN CAVALRY FORCED TO RETIRE BY GERMAN INFANTRY

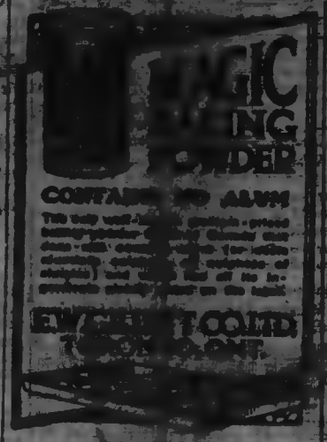
Murderous fire Poured Into Cossacks' Lines--Were Permitted to Advance Within Short Distance of German Entrenchments.

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, January 23.—Sanguinary encounters between the Cossack advance of the great Russian army, now menacing the German fortress of Thorn and the German forces southeast of Kikol, were reported in the despatches from the front to-day.

Under a murderous fire from a German infantry regiment the Russian cavalry was forced to retire. It is admitted here that the Germans wheeled light infantry into a position to support the riflemen. The Cossacks were permitted to advance to a short distance from the German entrenchments. A galling rifle and gun fire was then poured into their ranks, the outposts having clashed.

Petrograd confidently awaits news of the beginning of one of the greatest battles fought in northern Poland since the beginning of the war. Earlier in the week the Russians were sweeping towards the Prussian frontier without meeting any serious resistance. The Germans will make a stand near Kikol, about 23 miles south east of Thorn. It is now believed that a general engagement all the 40 mile battle line will begin there. Unfavourable conditions in Bukowina continue to interefere with the operations to the east, the war office declares.



A HOODOO FOLLOWED SOLDIER

Wounded Man, Driven From One Hospital to Another, Was Finally Taken to Hartlepool

SAFER IN FIRING LINE

SPECIAL CABLE:

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—The seemingly charmed life of Private Leaske, of the First Battalion of the London Scottish, has attracted considerable attention in England, according to letters recently received here.

Private Leaske has been invalided home with a severe flesh wound in the thigh, and notwithstanding his desperate experience, is now reported to be recovering.

When the war began Private Leaske was in business in Antwerp. There he remained until the investment of the city by the Germans and refused to leave when the bombardment commenced. A German shell destroyed the house in which he lived and when the fortress fell he beat a hasty retreat to England.

Having served in the London Scottish, he reenlisted in the First Battalion, with which he was sent to France later. During an engagement when the regiment was first under fire three bullets pierced his great coat, but did him no injury. The following day, however, a fourth bullet wounded him in the thigh, and he as carried off to the hospital.

It appears that the engagement was in Belgium and that he was taken to a field hospital near Ypres. The Germans shelled the place and Private Leaske was removed to another hospital farther to the south. This building also the Germans shelled and the young soldier had a very narrow escape from flying fragments of shrapnel before he was carried from the building in safety.

Fortunately his next place of retreat was far beyond the range of the German artillery, distance being a more effectual protection than the Red Cross ensign from German shell fire. There he remained until with several others he was taken to England. It was believed that then he would be harrassed no more and would be left in peace until his wound was healed.

Such was not the case, however, for he was sent to a hospital in Hartlepool. He had not been in the institution 24 hours before the German raiding cruiser squadron opened fire on the city. With unerring accuracy the German guns speedily searched out the hospital, which was one of the buildings struck.

Private Leaske then came to the conclusion that he would be much safer on the firing line and thence forward he made progress toward recovery.

He says he will not feel safe and comfortable until he rejoins his regiment at the front.

100 BOMBS DROPPED ON FRENCH COAST TOWNS

Seven Persons Reported Killed and a Score said to Have Been Injured--English Field Headquarters Attacked

PARIS, January 23.—The German fliers who attacked Dunkirk yesterday made a daring attempt to drop bombs upon the English field headquarters, it was reported here to-day. While not officially admitted it has been generally understood that General French has been directing the operations of the British forces from Dunkirk. His headquarters are believed to have been the object of the attack by the German aviators. Reports from Dunkirk to-day say that 30 persons were killed and wounded by the bombs and that a warehouse full of merchandise was set on fire and burned. English and French aviators are said to have shot down one of the German machines near Nieuport. The pilot and an observer were made prisoners.

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

LONDON, Eng., January 23.—A second Zeppelin scare that sent thousands of residents scurrying into their cellars, left London slightly unnerved to-day, although the Government took pains to deny the report that a German dirigible had again visited the east coast at Cromer. Reports of the German aerial bombardment of Dunkirk and other French coast cities across the Channel, increased the feeling of nervousness here. The reports coming by way of Paris, declared that a group of German aviators dropped almost 100 bombs on French coast towns, killing 7 persons and injuring at least a score. The report of the air raid on Dunkirk is not officially confirmed here. A careful inquiry at the various coast points to-day absolutely failed to substantiate the rumours that a Zepelin raider passed over Cromer and proceeded southward in the direction of London. The Chief of Police at Cromer ridiculed the story and said he was positive the report was untrue.

New Russian Plan of Campaign Cavalry As Chief Offensive Arm

SPECIAL CABLE:

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Granville Fortescue, the Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Warsaw, telegraphs:

"The first stages of the new Russian plan of campaign are unfolding, and before a month passes a new theatre of the war will hold the focus of the world's attention. A new offensive will develop, and the character of the warfare will be particularly suited to the composition of the Russian army.

"It will not be trench fighting. The project includes a gigantic scheme of co-operation, and, if it succeeds, it will be a remarkable demonstration of the military ability of the Russian General Staff. There is every reason to believe it will succeed.

"The cavalry is in splendid condition, and the horses are extraordinarily fit. The country over which the cavalry will operate in the new advance would not suit European mounted troops, but Russian cavalry officers assure me that it is just the terrain they like best. The new plan of campaign contemplates active operations which will continue at the shortest for six months and as much longer as the resisting power of the enemy may entail."

Prompted By Berlin the Turks Begin Persecution of Jews in Palestine

"Refugees assure me that the project of building a strategic railway to the Egyptian frontier has not been abandoned, but is being pushed forward with the utmost energy. The line now reaches Nabulus and it is intended to continue it by way of Jerusalem, Hebron and Beersheba. Troops are concentrating in the neighbourhood of Beersheba and Gaza. Mount Lebanon is said to be held by about eight thousand men and Mount Carmel to have been fortified.

"Painful accounts reach me from Palestine of the flight of Jews from the Turkish military regime. Prompted by Berlin, Djemal Pasha, the commander-in-chief, has begun a systematic destruction of the entire work of Jewish colonization built up by the labour of thirty years and the expenditure of millions of money.

"Ten days ago proclamations were issued ordering the destruction under pain of death of all Zionist documents and papers relating to Jewish colonization. In many cases land settled by the Jews was handed over to the Arabs and wheat, collected by the relief committee in Galilee, was confiscated in order to feed the army. The Moslem peasantry is being armed with weapons discovered in Jewish hands.

"A problem is presented by the refugees pouring into Alexandra by the sea route from Syrian ports which threatens to assume proportions only less formidable than those of the Belgian migrations of last autumn. Seven thousand men, women and children, ninety-five per cent. being Russian Jews, have been landed up to the present. The vast majority are absolutely destitute. Only a small number as yet have been transshipped to Russia. It is estimated the total number who will have to be dealt with may not fall far short of eighty thousand.

"The United States cruiser Tennessee has been fitted up on the lines of a troop ship for the accommodation of about fifteen hundred refugees and is plying regularly between Alexandria and Jaffa."

Electrically operated latches for automobile doors, opened when a button is pressed, have been invented.

In a new French gasoline engine the pistons are stationary, the cylinders moving up and down upon them.

Turkish War Office Says English Forces Operating North-west of Persian Gulf Were Repulsed

TURKS ON OFFENSIVE

SPECIAL CABLE:

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 23.—English forces operating in the region northwest of the Persian Gulf were repulsed with heavy losses in the renewal of their attacks near Korna, the Turkish War Office announced to-day. Three gun-boats in the Shat-El-Arab River supported the English infantry, it is declared, but they were forced retire. The Turkish losses are described as insignificant. Following the announcement that the Russian advance in the Caucasus had been halted, the War Office asserted to-day that the Turks have taken the offensive and "are now pursuing the enemy."

A Logical Dyspepsia Treatment

IMPORTANCE OF ELIMINATING ACIDITY AND FOOD FERMENTATION.

During the past two or three years reports have frequently appeared in the Press concerning the remarkable value of bisurated magnesia as an antacid; and its ability to promote normal, healthy digestion by preventing food fermentation and neutralising dangerous stomach acid has often been demonstrated. Until recently druggists could supply bisurated magnesia in powder form only, from one to two teaspoonfuls of which, taken in a little water after meals, almost instantly stops all fermentation and neutralizes acid, but sufferers from stomach trouble will be glad to learn that, after a long series of experiments, a leading firm of manufacturing druggists has now succeeded in producing a Sprudel tablet which combines all the valuable antacid properties of the ordinary bisurated magnesia in a very convenient form. This new tablet of bisurated magnesia can now be obtained of druggists everywhere and many physicians are already prescribing them instead of the powder form.

Roumania and Italy Unlikely to Remain Neutral; Black Smallpox in Vienna

SPECIAL CABLE:

LONDON, January 23.—The Daily Telegraph correspondent at Bucharest telegraphs:

"Probability of a new Austrian invasion of Servia is seriously preoccupying political circles. The danger of encircling Roumania is arising anew. Roumania will not be able to remain neutral, nor is it believd that Italy can. Roumania is prepared for every eventuality. The state of her army is excellent."

According to the Daily News advices from Rome the Italian army is also prepared.

The Morning Post's Rome correspondent telegraphs that black smallpox is reported in Vienna and 151 cases occurred this week.

JUDGE IN 6,000 DIVORCE CASES LAYS DOWN TEN COMMANDMENTS FOR ITS AVOIDANCE

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 22.—"Women are three times as faithful to their marriage vows as men, but when strife is laid at their door it is generally traced to complete ignorance of the art of cooking and a general unpreparedness for the marriage state."

Such is the logic of Judge Almon M. Warner, who closes his career of six years on Cincinnati's "divorce bench" after hearing six thousand cases of domestic woe. Excerpts from Judge Warnet's wisdom:

"If husbands have clean, comfortable, cosy homes they will not seek amusement outside."

"A marriage founded on a month's acquaintance is almost sure to be shipwrecked."

"Young folks should know each other at least a year if they expect to live a lifetime in peace and love."

"Married folks should have kindred tastes amid best of all—real love."

"Prospective voyagers on the sea of matrimony should ask themselves first: 'Will my affections remain the same when we are old and grey.'"

"Liquor is a foe to marriage and an aid to divorce."

Among the wealthier people 'the other woman is most generally the husband's fault."

"When a woman falls, she falls far lower than a man."

"If I had not been sworn to uphold laws, only scriptural grounds and absolute mental incompatibility would be grounds for divorce in my court."

"It is only the abnormally unusual family that needs court adjustment; there are millions of husbands and wives whose lives are perfect."

She Was In Bed For Seven Weeks

THEN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS CURED MADAME BERUBE.

Montreal Lady Tells How, After Four Years' Illness, She Found a Complete Cure for all Her Troubles.

Montreal, Que., Jan. 23.—(Special)—Madame J. Baptiste Berube, residing at 1303 Logan Avenue, this city, asserts that after four years' suffering from kidney disease she has been completely restored to health by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I had a pain in my left side around the heart," Madame Berube says in her statement. "I suffered constantly with headache and backache, and for seven weeks I was in bed with kidney disease and dizziness. The doctor could not help me, so I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"After the first box I was some better. I continued to use Dodd's Kidney Pills till now the palpitation has left me, and I am a well woman, able to do my work. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me and I recommend them to all persons who suffer as I did."

Notice how many women are rising to tell their suffering sisters they can find relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills. The reason is that nine-tenths of women's ills spring from diseased or disordered kidneys. Every woman whose kidneys show signs of weakness should use Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"THE BATTLE CRY"

CHAPTER XXIII.

Though Anse Havey strode up the steep trail to the crest that night with long elastic strides, seeking to burn up the restlessness which obsessed him, he found himself at the top with no wish for sleep, and no patience with the idea of confining his thoughts between walls. It was better out here under the setting moon and the twinkling stars, even though he wore no overcoat and rims of ice were forming along the edges of the water courses.

His mind travelled back in review over the past—a past that had never been lighted with cheer or happiness. His whole life heretofore had sought satisfaction in a fierce devotion to one passionate ideal—his people. It had been a sum of stern days and not since his mother had told him Indian stories under this same tree did he remember a single clear note of tenderness or sweetness in its tune or tenor.

Down in Frankfort he had walked silently with his chin in the air and a challenge in his eye. About him had been the suave and tricky politicians of the cities and the high-headed, aristocratic sons of the Bluegrass, and there among them, but not of them, he had felt like a poor boy at a frolic. His assumption of arrogant aggressiveness had really been only a mask for a painful diffidence, so that if any lip felt an inclination to curl at this tall saturnine lawmaker from the far hills, no lip gave expression to the impulse.

He had stood apart at the Inaugural Ball, looking out on the flash and colour of the evening dress and the uniformed staff with a feeling of contempt. A beautiful woman with pearls sparkling softly on her neck had whispered to her escort as they passed him, "What a splendid savage! He looks like a wild chief at a durbar."

But to-night Anse Havey felt that something was missing from his life; something of the barbarian order had become suddenly hateful to him. Into the grey eyes crept a dumb suffering and the brows came together in helpless perplexity.

Juanita was a woman of an exotic race who chose to think that life comes to perfection only under glass. He was a leader of a briar-tangled and shaggy clan; men who were thin to the eagles. No menace or threat of death had ever made him deviate from his loyalty to that people. But now a foreign woman had come and he was comparing himself with the well-dressed, soft-voiced man who was her visitor, and feeling himself a creature of repellant uncouthness. He found himself wishing that he, too, was smoother. Then he flung the thought from him with bitter self-contempt and a low oath broke from his lips. Was he growing ashamed of his life? Was he wishing that his eagle's talons might be manicured and his pinions combed? "If ye've done come down to that, Anse Havey," he said aloud, "it's about time ye kilt yourself."

No, he protested to his soul, he had disliked Roger Malcolm because Roger Malcolm had spoken of a project of plunder, and stood for his enemies of the future, but his soul answered that he thought little of that, and that it was of the obvious understanding existing between the man and Juanita Holand that a new hatred had ben born in his heart.

After Anse had gone Malcolm and the girl turned back to the fire-lit hall and sat a while in silence. When from her lips came something very like a sigh, Roger took the pipe from his mouth with a quick instinctive movement.

"What is it, dear?" he whispered, as he bent forward closer to her, longing to take her in his arms.

"Why didn't you tell me," she inquired with a note of reproach, "that aside from seeing me, you had another mission here?"

"The other mission was nothing," he declared. "I came to see you. I didn't tell you that I was also representing an Eastern Syndicate because I wanted first to form a more definite opinion. I thought you'd be pleased. You came down here, against all my protestations, with one idea in your dear head. You were bent on development in a country that has stood still for two centuries. You are spending the best of your youth and enthusiasm and vitality in that effort."

He broke off and his eyes told her how he wanted to see her spend her youth and enthusiasm and vitality, but she met his gaze with troubled eyes, and said only, "Well?"

"Well, I wanted to work to the same end; to be, in a fashion, your partner in endeavour. Don't you know that before civilization can go into any place where it has not been, it must have roads over which to go? Civilization has only one great agency—highways. The Roman ditch and wall have long ago crumbled, but the Roman roads are still her monuments. That was my ambition. I should be a road-builder doing a man's work and doing it at your side."

"It seems," she said a little wearily, "that we can't even understand each other without explanations. I have no right of course to argue with you against the profitable investment of your money, but don't let's call it by glittering and misleading names."

"I'm afraid," he said, "that I don't quite understand you, either. I spoke sincerely."

"I don't mean to be nasty-tempered and unsympathetic—" she assurhim in a softer voice. "I had the same ideas a year ago. I believed in civilizing people by, force, too—then. But I don't now. I know that out of all this the native men and women will reap no benefit—that they will be nothing better than evicted creatures. And you see, Roger—" her voice became tender—"it's not just the rocks and faggots of the eagle's eyrie that I'm interested in; it's the old eagles and the little fledgling eagles themselves."

"My plan looks to the building a nobler and more symmetrical structure on the site of that pile of faggots," he argued; "a structure that shall endure."

"I know," she said, nodding her head. "Some centuries hence the world will see only that, and praise you. But I'm thinking of this century, Roger dear. Your structure must rise on ruins and the ashes of conquest. Your march of civilization must be predatory, as such marches always have been. It will mean driving the people who can only be led. What manner of men will come at your front?"

"Decent young chaps with transit and chain," he assured her. "The sort of fellows who are always at the front of marching progress; the sort of men who do the world's work."

"You forget the men that go ahead of them; the real vanguard," she retorted. "They are purchasable natives; hangers-on at the dirty fringe of things; the native shyster will be fighting your battles in Court; the native assassin who does not kill from distorted sense of honour, but for the foreign dollar, will be disposing of enemies whom your shysters can't handle."

"Surely," said the man, "you don't think I'd countenance such damnable methods as that?"

"No," she spoke in a low voice, "you'll just light a fire that you can't control, that's all."

"If you feel that way, I'll draw out of it," he hastened to assure her.

"I'm afraid," she answered, "it's too late. You must report back to your colleagues. Perhaps you'd better stay in and try to control them."

* * * * * * *

At the scant welcome of his greeting, young Milt McBriar stiffened a little from head to foot, though he had not anticipated any great degree of cordiality.

He climbed the stile and walked across the moonlit patch of trampled clay to where the girl stood, weak-kneed with fright in the lighted frame of the door.

"Jeb," he said slowly, to the boy who had stepped down into the yard, "how air ye?" Then turning to Dawn, with his hat in his hand, he greeted her gravely.

But the son of the murdered man stood very still and rigid and repeated in a hard voice, "What ther hell does ye want hyar?"

"I come over hyar ter see Dawn," was the calm response and then as the girl leaned for support against the dirty frame, convulsively moistening her dry lips with her tongue, she saw her brother's hand sweep under his coat and come out gripping a heavy revolver. Jeb had never gone armed before that night when Fletch fell. Now he was never unarmed.

"Don't, Jeb!" she screamed in a transport of alarm, as she braced herself and summoned strength to seize the hand that held the weapon. Jeb shook her roughly off and wheeled again to face the visitor, with the precaution of a sidewise leap. He had expected that the other boy would have used that moment of interference to draw a weapon, but the young McBriar was standing in the same attitude, holding his hat in one hand while he reassured the girl. "Don't fret, Dawn; thar hain't nothin' ter worry about," he said calmly. Then facing the brother, he went on in a voice of cold and almost scornful composure.

"Thet hain't ther first time ye've seed me acrost the sights of a gun, is it, Jeb?"

"What does ye mean by thet?" The other boy's face went brick-red, and he lowered his muzzle with a sense of sudden shame.

"Oh, I heered about how old Bob McGreegor told ye a passel of lies about me, an' how ye come acrost ther ridge one day. I reckon I kin guess the rest."

"Well, what of hit?" Jeb stood with his pistol now hanging at his side, but in his eyes still glowed the fire of hatred.

"Jest this," young McBriar went on. "I ain't got no gun on me. I ain't even got a jack-knife. I 'lowed that ye mout be right-smart incensed at my comin' hyar an' I come without no weapon on purpose. Ef ye hain't skeerd of me when I'm unarmed, I reckon ye kin put yore own gun back in ther holster."

Jeb McNash slowly followed the suggestion, and then, coming forward until the two boys stood eye to eye, he said in deliberate accents, "I reckon ye don't 'low I'm skeered of ye."

"I reckon not." Young Milt's tone was almost cheerful. "I reckon ye air jest about as much skeered of me as I am of you—an' that ain't none."

Essential Elements.— The person that is well seldom thinks about what he eats beyond the pleasant taste and his own particular likes and dislikes. He does not stop to ask as to the various chemical elements and the real food value. While I really pity the hypersensitive person who constantly worries about the possible effect of every morsel of food eaten and who must know just how much of nitrates, carbonates and phosphates are contained in the various dishes placed before him, his ultimate condition will be no worse than that of him who is utterly indifferent or ignorant of food values.

To illustrate I might tell you of a certain form of disease known as beri-beri. This disease has been one of the scourges of the tropics. During the Russia-Japanese war it was the cause of the greatest amount of sickness with which they had to content. The disease has been a long-standing evil in the Philippines and in the Federated Malay states, as well as in China.

The cure was very simple when the cause was once found out. The principal food of the people in these countries is rice. It was found that those who suffered from beri-beri used the polished rice, the same kind that we use in America. Those who used the unpolished rice did not have the disease and when the materials polished off from the rice was fed in small quantities to those suffering from the disease, they quickly recovered. A careful analysis of the polishings revealed in infinitiamal quantity of what the scientists call vitamines, but which in common language means simple, living substance. A further investigation showed that in a ton of rice there are only about ten grains of this vital substance and yet when the food is robbed of this essential element the user loses muscular power and becomes emaciated, suffers with peripheral neuritis and final complete exhaustion.

Now, there are certain vitamines in fresh or uncooked fruits and vegetables, and that are not found in meats or other cooked foods, and those who wish to be always well should see to it that some kind of fresh fruit and vegetable is made a part of the daily diet. In some homes one meal daily is made up wholly of uncooked foods. Fresh and dried fruits, nuts and vegetables properly combined make a delightful and satisfying meal.

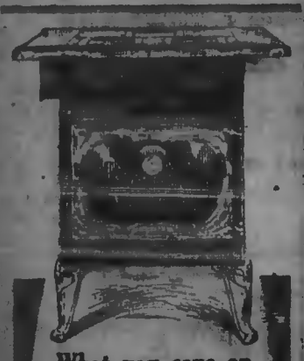
FOR BLACKHEADS.

Blackheads are caused by dirt settling into enlarged pores, and aggravated by indigestion, brought on by over rich food. Avoid rich, greasy food; exercise in the open air, and drink plenty of pure water.

Mix four ounces of green soap, four ounces distilled witch hazel. Apply every second day, rub in well, then wash off immediately with hot water. For a face wash use the following: One pint of alcohol and two ounces of oil of lavender. Put two tablespoonfuls into the rinsing water and use after the face has been well washed.

COLOURED HANDKERCHIEFS.

To set delicate colours in an embroidered handkerchief, soak ten minutes previous to washing in a pail of tepid water, in which a dessertspoonful of turpentine has been stirred.



What you save on meat will help pay for this Range

IT is a well-known fact that the shrinkage of meat in a gas oven is about one quarter of its original weight. You pay $1.00 for a Roast and when it comes out of the gas oven you have only 75c. worth left.

Now when you cook in the electric oven there is practically no shrinkage. Imagine, therefore, what you save in one year cooking by electricity with a

MOFFAT Electra

IN addition, this electric range does away with dirt, fumes and odor. It is simple to operate, easy to keep clean, and absolutely safe.

SAVED BY GOOD FISTS

Two Members of Small Command Survived Dash Through Barricade

A series of thrilling adventures was related by an officer of Lancers who returned to London from the front and was waiting to rejoin his regiment.

I was, with my squadron, cut off from my regiment at the battle of the Aisne, he said. I had succeeded in extricating my men from a very difficult position, when we were espied by a large body of Uhlans, who immediately pursued us. We were, of course, quite outnumbered.

My command was too small to warrant my endangering the lives of my men in an engagement which could only have but one ending, so we endeavored to escape. We were, at the time, near a small village, through which our road led. We were galloping madly down the road when a sudden bend revealed to us a large barricade manned by Germans. We had no alternative but to ride straight at the obstacle, which we accordingly did.

All our horses were shot. But I and another man had the good fortune to fall right over the barricade. My companion proved to be a prize-fighter, and, having lost his weapons, he lay about him with his fists. Together we managed to break through, and, dashing down a side street, at length contrived to hide in a wood. Although pursued by the Germans we were not discovered, and the next day luckily for us, they left the neighborhood.

We were now in the enemy's country and were only able to travel by night, having to remain in hiding during the day. We were greatly helped by the peasants, who gave us food and French peasants' dress to wear. On one occasion the Germans entered a village where we were hiding, and we were only saved by being hid under a bed until they left. They had heard there were some soldiers in hiding in that village, and we had a very close shave, as they searched the very house in which we were.

At length, after eight nights' weary marching, hiding by day and journeying by night, we covered the 130 odd miles which separates Soissons from Boulonge. Here we were able to take ship for England, where, in due course, we reported ourselves at headquarters.

BAITED WITH SARDINES

German Soldier Would Not Resist—Was Fed and Made Prisoner

At several points on the battle line, the French trenches are within 50 yards of the Germans, and not infrequently, in the intervals between active hostilities, and interchange of more or less uncomplimentary remarks takes place.

At one such place a French soldier shouted across to the Germans opposite the information that he and his comrades were making a satisfying meal on a "mixed grill" of cheese, sausage and sardines.

The German retorted that the Frenchmain was a liar, whereupon an empty tin was thrown at him for evidence.

He admitted the weight of it, but suggested that it would have been better had the tin been a full one. A few seconds after a full tin fell a little way in advance of his trench, and a German, who was half-famished and careless of consequences, began to clamber after it, only to find that the Frenchman had tied a string to it, whereby they were able to keep it out of his reach.

A roar of laughter went up and a voice called to him that if he wanted sardines he must come to the French lines to eat them. The German hesitated, and then came and ate, after which he was taken to the commander.

The British Red Cross

Queen Alexandra is president of the British Red Cross Society, which was founded in 1905, and incorporated by Royal Charter in 1908. Though the British Red Cross Society is affiliated with the International Association of Red Cross Societies, it is, as in the case of every country, worked upon a quite independent basis.

Roughly, the British society is divided into two parts—the men's and the women's detachments—and some idea of the progress made since the inauguration in 1905 may be gathered from the fact that at the present time the British Red Cross Society can turn out nearly 58,000 nurses—men and women—in nearly two thousand detachments.

General von Bernhardi, Germany's military expert, said: "It is very questionable whether the British army is capable of acting on the offensive against Continental European troops."

CHOICE RECIPES

Steamed Cherry Cups.

Sift together several times, two cupfuls of flour and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, and a scant half-teaspoonful of salt; mix to a soft dough with cold water. Butter some custard cups and drop in a little of the dough, then add a tablespoonful of canned cherries; cover with dough and place in a steamer; cover well, and steam inside the cups for thirty minutes. Serve with sweetened, rich cream.

Baked Spare Ribs.

Anyone that likes spare ribs will find this an improvement over boiling them. Put spare ribs in cold water and let cook for almost an hour. Into a baking dish put a layer of raw sliced potatoes, then a layer of raw sliced onions. Lay the spare ribs on this and finish with another layer of onions and the top layer of potatoes. Add enough hot water to half fill dish and bake one hour, covered the first half-hour. Serve with boiled cabbage.

Boiled Raisin Cake.

One package of sultana raisins, quarter-pound of citron (cut fine), one cup of sugar, half-teaspoonful of ground cloves, one teaspoon of ground cloves, one teaspoon of ground cinnamon, one large tablespoon of butter, one and one-half cups of water.

Place on stove and let boil for five minutes.

Then sift two cups of flour, and two teaspoons of baking powder, add to boiled ingredients, and bake in moderate oven.

Scalloped Okra.

Open a can of okra; put a layer in the bottom of a baking-dish, then a layer of the thick part of canned tomatoes, a sprinkling of chopped onions, salt, pepper, and then bread-crumbs; then again okra, and so continue to fill the baking dish until you have the desired quantity, having the last layer of breadcrumbs; put here and there bits of butter, and bake in a quick oven 20 minutes.

How to Pull Candy.

When the candy is ready to pull, handle as little as possible. Throw it over the hook or nail, and take hold of it with thumb and middle finger if you can, throw it over the hook lightly and draw it down lightly. When pulling, put the flavouring on the candy, a little at a time, and pull it in. It is much nicer than putting flavouring in while hot. One can make candy tough by pulling the wrong way.

Molasses Candy.

One cup of molasses, three cups of sugar, one cup of water, one cup of vinegar. When boiled up, one-half cup of melted butter. When done take off the stove and stir briskly, turn at once in greased pan, watch the edges and turn into the centre as it cools. When ready to handle altogether, proceed as above. Test in the usual way when done. Drop a little in cold water, and when brittle it is done.

WORTH REMEMBERING.

Mushrooms once cooked should never be warmed up, as they are liable to be injurious.

When baking potatoes, prick a few holes in the skin. This will keep them from bursting.

To clean a meerschaum pipe, place it in a saucepan of cold, sweet milk, and bring it gradually to scalding heat.

Do not keep canned fruits in your pantry. Canned fruit should be kept in a cold, dark, dry part of the cellar.

If using lamp-wicks, buy those which are loosely woven, as they burn best.

HEALTH WRECKED THROUGH LA GRIPPE

It Generally Leaves the Patient Debilitated and An Easy Victim to Other Diseases

One of the foremost medical writers says: "It is astonishing the number of people who have been crippled in health for years after an attack of la grippe or influenza." The real danger from this disease, which sweeps over Canada every winter, is during convalescence, when the characteristic symptoms, the fever, the catarrh, the headache and the depression of spirits pass away. Grip leaves behind it weakened vital powers, thin blood, impaired digestion and over-sensitive nerves — a condition that makes the system an easy prey to pneumonia, bronchitis, rheumatism, nervous prostration and even consumption. It is a condition that calls most emphatically for a tonic for the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic especially adapted to meet this need as they purify and enrich the blood. They tone up the nerves and give vigour, strength and health to the debilitated system. Mrs. Howard B. Chaffey, Indian Island, N.B., says: "For several winters in succession I was attacked by la grippe, which left me weak and badly run down. In each case I used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with the most beneficial results. Last winter when the trouble was again prevalent I took the precaution of fortifying my system with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and escaped the trouble, while many of my neighbours were down with it. In fact I enjoyed the best of health all spring and feel sure this medicine will so fortify the system as to prevent the trouble."

These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

OXO CUBES

In the Navy

A Naval man on one of our warships wrote when ordering further supplies of OXO CUBES:—

"The finest recommendation, I think, lies in the fact that" "this is a repeat order for a larger amount (of OXO CUBES)" "in order to guard against the rigours of the climate."

The coming of Winter always emphasises the value of OXO CUBES. They provide warmth, sustenance and energy to withstand the exhausting strain of the cold winter months, and enable one to recover quickly from fatigue and exposure. In the home they are handy for preparing soups, savouries, and gravies; or for a hot nourishing food-beverage at any time.

One of the most striking features of OXO CUBES is they meet the needs of all classes—and all ages.

"OXO Cubes come in so handy."

"Before I close could I ask you to send me some OXO CUBES. THEY COME IN SO HANDY in the middle of the night, and it is so freezing cold at sea now."

THE WORK OF THE HUNS

Splendid Chateau of a Neutral American Completely Sacked

Mr. W. H. Payne, an American, who owns a chateau at Rosoy, on the Oise, but who was absent when the district in which it is situated was occupied first by British and then by German troops, pays eloquent tribute to the British and denounces the Germans with the utmost vigor for wholesale plundering. He states that the flag of the United States was flying from the chateau when the British retired, having done no harm, their officers not even using the bedrooms as sleeping apartments.

When the Huns arrived the American flag was torn down, and this is what happened to the chateau as related by its owner: "No words can describe the condition inside the chateau, of the lawns, the alleys and the wooded park after the Germans had left. In fact, of the many thousands of dollars' worth of personal property there is not enough left of value to pay transport to Paris and commission on sale. All armories, sideboards, vitrines, writing desks, closets in nineteen bedrooms and elsewhere were opened by bayonets or heavy tools, and all broken, torn up, destroyed or taken away. All objets d'arts of value were taken away. All genuine silver, such as tea and coffee services, dining-room service, gold and silver dressing toilettes, silver mirrors and candlesticks were all taken away.

"All that remained were a gold glove stretcher, a silver nail brush cover (flattened out and destroyed) and a candlestick broken in three pieces and some plated silver. All table and other glassware and most of a porcelain table service, all of a large pharmacie stock, perfumeries, etc., were taken or smashed into small bits. All ancient lace bedspreads, lace curtains, lace pillow cases and various pieces of ancient lace, as well as household linen of every sort, were used for the wounded, to wrap up the dead before burying, torn up or taken away.

"Nineteen bedrooms in the chateau and outbuildings were furnished complete. Not one blanket, sheet, pillowcase or eiderdown covering remains. All curtains were pulled down, linings torn out, destroyed or used for covering the wounded. All bed and lounge mattresses, pillows, springs and furniture were soaked with blood, medicine, etc. No clothing, shoes or hats were left belonging to my wife, self or my eight servants. Some dresses of my wife were slashed with knives and left hanging.

"Of over a thousand bottles of wine, including champagnes, port, very old red, white and Rhine wines, besides old cognac, liquors, whiskey, Benedictine, etc.—not one bottle remains. Only broken and empty bottles were found strewn all over the park."

Of the desolation left behind the German armies as they pass over the country this is a most striking picture. No wonder France resists to the death.

To Lengthen the Life of Rubbers.

Before wearing your rubbers rub them well with vaseline, lard or sweet oil, letting it remain on for a day or two. The greater part will be absorbed by the rubber, and the grease will prevent the rubber from breaking. The superfluous oil can be removed with a soft cloth. Children's rubbers, especially, will last longer if treated this way.

IN THE CARPATHIANS

LAKE STRBA IN HIGH TATRA MOUNTAINS, 5700 FEET ABOVE SEA LEVEL, WEST OF UZSOK PASS

By Milan Getting.

DOWN from the north, one horde pressing hard on the heels of another, have come the Russians through Galicia, where are many "little Russians," as they are called, having much in common with the invaders.

On the Tsar's troops pressed to the Carpathian Mountains, which make an all but insuperable barrier between Galicia and Slovensko! But no barrier can stop these fighting men from the north, and where little rivers find a sinuous passage or where the engineers have detected a weak spot for a railway, there the Russians have pushed on, into the land of the Slovaks—a lovable, industrious people who have, in spite of the cruelty of fate and the proximity of their vigorous and dominating neighbors, the Magyars, preserved at least [illegible] of a distinct nationality.

The Slovaks have suffered from the rule of various aliens and successive incursions of hostile neighbors. Their romantic and picturesque country is full of remains of the splendor of other days. On the hills stand the ruins of many ancient castles. Traditions and legends abound.

The world sympathizes with the Belgians in the extremity of their distress and has long admired and pitied the Poles in their patriotic struggles against the doom of national extinction. The inhabitants of the Carpathian Mountains, who have suffered no less, have escaped observation since they have lacked the means of presenting their case to the world.

About seven hundred thousand of the Slovaks have emigrated to America, where they may read a Slovak newspaper and speak their own language without reproach. Many of them leave with the intention of returning when they have made a little money, but the democratic privileges of the New World unfit them to live again in a country where almost all the land is owned by the crown and the aristocracy—where privileges are few and poverty bitter. So they go home for their families and return to America to become citizens of the republic, many of them to endure the hard and unlovely life in the mines or the mills, although their own land is one of the most beautiful in the world.

In spite of their lack of schools, the Slovaks have an art and a literature of which they are justly proud. They are passionately fond of music and have songs for every occasion in life. The art feeling of the Slovaks finds expression in pottery, which is noted for its richness of coloring and beauty of design. In their dress, too, they carry out their love of decoration. Even in poor villages the Slovaks can dress gorgeously, as they do all their sewing and needlework. Wherever embroideries have been exhibited under the name of Hungarian peasant embroideries, the prize winning work has been that of the Slovak women.

The women do their embroidery mainly in the winter, as the field work hardens their fingers in the summer, although it is surprising to see them, even then, after a hard day's work sit down with their needlework in the evening. They often embroider without patterns and they employ the greatest variety of stitches, combining with the embroidery, lace and drawn work. All kinds of motifs, from the flowers and sometimes birds and animals, are introduced in the embroidery. Among the well to do Slovaks a bride may have sixty or even eighty bonnets ("parta" (headpieces), thirty detachable sleeves, thirty petticoats and other things in proportion.

In the present war the Slovaks are looking to the Russians as their liberators. It is one of the ironies of the situation that two of the Hungarian army corps should be recruited from the Slovaks. The Russians without any reward liberated Bulgaria and Servia from the Turkish yoke, and it is promised that all the Slavonic nations, especially the Poles and Servians, will help to liberate the Slavs in Austria-Hungary. Therefore, we are looking for a brighter future and hope that another Magna Moravia may be founded where the Czechs and Slovaks may develop their own civilization.

With the fall of Cracow the Russians could march through the Carpathian Mountains and the western passes of the Tatra Mountains, through the Slovak country to Budapest and thence to Vienna.

Pneumonia is described as a preventable disease if taken in time.

Pneumonia is the scourge of the able-bodied men and women "a little run down perhaps" but strong in the belief that they can fight off a cold. Colds are not easily fought off in this northern climate.

On the first sign of a cough or cold, our advice to you is "GET RID OF IT."

The slight cold, the irritating cough, the tightness of the chest, if not attended to, will sooner or later develope into some serious lung or bronchial trouble.

GET A BOTTLE OF

and you will find after the first two or three doses have been taken the cough or cold will quickly disappear.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; the price, 25c and 50c.

Be sure you see that the name of The T. Milburn Co., Limited, appears on both the label and wrapper.

Mrs. Edward Hugo, Moose Jaw, Sask., writes: "My little girl, three years old, contracted a bad cold which settled on her lungs, and turned into pneumonia, and she was given up by our doctor. I decided to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and by the time she had taken three bottles she was well again. I shall always keep a bottle of "Dr. Wood's" in the house."

CHAPTER XXI.

Lucille indulges a Feminine Instinct.

LUCILLE thrilled with inexpressible delight when she found herself once more in San Francisco, the place where last she had seen her sweetheart. She imagined him roving the city, using every means in his power to find her. She knew he had led the assault upon that house, and that not even the secret exit made by the occupants could divert him from his purpose of finding her. But she had a far better chance than he with Loubeque. She only caught herself hoping that the international spy would return to his home.

Not for the cunning brain of such a one as the spy to go back to a place from which he had been driven and which he had every reason to believe would be under surveillance. Instead of doing this he promptly took a motor to the St. Francis, relying upon the very audacity of his move to protect him.

Lucille followed him quietly, almost meekly. They had but little to say to each other. Both knew the other's thoughts too well to waste time in words; both knew the other's relentlessness of purpose. And, more than anything and everything else, both knew that the fight between them must be settled very shortly, that any move must be made quickly.

Lucille slipped out of the hotel the second day, undecided as to what to do and caring little to plan or plot. For always there was to be reckoned with Thompson, who had turned against his former master. Thompson was the man upon whom she convinced herself with feminine intuition she must depend. Thompson would lay open a way. And the hate of Thompson would turn itself against the hate of Loubeque and then her own great love would have its innings.

And in this mood, for the first time since leaving Manila so abruptly in the aeroplane of Harley, her thought turned from the sweetheart she felt was in the city to the thought of meeting him.

She stopped short, the song upon her lips frozen there as she looked down at herself. For the first time in months an idea recurred to her. An idea that seemed to have formed a major portion of her ideas in life before that time—clothes.

Clothes! She fairly blushed as she looked upon the beautifully dressed women upon the street. Clothes! Why, she looked a perfect ragamuffin. She had become frightfully self conscious, ascribing the glances of admiration bestowed upon her from pedestrians to her shabbiness. Unconsciously her hands sought the precious necklace.

She speeded swiftly and furtively down the street. Self reliance had become a part of her from her experiences, but the thought of obtaining money was something that appalled her. She had never known anything of money in her life.

Resolutely she bit her lips and forced her way through the doors of a jewelry establishment, fighting her resolution to the point of approaching the bespectacled, important looking man behind the counter.

"I wish to sell," she murmured bashfully.

The salesman stared from her to the necklace, his eyes growing wider and wider with bewilderment as he looked upon such stones as he had never seen before in his life.

"The proprietor"—he whispered.

Lucille followed the direction of his pointed finger, on the verge of bursting into laughter at the change in his demeanor. With added confidence she pushed open the ground glass door, upon which was marked a caution for all outsiders to keep out.

A keen eyed little man turned upon her abruptly, his lips half open for a protest against the intrusion, when his eyes fell upon the necklace she carried loosely in her hands.

"I wished some ready money," Lucille quickly explained, blushing at her own temerity as she placed the precious necklace upon the desk.

The man drew a jeweler's glass from his drawer and stooped to examine each stone, his lips pursing to vent a little whistle of awe and admiration every few moments.

"Where did you get this necklace, miss? I presume you realize something of its value?"

"I—I really don't know exactly where. It was on a savage island, where I was cast away—an island just eight days out of Manila."

"A savage island—from Manila"— A bit of the incredulity had left his manner already. Once more he stooped to examine the necklace. "Yes," he muttered; "the cutting of the stones is different from any I have ever encountered—old Asiatic undoubtedly." Again he turned to her. "How long ago was this, miss? What is this story of being cast away? I do not recollect any wrecks"—

"The Empress," Lucille quickly explained.

"Well, well, well"—he rubbed his hands together in frank amusement—"to think that any one escaped from the wreck of the Empress!" Once more his lips pursed. "But why have you not reached friends?"

Her Hands Sought the Precious Necklace.

"I am Lucille Love," she said quietly. "I cannot go back"—

"Lucille Love, daughter of General Love?" He studied her keenly, nodding his head from side to side. "Yes, yes; your father and I were quite well acquainted when he was stationed at the Presidio here, and you will not go back because of the disgrace that caused you to leave when the orders from Washington were stolen?"

"There was no disgrace," Lucille said, her tones fairly chilling. "The papers were stolen by an outsider, sir. That was why I boarded the Empress. That is why I am here. That is why I seek money; why I am still searching."

"But my dear Miss Love," he smiled, "you must realize that there is not money enough in the establishment to purchase such a wonderful necklace as the one you own. A few stones, possibly, or," he added as an afterthought, "I might purchase an option on the necklace for, say, as much of a reasonable sum as you desire at present and will then look about for a purchaser."

Lucille's face showed her relief.

"I will give you $10,000 for an option to sell the necklace within six months," the man continued quickly. "Meanwhile I will keep it here and give you a receipt for it in order that I may show it to possible customers."

"Ten thousand dollars!" Lucille's eyes were wide in wonderment. It was not ten minutes later, with a mutual promise to say nothing of the transaction, that she left the shop with a certified check for the sum mentioned in her tightly clinched fist, accompanied by a clerk.

A strange shadow seemed to have fallen upon her, one which took a large part of the amusement she anticipated getting from her shopping away. She could only ascribe it to meeting with one who had known her father, who unwittingly showed her what the judgment of the world had been in regard to the missing orders, the necessity for immediately foiling Hugo Loubeque.

As she left the bank with the roll of banknotes in her hand and a warning from the clerk still ringing in her ears she thought no longer of adorning herself, had forgotten her shabbiness and her fear of meeting her sweetheart. Her thoughts were still upon clothes, the most gorgeous clothes. And her thoughts were also upon Hugo Loubeque, the international spy, the man who stood between her and the fruition of all her hopes, the man—and a warm flush suffused her cheeks, which she fought down swiftly—who was constantly proving himself but a mere man, after all; a man susceptible to woman's charms.

Her head was high, her step sparkling as she entered the most fashionable shop she came to; her manner such that the crowding, jostling women made way for her as for a queen in regal attire instead of a young girl with habiliments torn and disheveled.

And always, alongside the doors of all the establishments she entered, waiting—patiently waiting, furtively waiting—a rather servile appearing man stood, respectful, quiet, contained.

Lucille's return to her apartment at the hotel was greeted with an apparent respect that spoke plainly of the arrival of the flood of packages she had ordered sent immediately that she might prepare herself for the conquest of Loubeque.

It was several hours later that she looked at herself in the long cheval glass, frank admiration and wonder tingling within her, painting her cheeks with roses that no ruby necklace could have paralleled. For the first time she realized that she was wonderfully beautiful. And even as she stood there came a clear tapping upon the door. With a smile upon her lips she moved toward it, allowing it to open the slightest fraction at a time.

Hugo Loubeque stepped within, immaculate in his evening clothes, and bowed gravely, his eyes taking her in from head to toe, frank admiration glowing in them.

"You will dine with me?" His manner was courteous as ever, yet there was a change. Something already was lost between them, some of the strands which bound them together slackened, dropped apart never to be put together again.

Lucille merely nodded. Her heart was growing larger and larger, and she found herself frightened. She rested her hand upon his sleeve and allowed him to escort her to the dining room.

In the dining room she gave herself over to a mood effervescent as the champagne that bubbled in the glass before her. Loubeque had not proven adamant against the frank admiration which went the length of the room at the appearance of Lucille.

She was playing a part she had never dreamed of playing until she caught sight of her beautiful reflection mirrored back at her from the long glass in her apartment. And a great shame was upon her, even as her growing self disgust divided itself between shame at seeing the great Loubeque falling into the net she was daily weaving for him. She watched him narrowly, marking the constantly growing boldness of his frank admiration.

A rather pretty girl whirled into the center of the big dining room and without waiting for the faint murmur of applause that greeted her appearance to subside, began to dance. Lucille noticed that Loubeque had so far given himself over to the spirit of reverie that his dishes went untouched as he watched the indifferent dancing. Inspiration came to Lucille. She saw the weak spot in Hugo Loubeque's well nigh perfect armor, thought she saw a method of reaching it. Quietly she excused herself and left the room.

Once at the end of the room her manner changed. Swiftly she turned, taking the direction she had seen the dancer leave and coming into a small room where the entertainers sat. She approached the girl, drawing her to one side.

"If I pay you well," she whispered eagerly, "would you let me dance in your place the next time—pay you—pay you $100—$500?" she added as the girl regarded her suspiciously.

"Five hundred dollars!" Wonderment glinted in the eyes upon her. "What do you want—to get chance at cabaret work?"

"No—no, I can dance, but I merely wish to do it once. There is a reason I cannot explain now. But it means everything to me. Please—please"—Tears slithered in, and filled to overflowing with such honest pleading that the girl quickly nodded.

"Let's see your work," she demanded. "What line, miss?"

Lucille slowly recalled an old Spanish dance she had learned years before, one she had danced in private theatricals. The cabaret dancer whispered to a young man in the corner who took his guitar from its case and strummed lightly until Lucille nodded.

"You'll do," the girl said five minutes later, then, with a tinge of envy in her voice and eyes, "dead sure you ain't after me job?"

Lucille pressed the money upon her, warmly assuring her over and over again that such was not her intention.

"All right then. You're due in half an hour. I'll fix it with the manager and put the orchestra leader wise to the game. The drum ain't quite the stuff for"—

Lucille nodded gayly. Hurriedly she scribbled a note to Loubeque, reassuring him as to her delay and begging him to wait a short time until she came. Then she darted to her suit, fairly tearing her gown from her in her haste. She did not know what odd whimsy had induced her to purchase the little coquettish suit of a dancing gown that fitted the part she intended playing so perfectly.

A bit breathless she returned to the cabaret. The girl gave her a shove forward and she found herself standing in the big room, heard, as from a long way off, the stringed orchestra brilliantly playing "La Paloma."

Lucille knew then that she must go through with what she had started. Taking a long breath, her body swayed to the strains. Slowly, gracefully she glided into the room, her face partially concealed by the mantilla. A gasp of surprise followed her appearance, men and women leaned forward, forgetful of their dinner, lured by her infectious grace and charm. But she had eyes for but one man, the international spy, who, a surprised, puzzled expression on his face, leaned far forward in his chair, watching this woman who danced so wonderfully.

Then suddenly the music changed. Lucille flashed a glance at Loubeque and from that moment danced to him and him alone. It was perfectly obvious to every one in the room. The spy sank back in his chair, a bit embarrassed but quite aglow with delight. The music was growing slower, slower, and, with a trickling laugh of impish merriment, Lucille flung wide her mantilla and bowed mockingly to the arch-spy.

For just a second his splendid mouth gaped, then, with eyes that shot strange fires at her, his palms crackled vigorously together as he led off the whirlwind of applause that set the glasses and cutlery dancing. The orchestral leader waved his baton toward Lucille for an encore, and from her chair opposite Loubeque, into which she had sunk, she half rose, to respond with a bow.

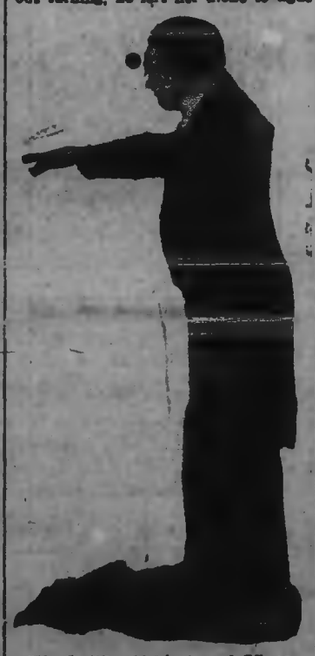
"My God!"

The voice was hoarse, terrifying in its bitterness, its scorn. Lucille turned, startled; then, involuntarily, her hands reached out toward the man who was standing, tense, a horrified expression of disgust and unbelief upon his countenance.

"Dick!" she quavered.

Lieutenant Gibson moved away as her slender figure swayed toward him. Her hands were upon his wrists. He looked at them a second then slowly detached them and turned away, leaving the great room, leaving behind the woman who had dared everything for him.

And Lucille, the radiant face of a moment before gone into a mask, a frigid, icy mask, watched him go, without turning, he left her alone to fight the battle for him. Loubeque touched her shoulder sympathetically.



"My God!" said Lieutenant Gibson.

"Poor child, Lucille!" he murmured. "It was Gibson. After all you might have believed of him, to have him turn that way instantly"—

"Dick is a man," she smiled sadly. "Man is full of suspicion. But when a woman loves she does not ask for references."

Above will be found the picture of a modern gun of the kind that is being used in the present war. At a glance the gun and some old trees appear to be all there is in the picture, but by careful scrutiny some soldiers' faces will be found. There are 19 of them in all. Can you find them? It is no easy task, but by patience and perseverance can be accomplished.

You may win a cash prize by doing so. Many have done this as will be shown by the names and addresses published below. If you find the faces mark each one you find with an X cut out the picture and send it to us, together with a slip of paper on which you have written the words "I have found all the faces and marked them." Write these nine words plainly and neatly, as in case of ties, both writing and neatness will be considered factors in this contest.

This may take up a little of your time, but as there are TWO HUNDRED DOLLARS in cash and One Hundred premiums given away, it is worth your time to take a little trouble over this matter. Remember, all you have to do is to mark the faces, cut out the picture and write on a separate piece of paper the words, "I have found all the faces and marked them."

We do not ask You to Spend One Cent of Your Money in order to enter this Contest.

Send your answer at once; we will reply by Return Mail telling you whether your answer is correct or not, and we will send you a complete Prize List, together with the names and addresses of persons who have recently received over Two Thousand Dollars in Cash Prizes from us, and full particulars of a simple condition that must be fulfilled. (This condition does not involve the spending of any of your money.)

Names of cash prizes in our late competitions will not be allowed to enter this Contest.

This competition will be judged by two well known business men of undoubted integrity, who have no connection with this company, whose decision must be accepted as final.

Below will be found a partial list of the names and addresses of a few persons who have won some of our larger prizes in recent contests. Although these persons are entirely unknown to us, they are our references. An enquiry from any one of them will bring the information that our contests are carried out with the utmost fairness and integrity. Your opportunity to win a good round sum is equally as good as that of anyone else, as all previous winners of cash prizes are debarred from entering this contest.

A Pimply Face Loses Friends

Why Stand This Humiliation When Stuart's Calcium Wafers in a Week Make Your Face Clean and Radiant.

No need for anyone to go about any longer with a face covered with pimples, blotches, eruptions, blackheads, and liver spots. These are all due to impurities in the blood. Cleanse the blood thoroughly and the blemishes will disappear.

"Everyone Looks at a Face Bearing a Lovely Complexion—It is Nature's Greatest Gift to Woman."

That's what Stuart's Calcium Wafers are intended to accomplish and do accomplish. Their principal ingredient is Calcium Sulphide, the quickest and most thorough blood cleanser known.

These wonderful little wafers get right into the blood, and destroy eruptive substances present in it. In some cases a few days is sufficient to make a marked improvement. And when the blood is pure the whole system is a hundred per cent. better.

Don't fret any longer about those blackheads, pimples, boils, tetter, eczema, spots or skin eruptions; they all go and "go quick" if you use Stuart's Calcium Wafers.

Go to any druggist anywhere and buy a box. Price 50 cents. A small sample package mailed free by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., 178 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

The circular tunics over the narrow underskirts are appreciated by the conservative woman as a step between, for it takes some courage to adopt the very full skirts right away. Such a step between is the skirt pictured, made of gabardine over an underskirt of satin. The large view shows the overskirt extended to the hem in front, and the other views the overskirt in the same length all around. The pattern, which is No. 6,964, comes in sizes 22 to 32 inches waist measure.

Another style in a full skirt has gathers at the waist line or is gathered to a yoke. In the lighter materials skirts are often trimmed with horizontal bands of silk or velvet placed about four inches apart and extending from hem to waist. They are usually graduated in width. Graduated tucks are also used this way. This style is particularly charming for dance frocks of net or chiffon. Something new is the fashion of an uneven lower edge, the skirt drawn up at the sides, or the plaits sagging at the sides, so that the bottom of the skirt, while not decidedly awry, has an undulating expression.

Price, 10 cents.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required and age of a child.

Infantry Training

The Matter in This Column is from the Official Manual 1914 and is Published According to Orders of the Militia Council

2. Although several recruits may be drilled together in a squad with intervals, they must act independently, precisely as if they were being instructed singly. They will thus learn to march in a straight line, and to take a correct pace, both as regards length and time, without reference to the other men of the squad.

Before the squad is put in motion, the instructor will take care that each man is square to the front and in correct line with the remainder. The recruit will be taught to take a point straight to his front, by fixing his eyes upon some distant object, and then observing some nearer point in the same straight line, such as a stone, tuft of grass, or other object. The same procedure will be followed by the man on the named flank or by the named number, when marching in other formations. (See Sec. 34.)

25. Marching in quick time. 1. The quick march. QUICK—MARCH.	The squad will step off together with the left foot, in quick time, observing the rules in Sec. 24.
2. The halt. SQUAD—HALT.	The moving foot will complete its pace, and the other will be brought smartly up in line with it, without stamping.
3. Stepping out. STEP—OUT.	The moving foot will complete its pace, and the soldier will lengthen the pace by 3 inches, leaning forward a little, but without altering the time. Note.—This step is used when a slight increase of speed, without an alteration of time, is required; on the command quick—march the usual pace will be resumed.
4. Stepping short. STEP—SHORT	The foot advancing will complete its pace, after which the pace will be shortened by 9 inches until the command quick—march is given, when the quick step will be resumed.
5. Marking time. MARK—TIME	The foot then advancing will complete its pace, after which the time will be continued, without advancing, by raising each foot alternately about six inches, keeping the feet almost parallel with the ground, the knees raised to the front, the arms steady at the sides, and the body steady. On the command forward, the pace at which the men were moving will be resumed.
6. Stepping back from the halt. —Pace STEP BACK—MARCH.	Step back the named number of paces of 30 inches straight to the rear, commencing with the left foot, observing the rules in Sec. 24. Note.—Stepping back should not exceed four paces.
26. Changing step. 1. When on the march. CHANGE—STEP.	The advancing foot will complete its pace, and the ball of the rear foot will be brought up to the heel of the advanced one, which will make another step forward, so that the time will not be lost, two successive steps being taken with the same foot.
2. When marking time. CHANGE—STEP.	Make two successive beats with the same foot.
27. Marching in double time. 1. The double march. DOUBLE—MARCH.	Step off with the left foot and double on the toes with easy swinging strides, inclining the body slightly forward but maintaining its correct carriage. The feet must be picked up cleanly from the ground at each pace and the thigh, knee, and ankle joints must all work freely and without stiffness. The whole body should be carried forward by a thrust from the rear foot without unnecessary effort. The heels must not be raised towards the seat but the foot carried straight to the front and the toes placed tightly on the ground. The arms should swing easily from the shoulders and should be bent at the elbow, the forearm forming an angle of about 135 degrees with the upper arm (i.e. midway between a straight arm and a right angle at the elbow), fists clenched, backs of the hands outward, and the arms swing sufficiently clear of the body to allow of full freedom for the chest. The shoulders should be kept steady and square to the front and the head erect.
2. The halt. SQUAD—HALT.	As in Sec. 25, 2, at the same time dropping the hands to the position of attention.
3. Marking time. MARK—TIME.	Act as in Sec. 25, 5, the arms and hands being carried as when marching in double time, but with the swing of the arms reduced.
2. The halt. SQUAD—HALT.	In the command halt, which will be given when the number of paces has not been specified, the men will complete the pace they are taking, and remain steady. Note.—Soldiers should not usually be moved to a flank by the side step more than twelve paces.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog, and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach, or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

Berlin Report Was False.

PARIS, Jan. 22.—An official denial of the reported German success near Notre Dame de Lorette was issued here yesterday.

The War Office states that the German attack at this point, which in reality was repulsed completely and that a company of Germans was captured.

The German official statement of Wednesday said that a trench 200 yards long was taken, but yesterday admitted these trenches were recaptured by the allies.

Icebreaker Didn't Last.

ARCHANGEL, Russia, Jan. 22. — The ice-breaker Canada, sent by the Canadian Government for the purpose of keeping open as late in the winter as possible the port of Archangel, has been disabled.

Sixteen steamers already have been frozen in, and the prospects of releasing them are poor.

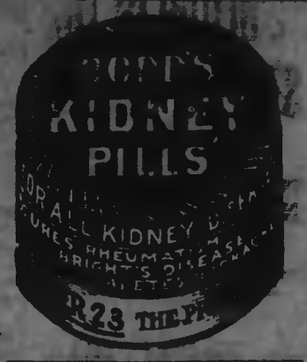
Archangel is the only port of European Russia which has been open for overseas commerce during the war.

Damage To Goeben Heavy.

ATHENS, Jan. 22. — It is learned here that the Turko-German cruiser Goeben, anchored at Beikos, ten miles north of Constantinople, on the Bosphorous, is surrounded by steamers to mask the damage which has been inflicted on her by encounters with Russians in the Black Sea. Damage to all other Turkish warships has been repaired at the temporary arsenal at Stenia, two miles nearer Constantinople.

German Count Arrested.

GENEVA, Jan. 22. — The newspaper Stampa, of Turin, Italy, announces that a British warship has arrested on board the liner Duca d'Aosta, from Genoa for New York, Count von Keller, a German officer of high rank, who had been sent to the United States on a secret mission. The newspaper adds that the count has been landed at Gibraltar.



OFFENSIVE BROKEN.

And German Defensive Will Be Broken In Its Turn, Says Statement.

PARIS, Jan. 22.—There was given out yesterday afternoon an official statement under the caption of "The War From Nov. 15 to Jan. 15."

After a detailed survey of operations, the report concludes:

"We got ten general advances on the part of our troops which were distinctly perceptible at certain places as compared to 20 general withdrawals on the part of the enemy, always with the exception of the situation to the northeast of Soissons. This is a comparison of the last two months. To complete it, it should be added that: First, the German offensive in Poland has been restrained for a month past; second, the Russian offensive continues in Galicia and in the Carpathian Mountains; the Turkish army in the Caucasus has been in large measure annihilated; fourth, Germany has exhausted her resources in officers (an average of twelve officers to a regiment), and will not in the future be able to develop her resources in effective men except at the expense of the existing units; fifth, the armies of the allies, on the contrary, are finding it possible to strengthen themselves further to a measurable degree.

"It can consequently be affirmed that to obtain final victory it is sufficient that France and her allies know how to wait for it and at the same time prepare for it with inexhaustible patience.

"The German offensive has been broken; the German defensive will be broken in its turn."

TO REMOVE DANDRUFF

Get a 25-cent bottle of Danderine at any drug store, pour a little into your hand and rub well into the scalp with the finger tips. By morning most, if not all, of this awful scurf will have disappeared. Two or three applications will destroy every bit of dandruff; stop scalp itching and falling hair.

Helping Unemployed To Help Themselves

Reeve McIntosh and J. N. Lillico, of North Monaghan, have engaged a number of unemployed to cut wood on their properties. This work has been in progress for some time, and is enabling quite a number of men to provide for themselves, though the wage may not be large, without assistance from the municipality.

The question arises as to the responsibility of the Council to the citizen unemployed. Sewer construction and similar forms of industry have their limits, which have already been reached, and there is not much extra assistance to be expected from that quarter. But the Council's responsibility surely does not terminate with the work it can create. Cleveland, for instance, has prepared an apparently comprehensive scheme by which the air of every citizen is elicited in providing employment. Citizens of means have been requested to examine their premises for repair work that needs to be done. Even the clergy have joined in the movement and emphasize this plan to their congregations. Any work of this kind offering is telephoned to a central bureau, which forms the intermediary with unemployed who have been previously listed. Reference to Cleveland's scheme is now presented for the Council's consideration with any idea that it is particularly brilliant or original (the scheme of [illegible] of the Aldermen have expressed the wish that they could find more work for the citizens unemployed, and it may be taken for granted that Mayor Buller has the same desires. They realize, too, that work would be most acceptable just now. But results will not be forthcoming from mere wishes. If they are to accomplish anything, the Council will have to exert themselves beyond the ordinary with the assurance that any results they achieve will be appreciated by those they may assist.

How to Destroy the Dandruff Germ

BY A SPECIALIST.

That the dandruff germ is responsible for nearly all the diseases to which the scalp is heir, as well as for baldness and premature gray hair, is a well known fact; but what we realize that it is also indirectly responsible for many other diseases as well, we appreciate the importance of any agent that will destroy its power. We are therefore, particularly pleased to give herewith the prescription, which an eminent scientist states he has found after repeated tests, to completely destroy the dandruff germ in from one to three applications. It will also almost immediately stop falling hair and it has in numerous cases produced a new hair-growth after years of partial baldness. This prescription can be made up at home, or any druggist will put it up for you. Get 4 ounces bay Rum, 1 ounce Lavoid de Composee, one-half drachm Menthol Crystals. Mix thoroughly, and after shampooing, apply to the scalp, rubbing it in briskly with the fingers. You will be surprised how quickly you will get rid of your favorite parasite. While this preparation is not a dye it is exceptional for restoring gray hair to its original colour.

The Elementary Graded Union of Sunday School Teachers Will Meet on Tuesday January 26th

The Elementary Graded Union of Sunday School Teachers of the City will meet the fourth Tuesday of this month in one of the class-rooms of the George Street Methodist Church at 8 p.m. The executive is making special efforts to have a large attendance of the members, as matters of importance will be discussed.

The year 1915 being the jubilee year of the Ontario Sabbath School Association, the Union is aiming to bring the elementary grades of the City Schools to as high a standard of excellence as possible.

Special Consideration.

The Cradle Roll Department will be the first to receive special consideration. The Provincial Superintendent of elementary grades has for the goal 3,000 cradle rolls for Ontario. There are now 1,344.

Our aim for the City is a well-equipped cradle roll in each Sabbath School. Any school that has not organized that department is urged to send a representative to the meeting on Tuesday, 26th inst.; as there will be a full explanation of the work, how to organize, etc. Samples of cards, certificates and cradles will be on exhibit.

There will be a paper on "Story-Telling," followed by discussion.—M. Lewis, President; Effie Munro, Secretary.

LC.-CORPL. FRY DEAD.

Member of Princess Pats Is Reported Killed at the Front.

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—The following casualties among members of the Canadian expeditionary force were announced last night by the Militia Department:

Reported (unofficially) killed—Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry: Lc.-Corpl. Norman Fry; next of kin, John Norman, North street, Wilton, Wilts, Eng.

Deaths—Pte. A. H. Morris, 7th Battalion, from motor car accident at Shrewton; next of kin, Mrs. H. M. Morris, 3,534 Twenty-fifth street east, Vancouver, B.C.

Lc.-Corpl. Fry enlisted at Battleford, Sask. He fought in the South African war and his wife and family are living in Bristol.

Discolored or Spotty Skin Easily Peeled Off

The discolorations or roughening to which many skins are subject at this season, may readily be got rid of. Mercolized wax, spread lightly over the face before retiring and removed in the morning with soap and water, completely frees all the discolored skin. Get an ounce of this wax at any druggist's. There's no more effective way of banishing sharp blotches, pimples, freckles or other complexional defects. Little skin particles come off each day, so the process itself doesn't even temporarily mar the complexion, and one soon acquires a brand new, spotless, girlishly beautiful face.

Wrinkles caused by weather, worry or illness, are best treated by a simple solution of powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in ½ pint witch hazel. Bathing the face in this produces a truly marvellous transformation.

Trades and Labour Notes

(By the O. S.)

Last Wednesday evening witnessed another good meeting of the Trades and Labour Council. The hall was filled with delegates from the various locals and this, coupled with a busy box stove, engrossing subjects and a smoke-laden atmosphere, made an ideal winter meeting of labourers. President J. J. Hartley officiated as chairman.

Organizer Kennedy Speaks.

The floor was given to John H. Kennedy, organizer of the Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers' International Alliance. Mr. Kennedy, who has large experience in the ranks of organized labour, emphasized one or two points which are always seen more prominently by those who, like himself, are always on the job. One point was that there never was a more opportune time than now for organized labour to make progress. Another point was the decrease of fraternal spirit among different organizations. This was to be deplored, also to be fought against especially by trades that were dependent on one another. At the conclusion of his speech Jack was tendered a vote of thanks. Speakers of this stamp are always a means of education to the less experienced card holders.

Courteous Cabinet Ministers.

Secretary Wm. Stevens, who was instructed last meeting to write to the Cabinet Ministers regarding the Free Labour Bureau Bill, received replies from eight out of the eighteen Cabinet Ministers now in office. Sir R. L. Borden was among those who took notice.

Election of Officers.

The following were elected for the ensuing term:

J. J. Hartley, President.
Chas. Hammacott, Vice-President.
Wm. Stevens, Recording Secretary.
Charles Seymour, Fin-Secretary.
G. L. Myland, Treasurer.
D. Wires, Sergeant-at-Arms.
G. A. Hamon, Scribe.
Harry Gainey, Dan Wires, Hugh Robertson, Chas. Hammacott and George O'Hearn, Hall Trustees.
Achilles Frost, Robt. Mitchell and Fred Brown, Auditors.

To Abolish the Property Qualification Hindrance.

Secretary Wm. Stevens was the man chosen to fall in line with the Hamilton Trades and Labour group of representatives who will wait on the law-makers at Toronto and urge them to remove this barricade of property qualification from the path of the intelligent working man who seeks municipal honours.

Annual Reports.

Secretary Harry Gainey of the Hall Trustees presented his report, which was accepted. This cannot be said of the resignation he tendered.

Treasurer Hugh Robertson of the Hall Trustees also presented his report. This report showed a substantial balance, there being at least enough to keep a roof over the Council's head. Open meetings in the Central Park will not be necessary for a while.

Next Meeting Feb. 3.

The officers will be installed at the next meeting. Date, February 3rd. Place, Labour Hall. Time, 8 p.m.

IF HEADACHY, DIZZY, BILIOUS, "CASCARETS"

To-night Clean your Bowels and Stop Headache, Colds, Sour Stomach

Get a 10-cent box now.

You're bilious!! You have a throbbing sensation in your head, a bad taste in your mouth, your eyes burn, your skin is yellow, with dark rings under your eyes; your lips are parched. No wonder you feel ugly, mean and ill-tempered. Your system is full of bile not properly passed off and what you need is a cleansing cathartic. Don't continue being bilious, patronize yourself and those who live with you, and don't resort to harsh purgatives that irritate and injure. Remember that most disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels are cured by morning with gentle, thorough Cascarets—they work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your liver and bowels clean; stomach sweet, and your head clear for months. Children love to take Cascarets because they taste good and never gripe or sicken.

Fresh Shocks Felt.

AVEZZANO, Jan. 22. — (Via London.)—Slight earthquake shocks continue to be felt here. The disturbances are causing the walls which were cracked in the earthquake of last week to fall and the populace is in a state of terror.

Three persons, two women and a boy, were taken from the ruins of a fallen building yesterday. They were uninjured.

Maj. Labatt Is Better.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Maj. Labatt of Hamilton, Ont., who is ill in London, has been under care of Sir William Osler. He is now progressing rapidly.

Lt.-Corpl. Tupper, son of Sir Hibbert Tupper, who was seized with pneumonia, is now convalescent.

Sir George Perley has gone to Salisbury for a few days.

Votes for Women Endorsed.

EDMONTON, Alta., Jan. 22.—The United Farmers of Alberta yesterday afternoon endorsed the principle of suffrage for women, and asked the Government to submit a plebiscite on the question. They also favored granting women a legal share of husband's estates.

Orrine for Drink Habit

TRY IT AT OUR EXPENSE.

We are in earnest when we ask you to give ORRINE a trial. You have nothing to risk and everything to gain, for your money will be returned if after a trial you fail to get results from ORRINE. This offer gives the wives and mothers of those who drink to excess an opportunity to try the ORRINE treatment. It is a very simple treatment, can be given in the home without publicity or loss of time from business, and at a small price.

ORRINE is prepared in two forms: No. 1, secret treatment, a powder; ORRINE No. 2, in pill form, for those who desire to take voluntary treatment. Costs only $1.00 a box. Come in and talk over the matter with us. Ask for booklet.

Wm. Madill, corner of Hunter and George Streets.

Strengthening the Sound Waves

AFTER travelling a certain distance the electric wave which carries the human voice along the telephone wire becomes attenuated and speech becomes too faint to be heard.

Just as in the old stage-coach days fresh relays of horses at regular intervals along the way, enabled the traveller to continue his journey with undiminished speed, so by means of the newly invented "loading coils" inserted at proper intervals, the electric waves are strengthened and long distance telephoning is made easy.

We have lately finished the "loading" of our long distance lines and speech transmission has been very greatly improved. This is especially noticeable on extra long talks. Our "long-haul" transmission is better than ever.

Begin the New Year by making systematic use of the Long Distance Telephone in your business. It will save you time and labor, as well as much money in the shape of travelling expense.

Every Bell Telephone is a Long Distance Station.

GERMANS MAY SOON HAVE TO GIVE UP ST. MIHIEL

THE FINANCE COMMITTEE FAILED IN THE ATTEMPT TO CUT SALARIES

More Than One City Official Receives a Salary Less Than That of a Pick and Shovel Man—In One or Two Cases a Raise Was Spoken of

A SALARY-CUTTING BEE

The salaries of the civic officials will not be reduced. That is if the City Council sees fit to endorse the recommendation of the Finance Committee which met yesterday afternoon for the purpose of considering a resolution that was brought in by Ald Edgar respecting a proposal to reduce the salaries of all civic officials and prune the number employed down to a war basis. There is every reason to believe that the Council will support the recommendation, as the Committee was made up of six out of eleven members that compose the City Council and there were no dissenting voices. Ald. Stratton, as Chairman of the Committee, established his neutrality at the outset of the meeting. He put the proposal up to his henchman in a clear, concise way and supplemented his remarks with a type-written report covering the number of officials employed by the City and the salaries paid.

City Treasurer's Salary.

Things ran along smoothly until somebody discovered that Mr. F. Adams, City Treasurer of a City that boasts of a population of twenty-five thousand, received a net salary of $810 a year. The Aldermen had hardly recovered their equanimity when somebody remarked that W. J. Green, City Tax Collector, who handles over three hundred thousand dollars worth of taxes each year, was favoured with a salary of thirteen hundred dollars a year. Out of this Mr. Green pays for the delivery of the tax bills, which amounts to about two hundred and fifty dollars a year.

When Sanitary Inspector Spence's munificent salary of seven hundred dollars a year was revealed the Committee was ready to declare a moratorium on the proposal. This latter salary is less than a pick-and-shovel man would get if he were paid at the rate of twenty-five cents an hour—a wage which Mayor Buller proposes to inaugurate in connection with civic labour. The Mayor, who was present, was the least enthusiastic of the Committee. He declared that he had attended more than one salary-cutting festival and, as a veteran, could appreciate the difficulties that confronted the Committee.

A Busy Place.

Ald. Stratton, upon tabling the "scrap of paper" upon which the resolution was indited, recalled a similar resolution that he had sponsored about a year ago, and which was shelved until such time as the staff of the Utilities Commission was organized.

Ald. McIntyre suggested that the Committee deal with each department separately, and determine what officials could be dispensed with.

Ald. Green, who is Chairman of the Board of Works, reminded the Committee that the engineering department was about the busiest place that would probably be found in the Province. Mr. T. A. S. Hay, assistant engineer, was seriously ill, and Mr. Hilliard, another assistant, was about to leave for Europe. Very few people realised the amount of work that was accomplished, wherein maps and engineering schemes of all kinds take form. It is only within the past few years that Peterborough has had an adequate engineering staff. "Many will agree that we did not possess a proper engineering staff soon enough" concluded Ald. Green.

Ald. McIntyre pointed out that the two engineers, Mr. R. H. Parsons and Mr. T. A. S. Hay cost the City four thousand dollars a year in salaries, whereas ten years ago Mr. Hay did the work for twelve hundred dollars.

"You must remember that ten years ago this City was only one-half its present size. The work in the engineering department has trebled," put in Ald. Green.

Ald. McIntyre—"I don't think the work has trebled. If it has I can't see it. The Department is occupied with the proposed sewerage disposal system which is a matter of draft work such as digging trenches."

"I want to tell you right here that you know differently," retorted Ald. Green.

Ald. Stratton—"I think we came here to discuss the question of sal

HOW CAPTAIN NEWTON OF PATS' WAS KILLED

With Another Officer Was Making Observations When He Exposed Himself and Was Shot Down

LETTERS FROM SOLDIERS

Special Cable to The Examiner:

NEW YORK CITY, Jan. 23.—Mud-besmeared envelopes containing the letters from members of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Regiment to relatives here arrived to-day, giving grim evidence of the writers being in water sodden trenches. One of them telling of the death of Captain D. O. C. Newton, former Aide to the Governor-General of Canada, says that that officer was killed early in January while making observations of German movements with his field glasses. Another officer had been detailed by Colonel Farquhar for this duty, and Newton volunteered to assist him. Forgetful for the moment of his extraordinary height, Newton allowed his head and shoulders to reach above the breastworks. Instantly there was a volley of rifle fire from the German trenches, less than two hundred yards away, and he dropped dead.

Local Club Incorporated

List of Provisional Directors Given in the Ontario Gazette

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—The Ontario Gazette to-day contains a notice of the incorporation of the Peterborough Club, with E. G. Patterson, W. H. Deahan, E. L. Goodwill, W. H. Bradburn, W. J. Thompson, P. M. McCullough, Robt. Hicks, W. R. Morris, T. D. Mulholland, Robt. Dobie and Dickens Davidson as provisional directors.

Improving Efficiency

Mr. Fred Roy Back From School of Professional Photography

The absence of Mr. Fred Roy from his Studio this week was explained this morning by himself, who had just returned from Toronto, where he had been attending one of the largest schools of professional photography in the world.

To the ambitious photographer the lessons to be learned at this school are very valuable. The varied experiences of a host of successful photographers are placed before those in attendance in a concrete form, together with their researches in every-day actual work. All the vital essentials of the profession are dealt with from the most efficient methods of the best studios to the highest technical details of camera work, photo supplies and material.

"Do you come under the instruction of teachers or lecturers in your profession, or of practical artists, who have become specialists in some one line of the art in every-day work?"

"We get the benefit of masters in the profession from all over the continent who have made reputations for themselves by special research in the photographic art. The purpose of these lectures is to explain what they know of photography and what they have accomplished in securing the highest attainments of the profession. Demonstrations of their work is also an interesting feature of the lectures."

Mr. Roy's patrons will be pleased to learn that he has had the benefit of some valuable personal interviews with the cleverest of the lecturers in high-art photography; and visitors to his Studio may expect some fascinating revelations from his own skilfull hands.

ARBITRATION PROCEEDINGS ON TUESDAY

Company's Arbitrator Cannot be Here to Open on Monday Causing a Postponement of One Day

A GREAT BATTLE

The arbitration proceedings, to decide what price the city shall pay for the distributing system of the Peterborough Light and Power Company, will commence at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning next in the Court House, instead of on Monday as at first arranged. The reason for this change is the inability of the company's arbitrator, Mr. Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., of Toronto to be present on Monday.

The Arbitrators.

As announced in Tuesday's issue of the Examiner, the three arbitrators appointed are: His Honour Judge Huycke, chairman, R. A. Ross of Montreal, for the city, and Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., of Toronto, for the company.

Mr. M. K. Cowan, K.C., of the legal firm of Beatty, Blackstock, Fasken, Cowan and Chadwick, of Toronto, will represent the city in conjunction with City Solicitor G. N. Gordon, and Mr. W. N. Tilley, of Thomson, Tilley and Johnston, Toronto, will act for the company. Mr. Cowan was retained by the city during Mr. E. H. D. Hall's tenure of office as City Solicitor.

Necessities Of Life

Charity Department Take Steps to Stop Purchasing of Luxuries

In order to prevent the indiscriminate purchase of luxuries with money obtained from the Charity Department, a list of supplies that will be supplied on an order from the department, has been drawn up. A number of the grocers complained that they were frequently asked to supply goods that could not be classed as necessities of life with the result that the funds were soon dissipated.

The stamp that will accompany all orders authorized by the Charity Board is as follows:

The List.

These are the only goods that can be supplied on an order:

Bread, Tea, Rolled Oats or Meal, Potatoes, Vegetables, Salt and Pepper, Shortening, Beans, Soap, Matches, Syrup, Rice, Sugar, Milk only; Butter, 1 lb. only; Meat, Flour.

MISS SAUNDERS ADDRESSES MEETING ON LOCAL Y.W.C.A.

During the week Miss Una Saunders, National Secretary of the Y.W.C.A., will speak at meetings in the local Association, to which all women are cordially invited:

Monday, 3.30 — "Women and the War."

Monday evening, 8 o'clock, to which members of Young People's Societies have been invited. Subject, "Is Christ Vital to Us?"

Tuesday afternoon, 3.30, Bible leading, "Christ's Work Among Individuals."

Tuesday evening, 8 o'clock, "The Woman's Movement." Especially interesting to business women.

Wednesday afternoon, 3.30, Bible reading. Subject, "The Power of the Holy Spirit."

Wednesday evening, "The Glory of the Christian Life."

THE WEATHER

Temperature this morning at seven o'clock, 2 degrees above zero; lowest last night, 2 degrees below. The cold dip of yesterday morning was apparently local in its nature, as both east and west the temperature was not so low. The cold wave probably travelled from the north, as Parry Sound, Haliburton and Kingsmont had seven lower figures than Peterborough's 15 below.—W. P.

BRITISH VICTORY

LaBassee Reported to Have Been Occupied by British Troops After a Repulse of the German Forces

THE ALLIES' ADVANCE

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PARIS, Jan. 23—It is reported that La Bassee, thirteen miles southwest of Lille, is now occupied by the British," says the St. Omer correspondent of the Matin to-day.

"Several German attacks were delivered in a few hours without any success whatever, the Germans being repulsed every time with heavy loss, despite their numerical superiority.

"The British positions in the region of Festubert have been reinforced in anticipation of fresh attacks.

"On Wednesday afternoon there was furious fighting between La Bassee and Festubert, resulting in a perceptible advance of the allied front, and it is now reported that the former town is in possession of the allied troops."

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

City Clerk Armstrong attended about two hundred and fifty meetings during the past year. His Worship Mayor Buller claims to have about three hundred to his credit.

A Sweep Inspector.

It has been suggested that Sanitary Inspector Spence assume the duties of Bread Inspector. This is a new office created by the Provincial Government. The matter is in the hands of the local Board of Health.

The Provincial Board.

Copies of the annual reports of Dr. McPherson, M.H.O., and Sanitary Inspector Spence will be forwarded to the Provincial Board of Health. The former will later find its way into the annual report of that Board.

Isolation Hospital.

There are two scarlet fever patients confined in the Queen Mary Isolation Hospital at the present time. The Provincial Board of Health will visit the institution on Monday afternoon.

Patriotic Association.

The Patriotic branch of the Patriotic Association and the local Relief Association will hold a meeting in the City Council Chamber next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. A full attendance is requested.

With Other Councils.

James Ballantyne was re-elected Mayor at the Montreal West election.

Patriotic Fund.

Welland's two-day campaign to raise $15,000 for the Patriotic Fund closed with subscriptions amounting to $24,378.

Sack Annexation.

If a large bridge near Montreal is ordered to be constructed by the Legislature, the Mayor of Montreal has threatened to seek the annexation of Montreal to the Province of Ontario.

Tommy Church

Mayor Church of Toronto promises to submit a rapid transit scheme on the lines of the Harbor Board's proposal of a year ago.

He will also follow the advice of the Provincial Hydro in regard to rate reduction, and thinks that efforts should be made to bring industries to that City.

Calgary Cuts Salaries.

The City Council of Calgary have unanimously adopted a schedule of salary reduction for all civic employees, ranging from 7 1-2 per cent. to 20 per cent. The Mayor's salary will be cut from $5,000 to $4,000 a year.

PRIVATE VOCAL RECITAL

Last night Mr. Edward Hanrahan delightfully entertained at a private vocal recital. His hearers were not only highly pleased at his kindness in providing so pleasing a little programme of selections to the excellent accompaniment of Miss Gorman, but were greatly pleased with the character of his work. Mr. Hanrahan has a magnificent voice—a true basso—of exceptional musical resonance and richness of tone and quality. His singing is of such natural excellence that, with opportunities for development, a great musical future would be assured him.

ARTILLERY ADVANTAGE WITH ALLIES

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

PARIS, January 23. (Official:)—The British have gained 100 yards along the highway near Lombaertzyde in the Nieuport region, where infantry engagements have been in progress for the last three days. An infantry encounter is in progress in the Argonne near St. Hubert, but west of the Argonne the riflemen are devoting their time to repairing the damage done by the recent floods.

The Germans are bombarding Berry-au-Bac. Cannonading in the region south from Ypres, through Arras and Albert to Roye continues, with the British having the advantage, the official statement says.

The allies' shells have wrecked portions of the bridges across the Meuse at St. Mihiel. Violent cannonading is making the German position on the west bank of the Meuse an uncomfortable one, and the French are preparing to resume their drive against the German wedge, whose front rests on St. Mihiel.

This was the substance of the official claims to-day, flatly contradicting German official statement yesterday that the enemy had been cleared from in front of St. Mihiel."

The severe fighting on the hills near Hartmannsweiler in Lower Alsace, continues, the War Office announces; the Germans are making repeated bayonet charges in an effort to drive the French from their entrenchments on the hills.

Another German Shift — Gen. Von Falkenhayn, who recently succeeded Von Moltke as Minister of War and Chief of Staff. He now resigns as Minister, being succeeded by Gen. Von Mohenborn.

BUTTER IS 35c A POUND

The Highest Mark Was Reached To-day—The War Correspondent's Section of the Farmer's Market

TO-DAY'S PRICES

The busiest section of the farmers' market this morning was the war correspondent's bureau, which is adjacent to, and temperature permitting, on top of the box stove. Every little while a blue-coated minion of the law would hove in sight to the annoyance of the conversation warriors, and to the satisfaction of those who were there to buy or sell produce. The cold snap of yesterday and the subsequent snowfall had a deprecating effect on the market in that there was a marked falling off in supplies. Beef was the most plentiful commodity on the market. It sold from ten to twelve cents a pound. Pork was twelve and thirteen cents a pound and lamb seventeen and eighteen cents a pound.

Butter 35c. a pound.

As anticipated last week, butter has reached the high-water mark of thirty-five cents a pound. The supply was not any too plentiful and the demand equally light. There is every reason to believe that the price of butter will come down within a short time. In fact those who claim to more or less familiar with the butter market assert that it will come down. The season has arrived when the milk supply increases. This will have the tendency to lessen the output of the butter manufacturers as well as lower the price.

Eggs are down five cents a dozen, with prospects of a further decrease next week. The supply is increasing steadily. With in the next two months they should be down to twenty-five cents a dozen.

There is a little change in the price of fowl. Turkeys were selling at twenty cents a pound and chickens at from ten to fifteen cents a pound, according to age and quality.

On the outside market a few bags of potatoes were sold at seventy cents a bag.

ENVOY BROWN WILL HOLD MEETINGS IN BYERSVILLE NEXT WEEK

Envoy Brown of the Salvation Army, who will conduct services in Peterborough and the surrounding district during the next month, will officiate at the Temple this evening and at the regular Sunday services. Next week he will begin his special services in the Orange Hall, next to Clay's school, with meetings on Monday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights. Envoy Brown will be assisted by local talent. Everybody is invited to attend, particularly the residents of Byersville and the community adjacent to the Orange Hall.

LONDON, January 23.—Colonel John Seeley, the former Minister of War in the Asquith Cabinet, and who resigned over the Curragh camp incident, has been recalled from the firing line in Belgium, where he has comamnded a regiment, to London, to re-enter the Cabinet, according to the London Times. It is not known what Seeley's portfolio will be, but he will also act as chief Liberal Whip in succession to the late Percy Illingsworth. Seeley has been wounded twice while leading his men against the German trenches.

OTTAWA, January 23.—The third casualty list of the Princess Patricias contains the information that Pte. Adam Kennedy, who enlisted at Toronto, was injured. Next of kin is given as Ida Howe, of Havelock, Ontario.

LONDON, January 23.—The Admiralty to-day announced that an unnamed British battleship sank on Jan. 6 a supply ship for the German cruisers operating in Australian waters. The crew have been imprisoned. No details were given.

ROME, January 23.—Further serious outbreaks in Lower Hungarian cities by the citizens protesting against a further continuance of the war, and the resultant increase in the price of food, are reported in private messages that have been received here to-day from Budapest; demonstrations approaching riots took place in many cities early in the week. On last Sunday alone the authorities have reported to have forcibly stopped 288 such meetings of protest.

TAX NON-RESIDENT MINERAL LAND IN THE COUNTRY

At the meeting of the County Council on Tuesday next, Reeve Griffith will carry out the request of the Ballast Council asking the County to endeavour to have an Act of Parliament passed assessing all non-resident mineral land rights, and that the taxes received from such assessment be expended upon the roads of the respective counties.

PLAY OSHAWA AGAIN MONDAY

The Intermediates will play the return game at Oshawa on Monday night and it will be some battle. The team will leave on the 11.40 (G.T.R.) train on Monday and will go down at full strength.

A GOOD REPORT.

The directors' report of the thirtieth annual meeting of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company, is doubly satisfactory, especially in view of the effect of conditions due to the war on business conditions. In spite of the decline in business and profits that might have been expected, especially in the latter half of the year, the directors are able to present a very satisfactory statement, and the report further shows the comparatively unimpaired resources of the public as revealed in the fact that payments have been satisfactorily met. The net profits of the year, after meeting all expenses, amounts to the considerable sum of $135,658.57. Adding to this last year's credit balance, produces the sum of $195,993.12 for distribution. This permitted of the payment of dividends of $100,000 at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, a figure that the shareholders must regard as satisfactory. The strong position of the company as a matter of moment to the public, is shown in the fact that the reserve now stands at so satisfactory a total as $850,000, equal to 85 per cent. of the paid-up capital, that it was considered advisable to credit profit and loss with the balance of $95,993.12, instead of using it to augment the already robust reserve fund. The statement of the directors shows a satisfactory year's business, contributed to, no doubt, by careful and effective management. Naturally the report refers, in terms of regret, to the death of the president, Mr. E. W. Cox, elected at the last annual meeting, and the election of Mr. H. C. Cox, president of the Canada Life, as his successor to the presidency. It is a matter of local congratulation that we have so flourishing a financial institution operating in Peterborough.

HEALTH AND LIFE.

The two most significantly important reports presented of late appeared in yesterday's issue—those of our Medical Health Officer and Sanitary Inspector. Importance not only attaches to the information contained, but to the point and significance of them, and the justification of the considerable associated expenditure involved. The Scriptures tell us that all a man hath he will give for his life. Without going into details of Dr. Macpherson's report, an illustrative item is found in his reference to the number of fatal cases of tuberculosis. The fact that last year there were only twenty-four deaths from tuberculosis as compared with thirty the previous year, is significant, and it involves the whole case for an energetic campaign for improved sanitation. It is evident that this decrease of thirty per cent. is more or less directly due to the energetic measures adopted and carried out to secure prevention, and provide for symtematic and scientific treatment. We cannot appreciate the importance of this unless we try to gain an appreciation of the value of human life. With comparative indifference we read of the benefits of certain undertakings to save life, and we are learning in these sad days to look upon death in masses with an indifference we do not perhaps feel. But let a human life in our quiet community be at stake and we feel differently; let, say, a nameless tramp fall into the river and apparently drown. What an an excitement it creates. There is a hurried rush of messengers in auto or other vehicles for the doctor and the pulmotor. A quickly gathered crowd that would a few moments before have passed the victim of accident with indifference, and the feeling that the world would suffer little loss from his removal from it, would change their feeling. The same men, stand by watching with agonising interest the work of the doctors, watching for the flutter of an eyelid that will show a return of life. It is not the men that elicits their solicitude; it is the human life in the balance—the vital spark wavering between extinction and rekindling.

If we get some such feeling of the value of human life into our minds, and in that condition, estimate the work of our Board of Health and kindred agencies in prolonging and saving human life, we shall gain appreciation of their important and positive value; and we shall become earnest advocates of strengthening the hands of all sanitary endeavours, and more ungrudgingly bear our share of the necessary financial burden. We don't perhaps realize how much money and effort and interest we are spending in enterprises that centre in the idea of promoting public health and saving life. We spend money for pure water, to protect health and save life. To the same end we maintain a Board of Health, with its seemingly arbitrary but, withal, beneficial regulations and requirements. We spend money in maintaining a system of garbage collection; we spend money for a garbage incinerator; we spend money to secure by precaution and inspection, pure food, and cleanly conditions favourable to health, with the sole object, when we come down to real reasons, to save life; and in the process we may save the life so dear to you that you would give your own to save it. Let no one underestimate the value of the health-preserving and life-saving enterprises of our health authorities. We should all take an interest in them—the authorities themselves to see that they do their duty faithfully, and fearlessly; we others that we keep them to the mark and cooperate with our sympathy and assistance, and so cooperate in saving life.

CONTROVERSY UNTIMELY AND UNBECOMING.

In another column is printed a letter from a correspondent controverting a statement of another correspondent in relation to the comparative number of Irish and other soldiers now in the army. A list of casualties is furnished purporting to show that members of Scottish regiments have suffered more casualties than those of any other nationality, especially the Irish. Such evidence is not conclusive. The national title of a regiment in the British army is no deciding indication of its nationality. The titles of regiments are given in a great many cases as a compliment to a certain locality, or section of the United Kingdom. A Highland regiment is not necessarily composed of Scotchmen. In Canada, and also in the regular army, a regiment, Highland in name, may be almost cosmopolitan in its individual and racial composition. It contains English, Irish and Scotch, Canadians, and there have been known instances of even Germans or men of German descent being found in the columns of a Highland regiment. The "London Scottish," no doubt, contains more Cockneys than Scots. The "Munsters," "Connaughts," and "Princess Pats," regarded as Irish regiments, are not entirely Irish in composition. National names applied to regiments are no guide to the predominating nationality of the members.

But it doesn't matter. In a case like ours it is not the time, nor is it a profitable thing, to count noses in an effort to award the palm to any particular country. In a time like this, when every nationality, every race, every section of the Empire, is responding so splendidly and universally to the call of arms, it is idle to draw race distinctions. In this fight we are realizing the beautiful conceit of Tennyson in his ode of welcome to Alexandria of Dnemark, when by marriage she became the future Queen of Britain—

"Norman and Saxon and Celt are we,
But all of us Danes in our welcome of thee."

So in this war, English and Irish, and Scotch and Canadian, and Australian, and Indian are we, but all of us Britons in our splendid unity in cooperation to wage the fight and win the victory that is the tradition of British arms, not by any one race, but by a magnificent fusion under our meteor flag. Great Britain has won imperishable glory in the battlefield, and all her three great nationalities have combined to gather the harvest. The three great races that have done more to ennoble and uplift humanity in the peaceful fields of religion, statesmanship, learning, science, art and literature, have done more than any other three races of the world to wage successful war on sea and land in the interests of human freedom. It would need a higher intelligence than we can apply to our human judgments to appraise the relative glory of each of the three great races in the magnificently splendid achievements that stand to the credit of the prowess and cooperation of these three great races. We are all united in this great war for Christianity and humanity. We Britishers, in the broad sense, the representatives of many races, and kindreds, and tongues, are working together like one magnificent human machine; and it is no time for hair splitting, to discover whether, the Irish, or the Scotch, or the English, is shedding the more blood, laying down the more life, in a common cause. In our Empire-wide unity of endeavour we are demonstrating the wonderful oneness of the British Empire, that unifies and naturalizes all races, creeds and conditions under the genius of the heavenly cult of Christianity, triumphing and to triumph under the glorious flag, blazing with the three-fold symbol, blending the crosses of the three greatest races of history, as they themselves are blended in the army fighting for all that is typified in the Cross of Calvary.

THE ADVANTAGES AND THE ETHICS OF ADVERTISING

Of late years the use of advertising has increased to such an extent that it will be both useful and instructive to consider what was the original meaning of the verb "to advertise," and how far its modern usage agrees with its original intention.

Being derived fro mthe Latin words ad, to, and vertere, to turn, the true object of advertising is seen to be drawing of the reader's attention to the article of service advertised. The French word for advertisement, namely, announce, is less aggressive, indicating that an advertisement is an announcement of the goods or services that are offered or required.

It is still true that a large amount of advertising partakes simply of the character of an announcement, the latter being for the purpose either of letting the new reader know what the advertiser has to offer, or else of reminding a former customer or client that the goods or services he knows of are still available. As long as advertising fulfils this object, as long, that is, as it concerns itself solely with information and reminder, it fulfils a function of considerable importance and of the greatest service to the world in general. It is only when it comes to transgress these limits that it becomes open to serious obejction.

Advertising men will tell one that the object of advertising is to "sell the goods." This is all very well, so long as the process is conducted on the right lines. If an advertiser has a useful article, or useful services to offer, he is benefitting the public by letting them know this fact, and in setting it forth in such a way that they almost feel that they are having the goods offered, or the services described, to them across the counter. When the effort to "announce" goods is conducted in this way it is legitimate and useful. It is only when the advertiser endeavours to create in the mentality of the reader the desire to purchase something which is really less attractive than the advertisement would indicate, which, if he only knew it, he would steer clear of altogether, or which he really does not want that advertising is liable to be abused.

It is unfortunate that so much of advertising still reains these characteristics, but it is a welcome sign of the times that the tendency, both of advertisers and of publishers, is to avoid such forms of advertising and to rely on a simple statement of what is offered. If by attractive drawing up of his advertisement, or by useful illustration, the advertiser should endeavour to catch the public eye, he deserves the reward of his enterprise or ingenuity. A point which gives evidence of greater discrimination on the part of the reading public is the fact that the use by an advertiser of a number of superlatives is among the surest ways of defeating the success of his advertisement. It is being found more and more that honest advertisement pays, and that under-statement, rather than over-statement, achieves the best results.

The declaration adopted last summer in Toronto by the convention of the Advertising Clubs of the World proclaimed the approaching end of dishonest and misleading advertising, and was undoubtedly one of the principal landmarks in the progress of the business world. Advertising, as all will agree, constitutes one of principal departments of the world of business, and the cleaning up of advertising involves, by a natural seqpence, the cleaning up of business as a whole. Advertising, if we remember the original signification of the word, can be applied to shop assistants selling goods across the counter, and it will easily we understood that the changed and improved methods of advertising will extend their influence to such units of the business organization, so that as time progresses, we are likely to hear less and less of people being induced to buy articles which they do not want and which they cannot use. Honestly, after all, is the best policy, and quite apart from those moral influences which are increasingly active in the world to-day, this fact is steadily impressing itself in advertising circles.— Christian Science Monitor.

"SASKATCHEWAN, GOOD BYE"

The Examiner has received from Charles M. Daniels, publisher of music San Francisco, a copy of a new patriotic song. It is rather a far cry from San Francisco to the Saskatchewan, but the composers of "Good-Bye Saskatchewan," text by Charles Charretier, and music by Neil Moret, have collaborated very successfully to catch the spirit of the Canadian West. The words have a rugged virility and directness, and they are set to music that has a melodiously martial and free and easy swing. The music is splendidly appealing and written in a key that brings it within the capacity of the average voice and thus conjoined with the fervid patriotism of the words, so timely to the present crisis, that it must win on its double merit, wide popularity. "Saskatchewan, Good-Bye," may be had of all music dealers at 30 cents.

CANADIANS AT THE FRONT.

It is believed that the First Canadian Contingent is in Flanders or on its way, and before many days it will be on the firing line, keen to carry along the pace set by the gallant "Pats." At Salisbury Plains the Canadian troops have been put through a long and severe training. Perhaps it has been a little too long, considering that it does not appear to be an ideal spot for a camp, but Gen. Alderson paid the Canadians a fine tribute when he declared that despite the discouraging conditions, the work has been carried on with the finest spirit. There is plenty of hardship and not much to enthuse over in the daily grind of preliminary drill and manoeuvre. It has been a real test, not alone of physical and military fitness, but of clean, virile manhood, and the First Contingent has come through with flying colours.

Patient under exasperating circumstances, eager to learn, calmly confident, non-boastful, the entire behaviour of the Canadians at Salisbury guarantees that the best traditions of the Empire will be maintained by the First Contingent when it gets into action.—London Advertiser.

CANADA HAS FOUND HERSELF?

National self-confidence was never fully asserted in this country until the outbreak of the war. Till the tramp of the jack-boot began to vibrate in Europe we never really knew what it was to be flung entirely back upon our resources.

And the Made-in-Canada campaign is the best single expression of the change. It's one thing to have factories and markets and railways booming in a time of fat prosperity when everything heads that way. It's a different thing to have to put your house in order and begin to look after your own affairs. We have talked a good deal in this country, and not without reason, about self-government. We have said very much less about self-help. We have been inspired by the liberty that has made it possible for us to stand up in the world as a real democracy and yet remain loyal to the Crown over the sea.

Every dollar's worth of goods made and sold in this country in a time of war is a direct help to England in this cause; just as much, if not as directly, as every bushel of wheat that we grow. The Made-in-Canada campaign is one of the inspirations of British self-help the world over, and in it Canada can be truly said to have found herself.

U. S. Army Vote Passed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. — After two days' debate on the general state of the national defences the House yesterday passed without a roll call the army appropriation bill carrying $101,000,000.

Advocates of the immediate strengthening of the military establishment fought to the last for additional appropriations, but their efforts met with no encouragement from either Democratic or Republican leaders. The last roll call, on a motion by Representative Gardner of Massachusetts, to re-commit the bill with instructions to report back an amendment carrying $1,000,000 for aviation was defeated, 253 to 34.

Brutal To Prisoners.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Charges of brutality on the part of German officers toward British prisoners under transportation from the battlefront to the detention camps, made by a major of the Scottish Rifles, who escaped from prison at Crefeld, were made public here last night by the British Embassy. The report of the officer also has been put into the hands of Ambassador Page in London by the Foreign Office.

THE SCOURGE OF WAR

Red carnage rules, with ruthless iron sway
O'er Europe's devastated, war-ploughed plains,
And flows in torrents, mid the awful fray,
The noblest blood that flows in British veins.

The cruel besom of destruction sweeps
Relentless over the land, and mine sown main,
On both grim death, a ghastly harvest reaps,
In hecatombs of countless thousands slain.

Disease and famine, war's true offspring dread,
Follow sleuth-like upon his gory trail,
Ruin's dark pall, on peaceful homes is spread,
From breaking hearts ascends the bitter wail.

When thus adversity, dark frowning lowers,
Well for a moment, might we pondering pause,
And seek to learn, if Heaven's Almighty powers
Offended, punish us for broken laws.

Long has our mighty empire sat at ease,
Secure from war's destructive volleys hurled,
With wealth, and commerce, wafted on each breeze
That floats her flag, around the busy world.

Effulgent beams the Gospel's glorious ray
Fair freedom shines, on every creed and race,
Art, science, literature, their light display,
And Nature's smile in every scene we trace.

A goodly heritage in truth we own
With privileges, blessings, flowing o'er
And so perhaps, from this much favoured zone
Thus rich endowed, shall be demanded more.

Yet, if upon our ways, by God's strict hand,
The plummet of His holy law be laid,
To the straight line, clear may we hope to stand,
Nor be found wanting, in the balance weighed.

With us even us, some deadly sins may hide,
Or bold at noonday, glaring stalk abroad,
The love of pelf, of pomp, and high-browed pride,
For which we suffer 'neath the chastening rod.

If lured by pleasure's siren song, we stray,
With willful feet, in folly's unhedged path,
Profane for profit, or for pastime, God's own day,
Ah, how shall we escape His righteous wrath?

Have we essayed to serve our Lord divine,
Like Israel's fickle tribes, in days of old,
While offering incense at the alien shrine,
Of other gods, of sordid mammon mould.

Have we not sinned against our brother's blood
And dyed our hands with fratricidal stain,
The while He perished, cold, unmoved we stood,
To reap from [illegible] gain.

Life for a life, though slow, may turn the wheel,
Stern justice slumbers, not if lingering late,
In flood, or flames, pestilence, or foeman's steel,
Grim vengeance falls at last with crushing weight.

Thus we have erred, but let us now return,
To Him, ho ne'er the prodigal will chide,
Repentant o'er our sins sincerely mourn,
Drawn by correction closer to His side.

So by these fires baptismal, purged from dross,
And base alloy, refined as well tried gold:
That from this crucible of pain and loss
Emerging, we a purer faith may hold.

In righteousness and truth, which to the height,
Of power and honour, raise a nation's life,
Then war no more earth's primal bliss shall blight,
And love and peace shall banish hate and strife.

Revival Among The British Soldiers At Salisbury Plain

Remarkable Scenes Among the Troops in Training on Salisbury Plain —Ten Thousand Soldiers Join Pocket Testament League—Morals of Soldiers Improved

(By George T. B. Davis)

A remarkable Bible revival is in progress among the British soldiers quartered on Salisbury Plain and elsewhere in England. Already more than 10,000 of the troops on Salisbury Plain alone have joined the Pocket Testament League, and have agreed to carry a Testment with them and to read a Chapter daily, and over 3,000 have declared their acceptance of Christ and enlisted under the banner of the King of Kings.

The movement began some time ago when Charles M. Alexander, the well-known Gospel song leader, accompanied by two soloists, a pianist, and a representative of the Pocket Testament League, spent five days travelling from one Y.M.C.A. marquee to another on the Plain, holding Gospel meetings. From the beginning the meetings were a great success. The soldiers crowded into the marquees, and when the tents were filled, they let down the sides and the men stood outside during the service.

Gospels as Hymn Books.

The meetings began with the presentation to each soldier of the Pocket Testament League edition of the Gospel of St. John, containing hymns, pictures and stories. Using the gospel as a hymn book, Mr. Alexander led the men in singing appropriate hymns. The men quickly caught up the new choruses, such as "I am included," and "Good-bye, God Bless You," while they rang out lustily the familiar strains of the "Glory Song," and "Tell Mother I'll be There". Now and then the famous song-leader called upon one of the soloists to sing a hymn such as "My Mother's Prayer," or "Will the Circle be Unbroken?" Again Mr. Alexander would stop the soldiers in the midst of a hymn and give them a straight talk on the manliness of living a clean, Christian life.

At the opportune moment the idea of the Pocket Testament League was explained, and the men were told how during the last six years the movement had swept round the world and hundreds of thousands of all classes from one end of the world to the other had been enrolled in the League, by making it the rule of their lives to carry a Testament with them and to read at least one chapter daily. Special Testaments with waterproof covers, weighing only 2 1-4 ounces, published by the Pocket Testament League Headquarters, 47 Paternoster Row London, were offered to any soldier who wished to join. It was clearly stated, however, that in order to secure the Testament, he must first sign a League membership card, and then sign the pledge in the Testament he received.

A Rush for Testaments.

The eagerness of the men to make the promise and join the movement was astonishing. At one tent, when those who wished to become members were asked to come forward, the soldiers literally stormed the platform in their eagerness to join. At another tent over three hundred soldiers were enrolled in a few minutes. At still another there was no time to give out the Testaments that night, so the men were asked to present their membership cards, and secure the books at the marquee counter the next day. Early the following morning a stream of soldiers asking for Testaments began, and continued until thousands of men had been enrolled in that marquee.

A Remarkable Scene.

During the closing days of the meetings conducted by Mr. Alexander thrilling scenes were witnessed as the soldiers were asked not only to join the League, but to yield their lives to God. One night over a thousand men were crowded into a tent. Over three hundred joined the Pocket Testament League, and at the close of the service 192 soldiers in the presence of their comrades, rang out after the song leader the words "I accept Christ as my Saviour, my Lord and my King." The editor of a London journal who was present, declared it was a sight he had rarely seen equalled.

Bishop Taylor-Smith, the Chaplain General of the Forces, when asked for a word of encouragement to the men whose lives had been influenced, wrote: "My dear Mr. Alexander, I rejoice to hear of the blessing received on the Plain. May you see greater things than these because of Christ's position and power. Give to the brethren from me Hebrews XIII: 20, 21. Believe me, your always, J. Taylor-Smith, Bp. C.G."

Later, Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman arrived in England from America, and he and Mr. Alexander conducted two brief but notable missions in London. At their conclusion, at the urgent request of the National Council of the Y.M.C.A. the evangelists held three thrilling services for soldiers at the Crystal Palace and Wendover, when, as the result of the inspiring messages in sermon and song, hundreds of the troops stood up and openly confessed Christ as their Saviour.

Bible Revival Spreads.

The Bible revival on Salisbury Plain did not end with the visit of Mr Alexander and his party. The movement continued to spread among the men from tent to tent, and the demand for Testaments increased.

Mr. Henry J. Lane, a business man who has worked day and night in one of the Y.M.C.A. marquees on the Plain as an honorary worker enrolling soldiers in the League, and leading them to a decision for God, sent to the League headquarters in London a letter giving a graphic account of the Bible revival among the troops. He wrote:

"After a visit from Mr. Alexander and his party, the Lord manifested His presence in a remarkable way. Until then there had been few decisions for Christ, sometimes one and never more than two a day. After the above mentioned visit and the introduction of the Pocket Testament League, there came upon the soldiers a great desire to hear the Word of God. As it was told out men were gripped by the power of the Holy Ghost, and hour after hour they came to the counter and, with bowed heads, confessed Christ. On one occasion a group of thirty were listening to the Gospel when the speaker asked who would volunteer for the service of Christ Immediately a non-commissioned officer, about 6 feet in height, who was on the outside, put up his hand and said: 'I will Sir,' at the same time pushing his way to the front. Within a few seconds twelve others joined him. No sooner had these been dealt with and prayers offered, than another group came forward. Thus it continued until the 'last post' sounded and the soldiers hurried away to their lines."

Movement Interests London Editors.

A few weeks later the Bible work among the soldiers had aroused such widespread interest that Mr. Lane, and Mr. A. J. C. Thomas—who has witnessed an almost equally wonderful work in a neighbouring Y.M.C.A. marquee—were invited to London to tell about the spiritual movement among the troops.

To a group of editors of London journals who had gathered to hear the story, Mr. Lane told how the work began, and of its remarkable influence on the morale of the troops. He said:

"For weeks we have had a stream of men coming to join the Pocket Testament League, and at the same time accepting Christ so rapidly, that I could not deal with them in ones or twos, but I had groups of eight and ten and more. This has been done in the tent while the latest comic song was being sung. These men listened as intently as if there was no other sound or voice to be heard.

"A merchant of Exeter was there in the marquee on day, also the Wesleyan chaplain. They purposely stood at the back where I could not see them just to see what was taking place. The merchant said this: 'If I had read it in a book, or heard it from the lips of anyone, I would have discounted 50 per cent. and would not have believed the rest.' The chaplain said that he had never hoped to witness such scenes or feel the power of God as he did then. Directly the little book was opened and the Word of God was read, the whole expression on the men's faces was changed, and they became deeply concerned, and the result was that applications for the Testaments became so numerous that we could not supply them all. Men were bringing their chums all day in dozens. One man would get a Testament, and I said 'Let the other know you have a good thing' and the next day, time and again, the remaining number in that tent would come and join, and the demand was so great that at no time have we had sufficient Testaments, though I thank God we had a grand supply, but we have never had sufficient to meet the demand. The soul winning has coincided with the supply of Testaments. It is an extraordinary thing. I have tried to introduce another line of things, but that has failed. In no cases have we had any difficulty in leading souls to Christ from morning to night when we have had the League Testaments behind us.

Swearing Changed to Bible Reading.

"An officer came in who was not a Christian man nor had he very much sympathy with Christian work. He said: 'What are you doing here? Extraordinary things are happening in the lines. Men who used to curse and swear, I hear reading and praying. What is it you have got?' We showed him the Testament; he did not take it, but still we had his testimony. One is struck by the fact that non-commissioned officers have been influenced by their men. One came to me and said, "When I came here the tent was a hell upon earth. Language was so dreadful and behaviour so wretched that we could not get to sleep. When some of them came in we got up out of their way. Everyone has joined the Pocket Testament League, and now there are hymns and Bible readings. The atmosphere of the tent and life has changed.'

"A sergeant came to be and said: 'I'll tell you what Jesus brought me here. I have about the roughest section in our battalion, a tough lot of men. They have had to be carried from the canteens drunk and have given the non-commissioned officers untold trouble. Now they have all joined the Pocket Testament League and they came to be this morning and said: "Sergeant, you see what we done, and isn't it time you did the same?" "Well, I couldn't stand that, so before I went to drill I had to come here.' He accepted Christ.

Recruiting For Christ.

"Some of these men have done a thing that some of us would hesitate about doing. They have gone straight back to their ungodly companions and have besought them to turn from their evil ways and come down and get a Testament and start right; and in tent after tent all the men take it in turns to read a portion each day, and sometimes they sing a hymn. I have had three of four of these men bring a chum up to the counter and they are asked if they have given their hearts to the Lord. Then they stand with bowed heads while I offer a prayer so that every one within the sound of my voice knows what is going on. I have seen a group of men who were at first disinterested become attracted by the sound of praying. When the first group have been attended to there is another waiting. This has gone on until one has been absolutely exhausted in pointing men to Christ. It is such a blessed thing. What is being done in these two marquee can be done in every marquee in this country by the agency of the Pocket Testament League. I want to thank God for the Pocket Testament League. This was His purpose and way of working. I should not be true to our God and Father if I did not say that the Pocket Testament League in His hands has already brought 1,200 men to Christ and 4,200 to promise to read a portion of God's work every day.

To Evangelise the British Army.

"Last Saturday there was a line waiting just like a theatre. They waited patiently for their turn to come to yield themselves to Christ. I was forced to adopt the plan of dealing with them in groups, but the work amongst these men has just ebbed and flowed with the supply of Testaments. I have never dreamed of seeing such marvellous things in my life. I believe that the Pocket Testament League work would evangelise the British army both at the front and at home if men would go out trusting God to use it."

Mr. Thomas, in describing his work told how he takes the soldiers who apply for Testaments into a quiet corner of the tent, one or two at a time. They sit down at a table and sign their names in the Testament agreeing to join the League. Then he shows them how to become a Christian, has prayer with them, and sends them out to openly confess Christ. In a few weeks he and his workers have enrolled over 1,400 men in the Pocket Testament League, and over 600 soldiers have yielded their lives to God. Mr. Thomas verified Mr. Lane's statement that the tide of revival ebbed and flowed with the supply of Testaments.

If this story interests you pray that the Bible revival may continue to grow and increase among the soldiers on Salisbury Plain, and that it may spread throughout the British army and navy.

The Canadian Branch.

The Secretary of the Pocket Testament League of Canada, Mr. S. D. Dinnick, of Toronto, writes:

"It [illegible] possible to claim space in your paper for the unsolicited testimonies that reach our office of how lives communities changed, through the in- have been redeemed, homes blessed, communities changed, through the introduction of the simple and sane method of Christian service of creating the habit of daily reading and carrying of the Word. It would make interesting reading. A sister of two of our Canadian boys on Salisbury Plain writes thanking us for what the Pocket Testament League has meant to their home, how the brothers have been faithful to their pledge at home and in the camp. At first, writes the sister, they were laughed at for the stand which they took, and now things have changed in their favour. instead of ridicule the highest respect is shown them.

"During the past year of 1914, in Canada alone there has been an increase of 268 local branches and 30,046 members."

MILBURN'S

HEART and NERVE PILLS.

Mrs. John Harper, Toronto, Ont., writes: "I have used Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for the heart and nervous system. I was confined to a grocery store for twelve years, and had to give up business, as I became terribly run down and nervous, and had heart trouble, and I am sure I am gaining very fast now. I feel that nothing did me any good until I tried your Heart and Nerve Pills, and I am positive they will cure me. The nerves of one hand would tremble and then seem to go numb so that I could not write or sew. Now my hand is quite steady, as you can see by my handwriting. This is a big change which delights me so much for I thought all was done that could be done. I was about to give up in despair when I tried this last remedy, and even after I had only taken half a box the change started to come."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will restore the enfeebled, enervated, exhausted, overworked system to full constitutional power.

Price, 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

aries and not the cost of constructing a sewer. Let us get down to business."

The Mayor's Remarks.

Mayor Buller—Hear! Hear! As a former Chairman of the Board of Works I have found as many other members of the City Council have found, that the work of the Engineering Department is not infrequently underestimated. Mr. Hay formerly did the work alone, at a salary of $1,200 a year. He was a tried and faithful servant, but when the time came for a change I supported a younger man and recommended that Mr. Hay be retained as assistant engineer at an increase of salary. Mr. Hay, during the last few years that the was alone, was overworked. Finally the Provincial Board of Health informed us that we would have to take the sewage out of the Ontonabee River, and that meant the construction of a sewerage disposal plant, which, when completed, will cost the City at least two hundred thousand dollars. As matters now stand we have in Mr. Parsons an engineer who came to us highly recommended and his reputation will stand or fall upon the measure of success that is attained in connection with the sewerage disposal system that I have referred to. His work in that respect will mean the saving to the City of thousands of dollars that would otherwise be spent in securing the services of experts. We have had our experience with special engineers. We can afford to make few changes so far as the Engineering Department is concerned. The question arises, does the Council think that they have in Mr. Parsons a first-class man. If so, nothing more can be said. The same might apply to the other officials connected with the same Department.

An Assistant Clerk.

"I have heard," said Ald. McIntyre, "that City Engineer Parsons has no diploma."

Mayor Buller—"I don't know whether he has or not; it doesn't make any difference to me."

Ald. McIntyre—"It does to me; we ought to know that."

At this juncture Mayor Buller moved that Ald. Stratton confer with City Clerk Armstrong concerning the advisability of securing a male assistant without extra cost to the City. Ald. Johnston pointed out that the City Clerk was overworked, as upon that office devolves the duty of handling the Police Court records, issuing licenses, building permits, etc. Last year City Clerk Armstrong attended over two hundred and fifty meetings, the majority of which were held at night. By putting in a male assistant, a proportion of the night work could be divided and the assistant trained in the art of municipal government. This matter was left in the hands of Ald. Stratton and City Clerk Armstrong.

No change was made in the salary of the City Clerk, it being generally agreed that his salary was small enough considering the importance of the work. At present the office is worth about twenty-four hundred dollars a year.

The Committee also agreed that it would be inadvisable to make any change in the salary of the City Treasurer. At present the job is worth $510 a year. The City Treasurer's salary suffered a severe slump last summer when the work formerly connected with the Waterworks Department was removed to the new office of the Public Utilities Commisison together with the salary.

Down the List.

Here is the way the Committee went down the list and the manner in which each case was dealt with.

Street Commissioner Evans—Salary $1,150.

It was moved by Ald. Green and seconded by Ald. McIntyre, that no reduction be made.

Street Inspector Fitzgerald—Salary $700.

It was moved by Ald. Green and seconded by Ald. Duffus that this matter be referred to the Board of Works. Ald. McIntyre remarked that he had heard that Inspector Fitzgerald had difficulty in finding sufficient work in the winter time.

Tax Collector Green—Salary $1,300. Out of this Mr. Green pays for postage delivery charges, amounting to $250.

It was moved by Ald. Duffus and seconded by Ald. Green that Mr. Green's salary be left as it is.

On motion of Ald. Duffus and Mayor Buller the salaries of the engineering department was referred to the Board of Works.

W. J. Henry—salary, $1,700.

On motion of Ald. Johnston and McIntyre, this salary will be allowed to stand.

Engineer Jamieson—of the Fire Department who visits the City Pumping Station about once a day, to see that everything is running satisfactory. Salary $100.

It was moved by Ald. Duffus and seconded by Ald. Green, that there be no change.

On motion of Mayor Buller and Ald. Johnston, the "no change" sign was hung on Relief Officer Miller's pay envelope, which amounts to $700 a year.

Dr. A. W. McPherson — Medical Health Officer. — Salary $800.

On motion of Mayor Buller and Ald. Duffus this was allowed to stand.

Sanitary Inspector Spence—Salary $700.

It was moved by Ald. McIntyre, and seconded by Ald. Johnston, that Inspector Spence's salary stand as it is.

Mayor Buller — "I would like to give him some more."

Plumbing Inspector Thompson — Salary, $650. This was allowed to stand.

Robert Wilson — Caretaker at the city hall. Salary, $600. No change.

On motion of Ald. Duffus and Johnston, a recommendation will be forwarded to the Police Commissioners urging them to reduce the operating expenses of the Department to the minimum.

City Solicitor Gordon — Salary $1,000.

On motion of Mayor Buller and Ald. Johnston, this was allowed to stand.

Mr. F. J. A. Hall—Auditor. Salary $300. No change.

His Honour Judge Huycke—Police Commissioner. Salary, $100. No change.

C. McClelland — Caretaker town clock. Salary $50. No change.

Miss Bertha Mowry—Matron Queen Mary Isolation Hospital. Salary $700. No change.

On motion of Aldermen Green and Duffus the salaries of the fire-fighters will stand as they are.

Germans Are Defeated In Front Of Warsaw

New Offensive Movement In Northern Poland Has Apparently Come Very Near to the German Frontier and Occupation of East Prussia Is In Prospect

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Gen. von Hindenburg's army before Warsaw is erecting defensive works in its present position across the Bzura. It is believed that the Germans realize that the Austrians have failed in their attempt to advance in southern Poland, and that the Germans' right flank will be exposed to danger similar to that which threatens from the Russian army which has advanced past Plock, north of the Vistula.

A despatch from Rome says: The German offensive on Bzura-Rawka line, before Warsaw, has been definitely repulsed, says a despatch to Messagero. German armored automobiles which made an attack on the Russian left wing on the Rawka were destroyed after a sharp action.

The two Russian armies in the north, in the Masurian Lake region, and in north Poland, are both operating on the offensive, and it is believed that they are aiming at the complete occupation of East Prussia. It is pointed out by the military critic of The Novo Rusky that the occupation of this region to a line running through Soldau and Allenstein would considerably shorten the Russian line, which is now spread over a long front.

In the north the new Russian offensive apparently has carried them well toward the German frontier without meeting with any serious resistance.

The offensive in this section region are considered by military observers as likely to be faster than elsewhere, for the Russian advance into Transylvania is reported to have been checked by the appearance of a large Austrian force in the mountains, while the snow prevents the Muscovites from going any farther through the Carpathians, although they hold all the passes in readiness for the day when the weather will permit of a resumption of the forward movement.

Although the Carpathians are now snow and frost bound under the most rigorous period of winter and operations on both sides have consequently slackened the steady sealing up of Hungary from the north, south, and east, and it becomes daily a more urgent problem for Germany's ally.

No mention has been made during the last few days concerning the fate of the remnants of the Turkish armies which the Russian reports previously said had been defeated in the Caucasus, but it is considered by military men here that the Russians, having use for their men elsewhere, have decided not to push on to Erzerum.

The Russian fleet, according to reports, is still busy in the Black Sea sinking sailing ships. This is taken here as evidence that the reports that the Turkish cruiser Goeben had been put out of action were not exaggerated.

A MOTHER'S ANXIETY

Most mothers are anxious when their little ones are teething, for at this time the baby's stomach gets disordered and there is a grave danger of convulsions. This anxiety can be lessened, however, if the mother keeps a supply of Baby's Own Tablets in the house and gives an occasional dose to her teething baby. The Tablets are the very best medicine in the world during the teething time. They regulate the bowels, sweeten the stomach, promote healthful sleep and make teething painless. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

To-morrow At All Saints'

The The re-opening services of All Saints' Church will be continued to-morrow. The special preacher for the day will be the Rev. Canon O'Meara, L.L.D., Principal of Wycliffe College, Toronto. At 3 o'clock a children's service will be held in the Church, at which Dr. O'Meara will also give an address. The parents of the children and their friends are cordially invited to this service.

If you want to sell cheap tea, you leave all the dust in it. But cheapness does not always mean satisfaction. The dust and stems are carefully removed from Salada tea, thus ensuring a perfectly clean, bright tea of a quality and flavour unsurpassed.

TORONTO SAVINGS AND LOAN COMPANY ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING

The annual general meeting of the shareholders of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company was held at the Head Office of the Company, 427 George Street, Peterborough, on Friday, the 22nd day of January, 1915, at 3 o'clock p.m.

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

The directors submit herewith their Thirtieth Annual Report, showing the result of the business for the past year, accompanied by the balance sheet, to the 31st December, 1914.

After payment of interest on deposits and debentures and all expenses of management, there remained a net profit of $135,658.67. To this amount has been added $60,334.55, the balance carried forward from last year, which makes a total sum for distribution of $195,993.12.

This amount has been disposed of in the following manner:

(1) By payment of four quarterly dividends at the rate of 10 per cent. for the year amounting to $100,000.00

(2) By balance left in profit and loss account 95,993.12

The balance in this account carried forward to next year is $95,993.12, as against $60,334.55 brought forward from last year.

The directors deemed it advisable to carry forward this amount in profit and loss account rather than increase the reserve fund at the present time.

The reserve fund stands at $850,000.00, equal to 85 per cent. of the paid-up capital.

All payments maturing during the year on the company's investments have been satisfactorily met, and the rentals from the property owned by the company have also been promptly paid. The books, accounts and securities of the company have been carefully examined by the auditors, and their report is attached to the financial statement.

Your directors record with profound regret the death during the year of Mr. E. W. Cox, who was elected president of the company just a year ago. Mr. Herbert C. Cox, president of the Canada Life Assurance Company, was elected president of the company, and Mr. E. F. Malone, K.C., of the legal firm of Messrs. Malone, Malone and Long, was elected a director to fill the vacancy on the board.

It is again a pleasure to refer to the valued services of Messrs. Finlayson, Auld and MacKechnie, who continue to represent the company in Great Britain in a very satisfactory manner.

Your directors desire to bear testimony to the faithful and efficient services rendered during the year by the officers and staff of the company.

Cost of War $45,962,000 Every Day

The Hague, Jan. 22.—An exhaustive study of the cost of the European war has just appeared in the Berlin Vorwaerts, a socialist newspaper.

The military expenditures of the British Empire are given as about $4,250,000 a day, or $637,500,000 up to January 1. The cost of war to France up to December 10 is given as $1,288,200,000, or, difference in time considered, more than twice the amount spent by Great Britain.

Taking the Russian expenditures to November 15 as a basis, it is shown that the Russian campaign has so far cost $9,200,000 a day, or $1,380,000,000 up to January 1. The expenditures of the Belgian, Servian and Japanese governments are given as about $1,600,000 a day, or, roundly, $240,000,000 up to January 1.

The figures also show that it costs the Allies $2.65 a day to keep a man in the field.

The following is given by the Vorwaerts as a table of expenditures made by the governments of the Triple Entente and their Allies:

Country.	War cost a day.	Total to January 1.
Great Britain	$ 4,250,000	$637,500,000
France	9,918,000	1,486,800,000
Russia	9,200,000	1,380,000,000
Their Allies	1,600,000	240,000,000

No detailed amounts are given in relation to the cost of the war to Germany and Austria-Hungary. The statement is made, however, that the cost for the two is $21,000,000 a day, or $3,150,000,000 up to January 1.

Adding the expenditures of all the nations at war, the daily total is about $45,962,000, and the total up to January 1, $6,894,300,000.

It is said by the Vorwerts that from the French total expenditures so far made must be taken the following loans—To Belgium, $50,000,000; to Servia, $16,000,000; to Greece, $4,000,000 and to Montenegro, $100,000, or a total of $70,100,000, which would make the amount spent by the French Government in military operations $1,416,000,000 by the close of 1914.

For a year the European war would on this basis cost the tremendous sum of $16,676,130,000. Making allowance for the loss of manufacturing but keeping in mind that the spending of men through into the field is in effect a lesser phase of mobilization it will still be found that at the end of a year the Powers at war would have spent at least $16,500,000,000.

In this sum are not included the economic losses of the countries nor the damage done to property in the various military terrains. The loss to Belgium from the destruction of property is estimated at $120,000,000, while the damages suffered by East Prussia are said to be roundly $80,000,000. No reliable estimates on the property losses in Poland, Galicia, Slavonia, Servia, Bosnia, Alsace and Eastern France have so far been obtainable, but the impression prevails that together this would be no less than $1,400,000,000.

To the cost of the European war must also be added the mobilization expenditures of Holland, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Switzerland, Italy, Spain, Portugal, Roumania and Bulgaria; the cost of the Turkish operations, the losses in naval craft, deterioration of war material and the economic losses due to a general disturbance of the world's commercial relations.

By a series of interesting experiments with chickens, beginning before they are hatched, a Paris scientist has demonstrated that bacilli are not necessary to the life of vertebrates.

WITHOUT AMMUNITION

Prisoners of Princess Pats Said Their Cartridges Were Gone

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Pte. J. E. Oliver, a Toronto member of the Princess Pats, now lying wounded at Sheffield, says the Patricias were up to their breasts in mud and water during the forty-eight hours they were in the trenches. He reckons they accounted for over five hundred Germans, killed and wounded, and adds that the British artillery did some magnificent work.

Two Germans who surrendered said their men were without ammunition. This," says Pte. Oliver, "seems true, because when we searched the dead Germans we never found any ammunition on them."

Speaking of the present rate of progress, Oliver says there is nothing to grumble at, as a gain of fifty yards in this weather is equal to five miles in the summer. The Germans have the advantage over the British in so many being able to speak English. Their officers send them forward to overhear what is said in the trenches.

CITIZENS OVER NERVOUS.

No Confirmation at Hand of Visit of Zeppelins to Cromer.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—Inquiry in official quarters here has failed to elicit any further news concerning the reported passage over Cromer of Zeppelin airships Thursday night. The belief is beginning to prevail here that the noise heard at Cromer might have come from aeroplanes or seaplanes and not airships.

A telephone message from King's Lynn, Norfolk, says no aircraft was seen there Thursday night, but that there was much excitement when the report was received from Cromer that Zeppelins had flown over that town. Telephone inquiries in other towns in Norfolk County were equally unproductive of information verifying the Cromer report.

The London police received no warning to call out special constables or to take any other emergency measures as a result of the report.

To Raise $5,000,000,000.

PARIS, Jan. 23. — A conference was held in Paris yesterday by the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, David Lloyd George, and Alexandre Ribot and P. Bark, the French and Russian Ministers of Finance. It is said that the meeting was arranged to consider a joint loan of fifteen billion francs ($3,000,000,000) to bear interest of 3½ per cent.

SHE GAINED 30 LBS.

Mrs. George Bradshaw, Harlowe, Ont., writes: "I was troubled for many years with weak, watery blood and dropsy. I had nervous headaches, dizziness and sinking spells, and was, in fact, a semi-invalid. Doctors told me my heart and kidneys were diseased and gave me up. But using 10 boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have been cured of many of my old complaints and gained 35 pounds in weight."

Disputes His Statement

Mr. R. J. Kidd Replies to Mr. Fitzgerald's Letter

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—My friend, and neighbour, Mr. J. W. Fits-Gerald, states in his letter to you that Ireland has furnished more soldiers in the present war than, for example, Scotland, according to population.

As a descendant of the old Highland Clan, I would be pleased to know where Mr. Fits-Gerald got his figures to warrant this statement.

According to the "British casualties" lists, as published in the Mail and Empire and the Globe (which list, though incomplete, I hand to you for public inspection), shows that at least three times as many Scotchmen have laid down their lives for the Empire as there have been of the brave soldiers of Ireland.

I am sorry indeed that this list of casualties handed to you is not more complete, but it is the best I can obtain, and will be pleased if any one can add any to it. Thanking you in anticipation.—I remain, yours truly,

25,000 British Troops Arrive at Havre Every Week Now

This was the statement of Palmer L. Bowen, American lawyer, who arrived here yesterday on board the Touraine, of the French line, which left Havre on January 10. Mr. Bowen, who has lived in Paris for seven years, is on his way to his old home in Cripple Creek, Col.

"The French are in this war to the bitter end and every one in the nation is doing his or her share," he said. "Paris is about as usual. There is no scarcity of light, except around such important centres as the railroad stations and government buildings, which are dark at night. The cafes are closed at eleven o'clock at night. There is no fear of Zeppelins in Paris because there are too many anti-aircraft guns between their bases and the capital. It is a different matter in London, where the big craft would encounter very few obstacles. There the spirit is different.

"Havre is like a British camp.

"Twenty-five thousand British arrive there every week, and when I left there were fully 100,000 men there, including many Indian troops, with their goats and other native animals."

Advantage Over Germans Is Growing Day By Day

Renewed Activity of Germans Along the Western Front Results in Defeats For the Attackers—Allied Artillery Shows Superiority

PARIS, Jan. 22.—The winter campaign continues, with both sides attempting to slay as many of each other as possible without being able to make an appreciable advance. In this business of slaughter the allies appear to excel, for earlier deficiencies in artillery have been supplied by the French and British, and this arm will be a growing factor in the war. The improvement of and increase in the number of big guns have had the effect of appreciably reducing the losses on the part of the allies to about a quarter of those experienced in the first campaign in respect to the numbers engaged, and the soldiers have also become inured to trench fighting and take care of themselves better.

Fighting yesterday was fiercest at four or five points. In some cases the attacks were rebuffed, while in others they were still proceeding.

Increased activity of the Germans is reported at several points. The French got the range of a German battery in the wood of St. Mards and put it out of action.

The Argonne was still in the area of heavy fighting. An assault on a field work called Marie Therese near Fontaine Madame. The enemy was repulsed in two vigorous counter attacks, but fighting went on throughout the day. It became extremely furious, but the French still held their positions at nightfall.

The Germans also made night attacks on the French lines at the Hartman-Wefferkopf hills, but these did not succeed. The contest did not cease with nightfall the next day.

The French still remain silent concerning their operations in Alsace, but unofficial communications report them as having drawn closer to the Rhine north of Muhlhausen. As is usually the case silence is maintained about the most important feature of the campaign.

Last night's report from the French War Office was:

"To the south of Apres (Ypres?) the enemy has been more active than previously. Last night there was some rifle and cannon firing.

"In the region of the wood of St. Mards we silenced a German battery.

"In the Argonne some very fierce attacks have taken place near Fontaine Madame at a field work called Marie Therese, and to the south of Fontaine Madame we repulsed the enemy after two vigorous counter-attacks. At the Marie Therese work the fighting went on throughout the day. It was conducted with extreme energy by both sides. When night came we were holding all our positions.

"Some night attacks attempted by the enemy in the region of the Hartmann-Wellerkopf hills did not succeed. According to the latest reports the fighting was still going on there."

The afternoon bulletin said:

"In Belgium the enemy yesterday bombarded Nieuport with a fair degree of violence. Our infantry made some slight progress to the east of the Lombaertyde Highway. Between Ypres and the Oise successful operations on the part of our artillery against fieldworks, batteries and detachments of infantry of the enemy, took place yesterday.

"From the Oise to the Argonne: The situation in the vicinity of Soissons shows no change. Near Berry-au-Bac a trench which we were compelled to evacuate following a violent bombardment, was recaptured by us. In the region of Perthes the enemy delivered an attack during the night of Jan. 20-21, at a point northwest of Beausejour, but without success.

"Between the Meuse and the Moselle: To the southeast of St. Mihiel, in the forest of Agremont, an exceedingly violent bombardment made it impossible for us to remain in the German trenches, occupied by us yesterday for a distance of 150 yards.

"To the northwest of Pont-a-Mousson, in the forest of Le Pretre, the enemy yesterday recaptured a portion of the trenches taken by us Jan. 20, but we are maintaining ourselves at all other points of this position.

"In the Vosges the enemy hurled against St. Die six projectiles of great calibre, without, however, doing any serious damage.

"At a point between Mount Bonhomme and Mount Schlucht there has been an artillery engagement, in which the German batteries were reduced to silence.

"In Alsace the infantry fighting in the region of Hartmann and Wellerkopf is going on with great ferocity. The struggle is actually hand-to-hand.

Isolation Hospital Open 286 Days During The Year

Annual Report of the Queen Mary Hospital Reveals Some Interesting Information Covering the Work—A Total of Fifty-Six Patients Treated, Five of Which Died.

According to the annual report of Miss Bertha Mowry, matron of the Queen Mary Isolation Hospital, fifty-six patients were treated during the year. Five of these died. The appropriation for the hospital for 1914 amounted to $5,200. Of this amount there may be a surplus of approximately $300.

The reports is as follows:

The hospital was open and patients undergoing treatment during 286 days of the year. It was closed for lack of patients 79 days as follows: March, 11 days; May, 10 days; June, 2 days; July, 31 days; August 25 days.

1913 — Closed 31 days (entered for comparative purposes.)

The scarlet fever wards were open 142 days and diphtheria wards 274 days. No scarlet fever patients were treated from May 5th to November 24th.

1913—Scarlet fever wards open 239 days; diphtheria 289 (for comparison.)

Residence of Patients.

The residence of various patients was as follows:

1914.

	City	From Other Municipalities	Total
Diphtheria	37	10	47
Scarlet fever	9	0	9
Mumps	0	0	0

1913.

	City	From Other Municipalities	Total
Diphtheria	7	4	11
Scarlet fever	13	2	15
Measles	43	1	44
Mumps	1	0	1

The number of adults and children treated was as follows:

	Adults	Children	Total
1914	15	41	56
1913	24	47	71

Successful Cases.

Out of the 56 cases treated 51 were discharged as cured. Five cases of diphtheria proved fatal.

The permanent staff consists of matron, assistant and such other nurses as are temporarily employed from time to time, depending on the number of patients treated, and different kinds of contagion. Nurses were temporarily employed as follows:

1914—119 days at cost of.. ..$288.89
1913—229 days at cost of 419.23

Outside the staff proper, as enumerated above, there are employed in the operation of the hospital, a caretaker, cook and laundress who are giving excellent satisfaction.

Operating Expenses.

The expenditures for operating the hospital were as follows:

	1914	1913
Salaries	$1744.00	$1008.33
Groceries and supplies	1071.57	1088.23
Drugs	147.20	154.34
Fuel	502.00	543.01
Ice	56.03	54.50
Light	54.05	60.40
Water	40.00	40.00
Telephone	40.00	40.00
Improvements and repairs and incidentals	666.20	676.81
Total	$4374.90	$4752.60

Food Supplies.

Number two may be sub-divided as follows:

	1914	1913
Groceries and supplies	$347.75	$369.91
Meat	324.73	$258.28
Milk	103.76	136.54
Bread	56.36	71.02
Eggs	46.11	43.87
Fowl	15.25	8.45
Tea, coffee, cocoa	31.00	46.00
Fish, fruit, vegetables	152.61	152.14
	$1,071.51	$1,082.23

Permanent Improvements.

Improvements, repairs and incidentals mentioned above, include a number of items of the nature of permanent improvements, which may be divided as follows:

Improvements to building	$299.19
Improvements to grounds	20.35
Cheese cloth, towelling, cotton, etc	47.48
Outlay on garden	45.73
Hardware, paints, oils	54.41
Printing	11.00
Small items	131.29
Total	$609.38

2,242 Meals Supplied

The total number of days for patients, staff and help for the year was as follows:

	1914	1913
Patients	1177	1456
Nurses	756	949
Help and children	1571	1836
	3504	4241

Total number of meals supplied in 1914—10,512.

Cost of provisions per meal — 9.8 cents.

Total number of meals supplied in 1913—12,738.

Cost of provisions per meal—8 1-2 cents.

In charge of the present caretaker the garden has proved a great success during the past season, as well as providing a constant supply of fresh vegetables; it was also a source of profit. On the credit side we have the following:

All vegetables used since June and enough for all winter.

On the debit side—

1—Ploughing and fertiliser	$26.00
2—Seed	19.73
Total	$45.73

Recommendations.

With regard to the present condition of the building, I beg to submit the following:

The walls in various rooms are in bad condition and require paint and repairs. With the exception of the matched floor wards the floors are badly in need of repairs. The basement floor has only a rough cement finish, which is impossible to keep clean and sanitary and is the cause of dust, which permeates all parts of the building. This is most objectionable in the living rooms of the help.

Surplus Vegetables.

As already stated, sufficient vegetables are on hand to serve the hospital during the winter, but there are no facilities for storage in the building. Part are pitted in the garden, where there is no danger of frost; part is stored in a rented space in a private cellar. With regard to the grounds and surroundings, a more noticeable improvement has taken place, and reflects credit on the present caretaker.

Appropriations For 1914.

Total appropriation	$5,200.00
Receipts	466.39
Expenditures	4,374.90
Balance of appropriation	1,293.23

SHOT AT PURSUERS

Young Soldier Made off With Pistols From Toronto Stores

A THRILLING CHASE

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—Pte. Douglas McAndrew, aged 19, whose home town is Waterford, Ont., tried to run away from Varley's sporting goods store yesterday afternoon with two automatic pistols, and when Mr. Varley gave chase fired at him, the bullet wounding four-year-old Louis Druford, 74 Ann street, who was standing at the corner of Ann and Yonge streets. McAndrew finally was caught by Constable Garrett near Yonge and Breadalbane streets. In the chase the soldier fired half a dozen times at his pursuers. McAndrew tendered a check in payment of one of the weapons, but when Mr. Varley went to the telephone to call up the bank on which the check was drawn, McAndrew suddenly ran out to the street with both guns in his hand. Varley ran after him, and it was just when the proprietor of the store got out on the street that the soldier fired the shot which wounded the youngster at the corner.

Opposite the Maitland apartments Pte. McAndrew jumped into a delivery rig, the driver, Wm. Love, being in the apartments, and drove the horse at a terrific gallop along Maitland to Yonge street again. Love came out of the apartments just in time to see his rig disappearing along the street, and followed at a run and enlisted the assistance of Constable Garrett, on duty on Yonge street. McAndrews drove across Yonge street and continued along Breadalbane, while the policeman commandeered the first motor car he caught sight of; and with the deliveryman beside him, the motor car sped in pursuit. At the Queen's Park circle the motor car had closed up to within a few hundred yards, and McAndrew seeing capture inevitable, turned and fired several shots at his pursuers, neither of which took effect. Finally, McAndrew submitted to arrest.

FOOD PRICES DISCUSSED.

British Workers Urge Government Operation of Shipping.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The Workers' National Committee, under the presidency of J. A. Sedden, met to consider what ought to be done to reduce the present high price of food, especially bread. The committee is representative of every phase of the labor movement from Sidney Webb to Ben Tillett and the conclusion come to was that the Government must take over shipping as it has taken over railways.

Information which has been collected by the committee, shows that the chief cause in the rise in the price of bread is the excessive freight charges imposed by ship owners and it is believed that unless effective steps are taken immediately cargoes of wheat at present being shipped and due to arrive in this country will reach prices much in excess of those ruling at present. The Government, says the report, should take over as many ships as may be necessary and itself bring the wheat from the Argentine and Canada at bare cost price. The committee is skeptical of the contention of ship-owners that the war has reduced the available ships by something like 50 per cent.

STEAMER TORPEDOED.

British Ship Durward Carrying Relief Supplies Sunk By Germans.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 23.—The Telegraaf announces that German submarine U 19 sunk the British steamer Durward, 1,301 tons' register. The Telegraaf points out that this is apparently an initiation of the policy advocated by The Cologne Gazette of waging war on British merchant vessels regardless of the fate of their crews. The Telegraaf learns that the crew of the Durward were saved by a neutral vessel and conveyed to the Hook.

A message from the Hook, Holland, says that the Durward was 24 miles out when the submarine approached her. The captain was given ten minutes to fetch his papers and disembark the crew of 21 men.

The submarine then sent three torpedoes into her hull and took the boats containings the crews to the Maas lightship.

The Durward carried forty tons of food supplied by the American relief committee for the Belgians.

Up To Breasts In Mud and Water

Wounded "Pat" at Sheffield Tells of Battle

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Private J. E. Oliver, a Toronto member of the Princess Pats, now lying wounded at Sheffield, says the Pats were up to their breasts in mud and water during the forty-eight hours they were in the trenches. He reckons they accounted for over five hundred Germans killed and wounded, and adds that the English artillery did some magnificent work.

Two Germans who surrendered, said their men were without ammunition. "This," says Private Oliver, "seems true, because when we searched the dead Germans we never found any ammunition on them."

Speaking of the present rate of progress, Oliver says there is nothing to grumble at, as a gain of fifty yards in this weather is equal to five miles in the summer. The Germans have the advantage over the English in so many being able to speak English. Their officers send them forward to overhear what is said in the trenches.

Toronto, Jan. 23—The Private Oliver referred to in this despatch is probably J. E. Oliver, of 107 Denison Avenue. He joined the 78th Nova Scotia Highlanders when 150 men were recruited in Toronto to fill up the ranks of that regiment just before the first contingent left. Later it was reported that a number from the N. S. Higlanders were transferred to the Princess Pats, in the Old Country, and Oliver was evidently one of these. Private Oliver was born in Hamilton thirty years ago, was a chauffeur, and is married. He served six years in the 13th Regiment in Hamilton.

ROUMANIA ONE OF THE RICHEST OF BALKAN NATIONS

Little Country Which Threatens to Enter European War Great Oil Producer

It has been unofficially stated by members of the Roumanian Parliament that the Roumanian Government will almost certainly take a hand in the war, and not for the purpose of supporting any people which has the least shadow of an alliance with the hereditary foe of Turkey. The more certain it is if Italy joins in the slaughter.

Roumania is one of the richest of the countries of the Balkan region, and although it has an area of only a little more than 50,000 square miles, it has a population of nearly 7,000,000, the most compact in racial association of all that vast region of central Europe extending from the seas of the north to those of the south. More than 92 per cent. are Roumanians. There are Jews, 4.3 per cent., and the remainder are a sprinkling of Germans, Bulgarians and Hungarians, with no fewer than 200,000 gypsies. Roumanians are practically of the Greek orthodox religion.

The name comes down from the days of Roman rule, the country previous to that being overrun by semi-nomadic Gretae and Dacians. Its vicissitudes, transformations, malformations and reformations have been innumerable, being ruled by this and that exploiting nation, and it only reached its present independence after the Russo-Turk war of 1877, and with the settlement for that time of the "eastern question" by the congress in Berlin in 1878. Roumania became in area and impulsea the little kingdom of to-day which has been spoiling for a fight at least since Turkey decided once to stick its nose into the hot European stew.

Several millions of the Roumanian race are scattered in the Austrian province of Transylvania, north of the boundary range of the Carpathian mountains, and in Banat, Bukowina and Macedonia, and one of the ambitions of these millions in Roumania for years has been to effect a closer Balkan union. In the second Balkan war of 1912-13, King Charles of Roumania was slow to take action but when he did he invaded Bulgaria with telling results. After the convention of London Roumania was richer in area by about 2,000 square miles clipped from the northern boundary of Bularia. King Charles was really one of the most potential individual factors in promoting peace.

One of the developments of recent years is that of oil production and refining, half a dozen of the districts having fine wells producing hundreds of thousands of tons per annum, producers estimating always by the ton. Exports amount to about $70,000,000 a year, 75 per cent. of the total value being of cereals.

The fighting army since the war has numbered about 70,000, but what has been added by the recent process of mobilization is not known. The navy has two or three protected cruisers and a dozen gunboats. The northern province, Moldavia's, eastern boundary is in Bessarabia, Rumia, and the southern province of Wallachia abuts on the same Rumian province, just across the mouth of the great Danube river. This is one of the reasons why Roumania is friendly to Russia. The Roumanians fought beside the Russians in the war of '77, and when Prince Charles was elected king, in 1881, his crown was moulded from a cannon captured at the battle of Plevna, Bulgaria.

Bucharest, capital of Roumania, has an estimated population of about 225,000, with a university of nearly 5,000 students. There is also an important university at Jassy. The kingdom has several fine ports on the Black Sea and on the Delta of the Danube.

Condemns The Encore Mania

Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In your report of the "Adanac" concert and reception afterwards, it appears that "some one hundred and fifty persons, well known in this city as knowing music well and being good judges of the art" were present by special invitation. Is this intended to mean that the invitation list included all citizens having the qualifications thus described?

The presence and example of one hundred and fifty persons so qualified should, one would think, have restrained the clamour for repetitions or additions to a programme originally long enough.

In addition to the objections so well expressed by your correspondent, "Metronome," it may be useful to note the inconsistency of the "encore mania" with knowledge, taste or judgment in musical arts.

Truly yours,
SEMI-BREVE.

THE PLEASURES OF READING

By F. M. DELA FOSSE

"But what strange art, what magic can dispose
The troubled mind to change its native woes?
Or lead us willing from ourselves to see
Others more wretched, more undone than we?
This books can do—nor this alone, they give
New views of life and teach us how to live;
They soothe the grieved, the stubborn they chastise;
Fools they admonish and confirm the wise:
Their aid they yield to all; they never shun
The man of sorrow nor the wretch undone;
Unlike the hard, the selfish and the proud,
They fly not sullen from the suppliant crowd;
Nor tell to various people various things,
But show to subjects what they show to kings."

These lines are by Crabbe, a writer who sixty or seventy years ago was regarded with an admiration little short of that bestowed on Cowper and on Gray. Crabbe was very far from being a great poet, but he is interesting as having been the friend of Moore, Rogers and Scott, and his verse is valuable as depicting in minutest detail the village life of England at the dawn of the nineteenth century. His poems, "The Borough," "The Parish Register," "The Village Squire" and some shorter pieces make a volume well worthy of being placed side by side with those two masterpieces in prose, "Our Village," by Miss Mitford, and "Cranford," by Mrs. Gaskell.

If it is not altogether to our credit that we have allowed the reading of Crabbe's works to be neglected we can at least take comfort from the belief that such neglect is only temporary. Nothing that is worthy of preservation is allowed to die. The alembic of the years never fails in its task. It does its work silently but efficaciously, preserving all that is good in literature and eliminating all that is worthless. How effectively it acts we can see by marking the trend of taste in ourselves as well as in our friends. We shall find that there is not one amongst us, no matter how voluminous his reading may have been who, if called upon to do so, could name more than thirty or forty books as having had an abiding influence on his character or as having held his undiminished interest through the years in hours of relaxation.

Hundreds of works are written by authors imbued with the very highest of motives, but in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, they are utter failures and succeed in nothing but in tiring their readers by their platitudes or insipidity.

Many books of fiction also are almost useless, owing to their disgusting realism. Authors seem to have lost sight of the fact that what the public is seeking for is healthy virility, not a succession of scenes showing to what depths humanity is capable of sinking. What are needed are books that will show us to what heights of usefulness and goodness men and women are capable of attaining, and we know that these can be written without in any sense detracting from cleverness of dialogue or plot.

Looking back over a period of forty years I can call to mind no more than twenty books which have really had any marked effect on my mind. Of these eight are fiction, and three of these eight stand out prominently as being the ones from which I have culled more enjoyment and useful teaching than from any others. These are "John Halifax, Gentleman," "John Inglesant" and "The Newcomes." All three of these books give one something to think about and to pattern one's life by whilst calling for the unqualified admiration of all who delight in excellence of style and diction.

The story of "John Halifax" is the story of a man who by his own exertions made a position for himself in the world, not by chicanery or trickery, but by sheer honesty and perseverance. It presents to us one of Nature's gentlemen, a man who owed absolutely nothing to art or fortune and whose nobility of soul shone out in every act of his career. It deals with the epoch when the use of machinery was beginning to alter the whole economy of England's industrial life and is replete with interest from start to finish.

"John Inglesant" is a tale of the days of Charles I and is a most vivid word-painting of the life and manners of that period. It is stated that John Shorthouse, the author, took twenty years to finish the book. It was labour well spent, for he has given us as complete and perfect a portrait of a gentleman as English literature can furnish.

"The Newcomes," by Thackeray, is one of the best known books in English fiction. Those who have not read it will find in the characterisation of Colonel Newcome, an English army officer of the finest calibre, a preux chevalier, gentle, courtly and kind, a man absolutely above board in all his dealings, whom even the loss of fortune could not turn from the path of rectitude. The pathos of his death-bed scene, when he passed away with the whispered "Adsum" on his lips, a word which in his school days he had uttered at the daily roll-call, is one of the outstanding features of the novel. No one can read any of this grand trio of books without feeling the better for having done so.

CHARITY DEPT. IS INNUDATED

With Applications For Relief—The Worst in Twenty Years

There has been more demand for charity within the past month than during any previous month this winter. As a matter of fact, City Relief Officer Miller says that it is the worst that he has experienced during his long regime as Relief Officer, which is something like twenty years. Many of the applicants have never had to apply for relief before, and their present condition is one result of the catastrophe that is being perpetrated on the shell-swept battlefields of Europe. Every organization in the City is directing its efforts towards the relief of those who may be suffering from privation.

Division Court In Havelock

Only three cases came up before Judge Huycke at the Havelock Division Court on Tuesday of last week. J. W. Bryans was awarded judgment for $50.00 and costs against German Varty on an account; the suit of the Canadian Oil Co. against G. A. Gravel was adjourned, and Peter McMullen was given judgment for $10 and costs of court against Fred Toms for damage caused by the latter's cows eating his buckwheat.

THE DISPOSAL OF THE CITY LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP CUP

Mr. Peter Gettas has intimated that in the event of there being no City League this year, he will nevertheless, have a team to defend the trophy which the Bostons won last year. This, however should not be regarded as being won this year by the Bostons in the event of their not being challenged. Mr. C. G. Graham and Mr. Fred Clarke, the donors of Cup, did not intend that it should be held in any one year by a team which did not actually contest for it under the League conditions. If that were the case it would have been won by the Chieftains, who held it four years without receiving a challange. Hence, while Mr. Gettas shows a sporting spirit in a willingness to defend the Cup the League can demand that it now be returned to the donors until it is won under conditions similar to last year.

Petes Finish Strong And Beat Oshawa Intermediates 11 to 6

Visitors Gave Homesters A Hard Battle In the First Two Periods But Failed In the Last Twenty Minutes

A CLEVER EXHIBITION

The Oshawa Intermediates gave the Petes a great argument in the first two periods at Brock Street Rink last night, but failed in the last twenty minutes, and the Hunter brigade won, going away by 11 to 6. At the end of the first session the Petes were in front 5 to 4, and at the end of the second period, 6 to 5. The only goals in the period were scored in the last thirty seconds of play. In the final round, however, the locals showed their superiority and pressed all the way, outscoring the visitors five goals to one. It was a tidy little exhibition of hockey—the first twenty minutes probably the fastest of the season and was played on ice that was like a sheet of glass.

The Oshawa team showed surprisingly good form. In team work they had more than an edge on the Petes. They broke fast and in line, passed cleverly and piled in on top of the nets on a rush, with the result that they got all their goals in the first period on rebounds, following a combination dash. Added to the teamplay was a considerable amount of speed and some fine stickhandling, and the result was a pretty dangerous looking team.

The Petes failed to hold their positions or get away together like the visitors and most of their goals were the result of brilliant individual efforts.

For Oshawa, Smith, the youngster in the nets, performed superbly. The Petes gave him a lot of work to do, and he blocked and cleared like a veteran. Freeman, the auburn-haired defence man, had a world of speed and stick-handling ability, and rushed repeatedly. Fair and Hall, the two centre-ice men were the best of the forwards, the former being especially brilliant. Red Weiler showed speed, but was handicapped by being cast for the right wing position. Like Halpin, who played a similar role for the Petes, he is a left-hand shot.

All the home brigade performed cleverly, in dividually, with Spratt and Park getting the biggest share of the limelight. Spratt had several brilliant dashes for goals, one of them the length of the rink, while Park showed his usual pepper around the nets. Halpin did not find the right wing position to his liking and did much better at rover when the line-up was shifted in the last period. Janes' work, in the nets, was up to its usual good standard.

Lou Marsh refereed satisfactorily. It was an easy game to handle as every one was on his good behaviour and the best of good feeling was shown.

	Left defence
Jacobi		Pethick
	Rover
Fair		Spratt

The pace was sizzling at the start. The Oshawa gang were chock full of pepper, and playing fine combination, while the Petes, although performing brilliantly individually, were not passing well. The conditions made it an even Stephen battle for the first twenty minutes, with both goalers having plenty of opportunities to show their skill. Early in the game Oshawa had several opportunities close in, but Janes beat them, while Smith was equally as clever when the Petes broke inside. Park nearly scored for the Petes on a pretty individual rush, and almost immediately after Halpin was benched for charging the Picton goaler. With the odd man advantage Oshawa pressed. Hall, Fair and Canning came down together, and although Janes blocked the rover's shot, Canning came in fast and got the rebound.

The Petes were not long in tying it up, Park doing the trick from a scrimmage. A minute later Spratt tore in and beat Smith on a pass from Hunter, and the Petes were ahead. Spratt came back with another one shortly afterwards, when he went the length of the ice for a goal. He broke away from his own nets, got away from the Oshawa forwards, and ripping through between Freeman and Jacobi, scored from close in. Freeman tripped him after he had passed, but Spratt shoved the rubber in while lying on the ice. The Oshawa defence man drew a penalty for the offence.

Oshawa were playing nice hockey at this stage, showing fine combination. They came down three or four in a line, and finally Canning scored on a rebound from a shot by Weiler. Fair evened up the count when he followed in his shot and scored on the rebound. Then Weiler scored another goal in thirty seconds, putting his team in the lead. They did not stay there long, however, as Kelly beat Smith after a pretty rush, and Halpin made it 5 to 4 when he took a pass from Park close in. Spratt was penalized for tripping just before the end of the period.

In the second session the Petes gave Smith a busy time in the goal. Hunter's squad kept up a bombardment, but were unable to score. It was Oshawa who finally landed, Fair tying the score on a lone rush. He circled around the net and shoved the rubber past Janes in good style. Exactly four seconds afterwards Park sent the Petes to the front again, when he took the puck in from the face-off and caught Smith asleep.

The last period was pretty well all Peterborough's. The homesters finished strong while the visiting talent faded. Soon after the period opened Spratt scored on a lone rush, in which he fooled the defence by plugging a shot. Kelly made it 8 to 5 thirty seconds afterwards. Park, on a pass from behind the nets by Halpin, fooled Smith with goal No. 9, and a few moments later scored on a combination rush. Fair got one back for Oshawa on a pass from behind by Weir, and Spratt wound up the scoring with another neat rush.

HANDSOME PRIZES OFFERED FOR THE LOCAL BONSPIEL

The prizes offered for the local bonspiel, which opens here on Feb. 2nd at 1.30 should, apart from the love for the game, attract some of the best rinks in the district. The first series is as follows: 1st prize Grand Challenge Cup to be held for one year and four pairs of red hone curling stones; second prize four sets of cutlery in cases. Second series—1st prize, four zolid leather bags; second, four sets of carvers in cases. Bills have been sent out to the curling centres in this part of the province, and the bonspiel should be largely attended. As it is several years since a big affair was held here, and the local bonspiel is just one of a number of interesting events promised during the rest of the season.

LINDSAY WON EASILY FROM COBOURG KIDS

COBOURG, Jan. 22.—The Cobourg juniors went down to their fourth defeat this evening, when Lindsay juniors defeated them by the score of 8 to 2. Lindsay ran a special rain, and about three hundred came with them. The rink was packed to capacity. The game was full of excitement all through and a lot of rough play was witnessed. Even the Cobourg midget goaltender started to make a rush by himself. The teams:—

Referee—McCord.

Italy Makes Another Demand.

ROME, Jan. 23.—Italy has taken a fresh step in connection with the Hodieda incident which is more decisive and energetic than the former demand for an apology, says The Couriere d'Italia.

In consequence of the refusal of the Vali of Saana to obey, the orders of the Porte, Italy has demanded that Vali be dismissed.

WHITBY GAVE PICTON PESTS HARD FIGHT

PICTON, Jan. 22.—Whitby intermediates made Picton extend themselves to win by 6 to 4 to-night. Although the home team were always in the lead, the visitors put up a stiff brand of hockey and came strong in the last period.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—Disposition shown to question the accuracy of reported big sales to Europe cut a figure today in overcoming a fresh advance in the price of wheat. The market closed easy, 1-8c off to a shade up, compared with last night. Corn gained 1-8c to 1-4c net, and oats a sixteenth to 1-8c. Provisions finished from 11 1-2c decline to a rise of 5c.

Manitoba oats—No. 2 C.W., 68½c; No. 3 C.W., 63½c, track, bay ports; No. 1 feed, 63c; sample oats, 60½c.

Ontario oats—Outside, 53c to 54c.

Ontario wheat—No. 2, car lots, $1.28 to $1.29, outside, according to freights.

American corn—No. 2 yellow, all rail shipments, Toronto freights, 81c; No. 3, 80½c.

Peas—No. 2, $1.85 to $1.90, car lots, outside, nominal.

Rye—No. 2, $1.06 to $1.09.

Barley—Good malting barley, outside, 67c to 69½c.

Rolled oats—Car lots, per bag of 90 lbs., $3 to $3.05; in smaller lots, $3.25, Windsor to Montreal.

Buckwheat—76c to 78c, car lots, outside.

Millfeed—Car lots, per ton; bran, $23 to $24; shorts, $27 to $28; middlings, $32 to $34; good feed flour, $33 to $43.

Cornmeal—Yellow, 98-lb. sacks, in car lots, $3.10; in small lots, $3.40.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 22.—The wheat opened strong; May was 2-8c and July 3-4c higher; oats, 3-8c to 1-2c advanced and flax 1 1-2c higher. While there was considerable excitement during the early hours, the trading was much lighter in volume than yesterday. It was noticed, however, that the buying was being taken up by responsible houses. Following the opening there were further fractional advances and both May and July halted at 1-8c under the record prices of yesterday. An active business in oats for export is also being carried thru and prices were strong in sympathy with American markets.

Export trading was quiet, bids being out of line. The total inspections on Thursday were 264 cars, as against 36 cars last year and in sight today were 150.

At the close there was a show of weakness, altho prices made a gain on the day. Wheat futures closed 1-8c to 1-2c higher. Cash closed 1-4c higher to unchanged on No. 2 northern. Oats closed 1-4c to 3-8c higher and flax 3-4c to 1 1-2c higher.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Jan. 22.—Business in grain over the cable continues very quiet owing to the limited demand from overseas buyers, and the fact that the few bids that are coming forward are away out of line with exporters' views. The local trade in coarse grains was more active, there being an improved demand from outside sources for supplies of all lines and the sales made amounted to 100,000 bushels. The tone of the market for oats continues strong and prices scored a further advance of 1-2c to 1c per bushel. There is no change in flour, but the tone of the market is very firm. The trade in millfeed continues fair. A steady trade continues to be done in butter at firm prices, but cheese is quiet. Demand for eggs is good.

WHAT'S THE VALUE OF YOUR LIFE?

Every man's life has a certain definite commercial value based upon the income he is able to earn.

What is the value of your life? Let us assume it to be $15,000. This amount at 6% will produce a yearly income of $900. So you see $15,000 is not an excessive valuation.

Now, if you owned a building worth $15,000, would you insure it to indemnify yourself against its loss by fire? Of course, you would. And yet the building may never burn.

But have you taken the same precaution to protect your dependents against the loss they would sustain in the coming off of your life by death? And sooner or later that is sure to happen.

If your life is not insured for the value you place upon it, write today for our free booklet "The Creation of an Estate." To-morrow you may be uninsurable.

Calls Tipperary Song Doggerel

Peterborough, Jan. 22, 1915.
To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—You will perhaps excuse me for again trespassing on your space in connection with that "Tipperary Tea," but two short articles in your edition last night, I think, call for some comment.

As to your own article headed "A Contribution Declined," I can only say that whoever the writer may be, he may rest assured that I have no ill-feeling towards him.

As to the other article signed "Dad the Piper," I think you will agre with me—when I say—that the letter shows a very vindictive spirit in trying to keep up the same caricature. I think the less we have of those "Tipperary Teas," and the singing of that doggerel "It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary," the beter it will be for our soldier boys and the unity of our people. And at the risk of trespassing somewhat, on your valuable space, I will quote the opinion of a true Irishman and a native of Tipperary on this "new song":

"When I first read the account of the soldiers in the trenches around Lille singing, "It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary," I must admit that a touch a pathos blurred the page. Since then the tune has become almost universal, as friend and foe, beyond the seas, have caught the strain, and voice and instrument in parlour and battfefield, here as well as there, pronounce the air that ears nof deaf for ever, heard for the last time in the dreadful melee that makes red graves of one-time green Europe.

"Hailing from Tipperary, for as a child my lungs were filled with the clear winds that play around the brow of the lordly Benduff Mountain, I was interested in the "new song." Often has memory come laden with the pastoral scenes of my native place, exceptionally rich in views of beauty and grace, as it is interesting in legend, proud in its traditions, and glorious in its history from the view point of intellectuality as well as patriotism.

"I am proudly conscious of the character of Tipperary in everything which makes life estimable, as it is marked with well worn path ways through its sweeping meadows telling of the faith of the crowds that cut across the fields to mass, as its sacred shrines declare a devotion, not of yesterday, but which makes sacred ancient days. With a throbbing heart, I sent to the publishers for "It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary," and on its reception, indignation could burn its silly page. It tells of the stupidity of the Irishman and it flaunts the inconstancy of the Irish woman. Could anything recede closer to Hell in its diabolism.

"It is a far cry and a long way to the Tipperary that the legions of Sarsfield admired as they gazed on it from the heigths of Silevenamion, from the land that gave and loved and laps the dust of Charles Kirkham, from the home of William Smith O'Brien, the lion-hearted, from the Tipperary which fathered the hero, whose deathless name still thrills mentality and patriotism wherever existing — the uniquely glorious Emmett.

And now since Ireland at last has reached the status of an nation within the Empire by the Royal signature of King George—God bless him—to her Home Rule Bill, we can sing of the man from Tipperary in the verse of the immortal Davis:

"Lead him to fight for native land
His is no courage cold and wary;
The troops live not that could withstand
The headlong charge of Tipperary."

Respectfully yours,
J. W. FITZGERALD.

WIFE DEAD, BELGIAN ENVOY SEEKS CHILDREN

THE HAGUE, Jan. 22—The Comte de Buisseret, Belgian Minister at Petsograd, has reached The Hague, after a round-about journey from Russia, seeking news regarding the death in Brussels of his wife and the whereabouts of his six children. His wife was an American woman.

The Counts' family remained in Brussels when the Germans occupied that City. Some time ago the Minister received in Petrograd a message telling him of the serious illness of his wife. He at once asked the German Government for permission to travel across Germany in order to reach his wife's bedside as quickly as possible. His request was refused, he said, and he was compelled to make the trip through Sweden and Norway, the journey occupying a fortnight.

On arrival at The Hague he learned that his wife had died several days before. He has now asked the German officials to send his children to Holland to join him.

COUNCIL AFTER WIDER POWERS

Respecting the Employees at the City Hall—To be Paid by Council and not by Individual Heads of Departments

The net result of the Finance committee's attempt to reduce the salaries of city officials is practically nil. If anything the tendency was the other way. More than one alderman expressed the opinion that the majority of civic officials were underpaid. Ald. Stratton gained the objective that he was after one year, namely, to appoint a male assistant to City Clerk Armstrong and have the staffs of both the City Clerk's and City Treasurer's office adjusted, so that they will be under the control of the Council. As it is, the office staff of these two officers are paid by the respective heads. Ald. Stratton would have the employees of the City Hall under the direct control of the Council, vesting in the heads of the departments the right to engage or discharge any employees.

Raised $45 At Patriotic Tea

In Aid of the Belgian Fund and Canadian Hospital at Shorncliffe

A patriotic tea in aid of the Belgian Relief Fund and the Canadian hospital at Shorncliffe, was held yesterday afternoon and evening by the ladies of St. Luke's Church, at the home of Mrs. J. J. Turner, Jr., 491 Water street. The house was prettily decorated with the flags of the nations, and the tea-room looked exceedingly attractive in a colour scheme of red and white. During the afternoon vocal solos were given by Miss Richardson, Mrs. McDonald and Mrs. Lock. In the evening Mrs. Middleton, Mrs. Lock and Miss Kathleen Vincent, contributed to the programme, while both afternoon and evening, Miss Peck gave a short talk on the Canadian Hospital at Shorncliffe. The very substantial sum of forty-five dollars was realized as a result of the affair.

TURKISH SOLDIERS MUTINY.

Strong Anti-War Movement Growing In Constantinople.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The news has reached Odessa that there has been a mutiny in the Turkish army. Enver Pasha has had many of his enemies shot, including seventeen officers who distinguished themselves in the Balkan war.

News from Constantinople says the movement in favor of a speedy conclusion of peace is gaining ground. The Ottoman Society party, formed for the purpose of propagnading this idea, has drawn to its ranks many influential personages, the chief of whom is the heir to the throne, Prince Yussuf Eddin.

The Germanophile groups at Court are opposing energetic resistance to the spread of this movement, and, at the instance of Marshal von der Goltz, all who speak openly in condemnation of the war are placed under arrest.

The Turks' position in the Caucasus is absolutely hopeless, according to Tiflis advices. Their 28th, 29th, 31st and 32nd divisions have been entirely wiped out, and in the course of four weeks they have lost 16 batteries of quick-firing guns and 10 machine-gun companies. One defeat follows another with unfailing regularity.

A despatch from Cairo says:

Ottoman forces with a contingent of Bedouin tribesmen have reached the El Katie district, twenty-eight miles east of the canal, and large bodies of Turkish troops are reported at El Arish and El Audje, farther east.

A Crushing Blow To The German Navy

One Cruiser Sunk, Two Others Damaged

No Details of German Casualties But Losses Thought To Be Heavy

England, Exultant Over the Naval Victory Demands That German Navy Be Wiped Out England's Squadron Overwhelmingly Superior to the Germans--Admiralty Reserve Theory a Have Truth.

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

LONDON, January 25.—Germany's naval forces have been struck in the most crushing blow of this war. In an attempt upon the English coast yesterday the German armoured cruiser Blucher was sunk and two other cruisers badly damaged. A squadron of British ships under the command of Vice-Admiral Beatty, completely routed them, and inflicted great damage.

Exultation over the engaged naval victory here to-day took the form of a demand that England now "wipe out the German navy." That Germany anticipates such a move is indicated in the despatches from Copenhagen. They report great activity at the German base at Kiel and evidences of preparation to meet an English raid.

"We have humiliated the baby killers, who shelled unprotected English coast towns," declared one English paper to-day. "It is now the duty of our navy to finish the work."

The sinking of the Blucher particularly aroused wild enthusiasm here; according to the best reports the Bleucher was one of the German battleships which bombarded Scarborough and other English east coast towns.

Vice-Admiral Beaty's victory has completely silenced the criticism of Admiral Jellicoe's failure to prevent the Scarborough raids.

The English papers to-day take the view that the German naval raids on the English coast will never again be attempted.

"The most daring pitcher goes to the well once too often," observes one London paper.

"Vice-Admiral Beatty was England's hero to-day. His rout of the German raiding fleet off the Holland coast yesterday, coupled with his victory off Heligoland on August 28th, have marked him as the most brilliant British naval commander of the war.

Without exception the London papers to-day generously point out that Beatty's squadron was overwhelmingly superior to the Germans, both in armament and size. It is asserted, however, that against similar odds Admiral Craddock did not hesitate to accept a German challenge, whereas the Germans in yesterday's fight fled homeward when the British war vessels were sighted.

Though the Admiralty was without official word, it was supposed that the survivors of the Bleucher will be landed at Yarmouth. So intense is the feeling against the Germans because of the Bleucher's bombardment of Scarborough that precautions will be taken to prevent a demonstration when the Germans are landed.

Reports that a four funnelled German cruiser, badly damaged, was sighted off the Holland coast early to-day, strengthened a growing conviction here that Germany's loss in yesterday's North Sea Battle, was greater than indicated by the Admiralty's official statement which said the cruiser Bluecher had been sunk and two other cruisers injured but that these two got away safely.

Dutch reports said the crippled cruiser, apparently of the type of the Strassburg or the armoured cruiser Roon, was limping at half speed towards the Island of Borkum, off the mouth of the Ems River. That the Morgan war craft was one of the lighter cruisers engaged by British destroyers after the Bluecher had been sent to the bottom, was the belief in naval circles here. The Admiralty to-day had no details of this supplementary engagement, but expressed confidence that the Germas casualties would be increased materially.

Two more of the German battle cruisers that attempted the dash toward the British coast are reported to have been badly pounded by the British guns. No reports from German sources of the loss of life on the German cruisers that sought refuge behind the mine area have been received here, but the Admiralty is confident that the casualty lists are large.

The Blucher was the most modern of Germany's armoured cruisers as distinct from the battle-cruiser class. She was laid down in 1906 at Kiel as a reply to the British "Invincibles," then building.. At that date the details of the new British ships were carefully guarded with the result that the Germans, acting on incorrect information, designed a cruiser which was far behind the Invincible in every respect. The Blucher displaced 15,550 tons, and was 527 feet in length. She had reciprocating engines of 32,000 h.p., for a designed speed of 24 knots, which was increased to 25.6 knots on trial.

Her armament consisted of twelve 8.2-in., eight 5.9-in., and sixteen 21 pounder guns, with four submerged torpedo tubes. The 8.2-in. guns were twin-mounted in armoured turrets, so arranged that eight of these weapons bore on the broadside. The 5.9-in. guns were in an armoured battery.

The Blucher's coal supply was 2,220 tons, and she carried a complement of 680 officers and men.

A GERMAN SOLDIER WRITING UP HIS DIARY.

"X" France's Most Daring Aviator Is War Mystery

Leader in Hair Raising Exploits Yet Keeps His Identity a Secret

LOVED BY ALL HIS FELLOW AIRMEN

NEW YORK, Jan. 23—Past the curtain of the censorship which hides the battleships of Europe there occasionally comes some fragment of romance, some broken recital of Homeric deeds, which lights up for the moment the sombre record of terrifying casualties in this war of mechanics.

Such a tale was brought here in a letter from a French aviator to his sister, in which he tells of an attack from monoplanes on a German supply train. The attack, made at twilight, was led by "X"—France's man o' the air, whose identity is a mystery, but whose exploits are trench and campfire talk. Day after day, in his great, swift monoplane, which he cares for as men care for their dearest things, he cruises through the air, defying German marksmen, automobile guns and the elements.

Through his daring he has become the most famous scout of the French aviation corps, to whom is entrusted the most difficult and dangerous of reconnaissance missions. This is the story of one of his exploits told by a brother aviator:

"A bitter wind lashes the clouds until they are like drunken things in their twistings. A sombre veil of darkness that chokes the light slowly adds to the grim hostility of the heavens.

"One by one from the four points of this grumbling turmoil, now clutched by night, the aviators are coming back to their resting place from a point on the horizon, marked by billows of clouds that seem to weigh downward until they touch the earth after all they come in a long, shivering line.

The Arrival of "X".

"High above the sullen wind, which seems to snarl and bite at them, sounds the song of their motors; piercing raucous, defiant. They are above the hangars now. The engines are shut off. Silently, like monstrous birds whose wings are taut, they descend, swinging and dipping in ever decreasing circles.

"As the monoplanes skid along the rough, frozen earth the aviators and the passengers fall to the ground, where they lie exhausted burning with a languor of exhaustion from which they feel they will never recover. To move, it seems, is to die. A rumbuss that is cold and that is utter weariness encompasses them. Yet they know, as I know, lying there, that to-morrow morning, at the break of day, we will begin again this monstrous business of war; that we will scurry forth into the empty skies again, seeking men we may kill or to whom we may direct others that they may kill them.

"But now we rest—it is delicious, this very numbness.

"Hark—a faint buzzing reaches our ears. All raise their heads. Is it a German in his Taube? There he is! There he is! The cries come from all. Darting from the confused mass of grey clouds which brood beyond us, there comes a trim, sleek monoplane. In a moment a clear light we recognize it. So now it is another chase, even at that distance that we know it. Little by little this monoplane, which flies so daringly, so surely, comes down. It is X.

"We all greet him with pleasure and admiration, for X we love for his daring, his sangfroid. Every day he roams through the air, careless of the German taubes. He lives on high and comes down only to tell what he has seen.

Off On Night Attack.

"Quickly he tells us that he has come down for a purpose. An important German convoy of munitions and supplies is to pass along a railroad fifty kilometres to the northeast. The languor which oppressed us flies like magic. With a word we are up testing our motors, calling for petrol. The commander telephones the General. One by one the aviators rise into the air. One by one they fall into line behind the chief of the squadron. Ahead of us all is X flying high, gaily leading us on our way. At a high altitude and a fast speed we went on our way; our eyes fixed on our leader.

"Below us the deserted and ravaged country unrolled itself, chalky and white, like an ill woman. Suddenly our leader X dips straight down; our commander follows him. A great blotch drips away from X's monoplane; another falls from our chief's. Then from all of our monoplanes fall these black, sodden things. Where they fall we know not. Our leader has seen something which inclines him to make a fuss and to order us to do likewise. A flame—another—many of them, shoot up, with screaming explosions as those things of dynamite which we dropped land on the earth.

"One by one we cut off our motors and slide toward the earth. Always we hurl bombs, towards the smoke, which shows in the dazed twilight, when we see that at which we were hurling bombs. Along the side of a hill a locomotive and a long string of cars are twisting, slowly and painfully. Behind it and alongside of it there are flames and ruins. Behind this train is another. Volplaining with still motor, X glides over the first convoy; as he passes he drops a bomb. There is a puff and a series of explosions. In a moment the smoke drifts away. The convoy, a burning mass, is huddled against the hill.

Bombs Wreck Munition Train.

"Whirling madly we attack the convoy in the rear, and still another one that we find has preceded the one destroyed by X. Bombs are still falling when we who are first wing our way onward a row of houses where X has said, Germans who aided in getting the convoy through, were hidden. As we glide over them we see spewing from their doors scrambling figures like black fleas. Bombs fall, smoke and flames rise from the houses. Our work is done. The chief of our squadron gives the signal that we are to scatter to make the return. Reluctantly we turn as automobile cannon, coming up too late to aid the black fleas in the houses, salute our departure with vain volleys of shrapnel.

"Below us as we mount higher and higher the ammunition trains burn. Tongues of liquid flame reach us now and then; they are purple, yellow, red, as a new car is attacked by the flames. Insensible of the hostility of the night which has gathered about us, we fly swiftly, mad with joy of victory.

"On the black horizon a moving pin of white light greets us; we make for it, for that light shows us all is well and that we are nearing home. One by one we glide downward to the hard, frozen earth, where sappers trundle away our monoplanes after tossing blankets about us.

"Once more we fall to rest. Thank God, we have all returned this time. Sometimes only a few come back; sometimes none. Ah, I am so weary I will never be rested! But yes, I will, when X. comes again from the air to tell us to follow him; fro where we go with him there will be a chance to avenge France."

Killed English Kind to French

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Charges of brutality on the part of the German officers toward British prisoners under transportation from the battle-front to the detention camps, made by a Major of the Scottish Rifles, who escaped from prison at Crefield, were made public here to-day by the British Embassy. The report of the officer also has been put into the hands of Ambassador Page by the Foreign Office in London.

The officer's statement declares that from the time he was captured at La Bassee on the 17th of December until he reached Crefeld he was submitted to "continual abuse and revilement," that his great-coat was taken from him, and that he, like those who made the trip with him, arrived at their destination after being "starved and confined for three days and nights."

Travel in Horse-Cars.

A large part of the journey he said, was made in a closed car used for the transportation of horses, filled with filth and with so little ventilation that it was almost asphyxiating. Fifty-two men and five officers, he asserts, were submitted to those conditions for thirty hours without food.

According to the Major the British prisoners were treated much less considerately than the French, and in one case he states that the British were given only the scant remnants of food left after the French had finished. Many prisoners were spat upon by a German officer.

Preference For Irish.

According to the report, one prisoner, an Irishman, told a story of having been called to a gathering of his compatriots and told by the commandant that the Emperor knew of the downtrodden condition of Ireland, and that the Irish were, therefore, to be transported to a better camp and given better treatment and food than the English received. The soldier said that Irish soldiers refused to accept this offer and remained with the English.

In concluding his statement the Major characterizes German translation conditions as "brutal to the extreme," and adds that "evidence collected at Crefeld by officers there shows that officers and men have been killed after capture."

LOST TRENCHES RECAPTURED

Latest Bulletins of the War at Various Points—All Attempts of Enemy Repulsed

PARIS, (Official Sunday). — Near Ypres there has been artillery engagements in the Aisne Valley. Our demolished several German guns, between the Meause and Vosges. A thick fog prevented operations near Steinbach. We recaptured one of our lost trenches.

LONLON, Jan. 24.— Two British aviators dropped bombs on Zeebrugge on Friday, damaging a submarine, killing crews of German guns mounted on the Mole, which commands coast points.

PARIS, Jan. 24.—A leading French paper says that Germany has notified Roumania that measures they have taken indicate mobilization and encouragement of revolution, which are hostile acts.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 24.—An official statement says that in the Caucasus there is nothing of importance. There have been small skirmishes on the lower Vistula. Violent snow storms are reported in the Carpathians.

PARIS, Jan. 25.—Fighting continued all night in the Argonne. All attempts of the enemy were repulsed.

IF ALL PLAYED OUT TRY THIS PRESCRIPTION

When that overpowering weariness and a never-rested feeling comes over you it shows some serious disorder is undermining your health. The cure is simple. Build up the system and nourish the body back to health by pure wholesome blood.

German Statement That British Cruiser Was Sunk, Given No Credence

Special Cable to The Examiner:

BERLIN, Jan. 25.—The sinking of a British battle cruiser, in the naval engagement in the North Sea yesterday morning is claimed, in official statement from the War Office to-day.

The loss of the German cruiser Blucher is officially admitted.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—In view of the Admiralty's official statement showing no British loss, the German War Office statement claiming the loss of a British warship is not believed here.

GERMAN AIRSHIPS BORE THE TRI-COLOR

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 25—That German aeroplanes engaged in the world's first great air battle, over Dunkirk, on Friday, bore the tri-colour of France, painted on the under side of their wings, was reported to-night by fleeing from the British battle-front in Flanders, to-day.

As a further disguise, fellow German aviators wore the uniforms of the Allies' soldiers, the messages said.

To be the scene of the invasion of Germany—Military experts are believing that the real invasion of Germany will come through Austria. It would be hard to overcome the fortresses on the east and west side of Germany as well as the rivers, which offer natural barriers. But Germany's Austrian border is open. The Russians now occupy most of Galicia, Bukowina and are preparing to sweep over Transylvania and Hungary.

"THE BATTLE CRY"

Charles Neville Buck

"What does ye want hyar?" persisted Jeb.

"I wants first to tell ye—an' I hain't never lied ter no feller yit—thet I don't know nothin' more about who kilt Fletch than you does. If tell ye. I hain't tryin' ter shield no murderers." There was a ring of sincerity in the lad's voice that carried weight even into the bitter scepticism of Jeb's heart, a scepticism which had refused to believe that honour or truth dwelt east of the ridge.

"I reckon, ef that's true," sneered the older boy, "thar's them in yore house thet does know."

At that insult it was young Milt whose face went first brick-red, and then very white.

"Thet slur calls fer a fight, Jeb," he said, with forced calm. "I can't hearken ter things like thet about my folks. But first I wants ter say this. I came over hyar ter tell ye thet I knowed how ye felt, an' thet I didn't see no reason why you an' me hed ter quarrel. I come over hyar ter see Dawn, because I promised I wouldn't try ter see her whilst she stayed down thar at the school—an' because I wants ter see her—an' I 'lows ter do it. Will ye lay aside yore gun an' go out thar in ther road whar hit hain't on yore own ground, an' let me tell ye thet ye lied, when ye slurred my folks?"

The two boys stripped off their coats, in guarantee that neither had hidden a weapon. Then while the girl who was really no longer a girl, turned back into the fire-lit cabin and threw herself face downward on her feather bed they silently crossed the stile into the road, and Milt turned to repeat, "Jeb, thet war a lie ye spoke, an' I wants ye ter fight me f'ar, fist an' skull, an' when we gits through ef ye feels like hit we'll shake hands. You an' me ain't got no cause ter quarrel—barrin' what ye jest said an' we're goin' ter settle thet right now."

And so the boy in each of them which was the manlier part of each, came to the surface, and through a bitter and long-fought battle of fists and wrestling, in which both of them rolled in the dust, and each of them obstinately refused to say "enough," they submitted their long-fostered hostility to one fierce debate. At last as the two of them sat panting and bloodied there in the road it was Jeb who rose and held out his hand.

"So fur es the two of us goes, Milt," he said, "unless ther war busts loose argin I reckon we kin be friendly."

Together they rose and recrossed the stile and washed their grimed faces in the same pan by the door. Dawn looked from one to the other, and Jeb said in his capacity as host, "Milt, set yoreself a cheer. I reckon ye'd better stay all night. Hit's most too fur ter ride back ter yore own house."

And so, though they did not realize it, the two youths who were to stand some day near the heads of the two factions, had set a new precedent and had fought without guns, as men had fought before the feud began.

Jeb kicked off his shoes and "lay down," and before the flaming logs sat the Havey girl and the McBriar boy, talking low-voiced and long into the night.

CHAPTER XXIV.

When winter has come and settled down for its long siege in the Cumberlands, human life shrinks and shrivels into a shivering wretchedness and a spirit of dreariness steals into the human heart.

The gaunt, grey hills reek and loom, sticky and deformed, between the snows and thaws. Roads become impassable mires and the total quarantine has begun. In dark cabins hearts given to brooding do little else but brood and Nature herself has no clarion of outer cheer with which to break the dangerous soul-cramping monotony.

The house of Old Milt McBriar was not so dark and cheerless a hovel as the houses of his lesser neighbours, but as that winter closed in, his heart was very bitter and his thoughts very black. In a round-about way he had learned of Young Milt's visit to the McNash cabin. His son was the apple of his eye and now he was seeing him form embryonic affiliations with the people of his enemy. Young Milt had visited Dawn; he had watched with Ansé Havey. The father had always taken a natural pride in the honesty that gleamed from his son's alert eyes, and the one person from whom he had concealed his own ways of guile and deceit most studiously was the lad who would some day be leader in his head. There were few things that this old intriguer feared, but one there was and now it was tracing lines of care and anxiety in the visage that had always been so mask-like and imperturbable. If his son should ever look past his outward self and catch a glimpse of the inner man, the father knew that he would not be able to sustain the scorn of those younger eyes. So while the lad who had gone back to college in Lexington, conned his books, his father sat before the blaze of his hearth with his pipe tight-clamped between his teeth, and his heart festering in his breast and his mind dangerously active.

The beginnings of all the things which he deplored, and meant to punish, went back to the establishment of a school with a "fotched-on" teacher. Had Dawn McNash not come there his boy's feet would not have gone wandering westward over the ridge, straying out of partisan paths. The slimness of her body, the lure of her violet eyes and the dusky meshes of her dark hair had led his own son to guard the roof that sheltered her against the hand of arson that the father had hired.

But most of all Anse Havey was responsible—Anse Havey who had persuaded his son to make common cause with his enemy. For that Anse Havey must die.

Heretofore Old Milt had struck only at lesser men, fearing the retribution of too audacious a crime, but now his venom was acute and even such grave considerations as the danger of a holocaust must not halt its appeasement.

Still the mind of Milt McBriar, the elder, had worked long in intrigue, and even now it could not follow a direct line. Bad Anse must not be shot down in the road. His taking-off must must be accomplished by a shrewder method and one not directly traceable to so palpable a motive as his own hatred. Such a plan his brain was working out, but for its execution he needed a hand of craft and force—such a hand as only Luke Thigpin could supply—and Luke was out West.

It was not his intention to rush hastily into action. Some day he would go down to Lexington and Luke should come east to meet him. There, a hundred and thirty miles from the hills, the two of them would arrange matters to his own satisfaction.

BACKACHE WAS SO BAD
COULD NOT SWEEP THE FLOOR.

For backache, lame or weak back, one of the commonest and most distressing symptoms of kidney inaction, there is no remedy to equal Doan's Kidney Pills for taking out the stitches, twitches and twinges, limbering up the stiff back and giving perfect relief and comfort to all poor, suffering women who suffer so much from a weak lame back.

Mrs. Blackburn, R.R. No. 1, Fhburn, Alta., writes: "I take pleasure in writing you stating the benefit I have received by using Doan's Kidney Pills. About three years ago I was terribly afflicted with lame back, and was so bad I could not even sweep my floor. I was advised to try your kidney pills. Before I had used one box there was a great improvement as my back was much better. However, I kept on taking them until my back was completely cured. I highly recommend these pills for lame back."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

WOMAN'S EVIDENCE UPHOLDS CLAIMS

Says: "I Wish All Nervous, Weak, Rundown Women Could Have Vinol, It Did So Much for Me.

Beallsville, Ohio.—"Vinol has done so much for me I wish all nervous, weak, run-down women could have it. I was so run-down, weak, and nervous I could not sleep nights. Everything I ate hurt me, and the medicine I had taken did me no good. I saw Vinol advertised and decided to try it. I had not taken it long, before I could eat anything I wanted without hurting me, and I could sleep all night. Now I am well and strong, and in better health than I have been for years. I never spent money for medicine that did me so much good as that I spent for Vinol."—Mrs. ANNA MILLISON, Beallsville, Ohio.

If the careworn, tired, overworked women, the pale, sickly children and feeble old folks around here would follow Mrs. Millison's example, they, too, would soon be able to say that Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron remedy, had built them up and made them strong.

It is the combined action of the medicinal curative elements of the cod's liver, without oil, aided by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of tonic iron, that makes Vinol so successful in such cases.

SHIP RISKS SEIZURE.

Steamer Wilhelmina Sets Out With Cargo For Germany.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23. — Risking possible seizure by British warships lying off the Atlantic coast, the American-owned steamer Wilhelmina, flying the American flag and loaded with approximately $200,000 worth of foodstuffs, consigned by an American commission firm to an American citizen in Germany, passed out to sea last night, entering on the first voyage of its kind undertaken by any vessel from an American port since the war began nearly six months ago in Europe.

If the Wilhelmina is detained or seized, the W. L. Green Commission Co. of St. Louis, charterers of the vessel and shippers of the cargo, will, according to their counsel here, file a protest with the American State Department declaring that the cargo is unconditional contraband, denying the right of a belligerent warship to confiscate it and requesting the United States to demand the immediate release of ship and cargo.

Roumania To Start Next Month.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 23—The newspaper, Retch announced yesterday that it has authoritative information that Roumania will enter the war on the side of the allies in February. Roumanian troops will immediately invade Transylvania, the newspaper declared.

German Fleet Becoming Active.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—A Daily Mail Copenhagen despatch says:

"The German destroyers and submarines left Heligoland Roads Wednesday, and news from many sources in Germany points to the fleet becoming more active."

It is too late to throw water on the cinders when the house is burnt down.—Danish Proverb.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The elevator of the Winnipeg Elevator Co. at Indian Head, Sask., was burned to the ground yesterday morning. It is a total loss, together with 30,000 bushels of grain.

The Toronto Terminals Railway Co. will apply to Parliament for power to increase the limit of the bonding powers of the company, and to acquire lands in Toronto for freight and other facilities.

A despatch from Berlin says that Prince Joachim, the youngest son of Emperor William, has sufficiently recovered from his recent attack of dysentry and influenza to permit his going to Baden-Baden for a rest.

The Great Lakes Protective Association, in annual session yesterday, decided not to increase its share of insurance risk upon vessels owned by members of the association, unless future developments made such action necessary.

Theodore Spangler, of Carlisle, was arrested yesterday in Washington when he stopped a policeman and said: "I want to see President Wilson. A clique in Carlisle is trying to kill me because they have an idea that I am crazy."

A carload of liquor was seized in a special raid of the provincial license authorities in Welland on Thursday. Fifty-two charges were laid. The action followed suspicions that the soldiers guarding the canal were getting too much liquor.

The House of Bishops of the Province of Ontario, after consideration of the question relating to the resignation of Bishop Thornloe of the See of Algoma, on his election to the See of Ottawa, resolved not to accept Bishop Thornloe's resignation.

INOCULATION A SUCCESS.

Anti-Typhoid Toxin Has Shown Remarkable Results.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Sir Frederick Treves, the well-known surgeon, in speaking before the Royal Society of Arts last night, said that the results achieved by inoculation against typhoid fever in the British Expeditionary Force have "been positively astounding." He said that since the war began there had been only 212 cases, of which 173 were among persons who had not been inoculated. There had been only 22 deaths, and none of those who died had been inoculated. Not a single death from typhoid fever had occurred among those inoculated.

"There never has been a time in the history of any campaign where the wounded soldier has been better looked after," said Sir Frederick. "When the history of this war is written, one of its most astounding features will be the sanitary precautions taken to secure the health of our soldiers and their care in sickness."

Salisbury Dance Off.

LONDON, Jan. 23. — The dance which was to have been given last night by officers of the Canadian contingent to residents of the Salisbury neighborhood, has been cancelled at the request of the local health authorities, owing to fear of the meningitis outbreak spreading. This is purely a precautionary measure. The epidemic is now stated to be well in hand.

FOR A BAD COLD

The surest way to stop a cold is to liven the liver and cleanse the bowels, and the nicest cathartic to do this is a 10-cent box of Cascarets. Take one or two Cascarets to-night and your cold may be gone by morning.

That Weak Back

accompanied by pain here or there—nervousness—sleeplessness—may be faint spells—or eyeaches—all are signals of distress for a woman. She may be growing from girlhood into womanhood—passing from womanhood to motherhood—or later suffering from that change into middle life which leaves so many wrecks of women. At any or all of these periods of a woman's life she should take a tonic and nervine prescribed for just such cases by a physician of vast experience in the diseases of women.

DR. PIERCE'S

has successfully treated more cases in past forty years than any other known remedy. It can now be had in sugar-coated, tablet form as well as in the liquid. Sold by medicine dealers or trial box by mail on receipt of 50 cents in stamps.

Miss Elizabeth Landahl of Berkeley, Cal., in a recent letter to Dr. Pierce said: "I was completely broken down in health. I was nothing but bad nerves all over my body and was so nervous that I could scream if anyone talked to me, but I had the good fortune to meet a nurse who had been cured by Dr. Pierce's Prescription. I have never had an occasion to consult a physician since—am in excellent health."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate stomach, liver and bowels—sugar-coated, easy to take.

A Great Blessing to be Freed of Indigestion

For Years He Suffered After Almost Every Meal—Attributes Complete Cure to Use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

The experience of many people who suffer from indigestion is like that of the writer of this letter. Stomach medicines may bring some relief, but chronic indigestion is almost invariably the result of derangements of the liver, kidneys and bowels, and cannot be actually cured until these organs are set right.

MR. BARRETT.

With the liver sluggish there is constipation, and the food ferments in the bowels instead of being digested. This is the source of pain and suffering, and the cause of such dreaded diseases as appendicitis, peritonitis and kidney disease. It is much better to be on the safe side and prevent such ailments by the timely use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. J. D. S. Barrett, Nelson, B.C., and formerly of Twillingate, Nfld., writes:—"For several years I was a great sufferer from indigestion. The least bit of food caused me considerable trouble, and often I could scarcely eat a meal a day. The many remedies I tried proved futile until I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and after using about eight boxes I was completely cured.

"Since that time I have not been troubled with indigestion, which I consider a great blessing. I feel grateful for this cure, and shall gladly answer any inquiries from persons suffering as I did."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, 25c a box, 5 for $1.00, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

BOTHA STOPS INVASION.

Premier of South Africa Now Controls the Orange River.

LONDON, Jan. 23. — A statement by the Governor-General of the Union of South Africa, issued last night by the official press bureau, reviews recent operations to repel the attempted German invasion. The statement concludes:

"The line of the Orange river is now entirely in our possession, and the enemy's advance into our territory near the eastern border of German Southwest Africa has been checked."

King Gives £8,000.

LONDON, Jan. 23. — King George personally made up a deficiency of about £8,000 to cover the cost of the Christmas gift sent by Princess Mary to the British army and navy, consisting of pipes, tobaccos and cigarettes, contained in a handsome brass box. The idea originated with Princess Mary, in whose name the public fund for collecting the money for the purpose was opened in October last.

Austrian Minister at Front.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 23. (Via London.)—A despatch received here from Vienna says that Baron von Bufian, the new Austrian Foreign Minister, left Friday for a trip to the German headquarters.

ECZEMA AND SORE EYES.

"My daughter suffered from inflamed eyelids and eczema on her head," writes Mr. H. W. Lear, Port Plasford, Nfld. "The child was in a bad state and suffered greatly. The doctor failed to help her, and on recommendation of a friend, I used Dr. Chase's Ointment, which made a complete cure. With a grateful heart I write you this letter."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A LICENSE TO LISTEN

By Elliott Flower

AUNT Jane Wagstaff has a license to listen to any and all conversations on her niece's ten-party telephone line. The trouble that came to Aunt Jane before she was given this license was primarily due to Mrs. Hiram Hubbell. Others discovered and occasionally complained to one another that someone was giving surreptitious ear to their telephonic confidences, but Mrs. Hubbell was the first to become aggressively active in the matter. Mrs. Hubbell, in spite of her multifarious and exacting duties as a farmer's wife, usually had some time to spare in the afternoon, and she spent most of it at the telephone.

She called up Mrs. Josiah Perkins, or Mrs. Peter Simpson, or Mrs. Heber Henson, or one of them called her up at least once every day. Naturally, it annoyed Mrs. Hubbell to have anyone listening to her confidences, and finally she declared that she was going to find out who it was, if there was any way to do so, and report it to the company.

"Why, I don't never do no harm," objected Aunt Jane when she was convicted. "I don't never repeat nothin' that's goin' to hurt nobody. But I like to know what's goin' on, and there aint no other way. Here I am, sittin' in the old rockin' chair all the time, unable to move, only with a cane, and I don't see nobody hardly, nor I don't hear nobody, only over the telephone, and I like to know what's happenin' first. Why, I knew the Metzes had a baby before it was born, because I heard 'em telephonin' for a doctor, and I knew when Sue Hopkins broke off with Lem Tolliver, because I heard her tell him not to call no more"

A few days later a polite young man called upon Aunt Jane and explained courteously that complaint had been made of listening on the line, and the trouble had apparently been traced to her telephone. He hoped there would be no more trouble of that kind, for the rules of his company were very strict and the penalty for breaking them the loss of the telephone thus used. The young man was deeply sympathetic, but he had no authority to suspend the rules. A repetition of the offence would result in the removal of the telephone.

"It's only jest loneliness," pleaded Aunt Jane. "Here I be, alone 'most all day, and listenin' at the telephone is like havin' comp'ny in to visit. I get to know what's goin' on—know more'n anybody else—but I don't tell nothin' what harts. Why, if I was a mind to talk—well, I could tell what Mrs. Hawkins said to Jim Hawkins the time he telephoned he was stayin' in town all night, and how Sally Perkins and Tom Clancy was so near breakin' once that she told him to send her photograft back, and that the Petersons' baby—"

But the polite young man asserted that the company could make no exceptions to its rule, although he personally was satisfied that her listening was perfectly harmless and really almost justifiable.

Still Aunt Jane was not sufficiently impressed with the enormity of her offence or the serious nature of the penalty. She kept away from the telephone for a day, and then drifted back into the old habit. She did coming to the reason for her license to listen.

That same afternoon two other people were occupied in ways that while apparently unrelated to Aunt Jane's license to listen, must still be considered therewith. The polite young man was driving out to the Cotter farm where Aunt Jane lived, under instructions to make a further investigation and remove the telephone if the trouble proved to be the same this time as last; and Mrs. Hubbell, alone in her home, was baking. Nothing would seem to be more remote from a license to one woman to listen than another woman baking, but you never can tell.

Being thus occupied, Mrs. Hubbell did not hear the door open, and it was not until she saw a pair of very wicked eyes, set in a most forbidding face, observing her that she realized that there was an intruder. Then she promptly ordered him out. But he refused to go.

"Pass out the eats!" he commanded.

"Go outside and I'll give you something to eat," she returned.

"Nix on the outside!" retorted the intruder.

"I'll call my husband!" she threatened.

"He ain't here," laughed the intruder. "I'm boss here now, an' you an' me is goin' to have a nice little time together. First, I'm goin' to feed at the table, like folks, and after that— No you don't!" he cried, making a sudden rush for her.

For Mrs. Hubbell was backing into the next room, and now, with marvellous quickness, she sprang backward and slammed the door in his face. The next moment she had the telephone receiver down and was screaming, "Help! Help! Help!" even as she tried to get Central. She had barely time thus to call before he, delayed but a moment at the door, roughly dragged her from the instrument, the receiver falling the length of its cord. Then she screamed as only a woman in mortal terror can scream, and struggled and fought as only a woman in such desperate plight can struggle and fight.

Aunt Jane, listening, heard the cries for help. She was quite alone at this time, Mrs. Cotter having gone to the cooperative creamery.

"Sounds like Sary Hubbell," commented Aunt Jane. "There must be something wrong over to her place."

Then came the screams, followed by the noise of the struggle as chairs and other articles of furniture were overturned.

"Sary's in trouble," decided Aunt Jane.

She hung up the receiver and hobbled into the next room, immediately returning with a magazine pistol. With this firmly clutched in one hand, the other manipulating the cane, she hobbled out and began hallooing as loudly as she could. But her voice was not strong enough and Sam Cotter was in a far field.

"Sary's bein' murdered," she reflected in her deliberate way, "and somebody ought to go to her."

At the lane gate, beside the horse-block, stood Dan Brown's horse and open buggy. Dan had asked for Sam half an hour before and, directed by Aunt Jane, had gone to the field to find him. The horse, being gentle, was not tied.

Aunt Jane, with some difficulty, mounted the horse-block, climbed into the buggy, laid the pistol on the seat beside her, picked up the reins, and said, "Giddap!" Up to this time she had been as cool and deliberate mentally as her infirmities compelled her to be physically, but as the possible meaning of those screams sank deeper into her mind she began to get excited. Her mind conceived a hundred different plans.

It occurred to her that she might have brought Sam in from the field by firing the pistol. It was too late to change her plan now, but she could still notify him that something was wrong. She raised the pistol over her head, shut her eyes, and pulled the trigger.

The effect was electrical. A horse may be very gentle and still object to firearms in his immediate vicinity, especially after being stirred and pained by a generous application of whip. This one objected, increasing his pace so suddenly that only the high back of the seat kept Aunt Jane from being left in the road.

Over in the field, which the road skirted at this point, Sam Cotter and Dan Brown looked up quickly and were startled to see Dan's horse apparently running away with Aunt Jane. They made a rush for the road where they nearly ran their legs off in an effort to at least keep the rig in sight. Nor were they long alone in the pursuit. Aunt Jane, becoming momentarily more excited, decided that a general alarm ought to be sounded, so she raised the pistol again and blazed away at intervals until she had exhausted the magazine.

Lem Quigley, leading a horse in from pasture, heard and saw and acted. When a woman who has been an invalid for ten years suddenly appears on the highway, her horse on the dead run, and she waving a pistol and blazing away promiscuously, one is justified in suspecting that something is wrong and that his services may be needed. Lem mounted his horse and set out after Aunt Jane.

Josiah Perkins was just driving out into the road as Aunt Jane flashed by. "They're killin' Sary Hubbell!" screamed Aunt Jane. Josiah laid on the lash and got under way so quickly that he cut in ahead of Lem. From every side men, with or without horses, came scurrying to the road. One would not have suspected that so many people could be found in the mile that intervened between the Cotter and the Hubbell farm houses.

Aunt Jane held the lead to the end, and then discovered that the horse was beyond control and could be neither stopped nor turned into the lane that led to the house. "There! There!" she screamed, pointing, as she swept past. Josiah Perkins, following close behind, swung into the lane. "Keep after Aunt Jane!!" he shouted to Lem Quigley, and Lem with never a pause, went on in pursuit. Others coming up followed Josiah.

Mrs. Hubbell was found, bound and gagged, in her kitchen. Her assailant had dragged her there, after overpowering her, that he might have her under his eye while he regaled himself with whatever the larder might afford. But he had been rudely disturbed by Aunt Jane. The approaching hoofbeats had caught, even commanded his attention, and he moved with great rapidity out of the back door, over a fence, and then on a bee line for the nearest timber, leaving Mrs. Hubbell considerably bruised from her struggle, but otherwise unharmed.

Mrs. Hubbell was relating her experiences to an excited and sympathetic group when Lem Quigley returned with Aunt Jane and Dan Brown's horse and buggy. Aunt Jane was in a state of complete collapse, physically, but she rallied quickly under the influence of a few cups of strong tea and a shower of compliments.

She was finally escorted in state back to the Cotter farm. A surprise awaited them there. Mrs. Cotter had returned and was on the verge of hysterics, there being two very excellent reasons for her perturbation. First, Aunt Jane had mysteriously disappeared, and when she sought to report this fact to Sam she could not find Sam. Second, the polite young man had arrived while she was distractedly seeking to solve this puzzle and, after a few questions, had removed the telephone, apologizing profusely for what he was doing but doing it just the same.

This state of affairs at home roused Aunt Jane's ire. After her recent exploit and the compliments following it she was in no humor to permit an insignificant telephone corporation to dictate to her what she could or could not do.

"Sam," she instructed, "you hitch up something in the mornin' and let Lizzie drive me to town. I reckon if I kin rescue Sary Hubbell from a tramp I'm able to make the trip to town, and I want to show that little whipper-snapper dude that he can't come out here and lay down no law for me."

Mr. and Mrs. Cotter, seeing unpleasant possibilities in this determination, tried to dissuade her, but she was firm. "I'm goin' to have my rights," she declared, "and you're goin' to have your'n. The idea that a respectable woman can be insulted and tramped on the way I been has got to be busted. What am I, that I can't listen when I don't repeat nothin'? What's that whipper-snapper dude, that he kin shut me away from folks like I had the smallpox? I'm goin' to have that telephone put back or I'm goin' to stir up a row that'll have the President of the United States dancin' a hornpipe!"

"All right, Aunt Jane," Sam agreed. "I'll git out the old carryall and drive you and Lizzie to town myself. We'll start at nine o'clock."

For the information of the reader, it may be confidentially stated here that Hiram and Sarah Hubbell, after a conference with Josiah and other neighbors, left for town an hour earlier. That, however, did not deprive Aunt Jane of a suitable escort. There were half a dozen rigs waiting when Sam Cotter drove out of the lane into the road.

"What's all this" demanded Aunt Jane.

"They're going to town to see you lay out the company," chuckled Cotter.

Others fell in as they passed various farms, and late ones kept coming up behind, so it was really an imposing cavalcade when they finally reached telephone headquarters.

A WEAK CHESTED BOY.

My boy Frank seemed weak-chested and took a very severe cold," writes Mrs. D. Stevens, Ninga, Man. "The many medicines used did not seem to benefit him, until we tried Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and found it to be exactly what was wanted to cure him." No treatment is so thorough and effective as a cure for croup and bronchitis.

The Waste In Storms.

Many scientists and captains of industry must sigh during a thunderstorm at the vast power running to waste in the heavens, and at sundry times attempts have been made to entrap and utilise the energy of lightning. So far, however, all these have had insignificant results. By way of experiment huge cords have been split asunder by attracting the lightning to them, and in a few isolated cases it had been claimed that paralysis has been cured by shocks administered by lightning, but as yet man's ingenuity has not devised the harness that will turn the wild free agent of the heavens into tractable horsepower.—London Spectator.

The Fate of Fogile.

What is said to be the most extraordinary feat of criminal vengeance on record happened at Algiers in 1899. A man named Fogile was arrested by the French police at the instance of the Italian government. He was suspected of complicity in a Sicilian murder crime, and it was known that he was a member of the Mafia. In jail he weakened and promised to tell the whole story on condition that his life was spared. Two mornings later his jailer, visiting the cell, found Fogile on the floor, stabbed to the heart. The dagger was still in the wound, and on the body lay a scrap of paper with the words, "So perish traitors," in Italian. The mystery was never solved.

PICK YOUR COMPANY.

Be very circumspect in the choice of thy company. In the society of those equals it is true thou shalt enjoy more pleasure, but in the society of thy superiors thou shalt find more profit. To be the best in the company is the way to grow worse. The best means to grow better is to be the worst there.—Quarles.

Latin Names Needed.

What is called a cruller in New York is called a doughnut in Boston, and what is called a cruller in Boston is called a doughnut in New York. And so on through the list. There is no more certainty or fixity about the popular names of dishes than there is about the popular names of flowers and birds. At least thirty different flowers are known by the name of "mayflower" in the United States. The mayflower of New England is the arbutus of New York and the wax myrtle of the south. To obtain certainty in such matters it is necessary to have a scientific classification and a Latin name. When you speak to a botanical gent about a "mayflower" he knows not what you mean, but if you refer to the Epigaea repens he knows exactly what you are talking about. Consequently we shall never have any certainty about what a dish is until we have a regular scientific classification, with Latin names, for all dishes. In that case the "botanical name" of Vermont tanky pudding would be something like muskium cornucopiensis and no chance for controversy.—New York Mail.

A Long Way to the Other One.

Count Karolyi, according to the Vossische Zeitung, returning to his castle in Hungary, met one of his old servants who had just been sent back wounded from the war.

"My good man, I hear you fought so valiantly at the front," said the count. "I would like to give you some reward. What shall it be?"

The old servant replied:

"Well, if you insist upon it, sir, just give me enough kronen coins to reach from one ear to the other."

"That seems to be a very little reward," replied the count, smiling at the odd request.

"It's enough for me, sir," answered the servant modestly.

As the count was beginning to comply with the strange request he noticed that the servant had only one ear and remarked upon the fact.

"Yes, sir. I left the other ear on the battlefield at Shabatz," answered the modest man.

Fire Averages.

Following is an extract from an article in Farm and Fireside on preventing and fighting fires:

Fires in our homes are so frequent that the insurance companies tell us that we have about one chance in sixty of being burnt out some time in the course of a lifetime. But in the same breath they tell us that more than half the fires could be prevented if people understood the commonest causes of them and knew just what to do when a fire starts. Smokers are responsible for thousands of fires, and rats and mice cause many others by nibbling at sulphur tipped matches. Fires which start in closets are often caused by matches being left in clothes or by oily cloths which have been stored away. Many of the floor polishing mixtures contain highly explosive oils, and spontaneous combustion may start from a nest of these cleaning cloths if placed in a closet near the chimney.

Pigs' Feet in the Pit.

Salaries at the early New York theatres were extremely small. But if the salaries were small so were the prices of admission. One shilling, 12½ cents, let you into the gallery or the pit, and if you didn't have the shilling the necessary management forced you to pay 13 cents. So the boys got the habit of changing their money at a fishwoman's on the corner, who for 25 cents obligingly gave them a shilling and a pig's foot. They handed in the shilling at the door and during the course of the evening presented the well picked bone to the management by way of some unfortunate in the pit or on the stage.

An Easier Method.

Not Handsome but Wealthy Bride (asking the question for the hundredth time or thereabouts—Are you sure, perfectly sure, dear Albert, that you married me for myself alone, and not for my money? Dear Albert (who is getting somewhat weary of answering the same old chestnut)—Of course I am! If it had been only your money I wanted I would have tried burglary or some easier way of getting it.

Incidental Music.

One of the most tiresome, not to say inappropriate, traditions of the theater is incidental music—particularly the music that is presumably intended to accentuate dialogue. It has been a conviction of mine that the expedient is a confession of actor weakness. No actor worthy of the name needs that kind of help. Some of you graybeards hark back to Edwin Booth and try to imagine him in the fourth act of "Richelieu," for example, delivering the curse of Rome speech in unison with the performers in the orchestra well-up. One difference between theatrical performances in Germany and those in America is in this very incidental music. In our country every actor that holds a prominent relation to the play in hand must have music to bring him on the stage and more music to take him off. The music cue is ridiculously overworked. Many plays are made unintelligible by the obtrusion of untimely music simultaneously with lines that nobody could catch.—Detroit Free Press.

Army of Ancient Rome.

Consider the Roman army from the fifth century B. C. onward until the division of the empire. Its fighting organization was as complete as and possibly more practical than that of any army of today. It was based on a territorial system which maintained the comradeship of locality without bringing it into antagonism with that of the corps, for each of the thirty-five Roman "tribes" was required to furnish to each legion four "centuries" of 120 men each, each of which worked together as a local unit. The legion was divided into five cohorts or battalions, of which three were troops of the line, two were a kind of militia and the fifth was a depot battalion. For almost eight centuries the army thus constituted not only conquered the then known world, but acted as explorers beyond its limits and at the same time made and unmade kings and emperors in Rome itself.—London Opinion.

Polar Nights Delight Eskimos.

The polar Eskimos, the most northerly dwelling people in the world, are said to exist only by the exercise of great ingenuity and the practice of social virtue. The cheerfulness, kindliness and practical socialism of the Eskimos from eastern Greenland to Alaska may be regarded as much due to their environment as is the necessity of eating large quantities of fat. The Eskimos hail the first dark evenings with the same glee as the first daylight after the polar night. When a whole summer through the eyes have been bathed in light, day and night, they long to see the land vanish into darkness again. And with the idea of a change they associate all the good things the winter will bring—the frozen sea and the hunting on the ice, the swift sledge drives, far from the sweltering houses, after bears.—Exchange.

ROYAL YEAST
MAKES PERFECT BREAD

THE MARKS ARE PLAIN

"He that overcometh shall inherit all things."—Rev. xxi., 7.

One who has ever followed a blazed trail, through the heart, of a great forest will never forget the sense of uncertainty, excitement, danger, conquest. There are huge, prostrate trunks to clamber over, great, forbidding boulders to scale, high, steep cliffs to climb. Sometimes one sinks deep into unsuspected marshy places. Often, with a great sinking of the heart, one discovers that the trail is lost. Then with a great throb of thankfulness, one sees again the blazed marks.

To be lost in those almost impenetrable, impassable depths would be a very serious, if not fatal, matter. But at last one emerges, bruised, scratched, disheveled and weary, but with a proud, exulting feeling of great difficulties overcome and object attained, out of the dark shade into the bright sunshine.

Often since in thinking of these wonderful trails, one is reminded of life with its endeavors, its struggles, its conquests in one's Christian experience. It may be a help in our New Year's resolutions of conquering our faults and our failings, to think that now we are, each of us, entering upon a fresh trail, with fresh courage and determination to follow it up, until, with Christ's help, we know that we are honestly trying to attain self-mastery. The blazed marks are many and plain,—God's word, our consciences, good influences, other's examples.

There are innumerable difficulties to overcome, great obstacles to surmount, terrible temptations to conquer. There are so many discouragements that many a time we will feel that we must give up and not try any more. Many a time also we will get so far away from the trail of brave endeavor that, with sad soul-depression, we will feel as if we can never get back to it again. But some rich promise, a helpful word, a friend's encouragement, will enable us to reach it once more, and though bruised, stained and exhausted, on we struggle again, and continue steadfastly, until out of the gloom and shade, we reach the bright, sunny stretches, where we find peace, happiness, exaltation, in the great joy of self-conquest.

Never to find these again is the very saddest thing that can happen in life, because it means the failure to try to realize our own highest ideals.

"Self-reverence, self-knowledge, self-control,
These three alone lead life to sovereign power."

Tragedy of Horse is Seen at Every Turn In Great War In Austria—Horsepower Rather Than Gasoline Power Conflict

BUDA, PESTH —(By mail to New York)—It's not a gasoline power war in Austria, but a horse power war, and the tragedy of the horse is seen at every turn. The great roads in Galicia, leading through the Carpathians, were literally jammed for miles with waggon trains in October and early November, and the steam from the backs of the thousands of faithful toiling animals ascended like clouds in the cold wintery air.

These waggon trains on the narrow roads are like endless chains. They can't be delayed. And woe to the horse that falls. He is coaxed to his feet again and again. Every last ounce of strength in his tired body is urged out of him and he gives his last pull with bulging eyes and then topples over.

But that isn't the last that the Austrians expects from him. At the beginning of the war the orders were that any horse which fell must be shot immediately. However, horse flesh began to grow scarce, after the first six weeks of fighting, and the armies on the Russian frontier were helpless without the hundreds of thousands of tons of supplies which must be carried to them over the mountain roads in the odd willow bodied basket waggons of the Galician farmers. So a new order was issued that no horse was to be shot unless one of his limbs were broken.

The result of this order was that an animal fell from exhaustion and had given his masters even the strength that was necessary to keep him on his feet, he was dragged aside, preferably into a field where there was grass, and left to work out his own fate. Usually, he died, uncared for, but, now and then, a horse survived and became strong again, whereupon he would be seized by some passing soldier and put back into the daily grind.

I watched a horse "come back" this way, in a field near Przemysl. He had fallen in the middle of a steep hill which has caused the death of many an exhausted horse. He was lying with a score of other horses in a field alongside the hill. Evidently he had an ounce or two more of vitality than they, for he was stretched out, with his legs curled under him, while they were lying on their sides with their heads on the ground. His head was raised and I fancied that he was watching, with a horse's interest, the never-ending train of waggons that was passing him. It was sorry for him, too. To get well only meant more horrors for him. When I returned that way in the evening she still lying down but there was a circle of nibbled grass about his head. The next morning he was weakly standing up, with his legs stretched wide apart, and he had gone away from the other dead and dying horses, to a lonely part of the field. Incidentally, I noticed time and again, that there is nothing that frightens a horse so much as the body of a dead horse, and I suppose that it was sheer terror that got this fellow to his feet and helped him to struggle away to distant surroundings. He was nibbling gingerly at the dry grass and now and then he raised his head and seemed to look at the mighty tide of horses and waggons and men that filled the road.

"There's a horse that will be all right, within a couple of weeks," said the Austrian officer who was with me. He's a Siberian horse. They're wonderful animals. They're the only horses in the world that will make two pulls at an immovable object. You can hitch one of them to an object, a tree or a house, that cannot possibly be moved, and he will put his last ounce of strength into it. An ordinary Arbra would stop at that and would refuse the next pull, but not a Siberian pony. He's all sand and he'll make his second try just as bravely as he did the first. Yes, indeed, that little fellow will be back in the waggon trains again within a couple of weeks."

And I suppose he was for by evening he had nibbled a huge circle of grass in his private corner of the field and when I went by that way two days later he was gone.

Even in the midst of war the horse skinners were at work. I saw them in a field near Przemysl — four gruesome looking men, covered with blood —taking the hides from the skeleton like bodies of the horses who had given their lives in war.

Three weeks of steady work in Galicia and in the Carpathians killed the average horse. The fields were dotted with their bodies. The Austrians told me that hundreds of horses died daily in the Carpathian passes from broken lungs, broken courage or broken hearts.

SISTER'S BEAU

By Minnie C. D. Smith in Farm Journal

I think an awful lot of sister's beau,
And have since just about three weeks ago.
Before that time we did not quite agree;
That is, I hated him; he ignored me.
He has an automobile, bright and new,
And they would take long rides—just he and sue;
I thought they sometimes might take me along
One night I did that which I knew was wrong—
I climbed into the hack and huddled tight;
It was a lovely, clear, bright, moonlight night.
When he and Sue appeared I heard them say
They'd call on friends quite twenty miles away.
It seemed we rode scarce any time at all
Before we reached the place they'd planned to call.
A long, long time I heard them laughing there—
Sue and her beau and that other young pair.
The next I knew I saw a sharp, bright light
And felt that I should die of shame and fright;
That bright new car was safe in its garage-stead
Sue's beau found me while covering it good.
I was just fifteen miles from my own bed.
He took me home; not very much was said;
He held a lumber whole I reached my room.
You think he told it later, I presume?
No, sir; we are the only ones that know,
That's why I think so much of sister's beau.

FIVE MINUTE CURE IF STOMACH IS BAD

"Pape's Diapepsin" is quickest, surest indigestion cure known.

You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad—or an uncertain one—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable; you mustn't injure it with drastic drugs.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in giving relief; its harmlessness; its certain unfailing action in regulating sick, sour, gassy stomach. Its millions of cures in indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and other stomach trouble has made it famous the world over.

Keep this perfect stomach doctor in your home — keep it handy — get a large fifty-cent case from any drug store and then if anyone should eat something which doesn't agree with them, if what they eat lays like lead, serpents and sours and forms gas; causes headache, dizziness and nausea; eructations of acid and undigested food—remember as soon as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. Its promptness, certainty and ease in overcoming the worst stomach disorders is a revelation to those who try it.

Something Missing.

When Irving wanted to be unique he could be, remarked an old lecturer friend once. His patience with the rank and file was extraordinary, but where a rebuke was deserved Irving's biting sarcasm was quite up to the occasion.

There was in one production a super who, though he had only a couple of lines to speak, made his entrance in such a way as to lead one to believe he was overlooking the landing mat, and his behavior to his fellow actors was equally unwarrantable. Irving soon got on the track of this gentleman and sent him to coventry at rehearsal. In due time the super entered, haughtily saying:

"My lord, the carriage is waiting."

"Let's have it louder," said Irving.

The man repeated it in a louder tone, whereupon Sir Henry demanded that it should be repeated again still louder. Yet again did he make the super repeat it, and louder still, and yet again was the same demand made. The man was becoming enraged and at last shrieked out the words.

"Very good," said Sir Henry, "very good indeed, but couldn't you put a little more on just a shade of temper into it?"—Answers.

Great Seal of the United States.

The great seal of the United States is kept locked up in a reinforced box in the vaults of the state department at Washington. Its custodian will impress it upon a document only on receipt of a formal warrant signed by the president. The use of it or indeed the possession of an impression of it without such a warrant is a grave offense, punishable like the most serious forgery. It cost $10,000 and is Uncle Sam's most sacred possession. When it is imprinted upon a document—a Thanksgiving proclamation, for instance; title to or purchase and immediately duplicated—such document is filed in the archives and only printed or mimeographed copies are sent out. Governors of states are entitled to receive copies signed by the president and the secretary of state personally. Other persons desiring specially favored receive duly printed copies.—New York World.

Men and His Dog.

The man in front of me called up before this fire, as so many dogs must have called before so many fires. I sit on one side of that hearth, as so many men must have sat by so many hearths. Somehow this sentence has altogether my manhood; somehow, I cannot explain why, a man ought to have a dog. A man ought to have six legs; these other four legs are part of him. One attribute is older than any of the pensive and priggish explanations that are offered of either of us. Human evolution was no voice. You can find it written in a book that I am a mere survival of a quadruped of antediluvian type, and perhaps I am. If that were I have no objection. But my dog knows I am a man, and you will not find the meaning of that word written in any book so clearly as it is written in his soul.—G. K. Chesterton.

Everything that goes wrong with Grumps that morning, and as he strolls gloomily down the suburban road on his way to the station he sees simply nothing for an outlet for his temper. "Good morning," cheerfully shouts one man from the other side of the road. "Good indeed, mind you!" mutters Grumps. "How do you manage to keep all your good qualities to yourself like that?" snarled Grumps viciously.

Detecting Erasures.

If paper upon which erasures of writing have been made is exposed to the vapor of iodine the roughened surface takes a different tint from that portion which has not been tampered with. If the erasure has been slightly made, only the hair of gummed sized being rubbed away and the mark left in the fiber of the paper, iodine vapor causes the writing to reappear. This is because wherever the paper has been roughened more iodine is absorbed than by a smooth surface. This test is effective within three months after the making of the alteration.—Exchange.

TIRING, CEASELESS BACK-ACHE CAN BE RUBBED AWAY TO-NIGHT

Relief is Almost Unfailing from Even the First Application.

RUB ON NERVILINE

Cold has a vicious way of finding out aching muscles or weak joints. How often pain settles in the back, causing inflammation and excruciating soreness. Stiffness and aching all over follows.

An application of Nerviline at the start gives immediate relief and prevents worse trouble.

When the pain is very acute, Nerviline has a chance to show its wonderful penetrating and pain-subduing power. It strikes in deeply, and its strike-in-deep quality quickly proves its superiority to feebler remedies. Then this goodness is magnified by its strength, easily five times greater than most liniments.

Surely so powerful and curative a liniment as Nerviline offers perfect security against pain.

Nerviline is the only guaranteed pain remedy sold in Canada. Forty years of success in many countries warrants its manufacturers saying. If it does not relieve, get your money back.

No curable pain, even neuralgia, lumbago, sciatica, or rheumatism can resist the magic power of Nerviline. Try it to-day. Rub it on your tired back, let it ease your sore muscles, let it take the swelling and stiffness out of your joints. It's a marvel—thousands say so that use Nerviline.

The large 50c, family size bottle of Nerviline is more economical than the 25c trial size. Buy the larger size to-day. Sold by dealers everywhere, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Thrift Versus Stinginess.

It ought to be easy to tell the difference between thrift and stinginess. But many folk don't know it. No lightened dime. A thrifty man is always a cheerful man, though not a wasteful one. When he spends a dollar his face doesn't show spasms of pain that does the druggist with avarice until his dollar returns, landing another dollar of profit. He spends intelligently and therefore willingly, and is content to await the outcome, because he knows that in the long run he will get back from society about in proportion as he gives. As with individuals so with communities, states, nations. Prudently thrifty, not stingily mean. It usually pays and how to be liberal. It makes having fortunate.—Cleveland Press.

BRITISH WIN IMPORTANT NAVAL ENGAGEMENT

BIG GERMAN BATTLE CRUISER IS DESTROYED

BRITAIN AGAIN DEMONSTRATES HER OVERWHELMING NAVAL SUPERIORITY

The Latest Naval Battle in Which Germany Sufferod Severe Losses---It is Estimated That Over Three Hundred Lives Were Snuffed Out When Enemy's Ships Came in Contact With Britain's Watch-dogs of the Seas---Allies Make Progress on Land--German Aviators Were Executed.

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

AMSTERDAM, January 25.—A courier from Germany this morning says that there were three hundred killed and one thousand wounded on the German ships in the battle yesterday, in addition to those lost with the cruiser Blucher.

THE GERMAN VERSION

LONDON, January 25.—The Germans are letting themselves down easy on their naval defeat, so easy, indeed, that their already discredited "official" statements are brought still further into disrepute. While the British Admiralty has distinctly stated that "no British ships have been lost," Berlin states that "according to information available" one British battle cruiser was sunk. And while the British fleet chased the retreating Germans right up to their mined area, which it would be folly to penetrate, the German statement says that the British "discontinued the engagement and retreated."

The keenest interest was displayed in naval circles here in the Berlin official statement that the fight ceased "seventy miles west northwest of Heligoland." If the German cruisers were steaming in the direction thus indicated by Berlin, they were returning on a course that bore on the coast of Scotland. Scottish towns were hitherto supposed to be in but slight danger of attack.

BLOWN TO PIECES

PARIS, January 25. — How a German pontoon bridge across the Meuse at St. Mihiel was blown to pieces by French shells, was told in the official despatches to-day. German gunners on the west bank of the Meuse attempted unsuccessfully to silence the French artillery. Additional guns were then brought into use by the French. Shells fell in the city of St. Mihiel, inflicting losses among the German defenders. Excepting this progress in the drive against the point of the German wedge south of Verdun, and a slight gain by the British, east of St. Georges, near the seacoast, the fighting during the last 24 hours has resulted in no important changes.

A Bavarian detachment was surprised by a French infantry attack in Lorraine and a number of prisoners were taken. German infantry attacks at Berry Au Bac and in the Argonne were successfully repulsed.

A thick fog overhung the Vosges and Lower Alsace, halting the fighting in those regions.

From the River Lys outhward to the Oise, only intermittent cannonading was reported.

PROPOSED LEGISLATION

To Be Asked for on Behalf of the Utilities Commission---A New Rate

TUNGSTEN LAMPS

At a meeting of the Public Utilities Commission that was held on Saturday afternoon, Manager H. O. Fiske was instructed to rebuild the electric line to the Queen Mary School at a cost of $217. Tungsten lamps will be substituted for the incandescent lamps on the streets. This, it is said, will affect a saving.

Manager Fisk was also instructed to purchase a number of necessary instruments at a cost of $764.88, and also current and potential transformers at an estimated cost of $247.50.

Prospective Legislation.

Mr. E. H. O. Hall, Solicitor for the Commission, submitted a draft of proposed legislation to be asked for at the forthcoming session of the Provincial Government. It was decided to ask for legislation for authority to issue debentures to pay for the cost of improvements that had been made in the waterworks over the amount of the debentures that were previously issued, but not for any work yet to be done, and also to authorize the borrowing of money for work undertaken under the Public Utilities Act, pending the completion of the work and the issue of debentures.

A communication was received from the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario announcing that the Commission would make a minimum in the commercial rate of $1 per k.w. per month of connected load, with a minimum of 50 cents a month. This was referred to the Manager for a report.

A letter was read from The John McDougall Company regarding their account for expenses of an expert in connection with the examination of a meter.

Mr. Armstrong was instructed to send a copy of the letter to Mr. Wm. Kennedy, Jr., and ask him for an opinion

Horse and Buggy Stolen From Cheatworth Man Recovered Several Miles From Home ---Culprit Admitted Guilt

SERIOUS OFFENCE

More of the operations of Lasure, who was arrested by the local Police a few days ago, and turned over to Constable Mills of Tara, from whom he escaped some time previous by climbing through a window in the train when the Constable allowed him to go to the lavatory alone, are coming to light.

On the evening of Dec. 17, the local police received a telephone message from Bailieboro' to the effect that a horse, hitched to a buggy in which there was no occupant, had wandered into the yard of Mr. Wm. Bradshaw, near there, and an owner could not be found. Inquiries were made, but no one could be found who had lost a horse and for the time being the matter was allowed to stand. Upon the arrival of Constable Mills from Tara he reported that Mr. David Matthews of Chetsworth, a village about sixteen miles from Tara, had lost a horse and buggy some time ago and so far had received no word of it. Chief Thompson had Lasure brought from the cells and accused him of taking the horse and abandoning it near Bailieboro. He admitted that he had driven the horse, about two weeks and later, left it.

Mr. Matthews of Chetsworth arrived on Saturday morning and identified the horse as belonging to him, and he will take it back with him to-day. Before Lasure got hold of the horse it was a good, sound, young animal, five years old, and now it is a total wreck.

Lasure seems to have a mania for stealing horses, as that is the charge he was going to face when he escaped from Constable Mills of Tara.

15,000 Victims Brought to Rome

Woman Rescued After Week, Goes Mad

ROME, Jan. 25—The number of injured who have been brought here from the earthquake zone to be cared for has now reached 15,000.

A pitiful case which has been brought to the notice of the authorities is that of Maria Irti, who was extricated after seven days' burial in the ruins of the town of Ortucchio southeast of Avezzano. During that time she saw her seven children die around her one by one and her grief over their loss and the fact that she was powerless to help them, has driven her mad. Mrs. Irti has to be constantly watched because she springs at others of the wounded in the belief that they are persecuting her. Her husband is working in Amerika and a few days before the earth quake she received from him 1,400 francs (2800) which thus far has not been recovered.

C. G. E. BORROWED HEAVILY TO FINANCE LARGE CONTRACTS

Statement by Mr. Frederic Nicholls Regarding Financial Standing of Canadian General Electric Company

CURRENT ASSETS

Regarding the current statement that the Company had paid its bank loans and now had a credit balance, Mr. Frederic Nicholls, President, tells the Monetary Times that it is a fact that the Company have paid off the whole of the Bank advances which appeared in the last balance sheet as $3,542,200, and in addition to this they have reduced their accounts payable by about $1,000,000, making a total reduction in liabilities of over $4,500,000. The last annual report of the directors of the Company stated in part: "The item of borrowed capital shows a considerable increase on account of very large contracts that are in process of completion and not available for collection before the close of the year. The policy of the Company has always hitherto been to borrow funds to finance large contracts during progress, so as to avoid a fixed dividend charge in the event of any serious recession in trade.' The above epitomises the situation very clearly, in a statement to The Monetary Times. "We had borrowed heavily to finance large contracts which, during the year 1914 were completed and collected for. When our balance sheet for this year is completed it will be seen that while our current liabilities have been greatly reduced, our current assets have been reduced in a like proportion. In other words the result has emphasized that our liquid assets are really liquid. When business is at the peak we are large borrowers, but when a recession in trade ocure we promptly liquidate our current liabilities by a corresponding reduction in our current assets."

FROM LABRADOR

Mrs. A. W. Wakefield, the wife of Dr. Wakefield, who has been working for years with Dr. Wilfred Grenfell in Labrador, will pay a visit to Peterborough on Thursday evening of this week. Mrs. Wakefield has been persuaded to deliver her lecture on "The Work of Dr. Grenfell" in St. Paul's Church that evening, and will exhibit stereopticon views taken by the Doctor on that far away coast. The lecture and views are such as to interest everybody, and Mrs. Wakefield has been twice called back to Ottawa to repeat her address. There will be no charge for admission, and the offering will be devoted to the work of the Deep Sea Mission. Doubtless St. Paul's Church will be filled.

Russians Advance Towards The Border

Germans Have Been Pushed Back From Twenty To Thirty Miles Towards The Prussian Fortifications---Austrians Fail In Attempt To Assume The Offensive.

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, January 25.—Developments of the new Russian offensive, menacing Lodz, and the brilliant victory over the Germans in southern Poland, are announced here to-day.

The German armies advancing upon Ivangarpod, the main fortress protecting Warsaw from the south, have been rolled back. The Russians after occupying Kielce and Oposno, have pushed back the Germans from 20 to 30 miles of a 40 mile battle front, and have driven the enemy toward the Pilica River.

Official reports of the progress of the Russian drive toward the Prussian fortress of Thorn, assert that the Russians "are in close contact with the enemy at Kikol."

The Austrian attempts to resume the offensive in Bukowana have been repulsed, the war office announced.

WORKS DESTROYED

AMSTERDAM, January 25.—Special despatched received by the Handelsblad to-day assert that the whole of the Krupp automobile works and four hundred completed machines were destroye by the bombs dropped on Essen last week by British airmen.

LONDON, January 25. — It is reported that the German pilot and observer who were captured when one of the taubes that raided Dunkirk on Friday was shot down, were immediately executed. They were English and French uniforms, and therefore came within the definition of "spy" laid down by the rules of international warfare. The press bureau had no word on the matter.

A PROTEST FROM GERMANY

WASHINGTON, January 25.—Germany to-day protested to the State Department against the manufacture of hydro-aeroplanes in the United States for use in Great Britain and Russia. A note transmitted by the German Ambassador declared the Curtis works at Hammondsport had offended in this way.

Choral Society

Decide to Hold a Concert on February 16th

A special meeting of the Executive of the Choral Society was held last week to decide operations for this half-year. Those present were Messrs. Stocker, C. E. Coleman, B. J. Devey, Mather, G. Chandler, McKee, Boddy, East, Gray.

Much regret is felt at the illness of Mr. Bert. Read and it was decided for the present to appoint Mr. Mather to continue the offices of Secretary and Treasurer. It was also decided to give a concert on Tuesday, Feb. 16

Important business will be brought up at the rehearsal on Tuesday next in the Collegiate Hall.

The sympathy of the members was expressed for Mr. and Mrs. Moule in the sad loss of their daughter, last week.

Recovered From The Wreck

The Ayrshire Post of Ayr, Scotland, in its issue of January 9th, shows a reproduction of an envelope that was dispatched from Peterborough and which ultimately went down on the Empress of Ireland. It was later recovered by divers and forwarded to the addressee. The Peterborough postmark is plainly visible, also the address which is "Mr. Yarrington, No. 10 Campbell street, Newton-on-Ayr, Scotland.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company is removing the timbers upholding the bridge span on the spur line immediately south of the Peterborough Canoe Company's Works. The men's boarding car is located on the tracks east of the company's freight sheds.

Address By Mr. G. A. Gillespie

At the Reform Convention Which Was Held in Lindsay

LINDSAY, Jan. 20. — The annual convention of the Reform Association of Victoria and Haliburton was held Saturday morning at eleven o'clock.

Short speeches were made by prominent men of the county, including Messrs. J. Dixon, Fenelon Falls, J. Pearson, Haliburton, Robt. Oliver, Bushkong, A. M. Fulton, Geo. Mills, I. A. Gillogley, J. E. Anderson, A. M. Fulton, R. M. Fee, Lindsay, and others.

The election of officers resulted in the following efficient body being named.

President —Dr. T. Blanchard; Vice-Presidents for Lindsay—Thos. Stewart; Lornesille, C. A. Plank; Fenelon Falls, J. Nevison; Coboconk, F. C. Fielding; Bushkong, Robt. Oliver; Minden, W. A. Welch; Haliburton, J. F. Laking.

Secretary—R. M. Fee.

Asst. Secretary—J. O'Reilly.

Treasurer—J. E. Anderson.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., for West Peterborough, gave the address of the meeting on "Organization" and gave those present much valuable information gleaned from Mr. Gillespie's victory against great odds in Peterborough. The speaker pointed out many ways that would work out greatly to the advantage of the local organization.

The matter of bringing a candidate into the field was spoken of and discussed. It was decided that in order not to embarrass or harass the government in any way during the European struggle before which all political trend should take the background, no candidate for the present would be named.

The Reform Association will organize in a better and more stable manner than ever before so that it will be in a position to be ready to the people of this riding should elections occur immediately after the war is over.

Wealthy German Is Apprehended

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, Jan. 25.—No special privileges were given Emil Nerlich, a wealthy German, naturalized Canadian toy dealer, who was arrested Saturday charged with high treason in aiding German military officers to leave Canada. When arraigned in police court this morning here, he stood outside the prisoner's dock under guard, but Magistrate Denison ordered him to take his place in the dock with the prisoners accused of sundry other crimes.

The case was remanded till Thursday, without bail.

LATE MRS. FLAHERTY LAID TO REST

The funeral of the late Mrs. James Flaherty took place yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the late residence in Emily to St. Martin's Church and St. Martin's Cemetery, Ennismore.

The funeral cortege was very large, testifying to the esteem in which the deceased lady was held in the community.

The pall-bearers were her four sons and two nephews.

Circular Issued To the Hotels

TORONTO, Jan. 25.—The Government has issued the following statement, signed by the chief license inspector, to the hotels of the province:

"Owing to the statements which have been made more or less publicly that a considerable number of men wearing the King's uniform may be seen drinking in bars, the Provincial Secretary thinks it desirable to secure a report showing to what extent this is true, and you are requested to supply the department with the most accurate information you can as to the number of men in uniform, if any, who enter your bar daily. This report should extend over a week at least.

"This request is not intended as a reflection upon the sobriety of the troops, but it is important to show to what extent the statement is true.

"It need scarcely be said that the department is fully alive to the importance of the subject and is prepared to take any action which may be necessary to aid in ensuring the greatest sobriety of the troops, and it is of course expected that every licensee holding in the province will co-operate with the department to this end."

The circular carries the signature of Eric Saunders, chief license inspector.

THE END COMING.

The Germans, or rather German officialdom, are meeting with scant success in the prosecution of this war. This idea is emphasized if we consider the military strength—after forty years of strenuous preparation—with which she entered the conflict. Germany was armed, so to speak, cap a pie, ready at all points, and her enemies were very largely unprepared, especially Great Britain. But Germany has failed. The system of German war preparation was perfect to appearance, but lack of high principle led to serious official blunders. The war party has all the say, and that bred the employment of incompetents, whose only recommendation, was their blood and iron, sentiments. There were bunders in diplomacy that brought Britain in as an enemy; that kept out Italy as a friend. The emperor's ambassadors, chosen because they shared his belief in the doctrines of force and crookedness, and bad faith, helped bring on the war. Germany's war mministers have made continuous blunders, and two changes have been made since the war began. Von Moltke was shifted, and his place filled by General Falkenhayn, "the man responsible under the Emperor for the strategy of Germany in this war." Now, with disasters coming thick and fast, this great general has "resigned." The war party by its system of favouritism has saddled Germany with a brigade of blunderers; blunderers in parliament, in the war office, on the general staff, and all through. Germany is beginning to wake up to the real situation, and but for the odious system of official lying that conceals the facts from the people, the eyes of the people would be wide open now. The Kaiser sees the necessiay of cleaning out the blunderers of officialdom. The process will continue, and in the end, the Emperor himself and what he stands for will be cleaned out, a work that the Allies are working up to every day. Then Germany will be purged all the way through, and with her mis-rulers set aside, with her bubble of world domination or "downfall" pricked, it will not be "downfall," but uplift. The people of Germany with their splendid qualities of achievement, with their skill in the arts, their eminence in learning and all the essentials of civilization, will be permitted to work out their great destiny; and unfettered by the chains of odious oligaichy, and untrammelled by the waste of resources in destructive enterprises, will come into their own and be a beneficent element in Christian civilisation, instead of a menace and a blight, under Hohensollern hegemony and the incubus of organized unrighteousness.

NOT REAL PATRIOTISM.

The Toronto News signalizes what it calls "the latest patriotic agitation," having its beginning among a small handful of Toronto citizens, but which, it is stated, "is rapidly growing and threatens to affect seriously the sale of American-made goods in Canada." This is a manifestation of superficial patriotism, that should not be encouraged. It is a mistake, both as a matter of political policy and economic policy. The purchasing public of Canada is already too seriously handicapped by conditions of employment, and advanced prices, to welcome another obstructive and oppressive element. Canada is not yet sufficiently self-contained—except in the matter of staple food supplies and other indigenous products, to be able to erect a Chinese wall of trade exclusion. There are a great many products of the United States that we cannot do without; cannot have shut off suddenly without subjecting us to serious inconvenience and financial loss. If we were in a position as we may be at a later stage of our growth, to manufacture at home the goods, made in the United States, we are glad to purchase now, it would be a different matter.

Some of these super-loyalists of Toronto, try to justify their childish objection to buying United States goods or taking United States money in change, by the doubtful friendship of that country for the Allies in this war. But we are not doing business with the United States government, but with our good neighbours and cousins, the people of the United States. We are not called upon to cut off our noses to spite our faces, because the United States politicians, at the head of affairs, assume a practically unfriendly attitude, to secure the favour of a certain section of the electorate. The great mass of the people of the United States are, we believe, extremely friendly to the cause of the Allies. The influential press, the press that counts, reflects this feeling in no uncertain light.

As before remarked we are not equipped to apply the commercial lex talionis; we cannot thus attempt to promote our interests without far more greatly injuring our interests. And we cannot do so successfully till we practice the made-in-Canada theory, without the appendage of virtually oppressive methods. In a broad patriotic way the people would be glad to help the made-in-Canada propaganda, but they should not be asked to fine themselves too heavily in the process. The people could reasonably be asked to pay a slightly higher price to encourage home industry, but they should not be asked to pay as high as a hundred per cent. advance in order to help on the Made-in-Canada campaign. A case in point. A certain chemical article, in common use, is made in the United States, and can be bought in any drug shop across the border for 19c; and it can be imported into Canada and sold at a fair profit at 24c. Laudably animated with the made-in-Canada idea, an enterprising firm began the manufacture of the same article in Eastern Ontario. But the retail price of the same article, same size of bottle, made-in Canada, is 50c. This is what will kill the made-in-Canada idea, more quickly than anything else. Our manufacturers can only expect popular preference for their goods, when their products can compete closely in quality and price with similar products made in the United States. We can only afford to exclude, by refusing to buy, United States goods, when our own manufacturers can supply articles very closely approximateing in quality and price that of our neighbours. In that event there would be consistency in asking for preference to home-made goods.

The people of Canada are patriotic, and are making great sacrifices for the success of the war; but all our sacrifices are, in effect, made with the idea of gaining a military advantage. But there is no military advantage in the people fining themselves by excluding the goods of our good neighbours without any military advantage unless we so call the inordinate profits of a manufacturer.. Patriotism, to be worth much, must have reason and common sense behind it. If the ultra-patriotic citizens of Toronto want to do something patriotic, they have a better chance. Presumably like Toronto as a whole, they are predominantly Tory, and thus in sympathy and influence with the governments at Ottawa and Toronto, also of a very strong Tory complexion. If they want to do something profitably patriotic, something that will have military advantage as a justification, let these patriots hold their pistols at the heads of the two governments and demand that they provide, that Canada's exclusive supply of nickel shall be made-in-Canada — refined here — and provision made that it shall not find its way to Germany to be used as a weapon against the allies in a far more effective manner than the neutral hostility of the United States government. That would be something like a patriotic move.

GERMAN INTRIGUE.

Everybody who is at all observant, in the United States and elsewhere, knows just what is going on. Germany, operating through German-Americans, is trying one expedient after another in an effort to create a situation as to ocean trade that will make trouble between Great Britain and the United States. The German plan is to invent some complication that mutual good-will cannot adjust.—Toronto Star.

GENEROUS GIVING.

We are not sure of the exact population of Peterborough, but assuming it to be 20,000, which must be near the mark, the $80,000 subscribed to the Patriotic Fund in a campaign of only three days, means $3 each for every man, woman and child in the town. This is a splendid showing, of which Peterborough may well be proud. Excepting only Berlin and Waterloo, this we believe to be the best record in Canada. The foregoing from the Orillia Packet would indicate that Pembroke's performance, the giving of $80,000 by a community of 7,000 people, has not been heard of up the Lake Simcoe way. What Renfrew is to do remains to be seen, as a canvass has not been made here as yet, but certainly the County of Renfrew will no more require to blush for her than it has for the county's largest town.—Renfrew Mercury.

MR. R. B. ROGERS OBTAINS PROFESSIONAL VINDICATION

Report of His Connection With the Construction of the Peterborough and Kirkfield Lift Locks

Mr. R. B. Rogers, C.E., who had charge of designing and construction of the Peterborough and Kirkfield Lift Locks, was criticised in connection therewith. He claims that this criticism brought about an investigation, ducted by Mr. Henry Holgate (one of the most eminent engineers on the continent as commissioner. In consequence of this report, Mr. Rogers' resignation followed.

Mr. Rogers thereupon demanded an opportunity to refute this report, on the grounds that every statement in the report reflecting unfavourably upon him, was untrue. Recently, last year, Mr. Rogers was successful in securing an investigation, and requests the Examiner to print the following reference supplied by him; in part, as follows:

"The present Minister of Railways and Canals, Mr. Cochrane, consented to appoint a commissionef to consider Mr. Rogers' reply to the Holgate report. The commissioner appointed by the Minister of Railways and Canals, Mr. Cochrane, was the well known engineer, Mr. Charles H. Keefer, M.A.A.C.E., of Ottawa, ex-President of the Canadian Society of Civil Engineers. The extent to which Commissioner Holgate gave credence to current political gossip, rather than to the well established usage and ethics of his profession, can now be judged by the result of Mr. Keefer's report which is summarized below.

"The finding of Mr. Keefer, after going thoroughly into all the evidence taken before Commissioner Holgate in the original investigation, and Mr. Rogers' reply thereto, together with a minute examination of the works as they exist at the present, and with all other facts connected with the matter is, in short, that every engineering question that Mr. Holgate charged was wrongly applied by Mr. Rogers in connection with his work in building and designing the hydraulic locks at Peterborough and Kirkfield, was, on the contrary, the proper solution of the problems presented, as has always been the contention of Mr. Rogers.

"Mr. Keefer closes his report with the following words:

"In view of this, I think that the Deputy Minister and Chief Engineer of the Department acted hastily in not giving Mr. Rogers an opportunity to reply to the finding of the investigation before requesting his resignation.

"After consideration of all the facts in this case, I am of the opinion that justice has not been done. There is no engineering work that I know of that would be exempt from criticism. All canal works have their difficulties and trouble from water during their construction. The best test of work is the final result in the completed work. The work of the Trent Canal, done under the direction of Mr. Rogers, is the best evidence that it has been properly designed and constructed and is a work that any engineer might be proud to have been connected with."

The Examiner takes pleasure in giving Mr. Rogers an opportunity to state his case, withholding at the same time any expression of the relative merits of two partizan investigators; for if one shares this character, it naturally belongs to the other.

THE BRITISH FLAG IS THE FLAG OF FREEDOM

It is time that one of our British poets gave us a song on the flag, to match Campbell's famous verses on "the meteor flag of England." A long century has passed since Campbell, and glories both martial and peaceful have been multiplied on the grand old banner.

At home, the horrid abuses of the early factory system have been gradually mitigated or removed, the freest government on earth has been evolved and extended to the Dominions overseas in peace, the Union Jack is the flag of justice and civilization. Abroad it has covered the growth of the greatest merchant marine the world has ever seen and shone as a star of hope to the weak and to those in darkness, of guidance and security to British subjects, and of terror to oppressors.

It was the British flag that brought succor to the African beset by slavers. As boys we have all read the stories of the British warfare on the slave-trade. Britain crushed the infamous thing.

A word from Canning and the United States, stood shoulder to shoulder with Great Britain for the South American republicans struggling to be free from Spain. The same statesman tore Greece from the hand of Turkey, and his pupil, Palmerston, secured the independence of Belgium, which Great Britain seeks now to maintain. Britons heartened Garibaldi in his fight for a free Italy, and British diplomacy materially assisted the consummation devoutly wished for so long. Gladstone was the true voice of England when he spoke for Bulgaria.

The old red flag was planted at Pretoria, and there were many to say that for once it covered rank aggression. But how soon the hostile cries were silenced. The constitution of the new South Africa made the Boer himself satisfied with the new regime. If Botha is satisfied what right has anyone else to cast a stone?

Egypt has been delivered from millenniums of oppression. If Moses saved the children of Israel from their task masters, Britain has saved the Egyptians from corruption, bankruptcy, anarchy and the meanest, most grinding tyrants. It is the same with India. Regular taxation, law and hygiene have replaced arbitrary whim and pillage, famine, plague, suttee and wholesale murder.

And now Great Britain has raised once more her hammer of Thor to strike down the latest and in some ways foulest of giants. Belgium will be again set free. When the Union Jack-the-Giant-Killer sweeps over the Rhine, where it has often in the past seen victory, the German people themselves will be set free. Then we may pray that by British arms the whole world will be freed from the spectre of war or armed peace and enabled to settle down to an era of prosperity and security never known before.—London Advertiser.

A TALE OF TWO TRENCHES

The mud was thick in our old dug-out,
And we couldn't stand upright,
A sniper soon would tell you off
If you didn't keep out of sight;
And Conky—he was the grumbling one,
No chance for a growl he'd miss—
He said, "I reckon the German trench
Is a d—— sight better than this."

The sergeant cocks his listening ear,
To Conky he says, says he,
"You think their hotel's better than ours?
Then why don't you go and see?"
And Conky, he got one in quick,
For he says, "Night time is best
To make a perlite, informal call—
And I'll gladly go with the rest."

The sergeant ponders, and ponders deep
And his manly brow he wipes;
"Oh, if we try it and don't succeed,
By gum, I shall lose my stripes!
Their trench is a hundred yards away,
There's forty of them in the row,
And we are only just twenty-two,
But, by Moses, boys, we'll go!"

At dark we got an Indian chum
To start on a joyful prowl,
To settle their sentry first of all,
And to hoot to us like an owl.
That was to be the welcome sign
It was clear for our attack,
We waited, silent, to hear the call,
In the cold and the ghostly black.

It came at last, like the long, lone hoot
Of an owl who was strangely glad,
And we knew the Indian's knife had sped
The life of that sentry lad.
Then out we skinned from the trench we spurned,
But cautiously, too, you bet,
To view the apartments over the way
That the Germans had got to let.

We reached the end of their fine dug-out,
And we took them first on file,
A volley down the whole long trench
That echoed many a mile;
The Germans jumped to their feet and screamed,
For it seemed like a big mistake,
As they were, most of them, half asleep,
Till we roused them wide-awake.

It was into the trench with bay'net then,
In the dark the fight was rough,
If there wasn't room for bayonet work,
Why, we tried the fisticuffs;
Our game was to get the job done quick,
So at tip-top speed we fought,
We had got to take—and hold—the trench
Ere the foe could send support.

We did it, spite of their forty men,
For we, with our twenty-two,
Took eighteen prisoners, four escaped,
While the others had numbers drew.
Their officer said he couldn't think
How it came to pass we'd won,
But Conky told him we'd come to stay,
And—was supper nearly done?

It certainly was more cosy there,
For the Germans are patient souls,
And, though they can't fight half like us,
They can dig and trench like moles;
As Conky said, "for a week-end stay,
There's nothing to make you vexed,
And, when we're tired of this suite of rooms,
We can pack up and take the next!"

MILITIARISM IN DISGRACE.

"Never Again" Is the Watchword Among Allies, Says Noyes.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25. — Alfred Noyes, British poet and peace advocate, and visiting Professor of English at Princeton, reached here Saturday aboard the Lusitania.

"The watchword of even the most pronounced militarist among the allies," said Mr. Noyes, "is 'never again.' When the settlement finally comes there will certainly be a grim attempt to establish some sort of collective responsibility among nations so that treaties cannot be again torn up with impunity. The whole thing reduces itself to whether we are going to have international wars in the future. A system of international police is rather a distant ideal, but I don't see why the principle of international allegiance cannot be worked out."

HELLS OF MODERN THEOLOGY

The Hell of the Bible Not the Hell of Theology—Bible Hell to Be Destroyed — Jesus Went to the Bible Hell and Returned—Everybody Going There—Christ Died to Prevent People From Going Into Hell—Millions Had Gone to Hell For Four Thousand Years Before Christ Came — Christ's Mission Was to Rescue All From the Bible Hell, Sheol, Hades—Bible Tells How and Approximately When the Prison Doors of Hades Will Be Opened — All Prisoners Shall Come Forth.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its insertion.]

Baltimore, Jan. 24.—Pastor Russell preached here to-day at the Academy of Music His topic was seemingly a sensational one; but before he concluded, the audience agreed that he was strictly unsensational. His text was, "Thou wilt not leave My soul in Hell." — Psalm 16:10; Acts 2:27.

The Pastor declared that the Bible Hell is a very reasonable one, but that the theological Hell is a most unreasonable one, as all must agree. The theological Hell is a red-hot furnace manned with fire-proof devils, and containing practically all of the human family who have ever lived—the exception being the comparatively small number of saintly followers of Jesus. This Hell is the common property of Catholics and Protestants; and they are welcome to it, so far as the Pastor is concerned. He declares it an absurdity, wholly contradictory to the Bible; and he proved his points well in the estimation of nearly all present.

The Pastor remarked upon how many different kinds of Hell there are, according to theology. It seemed to him that each preacher felt that he had a right to make a hell for all non-church members according to his own conception. None seemed to think it necessary to go to the Bible. He reminded us of the views of the saintly Thomas a Kempis, in which he described the horrible smells and sights of Hell so graphically as to make one wonder if he had made a special visit and returned to write its description. He reminded us of the vivid picture this writer gives of a naked soul—if anybody knows what a naked soul is—and how the fiery blasts finally asbestosized the outer skin, rendering the suffering somewhat less.

But this decrease of suffering, according to Thomas a Kempis, was displeasing to God; and a description is given of how this torture was renewed and intensified. The asbestos skin split down the back like the shell of a locust, and into that crack the flames of Hell licked their way furiously upon the raw flesh of the damned souls. This process, the saint informed us, is to be kept up throughout all eternity for the joy of God and the holy angels, for the satisfaction of some kind of justice which the saint had in mind, but which we of to-day, thank God! are unable to comprehend.

The Pastor declared that fire is used in the New Testament as a symbol of destruction, an illustration of how all the wilfully wicked God will destroy eventually. People do know something about fiery trials, and about heaping coals of fire upon the heads of their enemies figuratively. But whenever the word fire occurs in any connection where it can be twisted into signifying eternal torment, those who love that kind of [illegible] swift to take advantage of it—eternal torment is the just, the loving thing to give to all the heathen who never heard of Christ, to all the poor, ignorant and degraded who, born in sin, in weakness, find themselves discouraged and overwhelmed by the Adversary—to all not church members.

This sort of thing has been going on so long, the Pastor said, that everybody gradually came to believe it, and remarkably few have inquired as to its unscripturalness. Many sensible people hold aloof from religion entirely, unwilling to confess themselves believers of such a doctrine or worshipers of such a God.

But now we have variations to suit our more refined feelings. Ministers, without giving their authority, now tell various tales about Hell. Some have it with a slower fire, not so red-hot; others have it that it is merely a place of mental remorse—following in this, to some extent, the leading of Dante's picture of Purgatory, where various punishments are meted out for various sins. They do not, however, go so far as Dante and call the place Purgatory, or admit that there will ever be any release from it. They content themselves by saying that there is nothing in the Bible about Purgatory, and forget that there is nothing in the Bible about their kind of Hell, the Bible Hell being a totally different one.

According to the Catholic doctrine, all Catholics go to Purgatory to be purified and fitted for Heaven; and they rejoice in this lesser torture because it is less than the eternal torture reserved for others. From their viewpoint, happy is the man, the woman, the child, that through baptism, holy water, holy candles, the mass, and the Extreme Unction, gets into Purgatory, for he may be helped out of it by further masses, etc.

We are not complaining at this. We think it a great deal better than the Protestant theory; but we leave it, said the Pastor, for those who like it. We notice, however, that very few seem to like it for themselves; nearly all prefer these tortures for their opponents. If any one is happy in these beliefs, the Pastor does not wish to disturb his serenity. He was merely addressing the growing multitude who are looking for a better God and a better future than is held out by the creeds of the Dark Ages. Others should not read his sermons, he said, nor come to hear him.

When once the human mind has become settled upon certain convictions, no matter how foolish it seems able to find support for its delusions, continued the speaker. Thus one of our Lord's parables has been seized upon to prove that Hell is a place of torture, parched tongues, etc. We cannot here discuss this parable or the two figurative statements in Revelation used to bolster the doctrine of eternal torment; we must confine ourselves to our text.

But we can offer free of charge a booklet which we have written with a view to making these figurative statements clear. Whoever will address me—Pastor Russell, Brooklyn, N.Y.—requesting a copy of a pamphlet about Hell, will be promptly served free of charge. That pamphlet will settle all your questions, supplementing what I am saying to you to-day. I take pleasure in giving it away free, because I know the joy, the blessing, the relief, it brings to many earnest, honest hearts. I know that many after reading are enabled to love, worship and serve the great God of Love heartily, intelligently, as never before.

Our English word Hell comes to us from the German language—hoehle, signifying a hole. It is, therefore, a very good translation for the Hebrew word Sheol, which signifies a pit, a hole, a grave. The New Testament Greek gives us Hades as the exact equivalent of Sheol. Whenever Sheol is translated into the New Testament Greek the word Hades is used. Thus the Psalmist wrote, "Thou wilt not leave My soul in Sheol" (hell—the grave); and St. Peter translated this in the New Testament, rendering it, "Thou wilt not leave My soul in Hades" (hell—the grave).

St. Peter tells us that these words were not true respecting the Prophet David, who used them; that he is still in Hell, in Sheol, in Hades. He says, "His sepulchre is with us unto this day." The Prophet David had not yet been resurrected out of Sheol, out of the state of death, out of the grave condition. St. Peter explains that the words were a prophecy relating to Christ's resurrection—that God raised Jesus from the dead on the third day—raised Him, therefore, from Hades, after He had been in Hades for parts of three days.

There is not a shred of authority anywhere for the absurd statement, sometimes made by cornered clergymen, that "Paradise is on one side of the creek and Hades on the other." The Bible tells of a Paradise, but it is future. It tells of Hades, the state of the dead; but it is present, and is to be destroyed in the future. The destruction of Hades, Sheol, the grave, will progress during the thousand years of Christ's Reign. Every time an individual is resurrected from the dead, his grave will be destroyed—it will be a grave no longer.

At a time when the Bible was not in the hands of the people, and not considered necessary to them, because they had the creeds, various errors spread; and both Catholics and Protestants helped to spread them, and no doubt many were deceived into believing all that they said. We are not charging them all with hypocrisy, but with error—with being out of harmony with the Bible. The Bible does not tell about any going to Heaven at death; but it does tell that all, both good and bad, rich and poor, go to Hell at death; that King David went to Hell, and is still there. Note the Apostle Peter's words, "David is not ascended into the Heavens." (Acts 2:34.) David is not one of the elect Church. He was never called to the Heavenly Calling. He was not a follower of Christ; for he lived centuries before that time. His blessing of resurrection will be to human nature, earthly nature; and his reward will be a share in that restored Paradise, which will eventually be world-wide.

We remind our readers that the Bible history of four thousand and more years has no reference to any other than Sheol. We remind you that although our Bible was translated by people who believed in a fiery Hell, they were unable to translate quite half of the occurrences of the word Sheol by our English word Hell. They were obliged to translate the majority as grave or pit. They should not have made any exception; in every case the word should have been rendered grave or pit, for this is what it means.

Jesus was raised up out of Sheol, Hades, the tomb; for His death had been a sacrificial one, and there was no real cause of death in Him. But there was another person brought back, Jonah, who the Lord declared was typical of Himself — Jonah's three days in the belly of the fish corresponding to our Lord's three days in Hell, Hades, the grave. The resurrection of Jesus was represented also in the experiences of Jonah; for on the third day the great fish vomited him forth. Jonah, describing his experiences while buried alive in the belly of the fish, says, "Out of the belly of Hell cried I, and Thou heardest my voice," etc. The fish vomited him upon the dry land. He was rescued from the Hell-belly; for the belly of the fish was his Hell, or grave.

The Bible is very explicit in declaring that all die—not merely seem to die, but really die—and that there would be no future life whatever for mankind, unless God provides a resurrection. God has provided for a resurrection. His provision is made in Christ, who died for our sins. St. Paul declares, If there be no resurrection of the dead, all our Christian faith and hope are perished; we have nothing to live for; we have no hopes. But he assures us that Christ has died and risen. Therefore, ultimately, all will be delivered from the power of Sheol, Hades, the grave.

A few were awakened in olden times, merely to relapse into death again. It was not possible that any could be fully recovered from the power of death until Christ first had provided the Redemption-price on man's behalf. God speaks of things from this viewpoint. Looking down from the beginning, He tells us that He had provided Jesus as "the Lamb of God" in His purpose before the foundation of the world. Hence, in speaking to Moses, He did not speak of the world as being dead in the sense of dead brute beasts, but as those who have hope. He spoke of the things not yet accomplished as though they had already been accomplished, and declared Himself the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, who were dead, but for whom a resurrection had been provided.

Of both the good and the bad we read that they were gathered to their fathers. Their fathers were not in Heaven; for that is not a sleeping place; their fathers were not in the fiery Hell of orthodoxy and the creeds of the Dark Ages; for they were not yet imagined. They did not sleep in a Catholic Purgatory for the same reason; but they slept, and are sleeping still, and will continue to sleep until they shall be awakened.

This same thought is given in the New Testament as well as in the Old. Jesus said that Lazarus slept; and He awakened the daughter of Jairus from the sleep. St. Paul declared that all the Church would sleep except those who would be alive at the time of our Lord's Second Coming. It is from this viewpoint that the great work of Christ and His Millennial Kingdom is described as specifically and especially an awakening of the sleeping dead.

In the Old Testament Sheol is described as a great prison-house into which the people have gone, and out of which none could make his way to liberty from death. The same thought is given us in the New Testament. Our Lord tells of how He will unlock Hades, Sheol, the tomb, and deliver the prisoners. He tells us that He "has the keys of death and of Hades." He got the key, or authority, or power, to open the grave, to give a resurrection to the whole world of mankind, at the cost of His life, which He freely sacrificed, dying "the Just for the unjust," "tasting death for every man."

In symbolic language the Scriptures picture Jesus as leading forth a multitude of captives. (Ephesians 4:8.) The first company of captives delivered will be the Church, the Bride, the Lamb's Wife, they who will have part in the First Resurrection. Truly the Scriptures declare, "The gates of Hell shall not prevail against thee." Christ is stronger than the power of death, and He has met the death penalty that was against us. He has redeemed us. He will deliver us early in the Morning of the New Dispensation.

And that is only part of the wonderful Story. The Apostle declares that The Christ will be the Head, fruits, Jesus the Head, and the Church His Body. Afterward will be those who become Christ's during His Presence. His Presence will last for the thousand years, as the King over all the earth; and as the anti-typical Priest to bless. He will be a Priest upon His Throne, to deliver from the power of sin and death all who wish to come back into harmony with God. Hallelujah! What a Saviour!

The result of these thousand years will be not merely the awakening of the sleepers, but subsequently, their raising up mentally, morally, physically, to full perfection of human nature, from which they fell in Father Adam's disobedience. Then, when all the wilfully wicked shall have been destroyed in the Second Death, from which there will be no recovery, no redemption, no resurrection — "then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in victory. O Death, where is thy sting? O Hades (grave), where is thy victory?"

The grave indeed has a victory now over all mankind; but ultimately the Redeemer will have the victory, during the thousand years of His Reign. He will deliver all from the power of the present death, and only the wilfully wicked shall die the Second Death, from which there will be no recovery.

It fills our hearts with joy to think of the poor world's return from the prison-house of death and from their weaknesses and imperfections. With the eye of faith, looking through the telescope of God's Word, we see in the near future, thank God! the binding of Satan, the awakening of the sleepers, the blessing of the whole world, the uplifting of all the willing and obedient. We see them coming back to full physical power, to full mental vigor, to full moral tone—the image and likeness of God, lost in Eden, redeemed for all at Calvary.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed With Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's treatment, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good even colour, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides, prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair.

Somewhat Suspicious.

"I don't know about hiring this girl. She comes highly recommended by Mrs. Wombat."

"Then what deters you?"

"Mrs. Wombat is an enemy of mine."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Cheering Her Up.

"I hear you are going to marry Charley."

"Yes; he asked me last evening."

"Let me congratulate you. Charley is all right. He is one of the nicest fellows I was ever engaged to."

The Easier Way.

"I was very angry just now when Blocker asked me for $5 that I owed him."

"But why did you get angry?"

"I found it much easier to get angry than to pay."—London Tit-Bits.

More Than Pleased.

"Did Miss Flavilla seem pleased when you asked her to go to the theatre?"

"Pleased! She wanted to keep the tickets for fear something might happen to me."—Chicago Herald.

Quite a Feat.

"What's the matter with that fellow? Why the gyrations?"

"He's trying to flirt with two girls at the same time, and they've gone in opposite directions."—Kansas City Journal.

Guilty Things.

"Is old Dusey as stingy as they say he is?"

"Yes. He never even buys a calendar for fear he may not live the year out and be able to use it up."—New York Sun.

Infantry Training

The Matter in This Column is from the Official Manual 1911 and is Published Accordingly to Orders of the Right Coard

29. Turning when on the march. 1. RIGHT (or LEFT) —TURN.	Each man will turn in the named direction, and move on at once without checking his pace. Note.—A soldier will always turn to the right on the left foot; and to the left on the right foot. The word turn will be given as the foot on which the turn is to be made is coming to the ground; if it is not so given the soldier will move on one pace and then turn.
2. ABOUT—TURN.	The soldier will turn right about on his own ground in three beats of the time in which he is marching. Having completed the turn about the soldier will at once move forward, the fourth pace being a full pace.
3. RIGHT (or LEFT) INCLINE.	On the word incline, make a half-turn in the required direction.

SQUAD DRILL IN SINGLE RANK.

30. Formation of Squads in Single Rank.

Recruits will at this stage be formed in single rank without intervals, each man occupying a lateral space of 30 inches. The accuracy of the spaces should be frequently tested. Squads will fall in and dress by the left unless otherwise ordered.

31. Dressing in single rank. No word of command will be given.	When soldiers are on the alignment they have to occupy, they will, except at ceremonial drill, take up their own dressing without orders. When a squad is halted each man, except the man on the named flank, will look towards the flank by which he is to dress with a smart turn of the head and, commencing with the man nearest the flank by which the dressing is made, each will move up or back to his place successively. Each man will look to his front as soon as he has got his dressing. See Sec. 19.
32. Numbering a squad. SQUAD—NUMBER.	The squad will number off from the right, the right hand man calling out "One," the next on his left "two," and so on.
33. Opening and closing a squad OPEN RANKS —MARCH.	The odd numbers will take two paces forward; when the paces are completed the men who have moved (except the left hand man of each rank will look to the left and correct the dressing quickly, looking to the front as soon as the dressing is correct.
REFORM—RANKS. —MARCH.	The odd numbers will step back two paces, when the paces are completed the squad will dress as in Sec. 31.
34. Marching in single rank. 1. BY THE RIGHT (or LEFT or By No. —) QUICK—MARCH.	[redacted] As in Sec. 26. Each man will preserve his position in the general line by an occasional glance towards the directing man (see Sec. 24).
2. BY THE RIGHT (or LEFT or by No. —) DOUBLE—MARCH.	As in para. 1 above, but in double time.
35. Changing the pace from quick to double time, and vice versa. 1. DOUBLE—MARCH.	Complete the next pace in quick time and then continue in double time as in Sec. 27.
2. QUICK—MARCH.	Complete the next pace in double time and then break into quick time, dropping the same to their usual cadence.
36. The diagonal march (Plate III, fig. 1). RIGHT (or LEFT) —INCLINE.	Each man will make a half turn in the required direction, and, if on the march, will move diagonally in that direction.

PLATE III. To face p. 28.

37. Changing direction (Plate III, fig. 2.) RIGHT (or LEFT) —FORM. QUICK—MARCH.	The right (or left) hand man will make a full turn in the required direction, and the remainder a half turn. The right (or left) hand man will mark time and the remainder will mark time when they come up into the new alignment. Note. Should the squad be required to halt on reaching the new alignment the command will be preceded by the caution AT THE HALT; each man will then halt and take up his dressing on reaching the new alignment. If the squad is on the move the command QUICK MARCH is omitted.
FOR—WARD	The squad will move forward in the new direction. Note. Forming at any angle will be practised. If necessary the first three men may be dressed at the required angle and the remainder be ordered to form upon them.
38. Marching as in file. 1. From the halt. RIGHT (or LEFT—TURN.	As in Sec. 29. The men will now cover each other exactly. The head of the man immediately in front of each soldier, when he is correctly covered, will conceal the heads of all the others in front of him.
QUICK—MARCH.	The whole will step off, without increasing or diminishing the distance between each other. Note. This will also be practised on the move.
2. Changing [illegible] for [illegible] WHEEL.	The leading man will move round a quarter of the circumference of a circle having a radius of four feet. The other men, in succession, will follow in his footsteps without increasing or diminishing their distances from each other or altering the time, but shortening the pace a little with the inner foot.

BATTLE IN ALSACE

Violent Fighting is Reported From the Whole Western Battlefront With Especially Bitter Fighting at Nieuport

LONDON, Jan. 25.—The Germans were checked after a temporary gain and pressed back until the fighting was carried up to their own base in upper Alsace yesterday, according to the French War Office statement received from Paris last night. Bitter fighting is progressing in front of Nieuport, in Belgium, the forest battle in the Argonnes rages with undiminished fury, and terrific artillery duels have been fought all along the line, according to reports from the western front.

The battle in Alsace has only begun. Severe fighting is likely to continue for some time. The Germans are still bringing up reinforcements in the hope of checking the almost interrupted series of small French successes.

Where the French established themselves on the eastside of Steinbach after the memorable victory in the fight for that town, the Germans Saturday advanced from their infantry base at Uffholz in an attack which was preceded by a violent bombardment. So strong were the invaders and so furious the character of their assault that they carried the advanced positions of the French. The dislodged Frenchmen rallied to the counter-attack, and fell upon the Germans with vigor, routing them from their newly-gained trench and forcing them back. Last night's communique states that the French now have carried the fighting into the region of Uffholz, which is about two miles to the east of Steinbach.

The German artillery is bombarding Thann, where the French have removed all traces of the 40-year German occupation. The devastating rain of the German 8-inch shells has set the town partially on fire.

The following official communication was issued by the War Office Sunday night:

"There has been an intense bombardment by the Germans in the region to the north of Zillebeke (Flanders), and lively rifle firing near the Chateau d'Hereneg, but no infantry attacks. Some shells have fallen on Arras and firing occurred to the north of the town.

"In the region of Albert the enemy has discharged a number of bombs against Labelsaelle, but our artillery forced him to cease this attack.

"Active skirmishing has occurred near Carnoy.

"In the Argonne, fighting in the region of Four-de-Paris has come to an end. We have conserved all our positions except about 50 metres of a trench, which was destroyed by the heavy bombs of the enemy.

"In Alsace the struggle is in progress to-day in the region of Uffholz, and in that of Hartmanns-Weilerkopf, where we are in contact with the wire entanglements established by the Germans, but as yet there is no news of the operations of the day."

"In the Argonnes in the region of St. Hubert and Fontaine Madame an infantry engagement continued in a portion of an advance trench, which has been taken, lost and retaken several times during 48 hours.

"Between th Meuse and the Vosges a thick fog has prevented operations.

"In Alsace in the region of Hartmanns-Weilerkopf we have, in spite of the extreme difficulty of the ground made progress on our right. Near Steinbach an attack of the enemy directed from Uffholz and prepared for by a violent bombardment made him for a short time master of one of our advance trenches, which has been retaken by a vigorous counter-attack."

The following communication was issued by the War Office Saturday night:

"In the Argonne the fighting continued all night at Fontaine Madame and St. Hubert. All the attempts of the enemy were repulsed, but the engagement was resumed this morning."

Woman Slain; Husband Arrested.

OTTAWA, Jan. 25.—Noe Piche, a laborer, residing with his wife in Ottawa East was arrested yesterday following the discovery of the woman's dead body in their home.

It bore a number of severe wounds, and indications point to murder, probably in a fight. The woman had been dead several hours when physicians arrived in response to a call from Piche, who admits he was with her when she died, but refuses to make any further statement.

Von Der Goltz Attacked.

CAIRO, Jan. 25.—An attempt on the life of Field Marshal von der Goltz, at Constantinople, is reported from Jaffa, through the medium of the German consulate there. The field marshal was fired at, and is believed to have been hit. Several officers were attacked at the same time.

Will Stay In Berlin.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 25. — A private despatch from Berlin declares Gen. von Hohenborn, who succeeded Von Falkenhayn as German Minister of War, will not go to either front but will remain in Berlin. Lt.-Gen. von Wandel will be in command in the western theatre.

SUNDAY MORNING SERVICE AT CHARLOTTE STREET METHODIST CHURCH

"The Royal Way of the Holy Cross."

A large and appreciative congregation greeted the pastor of the Charlotte Street Methodist church last Sunday morning, and listened with rapt attention to an eloquent sermon on the subject, "The Royal Way of the Holy Cross."

The Rev. Mr. Wilson took as his text, Luke, 9:23, "If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily and follow me. For whosoever will save his life shall lose it; but whosoever will lose his life for My sake, the same shall save it. For what is a man advantaged, if he gain the whole world, and lose himself, or be cast away?" This might be summarized as "the call of the Cross," which in that splendid work of Thomas A. Kempis, "The Imitation of Christ," there is a chapter of beautiful sentiments entitled, "The Royal Way of the Holy Cross."

The symbol of the Cross is never misunderstood, it is too dear for controversy. Sometimes the lives of some Christians give us a wrong interpretation, but the strongest argument after all is the holy life of a sainted one who has passed on to his or her reward. The cross is not a piece of wood, neither is it an imitation of the Cross of Calvary, nor does it form any part of ecclesiastic furniture. The Cross of Jesus means the crucified Christ who was sacrificed for our sins on Calvary.

The life of Jesus was of the highest type. Many thought it was a failure, but "the Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give His life a ransom for many. He was wounded for our transgressions, He was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon Him; and with His stripes we are healed."

—The Way of Self-Sacrifice.

When we speak of Mozart we think of music; the name Livingstone suggests Africa and a life spent in the service of the heathen; the mention of Wilberforce calls up freedom from slavery; the name Jesus signifies the crown of thorns; the life laid down for His fellowmen.

Men go to Klondyke and deny themselves many comforts to make money. Athletes deny themselves many things that they may have strong muscles. The revengeful man denies himself the chance of taking vengeance on the one he hates, because he is afraid. Some practice self-denial for selfish purposes, but the life of Jesus was devoted entirely to the service of some one else. He fed the hungry, healed the sick, and even raised the dead; indeed His whole life was one of miracles, yet He never exercised any of His power for the benefit of Himself.

The Way of Love.

Love goes wherever the object of that love goes. Love carries the sorrows of the world. The mother watches over the sick child night and day; the soldiers, the flower of the youth of our land, go to the battlefields of Europe, because of their love for their country. No king can command the love of men's hearts, but he may win it as did the noble King Albert of Belgium.

Christ was not the product of His own times. No one understood the depth of His love. To get any conception of His great compassion we have but to think of the love that a mother has for her child, and multiply that by infinity, so great is His loving kindness.

The speaker referred to a man of his acquaintance who had a passionate fondness for his children. All reciprocated but one, and because of his great love for that wayward son, he died of a broken heart.

If we could only see humanity as Christ saw it we would love our fellowmen more. Then would come the day when we would have no barrooms, and all wars would cease.

When Christ looks into the wan faces of the little ones working in our factories, how will He look upon the men who grind out their lives for gain; how will he look at us, who constitute the Christian church, for allowing such things to go on? When Christ looks into the face of the abandoned girl, how will he look upon the man who betrayed her?

If we could only see as He sees, feel as He feels, we could understand how a missionary gives up his life for the heathen, how a Father Damien could sacrifice his life for the lepers of Molokai, in the Hawaii Islands; in fact, who could bear the burden of the world's sorrows and live? If God so loved us, then ought we to love one another.

There is only one material out of which the Cross of Christ could be made and that is love. "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

The Way of Usefulness.

An English divine journeyed into the heart of England, and while passing through a village was impressed with the sobriety of the place. On questioning one of the villagers for the reason of this strange temperance sentiment, he was informed that there once was a man came to them whose name was John Wesley. That was enough.

Our soldiers on Salisbury Plain think more of the socks and wristlets knit by the mothers of Canada than of those purchased from the store. A mother devotes her life to her children; a father works day in and day out that he may provide comforts for his family.

Two soldiers volunteer for service. One meets a heroic death upon the battlefield, the other escapes unharmed, yet both lay down their lives. The true teacher is he who inspires a love for things intellectual where none existed before.

Many, on the other hand, want to do work for Christ, but they do not care to sacrifice their comforts or their pleasures. We are learning our lessons as we never learned them before; lessons from this great war.

The women of England and Canada are doing their best to add to the comfort of the soliers in the trenches, but they are forsaking their former life. The whole nation is learning to serve. We are getting nearer "The Royal Way of the Holy Cross."

The Way of Happiness.

The only real happiness comes from a life of self-sacrifice. Many of us think that if were rich, we would be happy; if we had a good pair of lungs, we would be happy; if we were only as prominent as our neighbour, we would be happy.

Talmage overtook a man walking along a mountainous road in a mining district, who had struck it rich. "But," said the man, "it came after my wife died; it is no good to me now."

Sir Colin Campbell, after the Sepoy mutiny, was raised to the peerage for his great service to his country, "but," said he, "the honour comes too late, there is no one for whom I care to whom I could tell the news."

During the commencement exercises of an American college a young graduate delivered a splendid oration, and received his much coveted degrees. Down in the audience sat his widowed mother, who had toiled and sacrificed that he might have the advantage of a good education. As the son stood there and received the applause of an admiring host the mother hid her face and wept—tears of joy.

The Way of Victory.

When Christ died on Calvary darkness spread over the land. From the cross a light streamed which has comforted Christians all down through the twenty centuries. "Thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself and take up his cross daily, and follow Me."

"Were the whole realm of nature of mine,
That were a present far too small;
Love so amazing, so divine,
Demands my soul, my life, my all."

—Paul Penman.

Last Night At Woodmen Hall

Elder Johnston Explained the Great Metallic Image at Dan.

A theme of special interest was considered last evening by Elder F. W. Johnston, in which was explained the great metallic image of Dan. 2, as having the head of gold, breast and arms of silver, sides of brass, legs of iron, and feet, part of iron, and part of clay. What is the meaning of this line of prophecy, the Elder inquired, and is it at all possible for us to understand it? We think so, he declared, and the very chapter itself gives sufficient information, for when the prophet, Daniel, was required to explain it, he plainly declared to the king of Babylon that "Thou art this head of gold," and to show he meant his kingdom and not merely the king, the following verse, 39, says: "After thee shall arise another kingdom and a third kingdom of brass, which shall bear rule over all the earth. And the fourth kingdom shall be strong as iron." From this it becomes evident that in this line of prophecy four great universal monarchies are given, beginning with Babylon and followed by Medo-Persia, Grecia, and Rome. The last one of the four was divided in ten parts, where it fell, corresponding exactly to the ten toes of the image. These kingdoms, he declared, are still in existence, among them being England, France, Germany, Spain, etc., and this very prophecy, the Elder declared, shows with undisputed certainty the folly of ever expecting that England will fall. Never will our Empire fall; not before the coming of Christ, for, as it says, in verse 44: "In the days of these kings will the God of Heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed." Therefore, we conclude that in England's time the Lord will set up a kingdom which shows that she will continue till then. When that time does arrive, however, all earthly kingdoms will cease and the kingdom of God will succeed them all.

This kingdom of God will be in the earth made new as the Lord has plainly promised in 2 Pet. 3:13, Revelation 21:1, etc.

A splendid crowd was present and listened with eager attention. Many other interesting themes along prophetic lines are promised for future consideration.

THE CITY RINK

9 O'clock is the Closing Hour at Night

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,— As there seems to be some misunderstanding as to the time of closing the dressing room of the city skating rink, I would state that the committee have requested me to close the room at 9 p.m., so not to encourage the younger children to remain after that hour. I may add that this free rink is being greatly appreciated by the young folks.

Fine Residence Lost By Fire

BETHANY, Jan. 25—Mr. William Lee lost his fine house and contents by fire, last evening, when during his absence his son started a fire in the kitchen stove and left the house to do the chores about the barn. The interior was completely destroyed before the fire was noticed and nothing could be saved.

Mr. Lee's residence is on the boundary between Manvers and Cavan Townships, and about two miles from Bethany. Only a few months ago he had made extensive alterations to his residence, making it quite up-to-date. It was partly covered by insurance.

Large Congregations Hear Rev. Canon O'Meara At All Saints'

Evening Sermon a Powerful Appeal to Young People to Make Christ Their Pilot.

LESSONS TAUGHT

The large congregation, which taxed the seating capacity of All Saints' Church last night, listened to a delightful discourse from Rev. Canon O'Meara, of Toronto, who made a ringing appeal to the young people to choose Christ as their Master before setting sail on the ocean of life. The sermon abounded with references to navigation and its laws, all of which were effectively interpreted in relation to our voyage through life.

In the introduction the preacher recalled a charming scene which he had witnessed one summer morning while sitting under the shade of some trees on the north shore of Prince Edward Island, that beautiful gem in the Gulf of St Lawrence. Below him spread the harbour in which a number of ships and fishing boats were lying listlessly at anchor, some with sails up, but flapping against the masts, others without any sails set. All were motionless. There was a dead calm. As he sat there, reading a book, he heard the rustle of the leaves in the tree tops; gently the summer zephyr found its way to the harbour, and there it caught up the blue sea water. As if by magic the scene was changed. The ships that had lain there unstessly all morning became alive, some hoisting sails, some pulling at anchors, all taking advantage of the wind. As he watched, one by one they trimmed their sails to the breeze and threaded out of the harbour into the gulf beyond, and he said over again with the Psalmist: "There go the ships."

Another illustration was cited from the lower St. Lawrence, than which there is no more glorious river in the world, forming as it does our great national gateway. Many beautiful and interesting sights he has seen, but none more so than the even, moving march of the stately ships of all sorts and kinds, from little boats that skirt the shores to the ocean greyhounds, and even the great, grim, mighty dogs of the ocean that form the iron wall of Old England, the ships of His Majesty's Navy. As he watched them all, ever ceaseless, he said with the Psalmist: "There go the ships."

These are the parables of human life.

A brother clergyman in Toronto once requested him to take his boy to school. The little lad had never been there before; this was to be his first experience. As they walked along together, the little baby face, looking up into his, and the little warm hand clasped in his hand, he thought of the child going out into a new life, a new world, away from the protection of home. All through the day he could not get the picture out of his mind, and he thought: "There go the ships of human life." The same idea presented itself as he saw the members of the confirmation class go through the service, pass out of the church door, out into the deep ocean of life; and again when young people come from country homes, where their lives have been sheltered from the temptations of a great city, come to go into offices or factories, others to the universities, all facing life in a bigger world, all going out into the wild and dangerous ocean of life, which is to be lived only once, and that for eternity.

This church, continued the preacher, has reached an epoch in its history. Great success and blessing has attended it in the past, more especially in the last few years, but whatever is done in the way of enlarging the work, be mindful of the young people.

His message, he said, was to the young, and contained some timely questions about the ships of human life that have been launched.

WHO IS THE OWNER OF THE SHIP?

Every ship has an owner. The men-of-war guarding our Empire, yes, and our Dominion too, belong to the grandest country in which the sun shines. Some ships belong to companies, others to individuals, but every ship has an owner. Every one in the church has an owner, one to whom they owe allegiance. "My owner," observed the Canon, "the one to whom I have given my life, is the Lord Jesus Christ, and may He be the owner of your life too." He is a wonderful Master. Some are afraid of Him, draw back, never surrender themselves to the Son of God, but they do not know what they are missing.

Ships have colours, to show to whom they belong. When passing each other in the day time they salute with flags, at night they exchange greetings with coloured lights.

If you belong to Jesus Christ, don't be ashamed to show your colours, for do you not belong to the King of Kings?

WHERE ARE THEY GOING?

No ship ever set out to sea that did not know where it was going. Some definite port was to be reached, therefore it shaped its course that it might reach its destination in the shortest possible time. Oh, that men and women would sit down and shape their course through life, instead of drifting along! If this were done there would be more successes and less failures, less wrecks. It is a pathetic fact that churches to-day are filled with people who are drifting, with those who have never faced the question: "Where am I going?" No year in the history of the human race has been more momentous than the year upon which we have entered; no time when there has been such a searching of hearts by the living God. Oh, the uncertainty of life!

WHO IS IN CONTROL?

Dr. O'Meara was sailing three years ago to South America. When several days out, they sighted the Azores Island. Standing with the captain on the bridge, he remarked on the beauty of the place. In reply the captain said: "We are now passing through most dangerous waters. On all sides of us are reefs and sunken rocks. I would rather sail anywhere than here."

Another wonderful feat of navigation was that of a captain in charge of a sailing vessel which left a port on the west coast of Mexico, and sailed for ninety-one days and nights over a distance of eight thousand miles, without ever sighting land or a light, yet when he made the harbour of Rio on the east coast of South America, he had not to alter his course by even a decimal point of his compass.

But that is nothing to what Jesus Christ can do with the life that is surrendered to Him. He has never made a mistake, never lost a ship.

In the olden days, when boats first began to shoot the rapids of the St. Lawrence, just before entering the Lachine rapids, the most treacherous of the course, the steamer went close to the shore and stopped. Out shot a birch bark canoe, with an old Indian chief, whom they took on board. Before taking charge of the wheel the old man knelt down and asked for skill to guide the boat on its perilous trip. On every hand were surging waves, and ugly projecting rocks, but by skilful turns of the wheel the vessel was safely landed at Montreal. All fear vanished, as every one realised that the old pilot knew all the dangers of the rapids. He had never lost a ship, never lost a soul.

Once more the learned Divine appealed to the young people to take the Lord Jesus Christ into their lives that He might guide them through the rest of life's voyage.

"Chart and compass come from thee:
Jesus, Saviour, pilot me."

There is only one pilot that can guide past the rocks and shoals; only one pilot that can weather the storms, the trials and troubles of life; only one that can ensure a safe entry into eternity.

"When at last I near the shore,
And the fearful breakers roar,
'Twixt me and the peaceful rest,
Then, while leaning on thy breast,
May I hear thee say to me,
'Fear not, I will pilot thee!'"

—Paul Penman.

REV. J. A. M KENZIE AT KNOX CHURCH

Preached An Inspiring Message to a Large Congregation at the Evening Service

"Christ comes not to destroy or restrict the pleasures of life but to add to their lustre and bring life to its proper fulfillment." The speaker was the Rev. J. A. McKenzie, the newly inducted Pastor of Knox Presbyterian Church. It was a well-filled Church that greeted the eyes of the new pastoral head as he occupied the pulpit for the second time since his induction. With simplicity of speech and becoming dignity the Rev. Mr. McKenzie reiterated the Apostle's assuring words which are found in the fifth chapter of St. Matthew, 17th verse: "Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets; I am not come to destroy, but to fulfil."

The Touch of Salvation.

"Christ hastens to assure us that there is nothing in the past worthy of preservation that will be destroyed" said the speaker. His mission is not to destroy but to fulfil. When Christ touches our lives it is the touch of salvation. Never for a moment think that life will be restricted or narrowed down by the process of Christianity. Christ comes as a Saviour, not to destroy or restrict the pleasures of life, but to add to their lustre and bring life ot its proper fulfillment. There are many who think that in order to be a Christian one must be a sort of Monk, to the exclusion of geniality and social amusement. Christ's entry into our lives not only contributes to the pleasures of life, but better fits us to combat with the various vicissitudes through which we must pass. Life is a mingling of joys and sorrows through wich Christ alone can bring us safely, nobler and stronger for the experience. With some, sorrow tends to embitter life; not so with those who know Christ. He weaves the tangled threads into a perfect webb which has its fulfillment in eternal happiness. e is unafraid of any discovery that might tend to undermine the faith. There is no new discovery which, if properly interpreted, will not add lustre and conviction to the true doctrine of salvation

In conclusion, I would say that you need fear nothing in giving full allegiance to Christ Only with His help can the needs of our lives reflect the glory of true divinity. Consistency and diligence in our work can only be obtained through over consecration to the Christian faith.

Officer of Royal Engineers Praises Canada's Contingent

Compares Them Favourably With Kitchener's Army---They Have Stood the Awful Conditions of Salisbury Plain Well

TORONTO, Jan. 25.—The following is an extract from a letter just recived from an officer in the Royal Engineers. He had a commission in Kitchener's Army but was apointed to the Royal Engineers on account of his ability and wide experience as an engineer.

"There is a lot of balderdash being talked about the Canadians here, but from all I have heard and seen of them, and of Kitchener's army, they compare most favourably with the latter and I have been most agreeably surprised at the way they have stood the really damnable conditions to which they have been subjected on Salisbury Plain. It was not to have been expected that they would show up at all as well in European war conditions as the Canadians did in South Africa, but I think from all I have heard that they are turning out in all the real essentials of discipline far and away ahead of K.'s new army—i.e.; in the matter of desertions, drunkenness, absence without leave and such like offences, which one may fairly rank as of more importance than the matter of private and officers walking together on the streets of London, a pet howl of their critics, who, one notes, are almost invariably non-combatant. Also their outfits are wonderfully good and complete, once again by comparison with K.'s army: I mention this because a fairly common jest against the Canadians is that "they came over with tan boots which simply wouldn't stand the wet over here— they just didn't know how to outfit, d'ye see"—which as applied to a crew of back-woodsmen, struck me as a trifle improbable and what I have heard from a number of Canadian Tommies as to the wear of their boots makes me wonder where the rumour started. If this particular line of detractor could see the reports of our weekly and often bi-weekly commissions appointed "to investigate the reason why army boots go to pieces after three or four weeks' wear" in K.'s army they would be looking for a cheap line of beam-removing doctrick instead of wielding the camel's hair brush on the elusive mote in the Canadian ophthalmic organ.

"You will probably note that I am rather fed up with this line of criticism, having had a good deal on it talked "at" me, though chiefly by civilised and enlightened Canadians in an apologetic vein for their barbaric and less favoured countrymen—but I think I am in a position to speak on the matter in view of the profound admiration I have for the British army and the fact that I have sampled several of its branches in the past three months."

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

The Patriotic branch of the Patriotic Association and the local Relief Association will hold a meeting in the City Council Chamber to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock. A full attendance is requested.

The Snowfall.

The snow clearing agng received another instalment of work this morning. The result of last night's heavy snowfall was apparent in the piled up snow and the efforts of the snow-clearing gang to remove it.

With the Mayor.

The Mayor attached his baptismal name to a bale of checks this morning. Signing checks and other documentary evidence of the city's activities, occupies a onsiderable portion of the Chief Magistrate's time.

Building Permits.

A building permit has been issued to the Bonner-Worth Company for the construction of a bleaching house on McDonnel Street. The building will be of frame construction. The estimated cost of the work is $100.

WITH OTHER COUNCILS.

Mr. Harry C. Duff, elected a member of the Brantford City Council, has resigned his seat, following the filing of papers against him, charging him with not having the proper qualifications.

Help For the Needy.

Berlin citizens have formed an organization to care for the needy and try to find work for the unemployed during the winter months.

Overdraft Growing.

Still another item has been added to Toronto's last year's overdraft. The Mayor's attention has been drawn to another item which goes to make the two-mill overdraft, this being $71,000 for wiring the Exhibition grounds.

Glaubitz to Remain.

The London utilities commission, at its session yesterday, decided not to dismiss General Manager Glaubitz, Although Commissioner Mitchell urged it, his motion was not seconded, Mayor Stevenson having left to attend another meeting. There were some warm passages during the discussion. Mr. Mitchell being charged by chairman Pocock with being an opponent of hydro from the beginning, and that this was simply a step in his programme of opposition.

Eastern Entrance.

Mayor Church of Toronto, announced this morning that Mr. Howard Kelly, vice-president of the G.T.R., would be in the city on Monday to confer in regard to the Eastern entrance to the Exhibition grounds. A special effort is to be made to have it constructed before the next Exhibition opens.

Sold Bonds Over Counter.

Philadelphia, Jan. 25.—A $5,000,000 issue of thirty-year bonds were sold over the counter in one day. Investors, large and small snapped up the offering at the rate of nearly $1,000,000 an hour. This showing caused great satisfaction to all city officials.

Hydro 'Phones.

On Wednesday, February 10, a conference will take place in Toronto, on the Hydro-Electric Railway proposal, the extension of the Hydro-Electric system and the Hydro-Electric telephones. This announcement was made by Mayor Church of Toronto.

BEATTY MEETS KAISER'S SQUADRON AND SINKS BIG ARMOURED CRUISER

German Bent on Bombarding Britain Turn and Run When British Patrol Fleet Arrives and Cruiser Blucher is Sent to the Bottom--Two Others Disabled

LONDON, Jan. 25.—An attempt by a German cruiser squadron to repeat the attack recently made on Scarborough, the Hartlepools and other British coast towns was frustrated yesterday by the British patrolling squadron, and in a running fight the German armored cruiser Blucher was sunk and two German battle cruisers were seriously damaged.

The British ships suffered only slight injury, and so far as known only 123 of the Blucher's crew of 885 were saved.

A battle also occurred between the light cruisers and destroyers accompanying the bigger ships, but the result of this engagement has not yet reached the Admiralty.

The British were superior in ships engaged, weight of armament and speed, and the flight of the German ships into the mine and submarine infested field possibly saved them from further losses.

The Blucher as a cruiser of 15,000 tons displacement, and although commissioned in 1908 was completely re-rigged last year. She was not classed as a battle cruiser but was in the first class to those formidable fighters. With her were the Derfflinger, Germany's latest battle cruiser, which had just left the builder's hands, and the battle cruisers Seydlitz and Moltke, the latter a sister ship of the Goeben, formerly of the German but now of the Turkish fleet, which was recently reported damaged by the Russians in the Black Sea.

The British squadron, commanded by Vice-Admiral Sir David Beatty, who also was in command at the battle off Heligoland last August, consisted of the battle cruisers, Tiger, Lion, Princess Royal, New Zealand and Indomitable. The first three of these cruisers mount eight 13.5-inch guns each, and even the New Zealand and Indomitable carry 12-inch guns, which are equal to those of the Derfflinger, the only one of the German ships that had better than 11-inch guns.

The official report issued by the press bureau gives the following account of the engagment:

"Early this morning a British patrolling squadron of battle cruisers and light cruisers, under Admiral Sir David Beatty, with a destroyer flotilla under Commander Tyrwhitt, sighted four German battle cruisers and several light cruisers and a number of destroyers, steering westward and apparently making for the English coast.

"The enemy at once made for home at high speed. They were at once pursued, and at about 9.30 a.m. action was joined between the battle cruisers Tiger, Lion, Princess Royal, New Zealand and Indomitable on the one hand and the Derflinger, Seydlitz, Moltke and Blucher on the other. A well-contested running fight ensued. Shortly after one o'clock the Blucher, which had previously fallen out of line, capsized and sank.

"Admiral Beatty reports that two other battle cruisers were seriously damaged. They were, however, able to continue their flight and reached an area where dangers from German submarines and mines prevented further pursuit.

"No British ships have been lost and our casualties in personnel as at present reported are slight, the Lion, which led the line, having only 11 wounded and no killed.

"One hundred and twenty-three survivors have been rescued from the Blucher's crew of 885, and it is possible that others have been saved by some of our destroyers. No reports of any destroyer or light cruiser fighting have yet been received at the Admiralty, though some has apparently taken place.

"Their lordships have expressed their satisfaction to Vice-Admiral Sir David Beatty."

Commodore Reginald Y. Tyrwhitt, who also took part in the battle off Heligoland, commanded the light cruisers and destroyers which accompanied Vice-Admiral Beatty's battle cruisers.

The Germans were observed some time after dawn proceeding in the direction of the British coast. When they sighted the superior British fleet they turned and made at full speed for home waters, and it was only after a stern chase that the faster British ships got within range of them. For more than four hours the running battle lasted, the firing being plainly heard in North Holland, where it was judged the fight took place north of the Islands of Ameland and Schiermonnik-Oog.

The Blucher which was slower than the other German cruisers, fell behind and succumbed to the heavier guns of the Lion, which was leading the British squadron. The other German ships got within the mine and submarine area, two of them in a badly damaged condition and it was dangerous for the big British battle cruisers to follow.

The fact that only 11 men were wounded aboard the Lion, which led the line, indicates that the British casualties were light. It is possible that more of the Blucher's crew were picked up by the British destroyers.

The Blucher, the largest and the newest of all armored vessels yet lost in the war, was built in the Kiel dockyard.

She is the fifth German armored cruiser to be sent to the bottom, and of this type the enemy has now left only four out of nine armored cruisers with which she began the war.

GERMANY FORCED TO DEAL FAIRLY WITH AUSTRIA

Austrian Officers Declare That Kaiser's Staff Has Tricked Dual Monarchy and Visit of Archduke to Germany is to Secure a General Exchange of Troops Putting Up Hopeless Fight

PETROGRAD, Jan. 25. — All changes now proceeding in the distribution of the German and Austrian forces confirm the belief that the visit of the Austrian heir to the Kaiser will mark a radical overhauling of the entire war plan against Russia.

The Austrian complaints against the German General Staff have now reached formidable proportion. Austrian officers declare that in entrusting their army to Gen. von Hindenburg's absolute control they have been made the victims of a confidence trick.

Their best army under Gen. Dankl is still held in southern Poland as a prop to the German right wing. It is struggling aimlessly in the region of the lower Nida river, achieving nothing, facing nowhere.

Great masses of Austrian troops are also employed in Central Poland, performing drudgery for the Germans. All this time Hungary has been compelled to stand almost passive while her enemies have been disposing forces for her destruction.

Two hundred and seventy-eight peace meetings, authorised by the Hungarian Government, were held in different parts of Hungary yesterday. Indignation at the high prices of food was expressed, and separation from Austria was advocated.

The German staff now realises that Von Hindenburg's powerful armies within the borders of Poland have been made temporarily useless through his yielding, at the Kaiser's behest, to the latest successes of Warsaw. It is making hurried concessions to Austria. An army of 400,000, containing a substantial proportion of Bavarians, is being concentrated in Hungary.

It is most unlikely that the Germans will allow the use of this army in another attempt against Serbia, but there are urgent reasons for sending it forward to meet the Russians in Transylvania before Roumania enters the arena.

The following statement was given out yesterday at the Russian General Headquarters:

"On the right bank of the lower Vistula our troops, which are in touch with the enemy, had small skirmishes at certain points. In the other sections the day of Jan. 22, with the exception of the usual rifle shooting and cannonading at certain places, was relatively quiet.

"The German attempts to assume a partial offensive were easily stopped by our fire.

"In Bukowina the concentration of considerable Austrian forces toward the passes has become stronger. On the 21st a hostile force, including an infantry division with artillery, attacked our front in the region of Kirlibaba, but was repulsed. Up to the morning of Jan. 21 our troops were holding their positions. We captured during this fighting 200 prisoners.

Board of Health Issues Recipes

Discusses Best Foods to Buy During the War

BUYING AND COOKING

"The best foods to buy during the War" is the title of a pamphlet just issued by the Provincial Board of ealth with the object of teaching the people "how to secure the highest putritive value at the lowest cost."

"The real strength-giving value of ordinary food does not depend on its cost," says the leaflet. "By sensible buying and good cooking it is easy to prepare a meal which is pleasing, palatable and of high food value at a small cost."

It is pointed out that the Government is safeguarding the food supplies and is ready to step in the moment the prices become excessive.

According to the Board of Health food is divided into four classes and one should eat some of each kind every day. The classes are:

1. Fat and energy foods—Starchy food, sugar and fats such as potatoes, bread, sugar, honey, syrup, butter, dripping and fat meat.

2. Muscle and flesh-forming foods —Lean meat, fish, eggs, beans, peas, lentils, macaroni, skim-milk, cheese, brown bread.

3. Bone-building foods — Of special value to children found in oatmeal, brown bread, vegetables, fruit and milk.

4. Medicinal foods — Laxative and succulent, such as apples, prunes, figs, lettuce, celery and all green vegetables; to be eaten largely in the evening.

Stock Pot Valuable.

Dried peas and beans contain as much flesh-forming material as meat and is very much cheaper; while bread and pastry made from "seconds" flour, although not so attractive, is more nourishing than that made with white flour. Oatmeal of course is a nourishing food and with it are classed corn-meal and whole wheat. These breakfast foods are cheaper and of much greater food value than the various breakfast foods so largely advertised. Potatoes are best when baked or boiled in their skins, onions, beets and carrots are very nutritious. Apples, green and dried, and sugar, maple sugar, and honey are cheap and useful foods. The value of the stock pot is emphasised and several recipes in which this valuable article figures, are given by the Board of Health.

Meat Once a Day. ... .

Meat once a day is enough, according to the pamphlet. Excellent food may be made with the cheaper cuts when served in the shape of a stew.

Canned meats, fruits and vegetables are too expensive for general use and are not as good food as the fresh article. Ciscoe and other herrings and codfish and bloaters make good food. Dripping has as much food value as butter. Cheese is very digestible and has more food value than meat, according to the experts. Milk, particularly for children, cocoa and water are the three drinks advocated by the Board of Health. Beer and spirits, it is urged, have little or no food value.

The pamphlet concludes with two pages devoted to recipes in which the chief ingredients are the foods approved of by the Board of Health.

TEMPERANCE ASSOCIATION MEETING THIS AFTERNOON

Action to Be Taken in Peterborough in 1916 Being Discussed

MR. COWAN PRESIDES

The annual meeting of the County Temperance Association opened in the Y.M.C.A. this afternoon, with Mr. H. B. Cowan presiding. In his address, Mr. Cowan dealt with the general movement in the cause of temperance throughout the world with particular attention to the advancement in progress in Canada and the United States with studied attenion to the local situation. The opening devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Mr. McLaren.

One of the questions which it was believed would be considered during the afternoon was the action to be taken in Peterborough in January, 1916. Whether the temperance forces would be rallied for another assault under the banner of local option, or whether their efforts would be aimed at a further reduction of licenses, especially at the four shops, ere questions which it was understood would be taken up.

The programme also included an address by Mr. A. B. Cunningham on "The Canada Temperance Act—Its Advantages and Disadvantages for County and City"; "Law Enforcement," by Dr. W. S. McTavish; "What We Can Do to Strengthen Temperance Sentiment," by Rev. R. G. Peever and Rev. R. Pogue.

The minutes of the last annual meeting, read by Mr. R. Lees, were adopted, as were also the minutes of the important meeting held last May, from which arose much of the discussion in the provincial elections held here during that month.

In his address, Mr. Cowan referred to the object temperance lessons which the world war is affording. Every nation is insisting upon the sobriety of its fighters. Before the war started the Kaiser urged his army and navy to abstain from liquor, saying that victory would go to the most sober nation. In Russia, while we are glad we haven't the arbitrary form of government, their decree calling for the abolition of vodka startled the world, and the results have been a temperance lesson to the world. In France they have undertaken a temperance law almost as broad as Russia's; Kitchener made a special appeal to his army to be temperate and to abstain from liquors. General Sam Hughes' efforts in behalf of temperance among the Canadian forces had been warmly upheld by Canadian sentiment.

Among those present were: And. Fairbairn, Lakefield; A. E. Kennedy; Jos. Mann, Bridgenorth; Rev. Mr. McLaren, Gilmour Memorial Church; H. C. Stabler, Mr. Might, Wm. Collins, Rev. Mr. Clarry, Rev. R. Pogue, Rev. R. Peever, J. C. Shook, Rich. Lees, H. B. Cunningham, Mr. Galbraith, Rev. Mr. Kettlewell, Toronto, Field Secretary Dominion Alliance; Samuel Armstrong, Wm. Madill, Rev. Dr. W. S. McTavish, of the Dominion Alliance, Toronto.

The treasurer's report was presented by Mr. A. E. Kennedy, of Lakefield, which showed receipts for the past year totalling $31 and expenditures of $28, leaving a small balance on hand.

Thanks From Local Boys At Old Salisbury

A Company, 2nd Batt., 1st Brigade, 1st Canadian Force, Salisbury Plain, Jan. 9, 1915.

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—We, the undersigned, wish to tender our sincere thanks to the ladies of Peterborough, (through the medium of your valuable paper), for the kind and generous way in which they have remembered us this Christmas.

We can assure them that the presents we received were greatly appreciated by the boys in this tent, (in fact by all the boys who received them.) We are sure it is very kind and considerate of them in the way they are looking after our welfare and interests, both. We also wish to thank the people who have been good enough to forward us socks, kneecaps, mittens, and sleeping caps.

We are all in the best of health and spirits, (as well as can be expected under the prevailing circumstances), and undergoing some strenuous training at the present time, so we are all in hopes of being away from here early in the near future.

Wishing you all a Happy and Prosperous New Year, and again thanking you. We remain,

Yours respectfully,
CORP. F. PIMBLOTT,
CORP. W. A. WOOD,
PTE. H. KELSEY,
PTE. D. CUMMINGS,
PTE. V. GIFFORD,
PTE. G. MIDDLETON,
PTE. E. E. HAYDON.

Amateurs Find Wood Chopping Not Lucrative

Cutting wood at 75 cents a cord, five men earned a grand aggregate of $5 last week on the property of Reeve McIntosh in North Monaghan. The Reeve had provided a shack for them, but they brought the food they required. One dollar a week can scarcely be regarded as encouraging wages, although it may be all any novice in the work of cutting wood could hope to earn in his first week. Mr. Claude R. G. Spence, who has charge of St. Alban's Mission in Byerville states that women in the parish approached him for assistance, and apparently there is no convenient method of securing help from the municipality. Mr. Spence stated that some of the charitably inclined citizens might wish to help some of the North Monaghan people residing near the City.

THREE REASONS

Each with Two Legs and Ten Fingers

An Eastern woman who is a fond mother writes an amusing article about her experience feeding her boys.

Among other things she says: "Three chubby, rosy-cheeked boys, Bob, Jack, and Dick, respectively, are three of our reasons for using and recommending the food, Grape-Nuts, for these youngsters have been fed on Grape-Nuts since infancy, and often between meals when other children would have been given candy.

"I gave a package of Grape-Nuts to a neighbour whose 3-year-old child was a weazened little thing, ill half the time. The little tot ate the Grape-Nuts and cream greedily and the mother continued the good work, and it was not long before a truly wonderful change manifested itself in the child's face and body. The results were remarkable, even for Grape-Nuts.

"Both husband and I use Grape-Nuts every day and keep strong and well, and have three of the finest, healthiest boys you can find in a day's march".

Many mothers instead of destroying the children's stomachs with candy and cake, give the youngsters a handful of Grape-Nuts when they are begging for something in the way of sweets. The result is soon shown in greatly increased health, strength and mental activity.

ATTEMPT TO SHOOT POWER HOUSE OPERATOR

Mysterious Shooting Incident In Lindsay—Police Are Making Enquiries

AIM WAS WIDE

LINDSAY, Jan. 25.—As Mr. T. Cochrane was within the Seymour's Power Company sub-station on Friday evening, he was startled to hear the report of a gun, followed by the "plunk" of a bullet on the concrete just below the big door leading into the power house. A few minutes later, on the arrival of the other operator, Mr. W. Page, an investigation was made and the mark of the bullet found, as well as the metal contents. It was no ordinary lead missile. Had the aim of the assailant been a trifle higher—two inches higher—it would have pierced the wooden door and in all probability caused the loss of a life, as Mr. Cochrane was sitting in direct line a few feet away.

Night Constable Bert Woods was notified, and was soon on the scene, and investigating the surroundings. However, beyond the fact that the rifle was fired by some person in the direction of Carew's box factory, nothing else could be learned. In the meantime the police are making quiet enquiries and some clue with which to work upon may be discovered at any time.

Mr. Stephen Oliver and others who examined the scene of the shooting, noticed several tracks in the snow around an unoccupied cottage in the vicinity. However, the fall of snow last night completely filled in the tracks, and Mr. Oliver was unable to distinguish whether the tracks were made by one or more persons.

The Average Life Of A Warhorse Is Ten Days The Purchase Of Remounts

"Too Much Daylight Below" is a Bar, and Pure Thoroughbreds Are Eyed Askance—White Faces and Hairy Legs Are Also Disqualifications—They Cross the Ocean on Their Feet, Crated Like Pianos—Average War Lifetime Ten Days—Clipped Horses Not Purchased

When the First Canadian Contingent go into active service with their 8,000 horses, fifty horses a day—or about 1,000 a month—will have to be shipped from Canada to make up the "wastage." To keep this equine supply flowing steadily will be the task of Col. Sir Adam Beck, Remount Commissioner for the Canadian Government for Eastern Canada. At present he is collecting 10,000 horses required for the Second Contingent.

Come From Dear Old Farm.

The farm horse of old Ontario is the backbone of Canadian cavalry at present, despite very prevalent opinions to the contrary, built upon a foundation of Western ranching enthusiasm.

"There is a larger supply of the kind of horses we require in Ontario, than in all the rest of Canada put together," said Sir Adam, in conversation. "It is the result of breeding by individual farmers of one or two horses. Naturally these receive more attention than ranch horses that are bred in bunches and practically run wild till matured. It would probably take a year to make one of those Western horses as thoroughly tractable as horses bred by an Ontario farmer."

Let no one for a moment believe the Commissioner of Remounts is a figurehead or gullable in a horse trade. He has been buying horses for twenty years. There is no keener or better horseman than Sir Adam Beck in all Canada. His prize hunters were among the first steeds proffered the British Government when war was declared.

One-third of Canada — all of the country from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic—is the stamping ground for the eighteen purchasers Sir Adam has appointed for this work. Veterinary officers accompany the buyers. Each man is allotted a district and sends his selections to the mobilization points in London, Guelph, Toronto, Kingston, Ottawa, Montreal, Quebec, St. Johns, Que., Amherst, Fredericton or St. John, N.B.

Before purchase every horse is severely tried under saddle to test his wind and galloping qualities, as well as his disposition, but any mark of whip or spur not done under the eye of the inspector disqualifies him for army purposes.

Three classes of military horses are being bought by the Remount Commission —the "ride horse" for mounted infantry and cavalry, artillery horses, and the transport or army service horse. All must be in perfect condition and not under five or over nine years of age.

Did Away With Middleman.

"We pay the original owners or farmers $165 or $170 apiece for horses," explained Sir Adam. "The Government thinks it should get a better selection by purchasing directly in this way without a middleman than it did when buying for the First Contingent through stock yards and horse dealers. This method also benefits the real horse owners. They get the profit instead of it going to the speculator."

Not Pure Thoroughbreds.

"The high strung, nervous thoroughbred is too much care for a man in action," he continued, when asked what class of beast was preferred by the commission. "A horse not altogether thoroughbred, but with a great deal of thoroughbred in him is better for cavalry purposes. His weight should be from 1,000 to 1,150 pounds, and his height 15 to 15.3 hands.

"The artillery horse, though heavier, should have the same qualities. He requires to be active as well as strong.

"Heavy draught horses are needed for transport and army service. This kind can be seen any day in the city streets hauling cartage company lorries. The heavier Percherons, Clydes and Shires are unsuitable for war purposes. The cannot move their 2,000 pound weight with sufficient swiftness."

These Not Wanted.

If a horse's legs are lengthy. "Too much daylight under him," says the remount purchasers. "We want short, well-shaped back and legs.

"No use in camp without his knife and fork," is the reason assigned for the rejection of horses with undershot jaws. "Parrot mouth" this defect is called. In feeding such horses cannot use their tongue and teeth with the proper facility.

"Joints too small; has to be able to carry weight," or "interiores," are a couple of other well-known caustic comments used by the Government buyers.

Clipped horses are not purchased. The British army prohibits this for humane considerations. "The coat nature provides is necessary," they say.

No hairy-legged horses need apply. The hirsute growth is too hard to dry out, and encourages, when not properly groomed, an inflammatory affliction known as "scratches" or "grease." It also acts as an invitation to the annoying parasite called mange.

Must Not Sit on His Feet.

There are as many "must nots" in the specification requirements for the purchase of remount horses, as there are "don't" in a book of etiquette.

Strong, clean legs and feet, properly placed and shaped, are necessary requisites. Small or uneven feet must not prance officially to the strains of "The Maple Leaf."

A "capped elbow" is sufficient cause to keep a horse from its colours. This defect is a swelling where the leg joins the body. The injury is caused by a habit the animal has of lying on his foot.

No Place For a Pale Face.

All the horses purchased must be "without vice and well broken, quiet, strong, active, willing and sound in every way."

If a horse possesses these qualities and all other requirements such as weight, height, constitution, condition and conformation, but carries a white face, woe to his warlike ambitions. He is classed with light grey; and white horses are rejected on account of conspicuousness.

War time surely evolved the old rhyme;

"Three white feet and a white nose,
Cut off his tail and throw
him to the crows."

As perfect health does not guarantee an individual immunity from seasickness or contagion, the Canadian Government reasons that neither will the remounts be free from fleshy ills. It takes precautionary measures with the horses that are to be herded in box car and transport steamers. They are vaccinated against strangles, shipping fever or influenza.

Well Cared For.

Only 62 deaths occurred among the 9,000 horses sent to England for the first contingent. How small this percentage was can be estimated when it is recalled that of the 700 horses sent with a Western Canadian regiment to South Africa, during the Boer War, 280 died en route.

Innumerable are the precautions taken against accidents. Sharp caulks are removed from all horseshoes, the hind shoes taken off, extra heavy horses and the animals very closely packed in box cars. There is not so much damage done by kicking.

Despite their sardine-like accommodation in the box cars, the animals manage to shuffle to the proximity of their equine friends. At the end of the long train journey, if there are two or three horses from one farm in the car, they are found side by side no matter how far apart they are placed originally.

Tide Times the Loading.

Tides are considered when the remounts are to be taken on the transports. To keep the horses from becoming fractious, gangways are held as nearly level as possible. The animals object to steep incline and they will not lower their heads to enter any place. A frightened toss of the head when entering a ship has been known to dash out a horse's brains on the upper port sill, so the animals are loaded while the tide makes the lower deck even with the wharf.

Thousands upon thousands of gallons of fresh water carried in the hold are used as ballast and give weight to these improvised horse transports, taking the place of the boat's usual general cargo and providing more than amply for all requirements. A trip usually takes from 10 to 14 days, but as a margin of safety sufficient feed and forage is carried for 25 days.

On Their Feet For Weeks.

Once aboard the transport there can be no box-car fraternizing. Each horse is backed into a permanent stall. This stall is so narrow he must perforce stand up. A board, chest high, is nailed across the front of his box. On it is a watering and feed trough. The horse stands up from the time of shipment till he is disembarked. If, from any cause, his legs crumple under him, half a dozen men pull him out from his stall and make heroic efforts to place him on his feet again.

For every ten horses there is man assigned to see that they lack not for water, oats, hay, bran mashes or other requirements.

On the Altars of Sacrifice.

The advent of the motor transport has more than doubled the average life of an army horse, but at that it is pitifully short. Until automobiles were brought into use the days was the period of service for this faithful, heroic friend of man. Then shot or shell, or bayonet or sabre wound mercifully shortened his last anguished hours, or, broken by the heart-crushing strain of artillery dash or transport hauls, he was turned adrift to die miserably for lack of fodder. Now, when picked and carried into action, the flower of Canadian horse flesh may last for ten days before it withers and is cast aside as food for vultures.

Zeebrugge Is Bombed

British Aviators Disable Submarine and Kill Gun Crews;

LONDON, Jan. 25. — While German airmen on Friday morning were dropping bombs on Dunkirk, one of which damaged the American consulate, two British aviators paid a visit to Zeebrugge and succeeded in damaging a submarine and killing or wounding the crews of the guns mounted on the Mole to prevent attacks from the sea on that new German base.

The British official report, issued Saturday night, says that apart from the breaking of the windows and the smashing of furniture of the American consulate, no particular damage was done.

"French and British naval and military airmen engaged the German aeroplanes," the statement continues, "one of which was brought down by a British military machine just over the Belgian frontier, and the pilot and observer captured."

The report describes the dropping of bombs by British airmen at Zeebrugge.

"During the day," it says, "visits were paid to Zeebrugge by Squadron Commander R. B. Davies and Flight Lieut. R. Pearse, and 27 bombs were dropped on two submarines and guns on the mole. It is believed that one submarine was damaged considerably, and that many casualties were caused among the guns' crews.

"In reconnoitering before this Commander Davies was on one occasion surrounded by seven German aeroplanes but managed to elude them. He was slightly wounded in the side on the way to Zeebrugge, but continued his flight, accomplished his mission, and is now progressing satisfactorily."

Squadron Commander R. B. Davies is the British airman who recently made a night flight over Brugge, dropping bombs on the railway station there.

Had Narrow Escape.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Jan. 25. — Thomas Brett, George street, was taking a bath the house took fire from the furnace, spreading with great rapidity up the partition to the roof. He was obliged to escape for his life with barely any clothing, and his wife, who was critically ill, was carried from her bed to the house of a neighbor. Her condition is very serious. Firemen checked the flames after $1,000 damages had been caused.

Anxiety in East Prussia.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 25. — Fifteen hundred refugees from East Prussia have arrived at Bentheim, Hanover. The people of the interior of Germany are becoming increasingly uneasy regarding the situation in the east, says a private despatch from Bentheim, and the stories told by people from East Prussia add to the disquiet.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—Bearish attempts to utilise peace talk as to Austria-Hungary failed to cause more than a temporary turning back in an upward march of the price of wheat. Quotations closed strong at an advance of 5-8c to 1c above last night. Corn finished 1-4c to 1-2c up, oats with a gain of 1-8c to 3-8c, and provisions unchanged to 5c lower.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 24.—Persistent rumors floated around the market Saturday that the government had bought 500,000 bushels of oats, and lending color to the rumors was a substantial advance in oats. Barley was also particularly strong. Previous to noon the price offered was 39 5-8c for May futures. Oats prices also made new records for the season; May was sold up 32 3-8c and July at 32 3-8c, and the undertone strong. There was less interest shown in wheat than for some days. Fluctuations in May were fully 1c lower, while with light trading July ranged only 1-4c.

In the cash line there was a keen demand for oats and barley, while wheat was quiet. One broker sold during the hours 150,000 bushels of oats, and at high figures.

Wheat futures closed ½c to 3-4c cash 1-2c higher in all contract grades, oats 1-4c to 4c higher, cash oats 1 1-4c to 1 1-2c higher and flax 1c to 1c higher.

COL. WILLIAMS SICK.

It Is Reported That He Has Cerebro Spinal Meningitis.

OTTAWA, Jan. 25.—It is reported from Salisbury Plain that Col. Victor Williams, who was to have gone to Egypt in command of the Canadian mounted troops, is ill of meningitis.

Col. Williams is adjutant-general of the Canadian militia and was in command of the Valcartier camp. He commanded the Canadian troops until Gen. Alderson took charge and he is at present on the staff of that officer. He is a highly accomplished officer and there is the keenest regret that in all probability his illness will prevent him from going to Egypt.

It is again affirmed that the meningitis amongst the troops was taken to England from the Valcartier camp.

Four Years For Horse Theft.

GALT, Ont., Jan. 25.—David Gives was Saturday sentenced by Magistrate Blake to four years in Kingston Penitentiary for the theft of a horse from Robert Armstrong, of Ayr, on June 16. Gives is a Galt man, but had been away from here for 14 years. After stealing the horse Gives sold it to a local dealer for $80 and then skipped out, but returned about two weeks ago and was arrested. The crown termed him as a dangerous man, traveling the country under four or five names. The purchaser of the horse proved to the satisfaction of the court that he did not know the animal was stolen.

Story of a Church Sign.

In New York city alone more than 150 electric signs are used by the churches. Perhaps the earliest illuminated church sign was a cross placed over St. Augustine chapel, in lower Manhattan, nearly forty years ago. Again and again Bowery mission and settlement house workers have met men and women who have testified that the flaming cross on St. Augustine's was the instrument that turned them from evil ways.

Lindsay Juniors Play Here Friday Night

With Whitby out of it, there will only be one home game this week and that will be the clash between the Lindsay and Peterborough juniors on Friday night. This should be the best junior game of the year. Lindsay need the game to tie the district with Port Hope, and they will be down with their strongest team a trainload of supporters to cheer them on against the Petes. The old rivalry between the two teams will provide the liveliest kind of battle. At Lindsay a week before last the teams had a grand fight, which will be repeated here on Friday night. Lindsay will have to step all the way to win here.

The Probable Group Winners In O. H. A.

Following are the probable group winners in the three O.H.A. series:

Senior.

Group No. 1—Victorias or Riversides.
Group No. 2—St. Michael's or Toronto Rowing Club.

Intermediate.

Group No. 1 — Picton or Peterborough.
Group No. 2—Brampton or Markham.
Group No.3 — Collingwood or Newmarket.
Group No. 4—Hamilton A.A.A.
Group No. 5—Port Colborne, Niagara Falls or Dunnville.
Group No. 6—Berlin.
Group No. 7—Drumbo or Ayr.
Group No. 8—Seaforth, Goderich or St. Mary's.
Group No. 9—Ingersoll or Paris.
Group No. 10—Sarnia or Alvinston.
Group No. 11—Midland or Orillia.
Group No. 12—Bracebridge.
Group No. 13—Wiarton.

Junior.

Group No. 1—Kingston Frontenacs or K. C. I.
Group No. 2—Port Hope or Lindsay.
Group No. 3—Oshawa or Whitby.
Group No. 4—De la Salle or St. Andrew's.

Group No. 10—Barrie or Collingwood.
Group No. 11—Orillia or Midland.
Group No. 12—No representative.

HOCKEY

The action of Whitby in defaulting the game scheduled for Wednesday night with the Petes will be a disappointment not only to the local management, but to the fans as well. They have been looking forward to the game. Their default leaves the Petes and Picton tied with seven wins and one loss and each with two games to play. The Petes play Oshawa in Oshawa to-night and Bowmanville in the Rubber Town on Friday, while Picton play in Bowmanville on Wednesday and at home against Oshawa on Friday.

The local juniors will practice to-night at 7 o'clock and on Wednesday night at the same hour in preparation for Fridays' game with Lindsay.

HOCKEY PRACTICE.

St. Andrew's church hockey team will meet for practice between eight and nine o'clock.

The United States last year produced about 537,000 tons of refined lead, nearly 100,000 tons more than in any previous year.

Active Head of the C.G.E.

Has Just Been Elected a Director of the Confederation Life

Col. Frederic Nicholls, who has just been elected a director of the Confederation Life Assurance Company, has had a remarkably successful career. e was born in England in 1866, but came to Canada as a lad of eighteen. In a very real sense he can be described as the "Father of Electrical Development in Ontario," as he organised the first electrical company in this country and has been prominently identified with electrical companies all his life. He was for several years secretary of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and was for a time editor and proprietor of the Canadian Manufacturer, and is a former president of the National Electric Light Association of America, being the only Canadian to hold this position. He is now the active head of the Canadian General Electric Company, is a director of the Bank of Commerce, and of many financial and industrial concerns. For recreation, the versatile head of electrical development in Canada, indulges in yachting.—Journal of Commerce.

CATHOLIC CHURCH NOTES

At the meeting of the Sacred Heart branch of the T.A.S. yesterday, several new members were enrolled. An interesting address was given by Mr. John R. Corkery.

The first encyclical issued by Pope Benedict was read in the three Catholic Churches yesterday. It dealt largely with present social conditions the fact that in an age when brotherhood was supposed to have reached a high plane a world war was waging, and in many lands there was social unrest that was not reassuring. It concluded with an exhortation for fervent prayer by clergy and laity, and a deep recognition of duties and responsibilities.

At St. Peter's, Bishop O'Brien mentioned the attendance at the 10.30 Mass at the Cathedral, next Sunday, of the Catholic members of the Home Guard in connection with the Sunday parade which the officers have arranged.

SODALITY FORMED.

The Sodality of the Church of the Immaculate Conception met for the first time yesterday in the church, when Rev. Dean McColl and Father McCarthy and a large attendance of the members present. The nomination and election of officers took place, and the following officers were elected for the coming year:

President—Miss Mae Sullivan.
Vice-President—Miss Madge Kelly.
Secretary—Miss K. O'Brien.
Assistant Secretary — Miss A. Gilman.
Treasurer—Miss Aileen Sullivan.

BIGGEST BATTLE YET

Naval Action Off Coast Must Have Been a Terrific One.

LONDON, Jan. 25. — The Daily News naval experts says: "Yesterday's fight by far the biggest of the war, and its results, even if none of the enemy's light craft was accounted for, were certainly not the least important. Once again the battle cruiser as a type has distinguished itself and with it Vice-Admiral Sir David Beatty, who thus for the second time, has made a magnificent use of the splendid vessels under his command. The fight must have been a terrific one, owing to the enormous size, powdr and speed of the vessels engaged. No action between Dreadnoughts has even been fought before, and while we may regret that our success, measured by ships sunk, is not greater, it must be admitted that we came out of its exceedingly well. Although the full story is not yet available, what happened would seem to be fairly obvious. The Germans were coming over with the intention, presumably, of bombarding more undefended towns. As soon as they sighted a force capable of giving them battle they made off. The Blucher was three knots slower than her consorts, and, instead of staying to protect her, the bigger vessels made off and left her to her fate. Strictly speaking, it was the proper thing to do, for had the Derflinger, Seydlitz and Moltke remained to help her they would most assuredly have shared her fate.

As it was, the sacrifice of the Blucher probably saved them, allowing them to make off while the British ships were settling her account, but, even if this was left to the slower British ships, while the 28-knotters kept up the pursuit of others, the result would probably have been the same, since there was little to choose in between the speed of the first three ships on either of the lists. Nearly four hours elapsed before the Blucher was accounted for. It may at first seem an unduly long interval, but it represents a distance of less than thirteen miles.

ROUMANIA WARNED.

Germany Reported To Have Sent a Message to Bucharest.

PARIS, Jan. 25—The Temps prints the following from Petrograd:

"Germany, in a note to Roumania, declares that the measures undertaken by the latter country, which are tantamount to mobilization orders, and its encouragement of a revolutionary propaganda in Transylvania are hostile acts."

No official confirmation is obtainable here of the report. It is said in official circles here, moreover, that such a protest ordinarily would be made by Austria under the circumstances, rather than by Germany.

Roumania Preparing.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—A loan on behalf of the Roumanian Government is being completed either in London or New York. Bankers here are bound to secrecy as to details, but the recent visit of Roumanian bankers to London and their departure to America to buy war material is no secret. It is confidently believed that a loan for $25,000,000 at about 95, bearing 5 per cent. interest, will soon be placed for Roumanian war purchases.

British Casualties Heavy.

LONDON, Jan. 25. — There has been given out in London an officers' casualty list, covering the period between Dec. 20 and Jan. 12, which shows that the British army in France in these thirteen days lost a total of 257 men. Of these 92 were killed and 133 wounded. Thirty-two were reported missing. Added to the previous totals, the records of the last fortnight give officers killed 1,256, wounded 2,416 and missing 662, or a total casualty list in officers since the beginning of the war of 4,344 men.

Steamer Shortage Causes Delay.

OTTAWA, Jan. 25.—The Postoffice Department has investigated complaints about the delays in transmission of mails for the Canadians at Salisbury Plain, and it states that nothing has been left undone to expedite that forwarding of these mails. The delays in several cases investigated were due to the absence of mid-week mail steamers from either Halifax or New York because the British Admiralty has requisitioned so many steamers.

AUTOMOBILE ASSOCIATION ANNUAL TO-NIGHT

At the annual meeting of the Peterborough Automobile Association, to be held in the Bank of Montreal Chambers at 8 o'clock to-night, Mr. A. H. Stratton will be present and will discuss the formation of an Automobile Mobilization Corps. Mr. Stratton recently attended the general meeting concerning this matter in Toronto, and has information that should be of interest.

Several other questions will be brought up,—Government aid for the Peterborough-Port Hope road; connection with the Ontario Motor League; new plans for the coming year.

All motor owners of the district are requested to be present.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

Saturday afternoon the senior school boys held their first snowshoe tramp. After tramping for an hour the boys tried their luck with the skis and made a remarkable showing at this difficult sport. Next Saturday the boys will have another trip to the park when they will try to make a record with the skis.

The skating rink will be ready to-night so that the boys will be able to have their hockey practice.

Business Boys' Gymnasium and Bible Study class to-night at 7 o'clock.

The first carnival of the Boys' Department will be held Friday night. By the way the boys are preparing for it, is bound to make the carnival a great success. Prizes will be given the boys having the best costumes and also for the skating races.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The Paris Temps denies the report that the finance ministers of Russia, England and France met in Paris yesterday to consider a joint loan of $3,000,000,000.

The death is reported from New Dublin of John B. Barry, for many years a leading farmer of his district. He was for 16 years clerk of the Township of Elizabethtown.

Official convention advices received yesterday in Juarez, Mexico, says Pueblo, capital of the state of the same name, was taken by convention forces in a battle late Friday.

Gen. Jeffre has been decorated with the Cross of St. George by Maj.-Gen. Prince Felix Youssopoff, of Emperor Nicholas' suite, who came to France to confer the decoration.

Emil Nerlich, a member of the firm of Nerlich & Co., Toronto, importers of fancy goods, was arrested Saturday on a charge of assisting an alien enemy of his Majesty out of Canada.

At a meeting of the ratepayers of North Dumfries in Galt Saturday, a motion was passed authorising the council to give three-quarters of a mill on the tax rate to the patriotic and Belgian relief funds.

Rev. Wm. Fleming, aged 87, Anglican clergyman, died in Belleville on Saturday, after being ill for some time. He was the oldest minister in the diocese of Ontario. He was engaged in the ministry for upwards of half a century.

Higher Duties Against Canada.

OTTAWA, Jan. 25.—The new Australian tariff increases the duty on Canadian farm implements in various degrees. Some from free to 5 or 10 per cent., some from 15 to 25 per cent., and some from 25 to 30 per cent., together with an increase in the specific duties.

On pianos and organs the fixed duties are raised one pound sterling and the ad valorem from 35 to 50 per cent.

The duty on the chassis of motor cars from Canada is increased from 5 to 10 per cent. There is also a five per cent. increase on many vehicle parts.

They Saw Zeppelin Sink.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Fishermen arriving at Noordwijk yesterday assert, according to a despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. from Leyden, that they saw an airship founder in the North Sea on Friday night. The fishermen, the message adds, were unable to assist the air craft. The description of the vessel given by the men indicates that it was a Zeppelin.

NOT TOO MUCH ACREAGE

Mr. C. C. James of the Dominion department of agriculture, struck the right keynote in a recent address, in contradicting the popular call for more acreage. Let us have another million or two acres of wheat, many people have said, but the worst thing that could happen to Canadian agriculture, as Mr. James has remarked, would be the attempting of too much —the spreading of labour to its dissipation. Ten million acres of wheat producing 20 bushels to the acre will give more crop than twelve million acres producing 15 bushels to the acre. It would mean twenty million bushels more, produced at less cost. What we want to understand is that it is millions of bushels, not millions of acres, that are called for; more milk and butter and cheese, rather than more cows. It is a day when the economical use of labour will tell.

A good seed bed and good seed are worth more to the farmer and to the empire than a few more acres. If he can increase his acres and farm well at the same time all the better. Then the next danger comes from the temptation to rush into something new. There should be no novelties in this campaign of more production, said Mr. James. The old lessons, the old teaching is of more importance to-day than ever before. We shall do well to stick to the lines that are proved in our district. All kinds of food are demanded.—Monetary Times

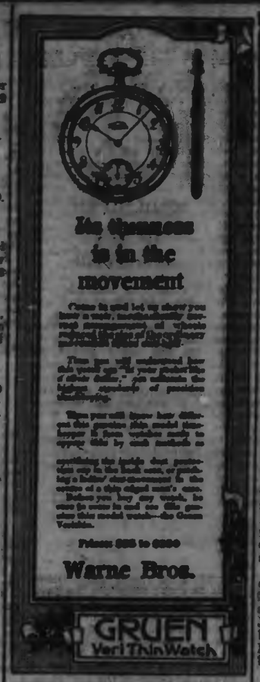
DR. KINDRED IS MENTIONED FOR THE WARDENSHIP

The first session of the new County Council opens Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. One of the first duties is the appointing of a Warden, and in some quarters it is generally believed that the mantle worn last year by Mr. Robert Shaw of Harvey will fall upon the shoulders of Dr. Kindred of Havelock. In his recent municipal address in the Village he stated that he had been promised the position by members of last year's Council. Apparently, therefore, the Doctor will not be greatly surprised if he is selected to guide the Reeves and their Deputies during 1915.

There are no special questions to be laid before the Council, unless they are brought in at the last minute. It looks like an ordinary week of routine business.



SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. Howard Robinson, of Toronto, spent the week-end at his home, Weller Street.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Reynolds and daughter are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Stevens, East City.

Mr. Leonard Hoag has returned to his home Saturday after spending a month's vacation with friends in Peterborough.

Miss Jessie Morgan, of Niagara-on-the-Lake, and Mr. Morgan Boyle, of Thornhill, are the guests of Miss Sara Robinson, Weller Street.

Messrs. Fred. M. Cole, Fred. Reid, and Sergeant Leonard Fraser, with the 2nd Contingent at Kingston, spent Sunday in the City with friends.

The many friends of Mr. Jas. English, who underwent an operation in Nicholls Hospital a month ago, will be pleased to learn of his improvement.

Mr. T. A. S. Hay, of the City Engineer's staff, will undergo an operation in Nicholls Hospital to-morrow, after which he is expected to be in his usual good health.

Anniversary of Birth of Burns

Scotland's Peasant Poet, Robert Burns, Born 156 Years Ago To-day

"Our monarch's hindmost year but one
Was five and twenty days begun,
'Twas then a blast o' Janwar' win'
Blew hansel in on Robin."

One hundred and fifty-six years ago to-day Scotland's peasant poet, Robert Burns, came into this world. He was just like any other bairn in this respect, but what a genius he afterwards turned out to be, the whole world now knows, judging by his immortal poems and songs and his memory.

Notwithstanding the turmoil and warfare, this day will see many celebrations the world o'er, and "The Immortal Memory" pledged wherever Scotsmen are "gethert the gither."

Peterborough Caledonian Club has arranged for a supper to be partaken of in Coleman's Parlours to-night, when the "tearin' o' the tartan" will be given full sway, and the bard's memory pledged.

SPECIAL SERVICES

Commencing this evening Envoy Brown will hold a week's special services in the Orange Hall, next to May's School House, Monaghan. The Temple Band will take part this evening. An outside service will be held at the corner of Chamberlain street and Boundary Road, Browntown, before going to the Orange Hall.

Commissioners To Meet To-night

The License Commissioners will meet to-night to formally transfer the license for the White House from Mr. Chris. Graham to the new proprietor, Mr. James A. Bolger. As two of the commissioners have been out of town the meeting has been postponed from time to time, meanwhile Mr. Bolger has been in charge of the hotel for three weeks under a permission from Inspector Stewart.

There are about 600 organizations of scientists in the world for studying X-rays and a Dutch leader in the science is trying to combine them in one international body.

Little Increase In Food Price

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 25.—Despite war conditions and war prices in certain commodities, it is not apparent that the general cost of living to Canadian citizens shows any signs of appreciable advance. In face the Department of Labour's index figures for the month of December last show a decrease in the wholesale prices throughout the Dominion.

It is to be noted, however, that these figures were compiled before flour, wheat and bread prices had really commenced to increase as they have done during the past month.

OBITUARY

MR. HENRY HALL.

At the good old age of 82 years, Mr. Henry Hall passed away last evening at six o'clock at the residence of his son, Mr. G. W. Hall, 314 Dalhousie Street, City. He has been ailing for some time, having suffered a paralytic stroke about a year ago.

The late Mr. Hall was born in Ops township, where he lived until about five years ago, when he removed to Peterborough, taking up his residence with his son, at whose home he passed away. His wife predeceased him sixteen years.

There are left to mourn his loss, seven sons and one daughter, namely: Messrs. Andrew and Harvey of Lindsay; David and Joseph, Toronto; James, Saginaw, Mich.; William, Sudbury; G. W. Hall, Peterborough, and Mrs. Robert McGill, Lindsay; also one brother, John of Bolsover.

The remains will be taken to Lindsay on the 5.30 p.m. Grand Trunk train to-day, the funeral to take place at 2.30 o'clock to-morrow afternoon form the residence of Mr. Andrew Hall, Lindsay, to Riverside cemetery, Lindsay.

FLORENCE MAY MOULE.

On Thursday last these entered into rest Florence May, aged eleven years, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Moule of Lock Street.

The deceased child, who was of a remarkably cheerful, vivacious and loveable disposition, was attacked, about a month ago, by diphtheria. From this, owing to the earliest nursing she received, she apparently recovered, but the fell aftermath of diphtheria, viz., heart failure, attacked the patient, to which, to the great grief of the parents and friends, she succumbed.

The mortal remains of the deceased were committed to the earth, in Little Lake cemetery, at 2.30 p.m. on Saturday last. A service according to the Anglican liturgy, was held at the house of the deceased's parents, by the Reverend James Price, rector of St. George's Church, previous to which a very large number had been to see the last of their little departed friend.

The coffin was practically overwhelmed with floral tributes, showing the affection with which the deceased was regarded as well as the respect shown to the sorrowing parents.

This very bright girl had a host of friends who will deeply regret their loss. She was a member of St. John's Sunday School, as well as being a member of the Junior Mission Band.

Among the wreaths and other floral tributes were some from the teachers of King Edward School; the Saint John's Junior W. A.; the deceased's teacher and class mates; the Sales and Office staff of the Brinton Carpet factory; the weavers of the same Company; from the Winders, Pickers Shippers, Mechanics and Dyers of the Company, and from the Company itself; as well as from many private personal friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Moule came to Peterborough some eight years ago, having formerly resided in the carpet town of Kidderminster, England.

Mr. and Mrs. Moule desire to take this opportunity of expressing their thanks to the many friends who have manifested their sympathy in this their terrible trouble, which has left them well nigh heart-broken.

To Wait Until After War.

OTTAWA, Jan. 25.—It is learned here on high authority that the Imperial Conference which had been suggested by certain Australian politicians and in some quarters in Great Britain will not be held this year.

Communications have passed between the Canadian and Imperial Governments on the subject and after a free exchange of views it is understood that it was decided that the conference should be postponed till after the war, or at least for the present year.

ONLY SIX RETURNED.

Loss of One of the Raiding Zeppelins Reported From Berlin.

PARIS, Jan. 25.—Telegrams from Berlin received in Switzerland admit that, while seven Zeppelins raided England on Tuesday, only six had returned to Wilhelmshaven up to Thursday night. Each airship carried two tons of munitions and explosives, and each was armed with two light quick-firers, two mitrailleuses and a new device for hurling special torpedoes.

Austrian Premier Resigns.

ROME, Jan. 25.—Count Stourgkh, the Premier of Austria, has resigned. This information is contained in a despatch from Vienna to The Messagero. It is stated that it is probable that he will be succeeded by Dr. Baernkl, the present Minister of Finance in the Austro-Hungarian Cabinet.

Well Off Belgians Begging.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 25.—A Belgian refugee from Antwerp who has made his way across the frontier into Holland declares that the situation in Antwerp is rapidly growing worse. The supply of provisions is inadequate and many inhabitants of the city who were formerly well-to-do are daily begging in the streets.

Garbage on Fire

At 9:25 o'clock last evening the Fire Department received a call to 327½ George street, to the office apartments over Madill's drug store. Several tenants in these apartments have been in the habit of putting garbage, consisting of waste paper, etc., in the hallway. It is supposed someone threw a cigar or cigarette stub into this and it caught fire.

There was considerable smoke and excitement, but no damage other than that caused by the smoke.

At 10:30 Saturday evening the Fire Department was called to 313 Murray street to a chimney fire. No damage.

RUSSIANS ADVANCING FROM PILICA TO SILESIA BORDER

Germans Make Violent Effort to Win Back Lost Ground West of Warsaw---Closing in on Thorn

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Despatches received from Petrograd to-day reiterate the report that the Russian armies in Southern Poland have driven the German forces back upon the Pilica River. According to these reports the Russians were victorious in a series of battles in the Kielce district, and have advanced about 30 miles.

The new offensive in Southern Poland is regarded in the Russian capital as a definite renewal of the campaign designed to invest Cracow and carry the fighting into Silesia. The Russians are advancing on a front about 40 miles wide. The centre of operations is Vincentynof, which is 10 miles east of Tomaszow, at a railroad bridge over the Pilica. The railroad line is the main line running to Lodz.

The southern offensive is the freshest development of the Grand Duke's plans. It was made possible by the successful advance in North-West Poland and by the fruitlessness of the German effort west of Warsaw. In this latter section of the war theatre, however, the enemy has renewed his violent attacks during the last few days. To-night's Russian official communication states that the Germans have succeeded in regaining some of the trenches they previously had lost in the Borjimow region. In one instance the Germans are said to have moved into a trench one man at a time, only to be forced to evacuate the position under fire from the Russians.

LOSSES OF 300,000.

An unofficial estimate places the German losses in Poland at 300,000 men kill, wounded or prisoners since the beginning of their present invasion.

The advance in North-West Poland has reached the region of Kikol, which is near the German frontier and is about 25 miles south-east of Thorn. It is reported that the diversion attempted by General von Francois, who sent troops from the Mlawa district to the rear of the Russian army, was a failure, as the Russians dispersed the small forces of Germans easily and the main body was not hindered.

There is a report of heavy fighting in Northern East Prussia around Gumbinnen, on the main line of railway to Insterburg and Thorn. The Russians have maintained the offensive in this region for more than two months, but their advance has been slow because of the peculiar character of the country over which they are fighting. They have had to advance through a country of lakes and swamps, where narrow necks of land or causeways offered the only means of approach. In every case these were defended by field works and wire entanglements, and a small advance was usually gained at the cost of many killed and wounded.

The Russian official statement says that strong hostile forces are displaying much activity in the Carpathians, combats having occurred in all the passes entering Hungary from Galicia.

It is reported from Lemberg that the Austro-German forces in Eastern Galicia are preparing to take the offensive. General Brojevitz, commander of the fourth Austrian army, has received large reinforcements.

IN TRENCHES FOR 90 HOURS

Princess Patricias Under Fire For Long Stretch at a Time --Particulars of Casualties

MANY ARE ILL

SALISBURY, Jan. 26.—The men of the Princes Patricia's Regiment have been in the trenches at least twice, for ninety hours each time. They lost one officer and four men killed, and 12 wounded, the first time. The other casualties are not yet known.

According to information from France, they have had regular turns in the trenches since January 6, and their hardest day was January 8th, when three men were wounded but none killed.

Col. Farquhar, who had a narrow escape when a bullet grazed his ear, states in a private letter that the men behaved magnificently. The general commanding the division to which the Patricias are attached has published an order commending them highly for gallantry under fire.

Sergt.-Major Joseph Henry Bradley of Toronto, received his wound in the nose from the same bullet that instantly killed Pte. George Bellinger of Ottawa.

Pte. Frank Gillen, a Toronto policeman, sustained a rupture while attempting to get out of the heavy mud in a dangerous position.

Those who have been returned to the base on account of illness from exposure in the trenches include Lt. Cornish, Major McKinney, of Edmonton; Quartermaster-Sergeant Edwin Brock, Ptes. Bennett, Proudfoot, Frederick Warner, George Brock and Bernard Gallagher, all of Toronto. None of the case is serious.

Lieuts. Stewart and Papineau left Winchester for the front to-day with forty men to reinforce the regiment.

FRENCH GUNNERS SMASH BRIDGES SPANNING MEUSE

Allies Report Some Gains But Weather Prevents Material Progress--Bavarians Made Prisoners

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, Jan. 26.—The destruction of the German pontoons over the Meuse at St. Mihiel, after five days of effort, and the mention of fighting in Lorraine after a long lapse, are the features of most importance in the official communiques issued to-day by the French War Office.

For a long time the French gunners have been striving night and day to demolish the bridges across the Meuse from the point of the German wedge at St. Mihiel. Yesterday it was announced that the range had been found, and by daylight this morning the destruction was complete.

The dense fog and unfavourable weather which is characteristic of the Vosges and the Alsatian regions at this season of the year put a stop to the fighting there yesterday, and for part of to-day, although intermittent artillery engagements occurred. Up to 10.45 o'clock to-night the War Office had received no reports of actions during the day, announcing simply: "There is nothing to report."

Captured Detachment.

The operations in Lorraine, where a Bavarian detachment was surprised and captured by the French, are centring at Embermenil, on the frontier, a few miles east of Nancy. The Bavarians are thought to be part of the new forces which the Germans have been sending through Bavaria to the front for the past week, and who have finally reached their allotted positions.

The allies are still prosecuting an offensive in Flanders, and report some gains, but have been able to make little material progress because of the weather.

The president of the League of the Rights of Man has petitioned the Minister of War, M. Millerand, to publish lists of the dead.

The Minister has refused because of the danger of inaccuracy in ascertaining the names of the war victims.

President Wilson's Voice Is Heard Across Thirteen States A Crowning Achievement

Made Possible by the Newly Completed Trans-continental of the Bell Telephone—How a Dead Man's Ear Contributed to One of the Greatest Discoveries of the Nineteenth Century—Ocean to Ocean Line Will Be Opened for Commercial Use.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26—At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, from the office of Theodore N. Vail, President of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, 15 Dey street, this city, Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, spoke over the newly completed transcontinental telephone line to Thomas A. Watson in San Francisco. Watson, it will be remembered was the mechanical assistant who built Bell's first telephone, and it was these two men who, thirty-nine years ago next June, carried on the first conversation by telephone.

'From the White House at Washington, also, President Wilson, whose telephone has been connected, yesterday spoke into the mouthpiece, and his voice was whirled across thirteen States to the shores of the Pacific. From Boston, Mayor Curley had a word to say to Mayor Rolph of San Francisco, and most remarkable of all, from Jeckyl Island, 1,000 miles down the Atlantic Seaboard, off the Georgia Coast, Theodore N. Vail spoke to San Francisco, 4,400 miles away."

A 20th Century Marvel.

Yesterday's celebration, in the opinion of some eminent scientists, and engineers, present, discloses a scientific and engineering achievement no less wonderful than the predecessor of thirty-nine years ago. That two human beings, speaking in their ordinary tones and separated by three thousand four hundred miles of mountain and valley, desert and fertile plain, shoul converse with as much ease as if but a few feet intervened between them, is surely one of the greatest of latter day marvels. It implies at once a perfection of apparatus and equipment, a nicety of adjustment and an excellence of engineering skill never before attained.

The route of this new trans-continental line from San Francisco is via Salt Lake City, Denver, Omaha, Chicago. At Chicago the line branches, one branch going to Pittsburg, thence to New York, and the other branch to Buffalo and from there to New York. A continuance of the line also runs from Buffalo to Boston, and of the Pittsburg line to Baltimore, Washington and Philadelphia.

2,000 Tons of Wire.

In the line there are four wires, making it possible to carry on three conversations simultaneously. Each wire is 3,400 miles long and of No. 8 copper, .165 inches in diameter. The total weight of wire is 2,000 tons, supported by 130,000 poles.

The line is not yet open for commercial use. Arrangements are being perfected to that end, and announcement of its opening for commercial purposes will not be long delayed, although much work yet remains to be done.

New improvements in telephone, switchboards, line cables, etc., have followed one another with remarkable rapidity.

Since 1877 there have been introduced 53 different types and styles of two distinct lines of investigation. On transmitters.

This is the way Dr. Bell, himself, describes the birth of the telephone: "When I went from Boston to Brantford, Ontario, in the summer of 1874," he says: "I had under way, was like a piece of tissue paper, hard the one hand was my system of multiple telegraphy. I had reached the application of the undulatory current —the conception that if you could move an armature as the air is moved during the passage of a sound you could transmit speech.

A Dead Man's Ear.

"On the other hand, I had with me an apparatus made out of a dead man's ear for studying the movements of the air during the utterance of a sound. The membrane of the ear was like a piece of tissue paper, hardly the size of a finger nail, and the bones that were moved by that little membrane were really very heavy and massive compared with it. It suddenly struck me that if such a small membrane as that would move bones so massive in comparison, why would not a larger membrane move my piece of iron? And at that moment the telephone was born complete as a theoretical proposition and in Brantford."

But it was not until the following year that Dr. Bell's first telephone was made. Mr. Thomas A. Watson who built it and who to-day talked to Dr. Bell across the continent, thus tells the story:

"On the afternoon of June 2nd, 1875, at Charles Williams' machine shop, 109 Court street, Boston, Bell and I were hard at work on the same old job of testing some modifications of Bell's harmonic telegraph. I had charge of the transmitters, as usual, setting them squealing one after the other, while Bell was returning the receiver springs, one by one, pressing them against his ear, as he had done so many times before. One of the transmitter springs I was attending to stopped vibrating, and I plucked it to start it again. It did not start and I kept on plucking it, when suddenly I heard a shout from Bell in the next room and then out he came with a rush, demanding, "What did you do then? Don't change anything! Let me see!" I showed him. It was very simple. The make-and-break points of the transmitter spring I was trying to start had become welded together, so that when I snapped the spring the circuit had remained unbroken while that strip of magnetized steel by its vibration

ENGLAND IS PREPARED

Another Zeppelin Raid is Expected To-morrow, Anniversary of Kaiser's Birthday

TO RESORT TO AIR RAIDS

SPECIAL CABLE:

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 26.—England is prepared for another German Zeppelin raid to-morrow. The Kaiser will celebrate his fifty-sixth birthday on Wednesday, and it is confidently expected that his commanders will attempt to commemorate it in a daring manner.

The dash of the German battle squadron into the North Sea on Sunday is believed to have been planned with Emperor William's natal day in view. Defeated on the water, the Germans are expected to resort to air raids. Despatches from Swiss points to-day, reporting a movement of two new Zeppelin monsters from Friedrichshafen toward the Belgian seacoast, strengthened this belief.

Adverse conditions may make the 260-mile flight across the North Sea impracticable. But the War Office is taking no chances. Aeroplane flotillas are patrolling the east coast, and anti-Zeppelin gun squads are on duty day and night.

Few people believe nowadays that cheapness is necessarily economy. Cheap tea loaded with dust is a poor bargain at any price. Salada tea is all clean, whole leaves and marvellous value.

One Cruiser Was Damaged

Only One British Ship Reported Damaged in Monday's Fight

SPECIAL CABLE:

LONDON, Jan. 26.—That one of the British warships engaged in the North Sea battle with the German fleet on Sunday morning was damaged but not seriously, by the German fire, was reported by the master of the Dutch steam trawler Erica, which has just arived at Ymuiden, acording to a report received by the Central News from its corespondent at Amsterdam, and passed without comment by the British censor.

The master of the Erica says that at 9.30 o'clock on Sunday morning, while the crew of the trawler was fishing about 120 miles from Heligoland, they suddenly heard firing.

They saw a German squadron consisting of six large ships and 22 torpedo boats being pursued by a British fleet, which opened fire.

Saw the Blucher Sink

Says the captain of the Erica:

"We soon saw a German battleship sink. The Germans retired, fighting as they ran. They were able to damage, though not seriously, one of the British ships.

"The German fleet was soon out of sight, the British pursuing them. The shelling was very heavy during the fight. Projectiles fell like rain, and great columns of water were seen rising in the air."

Of food imported by England, Ireland supplying from one-third to one-half of the meat, more than one-third of the eggs and more than one-sixth of the butter.

FOOD PRICES IN ENGLAND

Have Advanced Twenty Per Cent Since War Began

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 26 — Food prices have advanced twenty per cent in England since the outbreak of the war, according to preliminary reports presented to-day to the preliminary investigating committee.

Suffering among the poor has been further increased, investigators reported, by wholesale reductions in salaries.

The Parliamentary Committee organized to-day at once set about investigating reports that speculators were partially responsible for the increasing food prices.

German War Office Report

On Sunday's Naval Battle Says Enemy's Ships Were Badly Damaged

BERLIN, (via wireless to London) Jan. 26—Repeating its claim that a British battle cruiser was sunk in the Sunday morning naval battle in the North Sea, the German War Office to-day declared it has information that two British destroyers were also sunk and that the enemy's ships were badly damaged.

"THE BATTLE CRY"

Charles Neville Buck

Roger Malcolm had gone back East and he had not after all gone back with a conqueror's triumph. He was now discussing in directors' meetings plans looking to a titanic grouping of interests which were to focalize on these hills and later to bring developments. The girl's school was gradually making itself felt and each day saw small classes at the desk and blackboards; small classes that were growing larger.

Now that Milt had laid the ground work of his plans he was making the field fallow by a seeming of general beneficence. His word had gone out along the creeks and branches and into the remote coves of his territory that it "wouldn't hurt folks none ter give their children a little l'arnin'."

In response to that hint they trooped in from the east wherever the roads could be travelled. Among those who "hitched an' lighted" at the fence were not only parents who brought their children, but those who came impelled by that curiosity which lurks in lonely lives. There were men in jeans and hickory shirts; women in gay shawls and linsey woolsey and calico; people from "back of beyond," and the girl felt her heart beat faster, with the hope of ultimate and worthy success.

"I hear ye've got a right-plentiful gatherin' of young barbarians over there at the college these days," said Anse Havey one afternoon when they met up on the ridge. Her chin came up pridefully and her eyes sparkled.

"It has been wonderful," she told him. "Only one thing has marred it."

"What's that?" he asked.

"Your aloofness. Just because I'm going to smash your wicked regime," she laughed, "is no reason why you should remain peeved about it and sulk in your tent."

He shook his head and gazed away into his eyes came that troubled look which nowadays they sometimes wore.

"I reckon it would hardly be honest for me to come. I've told ye, I don't think the thing will do no good." He was looking at her and his hands slowly clenched. Her beauty, with the enthusiasm lighting her eyes, made him feel like a man whose thirst was killing him, and who gazed as a clear spring beyond his reach—or like the caravan driver whose sight is tortured by a mirage. He drew a long breath, then added, "I've got another reason an' a stronger one for not comin' over there very often. Any time ye wants me fir anything I reckon ye knows ye can call on me."

"What is your reason?" she demanded.

"I ain't never been much interested in any woman." He held her eyes so directly that she felt a warm colour suddenly flooding her cheeks, then he went on with naked honesty and an unconcealed bitterness of heart. "When I puts myself in the way of havin' to love one I'll pick a woman that won't have to be ashamed of me—some mountain woman."

For an instant she stared at him in astonishment, then she exclaimed, "Ashamed of you! I don't think any woman would be ashamed of you, Mr. Havey." But, recognizing that her voice had been over-serious, she laughed and once more her eyes danced with gay mischief.

"Don't be afraid of me. I'll promise not to make love to you."

"I'm obleeged," he said slowly. "That ain't what I'm skeered of. I'm afraid ye couldn't hardly hinder me from makin' love to you."

He paused and the badinage left her eyes.

"Mr. Havey," she said with great seriousness, "I'm glad you said that. It gives us a chance to start honestly as all true friendship should start. In some things any woman is wiser than any man. You won't fall in love with me. You thought you were going to hate me, but you don't."

"God knows I don't!" he fiercely interrupted her.

She laughed.

"Neither will you fall in love with me. You told me once of your superior age and wisdom, but in some things you are still a boy. You are a very lonely boy, too, a boy with a heart hungry for companionship. You have had friends only in books—comradeship only in dreams. You have lived down here in that old prison of a house with a sword of Damocles hanging always over your head. Because we have been in a way congenial you are mistaking our friendship for danger of love."

Danger of love! He knew that it had gone past a mere danger and his eyes for a moment must have shown that he realized its hopelessness, but Juanita shook her head and went on.

"Don't do it. It would be a pity. I'm rather hungry, too, for a friend. I don't mean for a friend in my work, but a friend in my life. Can't we be friends like that?"

She stood looking into his eyes, and slowly the drawn look of gravity left his face.

He had always thought quickly and dared to face realities. He was now facing his hardest reality. He loved her with utter hopelessness. Her eyes told him that it must always be just that way and yet she had appealed to him; she had said she needed his friendship. To call it love would make it necessary for her to decline it. Henceforth life for Anse [illegible] but if she wanted his allegiance she might call it what name she would. It was hers.

Swiftly he vowed in his heart to set a seal on his lips and play the part she had assigned to him. He would not even let her know how near he had been to sweeping aside falsehood and telling her that for him to come to her except as a lover would be to come under false pretences. Instead he slowly forced a smile, a bovish smile as though all his fears had been wiped away, and the old general in blue and buff could not have lied more with the gallantry of a gentleman.

"I'm right glad that ye said that," he assured her. "I reckon ye're right. I reckon we can go on fightin' and bein' friends. Ye see, as I said, I didn't know much about women folks an' because I liked ye I was worried."

She nodded understandingly.

Suddenly he bent forward and his words broke impetuously from his lips. "Do ye 'low to marry that man, Malcolm?" He came a step toward her, then raising his hand swiftly, before she could respond, he exclaimed, "No—don't answer that question! That's your business. I didn't have no license to ask. Besides I don't want ye to answer it."

"It's a bargain, isn't it?" she smiled. "Whenever you grow lonely over there by yourself and find that Hamlet isn't as lively a companion as you crave, or that Alexander the Great is a little too fond of himself, or Napoleon is too moody, come over to my house and we'll try to cheer each other up."

"I reckon," he said with an answering smile, "I'm right likely to feel that way to-night, but I ain't a-comin' to learn civilization. I'm just comin' to see you."

* * * * * *

On a ranch out West, Luke Thixton was riding range. While his pony drifted at night with the herds under the starry sky, he fretted bitterly for the crags and heights of his home and cursed the eternal flatness of the plains. To ride all day on an unbroken level irked his soul until it grew bitter within him, and he waxed with feverish impatience for the letter from Milt McBriar which should end his exile.

Anse Havey knew nothing of the McBriar plans, but he surmised that Milt was planning a coup. He needed no revelation to divine the bitterness arising out of young Milt's fondness for Dawn. That was a thing that was in embryo, but some day it would inevitably grow to the proportions of a feud problem. Against that day of crisis, which might come in years or might come to-morrow, it behooved him to prepare . . . and he was preparing.

CHAPTER XXV.

Once when Anse Havey had been tramping all afternoon through the wintry woods with Juanita, he had pointed out a squirrel that sat erect on a branch high above them with its tail curled up behind it. He had stopped her with a touch on the arm and pointed, then with a smile of amusement he handed her his rifle. He handed it to her with much the same manner that she might have handed him a novel in Russian, and his eyes said banteringly, "See what you can do with that."

But to his surprise she took the gun from his hands and levelled it as one accustomed to its use. Bad Anse Havey forgot the squirrel dropped.

She turned with a matter-of fact nod and handed back the gun. "I'm rather sorry I killed it," she said, "but you looked so full of scorn that I had to show you. You know they do have a few rifles outside the Cumberland mountains."

"Where did you learn to shoot?" he demanded; and she answered, casually:

"I used to shoot a rifle and pistol, too, quite a good bit."

He took the gun back and unconsciously his hand caressed the spot where her cheek had lain against its lock. He had fallen into reverie out of which her voice had called him. They had crossed the ridge itself and were overlooking his house. "Why are they clearing that space behind your house? Are you going to put it in corn?"

"No," he laughed shortly. "Corn would be just about as bad as laurel."

He was instantly sorry he had said that. He had not meant to tell her of the plans he was making; plans of defence, and, if need be, offence. He had not intended to mention his precautions to prevent assassination at his own door or window.

But the girl understood and her voice was heavy with anxiety as she demanded, "Do you think you're in danger, Anse?"

That Racking Persistent Cough
Can Be Quickly Cured By
DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

All obstinate coughs and colds yield quickly to the general action of "Dr. Wood's" for the simple reason that this valuable preparation combines all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree with which is combined Wild Cherry Bark, and the soothing, healing and expectorant properties of other excellent herbs and barks. This makes it, without any chance of denial, the best cough medicine on the market to-day.

When you ask for "Dr. Wood's" see that it is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark, and that the name, The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont., appears on the wrapper. Price, 25c and 50c.

Mrs. H. C. Kingston, Moose Jaw, Sask., writes: "I wish to recommend Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup as being the best cough medicine on the market. A few months ago I took a severe cold which left me with a racking cough. After trying several cough remedies, with no result, I decided to get a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and after taking the first two doses it began to effect a cure, and after continuing its use for a short time, I was entirely cured. I cannot say too much in its praise."

IN STERLING LIVES A GIRL

Who Suffered As Many Girls Do—Tells How She Found Relief.

Sterling, Conn.—"I am a girl of 22 years and I used to faint away every month and was very weak. I was also bothered a lot with female weakness. I read your little book 'Wisdom for Women,' and I saw how others had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and decided to try it, and it has made me feel like a new girl and I am now relieved of all those troubles. I hope all young girls will get relief as I have. I never felt better in my life."—Miss BERTHA A. PELOQUIN, Box 116, Sterling, Conn.

Massena, N. Y.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I highly recommend it. If anyone wants to write to me I will gladly tell her about my case. I was certainly in a bad condition as my blood was all turning to water. I had pimples on my face and a bad color, and for five years I had been troubled with suppression. The doctors called it 'Anemia and Exhaustion,' and said I was all run down, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought me out all right."—Miss LAVISA MYERS, Box 74, Massena, N.Y.

Young Girls, Heed This Advice.

Girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion, should immediately seek restoration to health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The Supreme Test of a Healing Agent

Psoriasis or Chronic Eczema Defied All Treatment Until Dr. Chase's Ointment Was Used.

MRS. MASSEY.

After suffering with the terrible itching of Psoriasis for five years, and being told by physicians that she could not be cured, Mrs. Massey turned to Dr. Chase's Ointment and was entirely cured.

You will find this letter interesting, and will not wonder that the writer is enthusiastic in praising this ointment.

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Consecon, Ont., writes:—"For five years I suffered with what three doctors called psoriasis. They could not help me, and one of them told me if anyone offered to guarantee a cure for $50.00 to keep my money, as I could not be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head, and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and I am glad to say I am entirely cured, not a sign of a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this ointment enough."

Can you imagine a more severe test for Dr. Chase's Ointment? This should convince you that as a cure for eczema and all forms of itching skin disease Dr. Chase's Ointment stands supreme. Put it to the test. 60c a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

How to Have the Best Cough Remedy and Save $5 by Making It at Home

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. Two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water, stirred for 2 minutes gives you as good syrup as money can buy.

Then get from your druggist 2½ ounces Pinex (50 cents worth), pour into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with sugar syrup. This gives you, at a cost of only 54 cents, 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50—a clear saving of nearly $2. Full directions with Pinex. It keeps perfectly and tastes good.

It takes hold of the usual cough or chest cold at once and conquers it in 24 hours. Splendid for whooping cough, bronchitis and winter coughs.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals and soothes the inflamed membranes in the case of a painful cough. It also stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with guaiacol, and has been used for generations to heal inflamed membranes of the throat and chest.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

DINING IN LIBERIA.

Dumboy, Their National Dish, Is a Gastronomic Wonder.

TO CHEW IT MEANS LOCKJAW.

The Sticky, Cement-like Mess Has to Be Bolted in Lumps, Washed Down With Soup—When Allowed to Stand and Harden It Is Used For Bullets.

Dumboy, the national dish of Liberia, is one of the world's gastronomic wonders. If allowed to stand long after being prepared for the table it becomes very hard, broken pieces of it being a favorite kind of shot for use in the long muzzle loading guns of the natives. A casing of dumboy is also used to stiffen the leather sheaths of the native swords and knives, according to G. N. Collins in a communication to the National Geographic society at Washington.

"To attempt the description of some novel food is like attempting to describe a landscape," writes Mr. Collins.

"The constituent parts may be described and the manner in which they are combined, but it requires something more than accurate description to reproduce the sensation of the original. The principal ingredient of dumboy is cassava, or 'cassada,' as it is called in Liberia. The edible roots of this plant are the source of tapioca and some forms of sago.

"To prepare the roots for dumboy they are peeled, boiled and all fibers from the center removed. The cooked roots are then placed in a large wooden mortar and beaten with a heavy pestle. This beating requires considerable skill and experience. In the hands of a novice the result is lumpy and inedible.

"The beating requires about three-quarters of an hour and is hard work. As the beaten mass becomes homogeneous the pestle produces a loud crack each time it is drawn from the mortar. These sharp reports can be heard long distances through the forest and are very welcome sounds at the end of a day's journey.

"When the dumboy reaches this stage the operator may rest without injury to the product, but once the beating is carried past this point it must be rapidly completed and the dumboy eaten at once. The natives say it is actually dangerous to eat dumboy that has stood for more than a few minutes after it is beaten.

"As soon as the beating is finished the dumboy is taken from the mortar and placed in the shallow wooden bowls. The native method is to place the entire quantity in one large bowl, from which all the partakers eat. If divided the customary portion for each person is a piece about the size of an ordinary loaf of bread.

"A soup which has been prepared while the dumboy was being beaten is now poured into each bowl. There is great variety in the soup, which imparts most of the taste to the dish. There is always a stock of some form of meat. This may be either chicken, deer, fish, monkey or even canned beef. To this are added as many vegetables as can be obtained.

"As soon as the soup is added the dumboy is ready to be eaten, and, while the ingredients are somewhat bizarre, the method of eating strikes the traveler as even more startling. The mass of dumboy, which can best be described as a sticky dough, will adhere instantly to anything dry, but is readily cut with a wooden spoon if the spoon is kept moist with soup.

"An incredibly large piece is cut off with the moistened spoon, taken up with a quantity of soup and swallowed whole. No one thinks of chewing it, and it is customary to caution the novice by tales of the frightful operation necessary to separate the jaws once the teeth are buried in the sticky mass.

"As might be expected, few Europeans like dumboy on first acquaintance, and with some the initial distaste prevents further experiments. If a second or third attempt is made, however, and the dish has been properly prepared, the habit is usually formed, and before long every night spent in the bush without a meal of dumboy is counted a privation. Among the white residents of Liberia fondness for the dish amounts almost to a cult. It is regarded as a sort of guaranty that one's tenderfoot days are over."

KIPLING'S WAR POEM.

Rudyard Kipling has contributed the following poem to The London Times:—

For all we have and are,
For all our children's fate,
Stand up and meet the war—
The Hun is at the gate.

Our world has passed away
In wanton overthrow;
There's nothing left to-day
But steel and fire and woe.

Though all we know depart,
The old commandments stand:
In courage keep your heart!
In strength lift up your hand!

Once more we hear the word
That sickened earth of old:
No law except the sword,
Unsheathed and uncontrolled.

Once more it knits mankind,
Once more the nations go
To meet and break and bind
A crazed and driven foe.

Comfort, content, delight,
The age's slow-bought gain,
They shriveled in a night.
Only ourselves remain

To face the naked days
In silent fortitude,
Through perils and dismays,
Renewed and re-renewed.

Though all we made depart,
The old commandments stand:
In patience keep your heart!
In strength lift up your hand!

No easy hopes or lies
Shall bring us to our goal—
But iron sacrifice
Of body, will and soul.

There's but one task for all,
For each one life to give;
Who stands if freedom fall?
Who dies if England live?

THE INDIAN TROOPS.

Britain's Hindu Forces May Now Be at Scene of War.

England is pouring into France from India 200,000 trained men, of which 75,000 are British troops, including some of the crack regiments of the army, and those remaining are the fighting native troops of the Indian army, 3t comrades on the firing line of France's Turcos and Spahis. Some of these may have come through Canada.

According to official figures the Indian army's strength in round numbers, is as follows: Infantry, 132,000; cavalry, 25,000; artillery 10,000; engineers, etc., 6,000; total, 163,000 men. Of this number 3,000 are English officers and non-commissioned officers; the rest are natives.

Thirty-nine regiments of cavalry, fifteen of them Lancer regiments, besides the bodyguard troops of the Governor-General and of the governors, and several independent troops, make up the mounted arm.

The main strength of the Indian army is in its infantry. Brahmans Rajputs, Jats, Sikhs, Punjabis, Dogras, Mahratttas and Ghurkas, of all castes and of several religions—Mohammedan, Hindu, Buddhists — are all warriors who will lay down their lives in eagerness for the British Raj, and the dark-skinned regiments of the Indian army form a fighting force hard to stop.

Among the most interesting as well as the most formidable fighting outfits in the Indian army are the Ghurkas. There are ten regiments of Ghurka Rifles. These little fighters who come from the region of Nepal and who trace their descent from the Rajputs, would rather fight than eat. In appearance the Ghurkas are deceiving. They are short, stocky little men, of somewhat the appearance of the Japanese, although a little heavier. And they wear perpetual grins on their faces. The grin does not come off when they go into a fight.

The Ghurkas were conquered by the British in 1814 after years of fighting, and have become loyal subjects of England. When the Ghurka regiments were first made part of the Indian army, they did not seem to take well to organized methods of warfare. It was not until the army authorities allowed them to make their national weapon, the kukri, part of their equipment, that they regained their fame as fighters. Their instructors never could make them use the bayonet. The kukri is a long, heavy curved knife.

THE ERA OF GLASS.

It May Come After Our Iron Ore Deposits Are Exhausted.

The iron ore deposits of the world are being rapidly exhausted, and the time is not far distant when we will have to get along without iron and steel. Before that day arrives some substitute for these valuable things will have to be found, and it has been suggested by a scientist familiar with the subject that the logical successor will be glass.

Glass can be made to meet nearly all the requirements of iron and steel and with improved methods of manufacture will be a great deal cheaper. There is an abundant supply of the materials from which glass is made, and long before iron reaches the obsolete stage it is more than likely that glass will be one of its strongest competitors.

The chief fault with glass is its brittleness, but it is possible even now to produce a grade of glass which can stand a great deal of hard usage and serve many of the purposes for which iron is employed. The progress of invention is bound to evolve a quality of glass which will be as strong and durable as iron and transparent as well.

The use of glass will effect a great improvement in sanitary conditions. The building of the future, according to this scientist, will have its walls, ceilings, floors, sanitary fixtures and almost everything else made of glass.—Exchange.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We Eat Too Much Meat Which Clogs Kidneys, Then the Back Hurts

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

"Aim For a Button!"

A London cable says: Many striking stories are told by wounded soldiers returning from France. "The blue gray uniforms of the Germans are hard to see at a distance," said a Yorkshire Light Infantryman, "and for concealing movements are more effective than our khaki. But it is surprising how quickly you learn to pick out such things as buttons, badges, armlets and even peaks of caps or spikes of helmets in the sun and tell by them of the moving men. You cannot see otherwise.

"Aim at a button a mile off, and you hit a German in the stomach is what we say and it is near enough to the truth.

"The Germans are such sticklers for rules that I have seen their artillery keep firing away at a position of ours after it has been occupied by their own men and at the hospital they find quite a number of Germans hit by their own fire."

Should Send Prisoners Here.

Lord Aylmer, former Inspector-General of Canadian forces, suggests that the Germans taken prisoners by the British army during the war should be sent to Canada and given tracts of land in sections where large areas await development, and be encouraged to settle as peaceful and productive citizens of the country.

New York's First Mayor.

The first mayor of New York, Thomas Willett, was inducted into office in June, 1665. Governor Richard Nicolls, the first English executive of the future Empire State, was responsible for the appointment of Willett, who was a wealthy merchant and trader and had a town house in New York and a country estate in Rhode Island, where his body was buried in 1674. Willett, who was a shrewd business man, governed New York honestly and well and after his first term of one year was made mayor again in 1667. The municipal government of which he was the head was composed of five aldermen, three Dutch and two English, and a sheriff, although police duties devolved largely upon the mayor, and he was police magistrate as well.

Probably the most remarkable drummer who ever lived was Jean Henri, the famous tambour major of the Emperor Napoleon. One of his feats was to play on fifteen different toned drums at the same time in so soft and harmonious a manner that instead of the deafening uproar that might have been expected the effect was that of a novel and complete instrument. In playing he passed from one drum to the other with such wonderful quickness that the eyes of the spectators could hardly follow the movement of his hands and body.

BELATED RECOGNITION.

Plaint of a Woman Who Was Shadowed by a Detective.

"Acquaintance with a detective is not the good thing some people may imagine," said a young woman who has never yet been accused of being an adventuress or anything else that is supposed to get one's name on the front pages of the newspapers.

"A few months ago I was robbed of a belt that I prized very highly because it was unique and cannot be duplicated. I spent considerable money and had the assistance of a headquarters detective, but without recovering the belt.

"That was all well enough, but the other day as I was walking down Broadway I saw Mr. Detective. He saw me, too, and remembered that he had seen me somewhere, but had evidently forgotten the circumstances. He 'shadowed' me for a block; then when I turned into a store he slipped into a doorway and waited for me to come out. Again he shadowed me till I turned into my doorway.

"At that point he seemed to suddenly remember that he had known me as a client, not as a victim, for as I looked back he seemed to have a sheepish look in his face as he turned and walked rapidly away."

Nervous Prostration and Heart Troubles

Nervous Prostration, or Neurasthenia, is one of the worst forms of nerve trouble and brings about a general weakness of the whole nervous system.

The symptoms presenting themselves are headache, a feeling of depression, disturbed and restless, unfreshing sleep, often troubled with dreams, fright when in crowded places, dread of being alone, horror of society, fright of travelling, muscular weakness, sense of fatigue upon effort, etc.

All are curable if taken in time.

Milburns Heart and Nerve Pills are just what you require at this time. They strengthen the nerves and build up the whole system.

Mrs. John Hewson, Caledonia, Ont., writes: "I feel it my duty to let you know the great benefit your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills did for me. I suffered for four years with heart trouble and nervous prostration. I was so bad I could not go up stairs without sitting down at the top before I could go to my room. I could not sleep nor could I lie on my left side, for it would seem as if my heart would stop. I thought my time had come. I was doctoring with the doctor, but didn't get any benefit. I took eight boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and am enjoying good health."

How to Have the Best Cough Remedy and Save $5 by Making It at Home

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. Two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water, stirred for 2 minutes gives you as good syrup as money can buy.

Then get from your druggist 2½ ounces Pinex (50 cents worth), pour into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with sugar syrup. This gives you, at a cost of only 54 cents, 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $5.50—a clear saving of nearly $5. Full directions with Pinex. It keeps perfectly and tastes good.

It takes hold of the usual cough or chest cold at once and conquers it in 24 hours. Splendid for whooping cough, bronchitis and winter coughs.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals and soothes the inflamed membranes in the case of a painful cough. It also stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with guaiacol, and has been used for generations to heal inflamed membranes of the throat and chest.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

DINING IN LIBERIA.

Dumboy, Their National Dish, is a Gastronomic Wonder.

TO CHEW IT MEANS LOCKJAW.

The Sticky, Cement-like Mass Has to Be Bolted in Lumps, Washed Down With Soup—When Allowed to Stand and Harden It Is Used For Bullets.

Dumboy, the national dish of Liberia, is one of the world's gastronomic wonders. If allowed to stand long after being prepared for the table it becomes very hard, broken pieces of it being a favorite kind of shot for use in the long muzzle loading guns of the natives. A casing of dumboy is also used to stiffen the leather sheaths of the native swords and knives, according to G. N. Collins in a communication to the National Geographic society at Washington.

"To attempt the description of some novel food is like attempting to describe a landscape," writes Mr. Collins.

"The constituent parts may be described and the manner in which they are combined, but it requires something more than accurate description to reproduce the sensation of the original. The principal ingredient of dumboy is cassava, or 'cassada,' as it is called in Liberia. The edible roots of this plant are the source of tapioca and some forms of sago.

"To prepare the roots for dumboy they are peeled, boiled and all fibers from the center removed. The cooked roots are then placed in a large wooden mortar and beaten with a heavy pestle. This beating requires considerable skill and experience. In the hands of a novice the result is lumpy and inedible.

"The beating requires about three-quarters of an hour and is hard work. As the beaten mass becomes homogeneous the pestle produces a loud crack each time it is drawn from the mortar. These sharp reports can be heard long distances through the forest and are very welcome sounds at the end of a day's journey.

"When the dumboy reaches this stage the operator may rest without injury to the product, but once the beating is carried past this point it must be rapidly completed and the dumboy eaten at once. The natives say it is actually dangerous to eat dumboy that has stood for more than a few minutes after it is beaten.

"As soon as the beating is finished the dumboy is taken from the mortar and placed in the shallow wooden bowls. The native method is to place the entire quantity in one large bowl, from which all the partakers eat. If divided the customary portion for each person is a piece about the size of an ordinary loaf of bread.

"A soup which has been prepared while the dumboy was being beaten is now poured into each bowl. There is great variety in the soup, which imparts most of the taste to the dish. There is always a stock of some form of meat. This may be either chicken, deer, fish, monkey or even canned beef. To this are added as many vegetables as can be obtained.

"As soon as the soup is added the dumboy is ready to be eaten, and, while the ingredients are somewhat bizarre, the method of eating strikes the traveler as even more startling. The mass of dumboy, which can best be described as a sticky dough, will adhere instantly to anything dry, but is readily cut with a wooden spoon if the spoon is kept moist with soup.

"An incredibly large piece is cut off with the moistened spoon, taken up with a quantity of soup and swallowed whole. No one thinks of chewing it, and it is customary to caution the novice by tales of the frightful operation necessary to separate the jaws once the teeth are buried in the sticky mass.

"As might be expected, few Europeans like dumboy on first acquaintance, and with some the initial distaste prevents further experiments. If a second or third attempt is made, however, and the dish has been properly prepared, the habit is usually formed, and before long every night spent in the bush without a meal of dumboy is counted a privation. Among the white residents of Liberia fondness for the dish amounts almost to a cult. It is regarded as a sort of guaranty that one's tenderfoot days are over."

KIPLING'S WAR POEM.

Rudyard Kipling has contributed the following poem to The London Times:—

For all we have and are,
For all our children's fate,
Stand up and meet the war—
The Hun is at the gate.

Our world has passed away
In wanton overthrow;
There's nothing left to-day
But steel and fire and woe.

Though all we know depart,
The old commandments stand:
In courage keep your heart!
In strength lift up your hand!

Once more we hear the word
That sickened earth of old:
No law except the sword,
Unsheathed and uncontrolled.

Once more it knits mankind,
Once more the nations go
To meet and break and bind
A crazed and driven foe.

Comfort, content, delight,
The age's slow-bought gain,
They shriveled in a night.
Only ourselves remain

To face the naked days
In silent fortitude,
Through perils and dismays,
Renewed and re-renewed.

Though all we made depart,
The old commandments stand:
In patience keep your heart!
In strength lift up your hand!

No easy hopes or lies
Shall bring us to our goal—
But iron sacrifice
Of body, will and soul.

There's but one task for all,
For each one life to give;
Who stands if freedom fall?
Who dies if England live?

THE INDIAN TROOPS.

Britain's Hindu Forces May Now Be at Scene of War.

England is pouring into France from India 200,000 trained men, of which 75,000 are British troops, including some of the crack regiments of the army, and those remaining are the fighting native troops of the Indian army, fit comrades on the firing line of France's Turcos and Spahis. Some of these may have come through Canada.

According to official figures the Indian army's strength in round numbers, is as follows: Infantry, 122,000; cavalry, 25,000; artillery 10,000; engineers, etc., 6,000; total, 163,000 men. Of this number 3,000 are English officers and non-commissioned officers; the rest are natives.

Thirty-nine regiments of cavalry, fifteen of them Lancer regiments, besides the bodyguard troops of the Governor-General and of the governors, and several independent troops, make up the mounted arm.

The main strength of the Indian army is in its infantry. Brahmans Rajputs, Jats, Sikhs, Punjabis, Dogras, Mahratttas and Ghurkas, of all castes and of several religions—Mohammedan, Hindu, Buddhists — are all warriors who will lay down their lives in eagerness for the British Raj, and the dark-skinned regiments of the Indian army form a fighting force hard to stop.

Among the most interesting as well as the most formidable fighting outfits in the Indian army are the Ghurkas. There are ten regiments of Ghurka Rifles. These little fighters who come from the region of Nepal and who trace their descent from the Rajputs, would rather fight than eat. In appearance the Ghurkas are deceiving. They are short, stocky little men, of somewhat the appearance of the Japanese, although a little heavier. And they wear perpetual grins on their faces. BELATED RECOGNITION.

Plaint of a Woman Who Was Shadowed by a Detective.

"Acquaintance with a detective is not the good thing some people may imagine," said a young woman who has never yet been accused of being an adventuress or anything else that is supposed to get one's name on the front pages of the newspapers.

"A few months ago I was robbed of a belt that I prized very highly because it was unique and cannot be duplicated. I spent considerable money and had the assistance of a headquarters detective, but without recovering the belt.

"That was all well enough, but the other day as I was walking down Broadway I saw Mr. Detective. He saw me, too, and remembered that he had seen me somewhere, but had evidently forgotten the circumstances. He 'shadowed' me for a block; then when I turned into a store he slipped into a doorway and waited for me to come out. Again he shadowed me till I turned into my doorway.

"At that point he seemed to suddenly remember that he had known me as a client, not as a victim, for as I looked back he seemed to have a sheepish look in his face as he turned and walked rapidly away."

Nervous Prostration and Heart Troubles

Nervous Prostration, or Neurasthenia, is one of the worst forms of nerve trouble and brings about a general weakness of the whole nervous system.

The symptoms presenting themselves are headache, a feeling of depression, disturbed and restless, unfreshing sleep, often troubled with dreams, fright when in crowded places, dread of being alone, horror of society, fright of travelling, muscular weakness, sense of fatigue upon effort, etc.

All are curable if taken in time.

Milburns Heart and Nerve Pills are just what you require at this time. They strengthen the nerves and build up the whole system.

Mrs. John Hewson, Caledonia, Ont., writes: "I feel it my duty to let you know the great benefit your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills did for me. I suffered for four years with heart trouble and nervous prostration. I was so bad I could not go up stairs without sitting down at the top before I could go to my room. I could not sleep nor could I lie on my left side, for it would seem as if my heart would stop. I thought my time had come. I was doctoring with the doctor, but didn't get any benefit. I took eight boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and am enjoying good health."

To Put On Flesh And Increase Weight

A Physician's Advice

Most thin people eat from four to six pounds of good solid fat-making food every day and still do not increase in weight one ounce, while on the other hand many of the plump, healthy folks eat very lightly and keep gaining all the time. It's all bosh to say that this is the nature of the individual. It isn't Nature's way at all.

Thin folks stay thin because their powers of assimilation are defective. They just absorb enough of the food they eat to maintain life and a resemblance of health and strength. Stuffing won't help them. A dozen meals a day won't make them gain a single "stay there" pound. All the fat-producing elements of their food just stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste. What such people need is something that will prepare these fatty food elements so that their blood can absorb them and deposit them all about the body—supporting, too, that will multiply their red blood corpuscles and increase their blood's carrying power.

For such a condition I always recommend eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is not, as some believe, a patented drug, but is a scientific combination of six of the most effective and powerful flesh-building elements known to chemistry. It is absolutely harmless, yet wonderfully effective and a single tablet eaten with each meal often has the effect of increasing the weight of a thin man or woman from three to five pounds a week. Sargol is sold by good druggists everywhere on a positive guarantee of weight increase or money back.

CONSTABLE GETS A YEAR

Man Arrested at Bancroft Sentenced At Alberta.

Chief Rogers of the Ontario Provincial Police, has received word from Wainwright, Alberta, to the effect that William Bowers had been sentenced to one year in prison on a charge of fraud. Bowers was arrested at Bancroft, Ont., some time ago by Inspector of Provincial Detectives John Miller, where he was acting as the town constable.

The charge against Bowers was that he went west several years ago and purchased a number of horses from farmers. He gave notes against the horses as security, but subsequently sold them and left the country. He was traced to Ontario, and the Provincial Police found him at Bancroft.

To Keep Your Skin Free From Hairs

(Beauty Topics)

If you are willing to spend a few minutes' time in your room using a delatone paste, you can easily banish any ugly, hairy growth without discomfort or injury. The paste is made by mixing some water with a little powdered delatone. This is then spread over the hairy surface and after about 3 minutes rubbed off and the skin washed. You will not be disappointed with this treatment, providing you get real delatone.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

Any of the stirring materials would answer well for this design, the Scotch and English mixtures, serge, cheviot, gaberdine. The pattern number is 6975, and it is cut in sizes from 32 to 42 inches bust measure. This kind of skirt goes very well with a shirtwaist of matching material, like poplin or sponge or even crepe de Chine. The lighter fabrics for house dresses are better because houses are too well heated to permit of comfort in gowns of heavy texture.

The three-gored skirt is not exactly fashionable, but something very much like it is, a skirt with three fullness, but not all of the same depth or of the same material. The lowest fullness may be of velvet, the other two of satin, or they may form the under flounce with the shirt satin flounce over it. For dancing dresses the flounces may be stitched at intervals of about six inches apart and to a depth of six inches. This stitching produces a ruched effect, which is rather fashionable, especially when all the fullness are rippling at the same time. Finished with bias stitching, stitched-in shelves, sometimes deep, and bound with the same material, are very pretty.

Price, ten cents.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required and age of a child.

YORK COTTAGE, SANDRINGHAM, WHERE KING GEORGE STAYS

COUNTY LOCAL OPTION DESIRED BY TEMPERANCE WORKERS OF PETERBORO'

Strong Resolution to This Effect Passed at Annual Convention of County Temperance Association--Close Bars Near Soldiers' Training Camps--Separate Liquor Business From Hotel Business.

THE MEETING WAS LARGELY ATTENDED

In its annual convention at the Y. M.C.A. on Tuesday afternoon, the County Temperance Association wheeled its forces into the new year with the confidence begotten by past success and with an impetus provided by a world-wide kindling of temperance sentiment. It was one of the most largely attended meetings in the history of the Association, and it found the members earnest, hopeful and ready to take advantage of the growing realization of the value of temperance in the development of human efficiency. The present scope of temperance legislation was carefully reviewed and several speakers who have had their ears to the ground intimated that they believed they had heard rumblings suggestive of the approach of helpful reinforcements. Auxiliary influences such as education through the media of the Public school, Sunday school and pulpit were recognized. It was felt, too, that the idea of pledges should be utilized more fully and in fact the Association is desirous of using every practical assistance available to promote the cause of temperance. The echo of the stormy passages in the provincial elections of May was heard in one single, quiet reference to the fact that some of the members departed from the temperance path when politics brought them to the forks in the road. Only one member mentioned the subject and he was content to remark that men had to be guided by their consciences, as he had been, and it was not to be expected that everyone should see eye to eye. The Association passed through an afternoon of serious work without a sign of cloud formation.

The Canada Temperance Act.

Mr. A. B. Cunningham in a discussion of the advantages and disadvantages of the Canada Temperance Act, stated that it removed the property qualification of voters. Under this Act all those in the Dominion election list were allowed to vote. This would permit the liquor interests to line up the loose element. While the disadvantage would not be so apparent in the country, it was only too evident under city conditions. This Act disqualified women voters who would be a serious loss to the temperance ranks. Under the local option law an inspector may make a seizure anywhere but under the Temperance Act a warrant is required, and it cannot be executed but in the daytime. This would result in a dry community in the day time and they could sell all they wanted to at night. Then, too, all offences might be regarded as first offences, thereby providing a loop-hole for loose enforcement of the law. The outstanding advantage is the straight majority.

Rev. Mr. Kettlewell of the Dominion Alliance, said that at its best the Canada Temperance Act threw a tremendous responsibility on the individual and required after a direct cost in time and money. He regarded county local option as the natural evolution from the municipal measure. With this law fourteen counties in Ontario could be obtained almost at once.

In Peterborough county there remains only one license outside the city: Burleigh is the sole surviving wet spot and it was felt that the Temperance Act might prove too great a sacrifice for a single license. County Local Option, it we believed, would gather it in.

Magistrates Fewer.

Dr. McTavish of Toronto(observed that the Canada Temperance Act gave the magistrate considerable power, and if he were determined to support the Act he could contribute largely to its success. There was no optional fine. With a magistrate like Geo. Clarke, of Orillia, it would be a success.

The Queen's Toronto

The Queen's Hotel, Toronto, is likely to be the most comfortable Hotel in the Dominion. It is fire proof, every room has hot and cold water, steam heat and long distance telephone in every room.

It is convenient to the shopping district and places of amusement.

The Queen's has always been the home of the Peterborough people when visiting Toronto.

Hotel Conklin meet all trains.

Rooms may be reserved by phoning or wires at our expense.

Rates from $2.00 per day upwards. American Plan.

CAMPBELL & MORRISON, Proprietors.

Dr. McTavish is retiring from active work in the Alliance to a church at Medoc, and is being succeeded by Rev. Mr. Kittleworth. Hence his presence yesterday was virtually a farewell. In his address on Law Enforcement he laid stress on the formation of a local committee for this purpose in each locality. The individual would be looked upon as a busy-body and would bring odium upon himself. He urged the necessity of attention to the voters' list every year, the securing of good men for Councils and Parliaments and the enlisting of the aid of schools for the development of temperance sentiment.

To Mr. A. E. Kennedy of Lakefield it was explained that a municipal by-law should be passed giving the police authority to proceed with the enforcement of the local option law. In this way he is protected against possible personal loss in the event of losing a prosecution.

Mr. Shook's Idea.

Complimentary references were made to the Oriental Hotel, Rev. Mr. Kittlewell pointing to its uniqueness in the fact that it is a temperance hotel in competition with licensed hotels. There are a number of temperance hotels in local option districts, but the Oriental stands out particularly.

Mr. J. C. Shook in replying, presented an idea that drew a ready response. Sane, constructive ideas presented by the temperance people would probably receive greater attention from the government. Mr. Shook asked that more attention be given to this plan of securing legislative aid. Why should the licensed bar be annexed to a house for the accommodation any more than to stores where the public purchase, the grocery store for instance. When you approach business men during a local option campaign, many ask you what provision is to be made for the accommodation of the travelling public. Providing this accommodation is a distinct business apart from the bar trade, it is a decent business, and demands protection. Mr. Shook conveyed the idea that when a man fills certain requirements in the number of rooms for the travelling public, etc., he secures a license, not for the protection of this business, but for an annexed business of selling liquor. People have come to regard the bar as inseparable from a hotel. If any part of the business requires protection it is the decent side. Separate the bar, place it on its own feet, presenting it as it really is, a saloon. License the saloon, also license the hotel. Mr. Shook suggested requesting legislation in that direction. He believed the temperance aim would be met, for left to itself the saloon would languish, and the other result would be the placing of the hotel business on a basis desirable to all concerned.

The following resolution was then passed:

Moved by Rev. R. G. Peever, seconded by Mr. Galbraith, that this convention express its gratification that there is a first class hotel in Peterborough conducted without a bar attached. The convention is gratified to learn that the venture has met with a reasonable measure of success and expresses the hope that even greater success may crown the undertaking. We commend the hotel to the travelling public and trust that temperance men especially will give this high-class hotel a preference when seeking accommodation.

Vote of Thanks.

A vote of thanks, moved by Mr. Jos. Wearing, seconded by Mr. Samuel Armstrong, was extended to Rev. Dr. McTavish for the help he had given the temperance workers of Peterborough. Coupled with it was an expression of regret upon the severance of his activities with the Dominion Alliance.

Future Action.

In dealing with possible steps to further temperance sentiment, Rev. Mr. Peever mentioned a number of practical suggestions. He added that practically no protest was made to the drunkenness permitted, and as frequently exhibited on the streets.

Rev. Mr. Pogue continued that he value of Sunday school teachers in their quarterly lessons dealing earnestly with the subject. He inquired as to the extent to which temperance was taught in the schools.

Mr. Richard Lees replied that it was included under hygiene, but was not taught as freely as in former years. It was not on the list for examination, and teachers did not give it the same attention as to other subjects.

Rev. Mr. Pogue continue that he believed too much attention had been given to legislation in the past and not enough education.

Dr. McTavish mentioned the Young People's Societies of the church, stating that they had replaced old societies that had been devoted to temperance, and they should regularly deal with temperance subjects as part of their responsibility.

Mr. Lees remarked that a considerable part of the advance temperance sentiment of to-day had been engendered in the Public school hygiene lessons of twenty-five years ago.

He advocated the idea of temperance pledges in the Sunday school and personally vouched for the gratifying results that followed.

Officers For 1915.

Hon. President—Andrew Fairbairn, Lakefield.

President—H. B. Cowan, Peterborough.

Secretary—Rich. Lees.

Treasurer— A. E. Kennedy, Lakefield.

Vice-Presidents—Samuel Armstrong, Indian River, G. A. Brethen, Norwood, Samuel Carver, Peterborough.

Township chairmen — Lakefield, Percy Spence; Havelock, A. C. Denike; Norwood, Wm. Cuthbertson; Asphodel, John Harrison, Westwood; Belmont, E. C. Pace, Cordova Mines; Burleigh, Wm. Hales, Apsley; Chandos, John Bullied, Lasswale; Douro, David Darling, Lakefield; Dummer, E. Hawthorne, Warsaw; Harvey, Alex. A. Thompson, Lakehurst; N. Monaghan, K. Denoon; Smith, T. T. Millburn; Otonabee, David Armstrong, Keene; Ennismore, W. Telford, Bridgenorth.

Resolutions Passed.

The following resolutions were passed.

Moved by R. J. McLaren, seconded by A. E. Kennedy, that whereas in the County of Peterborough and in several other counties the great majority of the municipalities have placed themselves under local prohibition, but the beneficial results are limited by the proximity of a few municipalities in which licenses are still issued, and whereas the electors of the province have been led to expect advanced temperance legislation.

This convention suggests the enactment of an amendment to the present local option provisions so that counties, as such, may prohibit the retail sale of liquor by local veto.

Moved by Wm. Collins, seconded by Andrew Kent, that, whereas the British and continental nations, in the present crisis, have placed severe restrictions upon the liquor traffic, and whereas public sentiment in Canada would approve of further restrictions for the economizing of our resources, and the protection of our citizen soldiers; this convention urges upon the government that the hours of sale in shops and bars be limited to 1 p.m. on Saturdays and 7 p.m. on the other days of the week. Also, that the sale of liquors be entirely prohibited in the proximity of training camps.

Favour Referendum.

A resolution was passed on motion of Rev. Mr. Pogue and Mr. Galbraith, supporting the idea of the initiative and referendum, and requesting that an opportunity be given the voters of Ontario to vote on a referendum for the abolition of the liquor traffic.

A resolution was also passed on motion of Mr. Armstrong and Mr. Cowan, supporting Mr. Shook's idea that the Legislature be requested to separate the liquor business from hotels, and that the latter be given adequate protection under licenses.

CLEANSES YOUR HAIR MAKES IT BEAUTIFUL

It Becomes thick, wavy, lustrous and all dandruff disappears

Surely try a "Danderine Hair Cleanse" if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair. Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and luxuriance.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; invigorates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.

Curvature of the Earth.

The earth's curvature is very nearly eight inches for the first mile, thirty-two for the second, seventy-two for the third, 128 for the fourth, and so on. Law: Curvature of the earth's surface as a true plane at sea level is close to the product of eight inches multiplied by the square of the number representing miles. Thus 128 equals eight multiplied by four squared, equals eight multiplied by sixteen. —New York Journal.

Feeding Adults 225,000 And 31,000 Babies Daily In Brussels

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25. — A narrative of widespread destruction and the pitiful conditions under which the people are living was told here by Mr. Edward B. Robinette, who has just returned from a six weeks' tour of investigating in Belgium. Mr. Robinette represented the Allied Relief Associations of Pennsylvania, and his report was said to be the first received from the representative of any State contributing relief supplies to Belgium.

"I travelled in an automobile," said Mr. Robinette, "to Antwerp, Brussels, Liege, Vise, Mechlin, Louvain and many other cities and towns. I was in Louvain three times. There the beautiful Hotel de Ville stands like a sentinel amid the havoc lying at its feet. As far as the eye will reach there is nothing to be seen but charred and broken walls. But the destruction of Louvain, great as it is, is not nearly so great as the destruction I saw in Dinant, Vise and Tamines. In Vise, a town of about 6,000 persons, only one family has returned and is living in the ruins. I could not find there a single house that had not been damaged.

"Out of the way places in the country presented even more frightful conditions than the larger cities. Indeed, most of the suffering I saw was not in the cities like Antwerp or Brussels, but in the small towns.

Mr. Robinette said the only force he saw in Belgium was that being sent in by the commission for relief in Belgium, and that it is imperative that the work of the commission be continued until the next harvest.

"The percentage of absolutely destitute in Belgium is increasing," he said. "In some districts it is from thirty to forty per cent., but in the manufacturing districts it is much higher. In Brussels, for instance, with a population of 650,000, they are feeding each day an average of 225,000 adults and about 31,000 babies. In Namur, out of a population of 34,000, more than 20,000 are absolutely destitute."

PRESIDENT WILSON'S VOICE IS HEARD

over the pole of its magnet, was generating that marvellous conception of Bell's—a current of electricity that varied in intensity precisely as the air was varying in density within hearing distance of that spring. Fortunately the right man had that mechanism at his ear during that fleeting moment, and instantly recognized the transcendent importance of that faint sound thus electrically transmitted. The shout I heard and his excited rush into my room were the result of that recognition. The speaking telephone was born at that moment. Bell knew perfectly well that the mechanism that could transmit all the complex vibrations of I sound could do the same for any sound even that of speech. We spent a few hours verifying the discovery, repeating it with all the differently tuned springs we had, and before we parted that night Bell gave me directions for making the first electric-speaking telephone. I was to mount a small drum-head of gold beater's skin over one of the receivers, join the centre of the drumhead to the free end of the receiver spring and arrange a mouth-piece over the drum-head to talk into. I followed these directions and had the instrument ready for its trial the very next day. I rushed it, for Bell's excitement and enthusiasm over the discovery had aroused mine again, which had been sadly dampened during these last few weeks by the meagre results of the harmonic experiments. I made every part of that first telephone myself, but I didn't realise while I was working on it what a tremendously important piece of work I was doing.

The First Telephone Line.

"The two rooms in the attic were too near together for the test, as our voices would be heard through the air, so I ran a wire especially for the trial from one of the rooms in the attic down two flights to the third floor where Williams' main shop was, ending it near my work bench at the back of the building. That was the first telephone line. I got more satisfaction from the experiment than Mr. Bell did, for about my best I could not make him hear me, but I could hear his voice and almost catch the words. I rushed upstairs and told him what I had heard. It was enough to show him that he was on to right track, and before he left that night he gave me directions for several improvements in the telephones I was to have ready for the next trial.

It was in August, 1876, that the Dominion Telegraph Company loaned their wires to Bell for the experiments at Brantford which resulted in the first long-distance transmission of speech by wire. The transmitting intrument was in Paris, Ontario, the receiving instrument in Brantford, 8 miles away, and the battery on the circuit in Toronto, sixty miles distant.

"The first reciprocal communication ocurred after my return to Boston, in October, 1876. On October 9th occurred the first conversation by telephone between persons separated by miles of space. This was from Combridgeport to Boston a distance of 2 1-2 miles, Mr. Watson being at Cambridgeport, and I, at the Boston end of the wire.

PRESENTATION TO REV. MR. GOODWILL

People of Villiers Appreciate the Good Work He is Doing

VILLIERS, Jan. 26—A very pleasing event took place at the close of the evening service at Villiers School House on Sunday evening last, when the Rev. Mr. Goodwill was presented by his congregation with an address and a handsome pair of chairs. Although completely taken by surprise, Rev. Mr. Goodwill made a touching reply, thanking the people for their kindness towards him, and for the kindly feeling of sympathy that prevails in our meetings.

The following address was read:

Dear Mr. Goodwill, — This opportunity of evidencing our lasting esteem and friendship towards you comes not only as a pleasure, but as a privilege. We are sincerely glad to leave with you this trifling memorial of our deep and abiding gratitude for your increasing efforts to benefit us. In the holding of Sunday evening services here, we feel that we are recipients of a special favour and kindness from you; and we fully realise and appreciate the fact that these meetings have not been arranged without considerable sacrifice and extra trouble on your part. When in future days you look upon this memento let it be a pleasant token of our respect and thankfulness.

Signed on behalf of Villiers people —Jas. Graham, J. N. Wainer, Jas. Edwards.

GERMAN LOSSES ARE FRIGHTFUL
TWO ATTACKS REPULSED BY THE BRITISH

GERMANS LOSE HEAVILY IN VAIN ATTACK UPON BRITISH

Simultaneous Advances on Givenchy and Cuinchy Are Smashed, the First by a Bayonet Charge and the Second by the Effective Work of the British Artillery

FOE REPULSED AGAIN EAST OF YPRES

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

PARIS, January 26.—Frightful German losses in an attack on the strong British positions west of Labassee, and in the regions from the Lys to the Oise, were reported in the official communique to-day.

These brought indications that the Germans are trying to resume the offensive from the seacoast south to Arras.

The British held strong positions at Givenchy and Cuinchy, commanding two roads leading eastward to Labassee. Large bodies of German infantrymen advanced along these roads for nearly a mile from Labassee. Then spreading in loose formation they charged over the soggy fields to surround the two towns. The attacks were simultaneous. Near Givenchy a force of Germans reached the wire entanglements protecting the British trenches and succeeded in tearing away a gap with their grapplers. The cold steel of the British bayonet charge caused their front ranks to recoil from the attack. The British followed up this advantage with a counter-attack that drove the Germans back upon Labassee. The British artillery fire raked the lines of the Germans advancing upon Cuinchy and they retired with heavy losses, leaving many dead upon the field.

The left wing of the Germans took one trench near Givenchy, official advices reported, after five separate charges, but was forced to evacuate when the main body fell back.

A violent infantry attack by daylight east of Ypres, was repulsed by the British, three hundred German dead being picked up from the battlefield. West of Craonne, the Germans made two desperate charges, capturing a row of trenches. The official despatches say the French afterwards retook the lost ground.

South of Nieuport, an advance by the Belgians near Pervyse forced the Germans to withdraw from the gun positions previously held and stopped the shelling of Furnes.

The German gunners found the range of that town on Sunday and had done considerable damage by dropping shells from a great distance. The fierce fighting in Alsace continues. The Germans are bombarding Thann, Lembach and Seamheim.

TORONTO, January 26.—It is believed here on the basis of recent cables indicating the whereabouts of the Princess Patricia's Light Infantry, that these Canadians took part in a spirited engagement mentioned in the official French communique this morning, in the neighbourhood of Labassee. Close calculation shows that the relief schedule thought to be followed would bring the Canadian regiment into the trenches yesterday and to-day when fighting took place. The French statement indicates the Indian troops covered themselves with glory and at the end of the engagement had gained ground over the enemy, who left three hundred dead on the field at one point.

Berlin statements, while stating that German troops gained one trench from the British, neglect to tell the full story, which was that this trench and several German trenches were in the hands of British-Canadians before the fight was over.

LONDON, ONT., January 26.—While still prostrated over the death of her husband, killed in the recent fighting in France, Mrs. R. H. French was notified to-day that her son Harry had been killed in action. R. H. French was a South African and Egyptian veteran. Word also came yesterday that her nephew, Pte. Hayles, had part of his face shot away while he was dressing wounds for a comrade on the battlefield.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—Cables to-day indicate that Germany has lost another of her trade routes, which probably accounts for the German Government taking such stringent measures to control the food supply of Germany, so far as can be internally produced. Steamship traffic between Trelleborg, Sweden, and Sassnitz, Germany, has been declared at an end, owing to the presence in those waters of submarines and many mines. All the sailings of German and Swedish vessels over that route have been cancelled.

Colonel V. A. S. Williams—Who was reported to be suffering from cerebro-spinal meningitis at Salisbury. A subsequent cable contradicted this statement and states there are good prospects of his recovery. He was camp commandant at Valcartier.

NO WORD YET OF DEPARTURE OF THE TROOPS

Members of Mounted Rifles and Infantry Company Are Being Licked Into Shape at Local Armouries

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

Although the mobilization of the third contingent has begun in Western Ontario, 260 men arriving in Guelph yesterday, no word has been received by the local units as to the time of their departure for the mobilization centres at Ottawa an Belleville. In the meantime the recruits of the Mounted Rifles and the 57th's detachment are being rapidly licked into shape, so that when marching orders come they will be able to give a good account of themselves and will be a credit to their regiments and to the City. Both units are still taking on recruits, although the Mounted Rifles are fast approaching their complement. Had the rural sections of the district responded as was expected the squadron would have been completed before this, but as a matter of fact the greater part of the squadron consists of Peterborough men.

The second stage of innoculation for typhoid is practically completed now, and the next little break in the monotony will be vaccination.

Major Smart, who will be second in command of the 39th Infantry Battalion, was here on a visit of inspection yesterday, viewed the men of the 57th detachment and conferred with the officers. To-day Major McLaughlin, who will also be attached to the 39th Battalion, is here to-day.

The 57th men received musketry instruction this morning.

The men of both units are evincing a keen interest in their work and are making good progress.

The Reid Sale A Real Sale

The Reid Co. have made their Ten Days' Sale a real sale, in every sense of the word. So buoyant have been the features of this sale that there has not been a single disappointing day, or a single disappointing purchase, so far as is known. The interest still keeps up, and with the interest, fresh attractions are announced. The responses have been so spontaneous that two more days are to be added to the time limit of this sale, so it will close it on Saturday evening, instead of Thursday. This additional advantage the ladies will be glad to appreciate.

George Street Church Trustee and Quarterly Boards Decide to Proceed at Once With Campaign to Raise Funds for Building

TO COST $30,000

At a very largely attended joint meeting of the Trustee Board and Quarterly Official Board of the George Street Church, held in the church last night, definite steps were taken towards the building of a new Sunday School, which will cost (it is thought) in the neighbourhood of $30,000 or $40,000. At present the general opinion of the two boards seems to favour as a site for the new building, which, when erected, will be thoroughly modern and commodious, the lots immediately to the north of the church, now occupied by the sheds and driveway. But while this site will probably be the ultimate choice, no location has yet been definitely fixed upon.

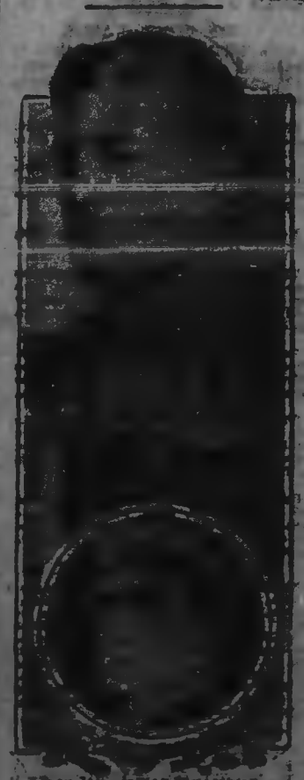
Moved by Mr. S. E. Armstrong, and seconded by Mr. J. J. Hartley, at the joint meeting last night, a motion to inaugurate a campaign to raise funds for the new Sunday School was passed unanimously. A strong committee was appointed to look into the nature of the campaign for establishing and raising the fund. This committee meets to-night, and it is expected that within the course of a very few days the effort will be well under way. As yet no definite time limit has been fixed for the duration of the campaign, but as soon as the required amount is obtained it is understood that the new building will be proceeded with.

Accounts Were Passed by the Commissioners

At a Meeting a Number of Accounts Were Ordered to Be Paid

At a meeting of the Peterborough Utilities Commission, held on Saturday afternoon last, it was resolved that the following accounts be paid:

Dominion Express Co.	$ 1.45
Burrough's Adding Machine Co.	1.47
H. O. Fisk	5.30
F. S. Schneider & Co.	13.50
H. Fraser, Dominion Government Inspector	48.00
	$69.60



Sir David Beatty and Admiral Tyrwhitt—Who commanded the British flotilla which found the Germans in the North Sea. Beatty is the hero of the war to date in England. Both were in the Heligoland fight.

THE ARBITRATION PROCEEDINGS WERE COMMENCED THIS MORNING

SCENE OF NORTH SEA VICTORY.—The German squadron that narrowly escaped annihilation last Sunday, when the armoured cruiser Blucher was sent to the bottom, was a little more than a hundred miles from the English coast, north of Grimsby, when it was met by a British squadron. The pursuit at once began and probably lasted for two hours before firing commenced. After a running fight for over three hours the Blucher was sunk.

DR. KINDRED ELECTED WARDEN OF THE COUNTY WITHOUT OPPOSITION

At the Opening Session of the County Council at the Court House This Afternoon—The Members of the Council for 1915.

Dr. Kindred, Reeve of Havelock, was this afternoon elected Warden of the County at the opening of the first session of the Council for 1915. He was accorded the honour of being the unanimous choice of the County Council, no opposition being offered when he was nominated by ex-Warden Robert Shaw, seconded by C. J. Darling, Reeve of Dummer.

After he had taken the oath of office, administered by Mr. E. A. Peck, the Council's guardian angel, Warden Kindred returned to the chamber wearing a black gown indicative of the position to which he had been raised.

"I am very grateful for the high honour you have conferred upon me in this appointment," the Warden stated in his inaugural address. "I thank Mr. Shaw for the nomination and also Mr. Darling, who dropped out of the contest and gave me his support. This position was not sought by me until this year. In 1914 I had concluded to retire from the Council, but members suggested that I come back this year to stand for the wardenship. On that ground I was a candidate for Reeve again this year, and was elected. I want to say that I am not so well versed in the details of the Council's workings as some of my predecessors, and I will look to the older members to put me right if it should be necessary. I realize that this year is likely to be a very important one. A great war is raging, and last session the Council set apart $400 a month to go alternately to the Patriotic Fund, Red Cross Society and Belgian Relief Fund. You will have to decide whether you will continue to donate this sum. I trust that at least a portion of it will be granted."

Personnel of Council.

All the members of the Council were present as follows:

M. Brown, Asphodel; W. E. Griffith, Belmont and Methuen; N. Lean, Burleigh and Anstruther; Fred Ballied, Chandos; C. J. Darling, Dummer; M. Walsh, Douro; W. H. Crough, Ealamere; C. Boben, Galway and Cavendish; R. Shaw, Harvey; John McIntosh and Herb. Foster of North Monaghan; W. A. Anderson and E. Deyell, of Otonabee; F. McKee and J. A. Jobe, of Smith; B. Squire, Norwood; Dr. Kindred, Havelock; H. G. Fitzgerald, Lakefield.

Auditors Appointed.

W. H. Casement was re-appointed auditor, on motion of Mr. Coben, seconded by Mr. Anderson. James Calder was appointed auditor, on motion of Mr. Squire and Mr. Brown. To the latter motion Mr. Griffith and Mr. Shaw offered an amendment for the appointment of Mr. A. Leason as auditor. The amendment was defeated.

Mr. C. E. Packenham was appointed School Trustee.

Letters of acknowledgment and thanks were received from the Red Cross Society and the Belgian Relief Fund upon receipt of cheques for $400.

The Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, made a special appeal for aid this year. It was stated that an unusually severe year confronted the hospital, many deserving being made upon the accommodation.

Thos. Black applied for the position of caretaker of the Chemong Bridge. Referred to the Committee on Appointments.

An appeal for a grant was received from the Salvation Army.

CANADIAN FIRMS TO MAKE SHRAPNEL TO FILL LARGE ORDER

Will Manufacture 250,000 Shells Per Month Until Total Number of 1,000,000 Called For Has Been Filled

OTTAWA, Jan. 26.—It is expected that more than a hundred Canadian firms will eventually be working on an order from the Imperial Government for 250,000 shrapnel shells per month until the total number of 1,000,000 called for has been filled. Already, it is stated, fifty different manufacturers in Canada are employed in this new business, each taking some portion of the work to be done. Nearly all of the Canadian steel companies have put in the plant necessary for the business of shell-making, but the dirigo engineering concerns, other than the steel companies. All the materials used are products of Canadian firms. How much material this order will take was to be judged from the fact that four thousand tons of lead bullion will be used to complete it. British Columbia lead will be used for a portion of it.

ADAPTING THEIR FACTORIES.

Representatives of manufacturing firms from various parts of the Dominion have been at the capital seeking information concerning the new industry and expressing their willingness to place the facilities in their plants necessary for the work. By so doing very considerable employment can be given. It is stated that there is work enough for every firm in Canada which is in a position to manufacture one or more of the parts required. Some of the orders are for steel for French manufacturers. There is an indication that Russian orders also will be placed in the Dominion for this sort of war material, and if so, an important new industry will be established in Canada to tide manufacturers over the war.

It is expected that the shrapnel shell output of Canadian firms will shortly total 100,000 per day, and this will be increased.

In the Matter of the Arbitration Between the City and the Peterborough Light and Power Company

THE OPENING SESSION

The opening chapter in the arbitration between the City and the Peterborough Light and Power Company was written to-day, when at the first session of the Arbitration Board steps were taken to determine the value of the distribution system formerly owned by the Peterborough Light and Power Company, and required by the city on October 31st last. Possession was obtained upon payment into court by the City of one hundred thousand dollars, pending the outcome of the arbitration. Should the Board fix the value of the system at less than one hundred thousand dollars, the difference will revert to the City. The Arbitration Board is composed of His Honour Judge Hoyles (chairman), K.C., of Toronto, Mr. Lafleur, K.C., of Montreal for the City, and Mr. Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., of Toronto, for the Company. The latter was unable to be present for the opening session, but with the consent of the counsel, the arbitration was proceeded with. Mr. Nesbitt is expected here this evening.

The Appearances.

The legal battery is made up of [illegible] K. Cowan, K.C., of Toronto, Solicitor C. H. [illegible], Mr. J. N. Miller, A. E. Cuttle, of the Company. Mr. [illegible] Toronto was also present on behalf of the bondholders. The Ontario Railway and Municipal Board Commission of Ontario was represented by Mr. H. T. Jeffrey, engineer for the Commission. Mr. Jeffrey is well known to the citizens of Peterborough, having supervised the construction of the present city lighting system which was installed on the business streets of the City.

Mr. H. O. Fisk, Manager of the Peterborough Public Utilities Commission, City Clerk J. R. Armstrong, and former City Solicitor E. [illegible] Hall were also present.

The legal experts are surrounded behind bales of record and other documentary evidence furnished by both sides. The Board has decided that before another takes seat he or she proceed to accommodate the inches of legal fodder that was produced.

The morning was taken up in the examination of Mr. E. A. Fitz, who until last October, was [illegible] of the Peterborough Light and Power Company. He is [illegible] by the Quaker, Grant Cameron. Before commencing the examination Mr. Tilley pointed out that the City had been making use of [illegible] the system that will [illegible] of the City, and from which [illegible] revenue was desired. He asked whether the one hundred thousand dollars that had been paid into Court was intended to represent the property outside of the City as well as in the City.

Mr. Cowan pointed out that the City had no powers outside of the City.

The City is using it and getting a revenue from it," observed Mr. Tilley.

A number of exhibits were put in, including an inventory of the Company's property and also supplementary lists.

Percentage Added.

Examined for Counsel for the Company, Mr. E. A. Fitz, former superintendent, said that he had taken a detailed inventory of the Company's distributing system. [illegible] the system [illegible] to the [illegible] summaries we added a percentage, the amount of which varied, from one per cent. was added in some [illegible] per cent that a path was [illegible] to [illegible] construction in the [illegible] therefore a "minimum" [illegible] was justified.

A list of maps [illegible] produced, showing the different [illegible] throughout the City. [illegible] of the maps was to show the [illegible] wise in the different [illegible].

Mr. M. K. Cowan [illegible] in the witness box in order to [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] ran over the [illegible].

Mr. Fitz asked Mr. Tilley if he would be allowed to make [illegible] memorandum.

"I certainly [illegible] until you are [illegible] [illegible] I read it [illegible]

SHORT COMMONS.

A despatch from Berlin, assuming that it is correct, conveys very important information. The German government has seized all stocks of wheat "in order to safeguard the bread supply till the next harvest." We have heard a good deal of assertion by Germany that her food supplies were entirely adequate. When the government virtually tells the people that a stricter measure of economy than the people are willing to practice, is necessary to stave off starvation, the food situation is becoming desperate. Of course the people will submit—they have to submit—to being practically robbed of their own wheat, and being placed on allowance—short rations or long, as the government may dictate. This policy of necessary restriction of the liberties of the people is only a variation of the doctrine of force which the military party has applied to the people in other ways; enforced military service and enforced levies to sustain an oppressive military oligarchy. The government has been feeding the people on lies without stint; so compensation is made by feeding them on short rations of food. We don't know how Germany feels over the situation in which the war party has forced it; but we know that if the British and the allies got the regular doses of smashing blows that has been administered to Germany and Austria; had been reduced to the same straits for food and money and ammunition, we should be discouraged and despondent. But we are not discouraged; we are making steady progress—slow but sure. We are paving the way for a rush in good time that will compensate for the slow progress we have been making in the past.

CANADIANS PHYSICALLY FIT.

Sir William Osler, has no need to urge the Canadian military authorities to send only fit soldiers to war. We have been under the impression that our military examining physicians were rather overdoing the application of health tests to our recruits. We know, anyway, that so far as can be provided, we are sending only the physical flower of our young manhood to the war line, and that is not the least of the sacrifices Canada is willingly making in the interests of the good of the Empire. It is evident, however, that it is only worth while to send the most physically sound. The conditions to be met are so exacting, the hardships so real and intense, that any but the most robust must collapse under the strain of military service. Our Canadian troops at Salisbury are on the whole comparatively free from serious ill health, and that they have so successfully endured the ghastly weather and other conditions, speaks highly for the general constitutional stamina of the force. We cannot, however, put the blame for sporadic cases of illness entirely upon the English weather.. According to Sir William Osler, the cerebro-spinal meningitis that has been responsible for the chief fatalities, was taken with the forces from Canada. He says that there were several cases at Valcartier; and that considering the easily communicable nature of the disease, whose germs can be carried and thus transmitted by persons not affected with it, it was not unnatural that under conditions favourable for development, there should be spinal meningitis at Salisbury. Sir William Osler visited the camp and says that the majority of the Canadians there are "generally in excellent health, and in hardy, splendid condition." While it is desirable that the most scrutinizing medical examinations should be made, there is a chance for the exercise of good judgment. The practice of rejecting applicants for minor physical defects, in cases where there is constitutional soundness, verges on the martinet, and the effect is to discourage recruiting. No doubt many are deterred from offering for enlistment, through fear of being branded as weaklings and incompetents, through the strict judgment of a medical officer who rejects for physical trifles. We want to encourage recruiting, for there is at present no way of knowing to what extent our resources in men are to be drawn upon.

ONE DUTY DONE; ANOTHER UNDONE.

The criticisms of the United States attitude of doubtful neutrality in the present war, have not come from British and allied sources, but from German directions, and to such a degree that, largely with the idea of conciliating the German vote, Secretary Bryan has issued an elaborate defence of the position of the United States, in response to German protests. Reduced to a few words, that position is that the United States has been strictly impartial in its dealings with the belligerent nations of both sides, and this is done with a completeness that the German protest against United States showing favour to the allies is effectively confounded. ed.

The real cause of protest against the United States is not its disregard of neutrality. The trouble is that it is too academically and actually neutral. We do not expect the United States to take arms in aid of the allies: but certainly it owes it to itself and the world that Germany should not do all the protesting. The United States should long before this have lodged a protest against German methods. It has seen that country outrage the neutrality of Belgium, which it was equally bound, with Britain, by its sign manual, to protect, and it has not only permitted this, without armed protest, such as Britain is expensively and heroically applying, but without even verbal protest. The United States has complacently looked on while Germany has done violence to all the conventions of civilized warfare and civiliation; and yet no protest.

We do not want to see the United States, we do not expect the United States to, enter the arena of war; but we do expect, or should expect, that, as one of the most powerful representatives of Anglo Saxon civilization; one of the great living expressions of the benefits to humanity inherent in the spirit of Anglo-Saxon government, the United States should speak out in vigorous and indignant condemnation of the acts of a power that is antagonizing all, in the way of national and individual liberty, national greatness and popular well being, that the United States or any other free state holds dear. It is not worthy of that great country to keep silence, when outspokenness would doubtless have a modifying and assuaging effect upon the barbarous conduct of war heretofore and still pursued by Germany.

Such a course would be far more creditable than pin-pricking protests in respect of Britain's policy of seeing that materials of munitions of war shall not be shipped from the United States in a crooked way in order to reach Germany and help strengthen her in waging a war not alone against Great Britain and her allies but, against humanity and, in the final analysis, if Germany wins, against the liberties and welfare of the people of the United States themselves.

In the frank statement of Secretary Bryan made public yesterday, the doctrine is fairly laid down, that the United States has a right to ship munitions of war to belligerent countries; but it admits that it is the concern of another belligerent country to see that these munitions of war do not reach their destination. Herein lies Britain's justification of her energetic policy of preventing contraband of war reaching Germany. Britain will continue to exercise this right, freely and fairly as she has heretofore done, and as, by her overwhelming naval superiority she is equipped to do effectively.

WHEN A NAVY IS NOT A NAVY.

President Wilson is to be congratulated on his clear and outspoken exposition of the shipping situation. He shows that the blame for the fact that Great Britain and her Allies import contraband of war from the United Sates, while Germany and Austria can get none, is not to be laid at the door of the United States, but is the logical result of the fact that the German Navy does not attempt to perform the functions of a Navy. Thus he says:

> If any American citizens, partisans of Germany and Austria-Hungary, feel that this administration is acting in a way injurious to the cause of those countries, this feeling results from the fact that on the high seas the German and Austro-Hungarian naval power is thus far inferior to the British. It is the business of a belligerent operating on the high seas, not the duty of a neutral, to prevent contraband from reaching an enemy.

If the Germans had not made such strenuous efforts to get the United States to perform what their own country has been afraid to attempt, they would never have had the timidity and ineffectiveness of their navy so emphatically pilloried. As it is, they have simply got what they have been asking for. We may be quite sure that this clear and logical statement of the situation will not be published in Germany, because it would bring home too dramatically to the popular mind the fact that the German Navy is not a Navy, only an expensive collection of junk anchored in the Kiel Canal.—Montreal Herald and Telegraph.

The Duty of Parliament At the Coming Session

The duty of Parliament when it meets it meets early next month lies plainly before it. Canada is at war, and the representatives of the Canadian people should lay aside all party strife—as the members of the British Parliament have done—and become the nation's Advisory Council for the prosecution of the great task upon which Canada's very existence depends. There is need for money to equip and maintain the troops of the Dominion at home and in Europe. Parliament should be in a position to consider, free from party bias, the measures to be submitted by Mr. White for the financing of the war. There is need for the stirring up of patriotic feeling so that recruits may come more freely to the colours. The leaders of both parties, from their seats in the Chamber, and by addressing public meetings throughout the country, could do much toward rousing the ardor of young Canadians. That supreme duty of statesmanship will be left undone if the coming session becomes an occasion for reaping party advantage from the proceedings in the House.

Above all, there is need, when Parliament meets, for a very frank non-partisan discussion of the whole question of war supply contracts and the management of the Militia Department during the past few months. The Globe can say most sincerely that nothing has been done by Liberals since war began to hamper the work of General Hughes and his staff. Criticism, therefore has come almost entirely from Conservative papers and politicians. Liberal members and Liberal newspapers have been studiously reserved in their expressions of opinion. The demand for the removal of the Minister of Militia was launched entirely by Conservatives, as Sir Robert Borden well knows. When Parliament meets, however, it is inconceivable that Liberal members shall sit silent in face of the many well-authenticated cases coming before the public as to defective supplies for which extravagant prices have been paid. In Great Britain the chief journalistic critic of the Supply Department of the War Office is also the chief supporter of the Asquith Government. Other Liberal papers and members have spoken out against extravagance and shoddy workmanship. There should be opportunity in Canada for similar criticism, but if Liberals and Conservatives have to speak with the possibility before them of an immediate election there will not be that freedom of party bias without which the value of the discussion will be materially lessened.

To advise and to criticise measures for the prosecution of the war should be the supreme duty of Parliament during the coming session. It is disquieting to learn from the Government leader in the Senate, however, that there is a possibility of party strife of the pre-election sort. Senator Lougheed has been making what is spoken of as a "fighting" speech at Calgary, in the course of which he said that an election might come "like a thief in the night." Only the introduction by the Government of some highly controversial issue—such as Canada's future policy respecting naval defence—which has no bearing on present war conditions, could lead to an impasse requiring dissolution and an appeal to the country. If the Government is determined upon an election occasion will be found for it, but at a time of crisis, when great national interests are at stake, the leaders of public opinion in the Dominion should be slow to put party first.

There are Liberals who would welcome an immediate election because they know that hard times always tell against the Government in power. The cry of "Laurier and the return of Prosperity" would be a potent one in Canada to-day, far more effective than the cry of 1911 to "Let well enough alone." The odds are by no means so greatly in favour of the Borden Government surviving an appeal to the electorate as some of its journalistic fuglemen imagine. But why an election before there is need through the expiry of Parliament's mandate? Are we to play politics while the Hun is at the gate? Is that what Senator Lougheed meant when he told the Calgary Conservatives that an election might come "like a thief in the night."—The Globe.

HURRAH FOR HELL!

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—The last, in fact the only anchor that human beings have is Hope, expressed in terms of Faith, and through Prayer. It is all so regarded because it all has, or is alleged to have, some effect. If, however, it has no effect, even the most hopeful will be driven to Despair. There was a time when people believed so implicitly that even if things did all go wrong in spite of prayer there was no alternative. But nowadays, with the revival of Gnosticism or Christianity, tempered by knowledge, or as we would say, Commonsense, we come hard up against the facts, harder than ever before, and it is like to produce complete shipwreck of our hopes. It is this danger of shipwreck that is the danger brought about by this great war If prayer could have stopped it where are the faithful, and what good are they? If prayer is all right and yet this war is allowed to go on because it is the will of God, why not do all in our power to help it on, or do we think that God is going too far? One step further in such reasoning leads us hard up against all tragedy, all suffering. If God thinks it wise and beneficient why try to thwart His will? Why not let us have more of it?

Yours truly,
South End.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—Decided tension on the buying side and a falling off in the stock on hand at the principal domestic centres helped to key up the price of wheat today to the highest record yet during the European war—$1.46 1-2 a bushel, May. WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 25.—Wheat and oats opened at new record prices this morning. May was sold at $1.43¾, and July at $1.44¾, which showed an advance over Saturday's close of ⅝c to ¾c. Oats were ⅞c to 1c up and flax was up 1c to 2c. Further advances took place on wheat and oats, while flax held steady.

Reports were current again today that the government were buying; further large contracts were said to be carried thru in addition to those of Saturday. Broomhall's estimate of only 36,000,000 bushels exportable surplus from the Argentine, as against official estimates on Jan. 2 of 72,000,000, had an influence. Spot wheat at Liverpool being 1½d higher for No. 2 Manitoba influenced wheat. Cash markets were quiet, exporters not being inclined to buy unless in fairly large offerings. Further export sales were claimed to be worked today.

Inspections 141 cars, as against 145 last year, and in sight 220. Futures closed ⅝c to 1c higher, cash ⅝c to 1¼c up for wheat, oats ⅝c higher and flax ⅝c to 2⅛c up.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Jan. 25.—The overseas demand for Manitoba spring wheat was fairly good, but owing to the strength in the Winnipeg market and the fact that the prices bid were practically the same as Saturday's, exporters would not accept them and business was quiet. On the other hand there was an active trade done in coarse grains on spot including sales of 200,000 bushels oats and 30,000 American No. 3 mixed corn. The tone of the market for oats is strong and higher prices are expected in the near future. There was no change in flour, for which there continues to be a steady demand on domestic account, but the export trade is quiet.

Butter was active and firm. Cheese was quiet, but steady. Eggs were stronger and 1c to 2c higher.

DULUTH GRAIN MARKET.

DULUTH, Jan. 25.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.41½; No. 1 northern, $1.40½; No. 2 do., $1.38½; May, $1.41½.

M. P. Says

Senator D. Derbyshire of Brockville, says.—"Some time ago I contracted a very bad cold which settled on my lungs and bronchial tubes. I almost lost my voice, was constantly coughing and experienced considerable pain. A friend offered me a box of PEPs, and I was very much pleased with their almost instant action. They seemed to go direct to the sore places, stopped the coughing, and made my breathing easier. I continued using PEPs and they completely cured my cold. Now we always keep a supply of PEPs."

Mr. Gustave Boyer, M.P. for Vaudreuil, and President of the Interpreter's Assoc. of Quebec, writes.—"I have used PEPs for colds and bronchitis, and have found them far beyond all other remedies."

PEPs contain healing, health-giving pine fumes, condensed and compressed into tablets. When a PEP dissolves on your tongue, these fumes are liberated and breathed down direct to the seat of trouble.

All druggists sell them, or from PEPs Co., Toronto, Windsor, or Montreal, on receipt of price, 25c box, 3 boxes $1.25.

FREE TRIAL will be sent on receipt of this coupon, name of paper and 1c. stamp for postage.

Exequators Suspended

Papers of U. S. Consuls in Belgium Have Not Expired, Says Bryan

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Secretary Bryan last night made public the text of the note from Germany annulling the exequaturs or certificates of authority of neutral consuls in Belgium and issued a paraphrase of the American Governemnt's reply.

While the German note considers the exequaturs of neutral consuls to "have expired" the American government takes the view that they merely have been suspended. In this way the Washington Government avoided committing itself to the question of whether or not the sovereignty of Belgium had expired with the German military occupation. At the same time the United States indicates a willingness to make arrangements for the continuance of consuls personally not objectionable to the German authorities.

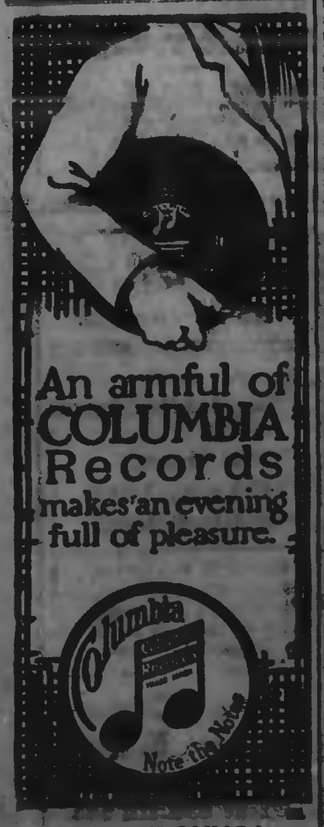
American Consul General Diederich at Antwerp already has been recognized by the German Government, and the American note makes enquiry whether the consuls at Liege and Brussels, the only two other places where neutral consuls are now permitted by the German military authorities to do business, are personally satisfactory to the local authorities.

An Offending Toe.

(London Standard.)

From a letter received in England from Perth, Western Australia:

"One young fellow I know very well, an athlete, was refused because one of his toes was malformed. It lay right under his other toes. It did not interfere with him at all, and he is a splendid runner, footballer, etc. He went straight from the army doctor to his family doctor, and after a lot of persuasive argument, had it amputated, and is now quite well again. He was duly passed into the army, and is going away with the contingent fit as a fiddle. What price the bulldog breed, eh?"



SUFFERING IN THE TRENCHES AS TOLD BY FRENCH INSTRUCTOR

"We Are Like the Beasts of the Forest," Writes a Soldier to a Friend—Waits for Cover of Night to Come Out

"We are like the beasts of the forest—prowling by night in search of food, crouching by day in terror of bullets, sleepless day and night in the rain-soaked mud of the freezing trenches"—it is a letter from the world of war to the world of peace. It is the story of a teacher turned soldier, the keen impressions of J. Norton Crue, for six years instructor in French at Williams College, who returned to join his regiment at the outbreak of the war, and who now writes to his one-time colleague, Dr. F. B. Easton, in these terms:

"We live here apart from the civil and civilized world, in a military and subterranean waste, and we are so happy to receive news from your world, from Williams, which survives in such contrast to our trenches! This reminds me that a few months ago I was a teacher, a peaceful citizen devoted to his studies. A teacher? I hardly resemble one now. My long beard, uncut for four months, gives me an almost wild appearance; the mud of the trenches covers me from my heavy boots to my well-worn kepi; my garments are torn and are falling to pieces, my face goes unwashed for a week at a time (once for two weeks)—all of which is scarcely professional.

Directs Trench Squad.

"The life that I lead is hard, very hard, but I find within myself latent reserves of stoicism and healthy vigour, the existence of which I had not even suspected. I have been at the front since October 15. First we were set to digging trenches for our comrades, later we occupied trenches made by others. Yes, I have directed a squad of men with picks and shovels. And thrilling it is to do this work on a dark night opposite the German trenches which are firing upon you. Then you fear the moon, for as soon as it comes from behind a cloud . . . ziiiiu, ziiiiu, comes a volley of rifle balls. We are ordered not to fire, not to reply, but to work fast, very fast. Ah, these bees of the night which buzz in your ears, and what a horrid sound they make! As soon as we hear the first one we throw ourselves flat on our stomachs, our faces close to the ground, and wait till it is over. Then back to andshove in M'-ohteEaepcak back to the picks and shovels again.

"For more than a month we were in a vast forest where the hostile aeroplanes could not see us. We built huts of branches, where we lived quietly enough, in spite of the shells which flew over our heads, destined not for us but for others. One evening, however, as I was finishing my ration, a sharp hissing noise, followed by a deafening explosion, filled us with terror. It was a shell of great calibre, a 'maymite,' as we call them, that had fallen near by. In a few minutes we were all in the deep holes that we had dug near our huts in anticipation of just such an exigency. It was lucky for us that we had these retreats, for other 'marmites' followed, whose enormous fragments mowed down branches and small trees all about us. Not one of us was injured.

Valley Separates Lines.

"Since then we have moved and we are now not far from Verdun. We pass successively a period of four days in the trenches and a period of four days in a village somewhat in the rear, yet not beyond the range of the German shells. The hostile trenches are at distances from our own which vary from 600 metres to scarcely ten (less than thirty-five feet) in certain cases. At the point where I am stationed a broad valley separates the two lines.

"Our life in the trenches is very curious. We are like the beasts of the forest that hide during the day and are active only at night, when they come out in search of food. During the daytime we watch without daring to show ourselves, for if a head appears but for an instant above ground there is the hiss of a bullet and another poor fellow has paid with his life for his imprudence. As the trenches are not very deep, there are only a few spots where it is possible for a man to stand upright without exposing his head. There are arteries of communication which connect the different trenches and in them you have to walk almost bent double. It is very tiresome to remain four days without being able to stretch your limbs or to lie down to sleep. We are forced to remain in a sitting posture, crouching low, with cramps in our legs and unbearable numbness in our arms. Some men sleep a little during the daytime. For my part, I did not sleep at all during the four days in the trenches. My duties as corporal would prevent me from doing so in any event.

"At night we are freer to show ourselves. The enemy cannot see us and fire at random or do not fire at all in order not to waste their amunition. It is during the night that most of the work is done. We widen the trenches, deepen the connecting passageways or construct new ones, stretch barbed wire before our trenches, etc. Sometimes on our right or on our left an attack is going on. Then we watch in perfect silence, ready to do our part if called upon. One or two kilometres away we hear the crackling of the fusillade, the noise of grapeshot, like the whizz of a coffee mill, and above all the dull roar of the cannon. Then all dies away into silence and the next morning we learn that we have captured a trench or lost one. But don't worry about me, I am in a regiment of 'old men,' from thirty-five to forty-two years old, and we are given the least exposed trenches.

Tortured by Cold.

"It is also at night the cooks bring us our provisions, but the soup and the coffee are cold when we get them after a long carriage on a winter's night. Sometimes we can warm up the stew over the little charcoal braziers provided to keep us from freezing. We use the charcoal because it gives neither flames nor light. It is the only fire that does not betray its presence. It sometimes happens that we do not have even this meagre heat at a time when we most need it. Then we suffer veritable tortures. We endured this from 14th to 22nd November, and not a few men had their feet frozen.

"In general we can protect ourselves from the cold, but against the rain we are powerless. From the 4th to the 8th of December we had four days of rain in the trenches in a soil of clay. Just imagine the coating of mud that covered our garments and even our hands and faces. I thought at the time that if I had appeared in Spring Street thus besmirched I should have caused a sensation. And to think that I have not caught pneumonia after all these drenchings. Truly the hardening of the human body to exposure is miraculous.

"Duty calls me and I must stop. In this life of a savage, of a barbarian, that I live here I can scarcely ever write, so please remember me to all my colleagues. Say also to those students who may still ask about me that I often think of them and that silence is not forgetfulness."

VIKNOR HAS BEEN SUNK

British Armoured Merchant Vessel Lost With All Hands

LONDON, Jan. 26.—It was officially announced at the Admiralty yesterday that the British armored merchant vessel Viknor had been lost off Ireland with all hands. The vessel it was stated, either struck a mine or foundered.

The Admiralty, in its statement, says:

"She has been missing for some days and must now be accepted as lost with all her officers and men. The cause of her loss is uncertain, but as some bodies and wreckage have been washed ashore on the north coast of Ireland, it is presumed that during the recent bad weather she either foundered, or, being carried out of her course, struck a mine in seas where the Germans are known to have laid them."

The Viknor was formerly the Viking and was commandeered by the Admiralty Dec. 13. She was in charge of Comr ander Ernest O. Ballantyne. The number of her crew cannot be ascertained.

Police Court

An Emily man charged with drunkenness at the police court this morning, presented a sorry appearance. Evidently he had conected with something that was harder than his face, and his features were disfigured. A pair of bleary eyes and a swollen face greeted His Worship from the prisoner's docket.

"I will fine you $3.60, and in default of payment ten days in gaol," said His Worship.

"Will you give me a chance to get the money?" asked the prisoner.

"No—you should think of these things before you get drunk."

Unless some benevolent friend comes to the rescue, the man from out west will spend the next ten days in the common gaol.

Another drunk was handed the same fine.

WATFORD MAN FOUND RELIEF IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Mr. Robt. Taylor, Sr., After Suffering for Two Years, Tells of the Benefits He got from Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Watford, Ont., Jan. 25.—(Special.)—Mr. Robert Taylor, Sr., a very estimable man living here, is telling his friends that the pain in the back from which he suffered for some time, has disappeared, and that he gives all the credit to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"My trouble started with a cold," Mr. Taylor states, "and though I was treated by a doctor I got no permanent relief. I had cramps in my muscles and stiffness in my joints, my sleep was broken and after slight exertion, I had attacks of rheumatism and sciatica, and though I tried many medicines I found no relief till I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. I must say they were a great benefit to me."

Mr. Taylor's troubles came from the kidneys. The diseased kidneys failed to strain the poisonous matter out of the blood and the results were as stated. Dodd's Kidney Pills cure the kidneys in every case, the poisonous matter is strained out of the blood, and the troubles went with it.

THEY STILL TREND.

In Scotland the Hearts are still easy top patchers. They managed to evade defeat at Cathkin Park and added one point to their already glorious total. Motherwell managed to draw at Dundee and Celtic fairly surprised themselves by winning at Easter Road, and the same may also be said of Morton's victory at Aberdeen.

A HUGE SCORE.

"What's this, Birmingham 11, Glossop 1." Nothing I can hear many giving vent to this exclamation. It is such a big score that it seems incredible, but it is not by any means, as we have had it equalled. For some time the Glossop club's goal has been hanging by a thread, and this disaster may mean the end. It is a long time since we had such a score in football, although it is by no means a record, as the following will show:

Although beat Bolton Wanderers on Saturday 9, they [illegible] Football Club [illegible] Aston Villa [illegible] Preston [illegible] 0, at Preston, on October 15, 1887.

Brother of Rev. Wm. Kenner of Peterboro' Celebrates His Diamond Jubilie To-morrow

Special to The Examiner:

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 26.— To-morrow Rev. Henry Kenner will observe his diamond jubilee as a minister of the Methodist church. He is now 83 years of age and has two brothers in the ministry, William, aged 85 at Peterborough, and John, aged 79, at London.

"Women and the War" Her Subject

Large Number of People Heard Miss Saunders at Y. W. C. A.

Quite a large number of people heard Miss Saunders, the National Secretary of the Y.W.C.A., at the Y.W.C.A. Building last evening. She spoke of "Women and the War," and in the course of her remarks, said that at last Canada was awakening to the sense of the terrible nearness of the peril, the sense that came so directly to those in England when war broke out, as Miss Saunders was there at that time. With that nearness came also a new realization of the grandeur of the way in which men in army and navy stood between the enemy and the homes of the British Empire. "We need continually to remind ourselves," she said, "that it is a fight for the great British ideals of home, of freedom and of good faith with the nations that trust us. Already one could see certain good effects of the war, a reality among women, instead of artificiality; deeper thinking instead of drifting; a new ideal of volunteer service. Women want now to offer, something that must cost them something.

The Y.W.C.A. throughout the country suffers much from lack of workers, and the war stringency increases this difficulty. There was great scope for volunteer service among the girls in the Association. The evil effects of war were felt severely in such work as this. Girls have had their wages cut down, and in some cases girls have had to support male relatives. The Association has found it well to help to form office women's co-operative clubs, and other like societies, through which girls can help each other, and yet be in touch with a strong national organization.

The war too has made it very difficult to obtain funds for all the national work of the Y.W.C.A., and its staff has been cut down by a third. Yet there never was a time when it was more necessary to be strengthening all the protective work for girls, seeing to employment bureaus, making sure that travellers' aid workers care for girls travelling to look for work, etc.

Miss Saunders made a strong appeal to Peterborough men and women to contribute the twelve hundred dollars needed to keep on the national staff, the expert Secretary for supervising immigration and the travellers' aid work. Through her efforts last season twenty five hundred girls were sent on from Quebec with letters of introduction to Y.W.C.A. secretaries in the towns to which they were going, so that they might be followed up. The travellers aid workers met and helped twenty-one thousand people travelling in Canada last year. Women are called to-day to sacrifice their men to go to the front, and meanwhile to carry on themselves this great work for the protection of girls.

Miss Saunders will speak to-night at the Y.W.C.A. on "The Women's Movement," showing woman's place in the development of national and civic life. A large attendance is hoped for.

JANUARY CLEARANCE SALE

HURRY! THIS SALE OF WINTER APPAREL WILL VERY SOON END!!

THIS is the greatest sale we have every held! We might go a step farther and call it the greatest apparel sale ever held in Peterborough! This 10-day sale has been advertised to close Thursday, Jan. 28th, but owing to its lasting success we are obliged to run it until Saturday, Jan. 30th. Not only are assortments so extensive, but prices are lower than Coats, Suits and Dresses of equal quality ever sold for before in this town!

The heavy selling of the past few days has greatly depleted our stocks. Nevertheless, assortments in nearly every line are still fairly complete and offer ample scope for selection. If you wish to get the fullest advantage of this sale you must come early, for the sale ends on Saturday, Jan. 30th. Come to-morrow! You will find here the most remarkable bargains in Winter Coats, Suits and Dresses you have ever been offered in Peterborough!

The wonderful values which we have been offering in Dresses have certainly been taken advantage of (we have been completely cleaned out). Luckily a manufacturer shipped us to-day a consignment of Dresses which we can sell for less than their cost of making. The styles are all correct. Ask to see them.

"Where The Styles Come From"

Weight For Vegetables By The Bushel and Bag Are Specified

New Law Went Into Effect the First of the Year—Heavy Penalty for Selling Below Required Standards —Sacks of Flour to Be Marked

Considerable interest is being taken in an important amendment to the Inspection and Sale act, which became effective on January 1.

New laws are established for the whole of Canada, respecting flour, meal, rolled oats, rolled wheat, feed and vegetables. The important features in connection with the new act are that weights of the contents of any bag, sack or package of any of the cereal products mentioned must be stated thereon and that uniform weights per bushel or bag for vegetables throughout the whole of Canada are definitely established.

Under the new law a barrel of flour or meal must weigh 196 pounds and a half barrel 98 pounds, while rolled oats must weigh 180 pounds to the barrel and 90 pounds to the half barrel, and rolled wheat goes 100 pounds to the barrel and 50 pounds to the half barrel.

Most interest in Peterborough is taken undoubtedly in the weights of vegetables, particularly as these are sold to such a large extent on the local market.

A bushel measure must now contain the following weights: Beans 60; beets 50; carrots 50; castor beans 40; clover seed 60; hemps seed 44; lime 70; malt 38; onions 50; parsnips 45; potatoes 60; timothy seed 48; turnips 50. Specifications of the weights when sold by the bag call for the following weights: Beets 75; carrots 75; onions 75 parships 65; potatoes 90; turnips 75 pounds.

A penalty of a fine not exceeding $25 is fixed for the first offence and for each subsequent offence not exceeding $50 for every person who offers for sale or sells by the bag any of the vegetables mentioned, in case any bag of such vegetables sold or offered for sale does not contain at least the number of Dominion standard pounds specified. The same is true of the bushel measures.

The law contains some specified regulations concerning the marketing of barrels and sacks of flour or meal and similar articles.

No Cigarettes On Sunday

Tobacco License to Restaurants and Druggists Does Not Permit Sunday Sales

Apparently in some of the drug stores, temperance houses, restaurants and hotels in the city where there is a license for the sale of cigars, cigarettes, etc., there seems to be the impression that they are allowed to sell on Sunday.

A couple of instances of this practice have come to the notice of the Police Department lately, and unless it is stopped at once, there will be some police court cases.

The High Court has ruled in past cases that in hotels and restaurants cigars may be served as desert at a meal at any time, but this does not cover a regular sale on Sunday.

If these people who pay a tobacco license to the city of $50 per year were allowed to sell on Sundays it would not be fair to the regular tobacconists. A man can buy his Sunday supply of smokes on Saturday evening as well as any other time, but if he knows it can be secured on Sunday, he will probably wait until he needs it.

Exonerated On One Charge

Examiner Special:

TORONTO, Jan. 26.—In the Union Life conspiracy case, Harry Symons, K.C., and Dr. F. G. Hughes stand exonerated from one of three charges of fraud, namely, that one laid in connection with the affairs of the Canada Provident Investment Corporation, Limited.

The Crown closed its case to-day. Mr. Justice Clute ordered "not guilty" to be entered in this particular count. Two other courts are still being heard.

American Surgeon In Hospital at Kieff Weds Russian Princess

PETROGRAD, Jan. 26—Dr. Philip Newton, one of the American Red Cross surgeons in charge of the Kieff Hospital, married the Princess Helene Schahofskaya in Petrograd today. The Princess is a Russian woman who volunteered to serve as a nurse in the hospital opened by the Americans.

The ceremony was performed in the Russian Church, and was attended by Frank North Winship, the American Consul, and Ray Baker secretary to the American Ambassador, Mr. Marye. Dr. Newton explained to friends that there was not enough work to go around in the Kieff Hospital and that he had nothing to do except to fall in love.

Dr. and Mrs. Newton will make a honeymoon trip to Archangel to meet two American physicians who will arrive soon to reinforce the present Red Cross staff. Dr. Newton said that only those who are slightly wounded are brought to Kieff Hospital and that he hoped soon to establish a new unit at Warsaw, where it would be possible to see real service.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

GOLDEN WEDDING IS CELEBRATED AT WARSAW

A very pleasant event occurred on the evening of Monday, Jan. 18th, 1915, when the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Harding was celebrated at the home of their son, Mr. Frank Harding, Warsaw, Ont.

An elaborate supper was served to a large number of guests, after which congratulations were poured upon the aged couple, and their pastor, Rev. M. L. Hinton read the following address on behalf of the relatives:

Dear parents, grand-parents, brothers and sister, we have gathered this evening to celebrate your golden wedding. Fifty years of married life, a long, long time to spend together. When we look back to the days of our childhood and remember the sacrifices and self-denials you have undergone that we might have many things to make us happy, in those by-gone days since we have become parents, how much more can we understand what it means to be a true parent. We know of the aspirations the hopes, that parents have for their children, and we hope that you may not be disappointed in any of those beautiful dreams which surrounded the little occupant of the cradle. Now tonight we would like you to remember that we your relatives appreciate the love, patience and sympathy bestowed upon us, and may the closing years of your lives be as the golden sunset, rich with blessings of peace and plenty. As your life boat floats down the silvery stream of time, may it just be nearing home to the Father's house on the invitation of His only son who hath redeemed us by His blood.

We hope you will look back to this anniversary with gladness that the remembrance will brighten any lonely days that you may have, knowing that, though far apart we think of you with fond remembrance.

It is not everyone that is privileged to celebrate their golden wedding, and we feel glad to realize that you have been spared so many years and hope you will have many more to spend with your friends, tried and true.

Please accept this purse of gold as a token of the love and affection with which you are held by all of us.

After the address was read a number of speeches were given by many of the gentlemen and ladies present, with reference to by-gone days. Among them was one given by the bridegroom of fifty years ago.

A solo, "Don't forget the Old Folks" was sung especially for the bride and bridegroom by Mrs. (Rev.) Hinton.

The following relatives were present: Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Batten, Port Carling, Muskoka; Mrs. Ed. Myers Orillia; Mrs. John Quinlan, Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. E. Schneider, Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. G. Biscutt, Lakehurst; Mrs. B. Dunk, Mr. Sam Dunk, Young's Point; Mr. Allan Harding, Toronto; Miss Alice Booth, Mt. Julian; Mr. E. J. Leslie, Braconhead, Sask.; Mr. and Mrs. J. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Greenborn and family, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sharpe and family, Mr. and Mrs Fred Parcels and family, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Harding, Mr. A. Sharpe, Mrs. George Watley, Mr. and Mrs. F. Harding and family, at their home.

After a most enjoyable evening, the guests departed.

ICELAND GOES DRY.

No Alcoholic Stimulants in Denmark's Cold Dependency.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Jan. 26 —The Parliament of Iceland, 3. of whose 40 members are elected by popular suffrage, has passed a measure forbidding the sale of alcoholic liquors. All the remaining stock in the Danish dependency has been exported.

LISBON, January 26.—Affairs in the Portuguese Government reached another serious crisis to-day. General Pimento Castro formally accepted the Premiership vacated by General Costa a few days ago, and at once set aside the decrees that resulted in Costa's serious break with the army and navy. Castro's acceptance of the Premiership puts the army and navy in control of the Cabinet.

BERLIN, January 26.—Despatches received here to-day from Cracow, Galicia, say that the Austro-German forces have occupied Kielce, Russian Poland. Kielce lies in Southern Poland, about 50 miles north of the border of the Austrian province of Galicia. Its capture, if effected, follows the initiation of a new offensive movement by the German and Austrian armies all along the eastern battle front.

PETROGRAD, via London, January 26.—A number of questions, dealing with many phases of Russia's relations to other countries, both her allies and neutral states, were put to Foreign Minister Sazanoff by members of the Duma at to-day's sitting of the Budget Committee. Sazanoff replied briefly to everything asked him and said he would request Imperial sanction to give detailed explanations at a plenary sitting of the Duma. Replying to a question concerning the help England was rendering the allies, France and Russia, M. Sazanoff said that Great Britain had undertaken a burden much heavier than had been expected of her. Answering a question as to whether there was any danger of the conclusion of a premature peace, M. Sazanoff said emphatically that "Russia would remain faithful to the spirit of the imperial manifesto and the agreement with the allies not to conclude an independent peace."

OTTAWA, January 26.—It was officialy stated here this morning that there was no foundation for the report that the Canadian Government is to issue a one hundred million dollar loan in the United States.

COPENHAGEN, January 26.—Reports received here this afternoon from Malmo declare that the German light cruiser Gazelle was struck by a Russian torpedo in the Baltic. The damage is not stated.

The Gazelle is a sister ship to the German cruiser Niobe (no relative to Canada's Niobe) and has a normal displacement of 2,645 tons, a length of 328 feet, and carries 10 five inch guns, 14 three pounders, and three torpedo tubes. She was built in 1898 and her complement is 264 men. Malmo is an important Swedish port, 16 miles distant from Copenhagen.

Central Charity Board Has Given Much Relief

The Chairman Was Authorized to Purchase 75 Cords of Wood

OIL TO BE SUPPLIED

At a meeting of the Peterborough Central Charity Board, held last night, there were present Messrs. H. Rush (chairman), H. C. Stabler, J. McClelland, H. Carveth, J. P. Francis, L. W. Petty, S. Gaskins, and His Worship Mayor Buller. The Relief Officer has had a large number of appeals for assistance, and presented a rather formidable list of cases where assistance had been given, also a statement of the nature of the aid.

A letter was read from Mr. A. Merritt, saying that Mr. O. S. Matchett had been appointed to represent Park Street Baptist Church on the Charity Board. Mr. Matchett was accordingly asked to take his place at the meeting.

Mr. R. W. Travers, in a letter, stated that there was a credit on the charity Board's account on December 31, 1914, of $694.26.

The following statement of orders given was read to the meeting:

	Since last meeting.	During 1914
Groceries..	$536.00	$2,137.00
Wood..	391.95	1,158.99½
Tickets	3.90	62.35
Homes & Sundries	686.65	2,360.05
	$1,617.80	$5,743.32½

A statement was read from F. W. Miller, Relief Officer, that Mr. J. W. Lillico had delivered 100 cords of wood. It was decided to pay Mr. Lillico $150 on account of the wood which was delivered by him at $3.50 per cord.

A communication was read from H. J. Miller, offering a car load of wood at $5.35 a cord, also from John S. Crow, offering mixed wood at $3 a cord and hardwood at $4.50 a cord, and from W. Manley, offering hardwood at $5 and mixed wood at $3.50 per cord.

The Chairman was authorized to purchase fifty cords of wood, beech and maple, from John S. Crow at $4.50 per cord. He was also authorized to purchase twenty-five cords of hardwood from W. Manley at $4.75, or $5 per cord if it is first-class wood.

The Relief Officer reported instances where relief had been given.

It was decided to allow grocers to supply coal oil, in addition to the list of articles already specified in the lists.

The Board adjourned till Monday, February 8.

"Soldiers of Fortune" Film

At Grand Opera House Should Be Seen by Everyone

A visit to the Grand Opera House tonight will gratify the highest expectations of motion picture lovers. Yesterday and to-day one of the finest films ever seen in this city is being shown. It is entitled "Soldiers of Fortune," and critics and the press everywhere are loud in their praises of what they claim to be one of the greatest triumphs of the motion picture art. It is a wonderful presentation of Richard Harding Davis' story of the same name, and is replete with thrilling incidents. Everyone should see this picture, and the last opportunity to do is to-night at 7.30.

Six thousand an hour is the speed of a new machine for sealing and stamping letters.

The Arbitration Proceedings, etc.

Mr. Tilley brought out the fact that since October 1st last the City has been supplying light and power to the Brinton Carpet Company and collecting revenue therefrom. This is outside of the limits and beyond the jurisdiction of the City.

Cross-Examination.

To Mr. Cowan, witness said that he got his data respecting wires, poles, circuits, etc., from the construction orders.

Mr. Cowan took a specimen order, from which he cross-examined the witness, as follows:

"Where were the poles obtained?"

"From our pole-yard."

"Do you know whether the poles were not second-hand?"

"I know that we never used a pole unless it was as good as a new one"

"Can you give me the number of pounds of wire used each year?"

"No!"

"Why not?"

"I never looked it up."

"Can that information be obtained?"

"I believe it could be."

"Where would I have to look for information showing the amount of material used?"

"The Company would have it."

"Will it show the actual amount used?"

"What do you mean by the word 'used'?"

"Just what the word 'used' means," replied Mr. Cowan.

"I want access to the records of the amount of materials used in the system each year," said Mr Cowan, with rising voice

"Don't attack the witness," remonstrated Mr Tilley.

"I am not attacking him."

"I am not afraid of him," assured the witness.

"They ought to belong to the City of Peterborough," observed Mr. Cowan.

"Everything ought to belong to the City on that assumption," replied Mr. Tilley.

It was finally agreed that Mr. Cowan would be permitted to see the books in Toronto, where they are said to be located.

GERMANY LIKELY TO START VIGOROUS TACTICS IN POLAND

Strict Orders Have Been Given the Russian Generals to Refrain From Unjustified Advances Until Entire Plan Develops

PETROGRAD, Jan. 26.—On the left bank of the Vistula the Germans are presenting a stubborn resistance, while on the right bank, in northern Poland, the Russians are pushing the German lines back. In southern Poland the Austrians are showing renewed activity, with German reinforcements strengthening their lines. A new offensive movement is looked for in this region with the object of compelling the Russians to turn their attention from Bukowina and Transylvania.

In southern Galicia the Russians are holding the passes through the Carpathians, where cold and snow have virtually stopped all operations.

The Russians in Poland have the strictest orders not to endanger the grand strategy plan by a premature advance anywhere, however tempting an opportunity may offer itself. These orders have been operative ever since the Germans entered Poland for the second time. A predetermined point beyond which the Germans must on no account be allowed to penetrate was plainly laid down. To that predetermined line the Russian forces which were west of it with one exception, retired fighting. A certain gallant corps held its ground against three German corps, inflicting fearful losses, but also losing very heavily itself. The Germans could not with their utmost efforts dislodge this stubborn corps, and remnants still held their ground when the German attacks had been crushed.

The official Government organ yesterday takes exception to a statement by the London newspapers which places the losses during the second invasion of Poland at only 270,000 men, 220,000 being Germans. This is little more than half truth.

"I telegraphed you on Dec. 26, says The London Post correspondent, "that the losses of three weeks of fighting exceeded half a million men. In point of fact, they were semi-officially put at 600,000 over the whole front of 450 miles from the Baltic to the Roumanian frontier. The German lost over 200,000 on the Bzura alone in these three weeks. In one single spot on this small section of the front on a single night the Germans lost 7,000 killed. This section was not over a mile in length and though the losses here, perhaps, are given as the maximum, yet it must not be forgotten that we have to reckon the losses on 179 other days and nights over the whole 450 miles of front."

The sudden stiffening of the Austrian front in the eleventh hour, to check the Russian invasion of Hungary as a natural sequence of the occupation of Bukowina, seems for the present to be the event of chief military importance. The Russians seem to recognize this and all recent despatches from Petrograd have emphasized the Austro-German offensive in the southeastern theatre.

ALLIES KNOW BY EXPERIENCE HOW TO MAKE GERMANS DESIST

LONDON, Jan. 26.—There was given out in London yesterday a further recital of conditions at the front by an eye witness attached to the British General Staff. It is dated Tuesday, Jan. 19, at the British General Headquarters in France, and a synopsis of it follows:

"The continuous artillery combat almost takes the form of a game in some parts of the field. As soon as the German batteries start shelling us our guns are directed against certain places on the enemy's lines, the bombardment of which, we know by experience, will soon induce him to desist. Having obtained the range of most of the hostile batteries, we generally can reduce them to silence or render their fire comparatively harmless.

"An alleged German official report declares that a certain German prisoner in the British lines claims that on several different occasions he was forced to ascend in a British aeroplane—his shirt sleeves to point out the German positions and drop a bomb. This whole story is a pure fabrication, but it presumably would not have appeared unless it was likely to be accepted as true in Germany and in some neutral countries. The absurdity of taking up a private soldier who never before had made an ascent in order to ascertain the position of units of which he knew nothing is sufficient refutation. Moreover we would be hardly likely to render his task more difficult by inflicting the needless hardship of exposure.

"Immense efforts and a great amount of material are being expended to keep roads in repair under the motor traffic. Furthermore in many cases, the paved portion of the roads are so narrow that vehicles are unable to pass each other; consequently, it has been necessary to widen the paved surface. Although stone block is one of the most ancient and durable forms of road, it becomes broken up in time by heavy motor traffic."

United States Will Not Buy Any Ships Until Transfers Are Recognized

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The debate on the Administration ship purchase bill in the Senate yesterday disclosed the fact that it was not the intention of the President to buy the interned ships of any belligerent until he had received assurances through diplomatic channels from the enemies of the country from which such ships might be found that the transfers would be recognized.

Statements to this effect by Senator Simmons, who is one of the President's special representatives in the Senate, and Senator Williams of Mississippi demolished the foundations upon which Senator Root yesterday and Senator Lodge last week built their arguments that the enactment of the bill into law and the operation of these ships under sanction of the Government would involve this Government in grave international complications.

Senator Elihu Root, in the course of his speech in the afternoon, said:

"None of these great powers will permit citizens of an enemy to rob them of their trade by transferring ships they are entitled to capture on the high seas to a neutral flag," he insisted. "We cannot measure the number of our steps. One unneutral step will lead to further unneutral steps by others until we are in the thing.

"I am not arguing against buying a ship, but buying an international quarrel with every ship. If we are to maintain neutrality we must hold close to it. If you precipitate this country into an international controversy when Europe may feel that we have taken sides, we will rend ourselves. The only safe course is to keep out of such controversies."

Hospitals Not Safe From Germans, Wounded Man Going Back To Front

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—The seemingly charmed life of Private Leaske, of the Frist battalion of the London Scottish, has attracted considerable attention in England, according to letters recently received here. Private Leaske has been invalided home with a severe flesh wound in the thigh and notwithstanding his desperate experiences is now reported to be recovering.

When the war began Private Leaske was in business in Antwerp. There he remained until the investment of the city by the Germans and refused to leave when the bombardment commenced. A German shell destroyed the house in which he lived, and when the fortress fell he beat a hasty retreat to England.

Having served in the London Scottish, he re-enlisted in the First battalion, with which he was sent to France later. During an engagement when the regiment was first under fire three bullets pierced his greatcoat but did him no injury. The following day, however, a fourth bullet wounded him in the thigh and he was carried off to a hospital.

It appears that the engagement was in Belgium and that he was taken to a field hospital near Ypres. The Germans shelled the place and Private Leaske was removed with the remainder of the wounded to another hospital farther to the south. This building also the Germans shelled and the young soldier had a very narrow escape from flying fragments of shrapnel before he was carried from the building in safety.

Fortunately his next place of retreat was far beyond the range of the German artillery, distance being a more effectual protection than the Red Cross ensign from German shell fire. There he remained until with several others he was taken to England. It was believed that then he would be harassed no more and would be left in peace until his wound was healed.

Such was not the case, however, for he was sent to a hospital in Hartlepool. He had not been in the institution twenty-four hours before the German raiding cruiser squadron opened fire on the city. With unerring accuracy the German guns speedily searched out the hospital, which was one of the buildings struck.

Private Leaske then came to the conclusion that he would be much safer on the firing line and thenceforward he made progress toward recovery. He says he will not feel really safe and comfortable until he rejoins his regiment at the front.

FELL IN A FAINT.

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes: "Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was in a terrible condition. Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall to the floor. I could not sweep without fainting. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has so built up my system that I can wash and do my housework. Your medicine cured me when doctors had failed."

Italy Must Get Into The War

Italian Radicals Say Italy Must Join the Triple Entente

ROME, Jan. 26.—A London Post despatch says: "The central committee of the Radical party has unanimously adopted a motion declaring that Italy's participation in the European conflict is indispensable to the satisfaction of her aspirations and the protection of her interests. This vote emphatically disproves the rumor that several Radicals desire to support Signor Giolitti in a strictly neutral policy. Moreover, the Giolittian organ, La Stampa, denies Giolitti's reported intention of seeking to return to office on a platform of absolute neutrality.

"Reports are being circulated here that Prince von Buelow is trying to keep on good terms with Italy by sacrificing Austria. The Germans are annoyed that they share Austria's great unpopularity in Italy, but the Italians want more than "a scrap of paper" in proof of Germany's desire to give them Trentino.

Wealth Rather Than Poverty

Which Does Christianity Sanction? —Subject Was Debated

On Monday night, the meeting of the George Street Epworth League was in charge of the Christian Citizenship Department. The chief item on the programme was a debate. The subject was "Resolved that Christianity sanctions wealth rather than poverty." Mr. Logan and Mr. Copp were the speakers on the affirmative side, while Miss Bennet and Miss Puck upheld the negative. Each group set forth a number of convincing points.

The affirmative held that it is one's duty to make the best use of his talents. This is bound to lead to wealth, whether in learning or material possesion. Wealth in the acquiring increases the usefulness of life and brings into play the virtues of Christianity. Wealth of opportunity and ambition is justifiable. As regards material wealth, missionaries need funds in order to promote their work. Bible societies make good use of money at their disposal, in spreading the Gospel. Many noted men, as Mr. Barnardo, who has founded orphanage institutions, have given their money for the carrying on of Christian work.

The negative side maintained that poverty is the mainspring of everything of permanent value. Great men, as Columbus, Peel, and Shakespeare, sprang from the ranks of the poor. The work of these has benefitted Christianity. Earthly possessions, beyond those for actual needs, bespeak vanity. Wealth is a snare to the rich, and a temptation to the poor. Jesus sanctioned poverty by both practicing and teaching it.

The judges, after duly debating the matter, gave their decision in favour of the affirmative side.

During the evening, several matters of business were transacted. A number of new members were received into the League.

John Lasure Was Sentenced To One Year

Horsethief Pleaded Guilty Before County Judge at Walkerton

Chief Thompson has received a letter from Constable Mills of Tara, relating to the trial of John Lasure, who was arrested here a few days ago on two charges of horse stealing and one of escaping from an officer of the law.

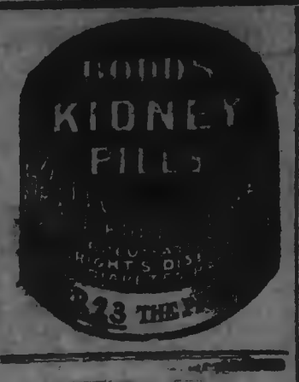
Lasure was tried before the County Judge at Walkerton, Ont. He pleaded guilty to all three charges and was sentenced to one year in the penitentiary.

This seems a very light sentence in view of the damage resulting from Lasure's operations. The horse, which he stole from Mr. David Matthews, of Chestworth, is almost a total wreck, and before he took it the animal was a fine specimen. Mr. Matthews had to pay a board account here of $25.50 yesterday and it cost him in the neighbourhood of $13.00 freight when he shiped it to his home in Chestworth.

HOSPITAL SHELLED.

Germans Put Long Range Gun Into Action at Furnes.

NORTH OF FRANCE, Jan. 26.—Up to now, the inhabitants of Furnes have been congratulating themselves that German shells were incapable of being dropped beyond the station and the part around it. Unhappily, for several days past the enemy has managed either to bring his guns nearer to Furnes, which is hard to believe, or to bring up guns of longer range. Whatever the explanation the fact remains that bombs now are falling into Furnes itself. In all probability they have put a gun of the heaviest calibre on a truck which they run up and down the small local railway line. Yesterday morning a shell fell into the theatre and another crashed down into the civil hospital, which is situated next door to the British hospital. A Belgian military doctor was mortally wounded by a shell which fell by the side of a bed in which he slept. A little boy had his feet smashed. The civil hospital was immediately evacuated and the patients removed.



First Death Claim Paid.

TORONTO, Jan. 26. — The first death claim under the new Workmen's Compensation Act was settled yesterday by the forwarding of the first check. The widow of Charles Potasso, of Cornwall, was paid $24.75, an amount estimated at 55 per cent. of the average monthly wage of her husband, who was killed recently in the course of employment.

There are now six children in the Potasso family, all under the age of 16 years. Compensation allowed them ceases automatically as they reach that age, and the allowance to the widow necessarily decreases.

British Soldiers Get Commissions.

LONDON, Jan. 26. — The latest supplement of The London Gazette shows that 77 officers have been appointed from the ranks to commissions in the British army, because of efficiency in the field. Most of them were advanced from the sergeant grade and the regimental non-commissioned staff, but some were mere corporals. These men had taken commands of companies in the field when the officers were lost and otherwise showed themselves worthy of second lieutenancies.

Swedish People Should Be Neutral.

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 26.—The influential Liberal newspaper Tidningen says that the main object of the Swedes should not be to seek profit by the difficulties of the great powers, but to strengthen their defences, thereby assuring respect for Sweden's neutrality by other Governments and securing peace with her own boundaries.

Infantry Training

The Matter in This Column is from the Official Manual 1911 and is Published According to Orders of the Home Guard

3. REAR FILES —COVER.

If the squad is halted or ordered to mark time when only a part of the men have wheeled into the new direction, the men who have not yet wheeled will cover off on those who have by making an incline to the right or left.

4. Forming squad on the move. (Pl.III.Fig.3) On the RIGHT (or LEFT)— FORM SQUAD.

The leading man will mark time, the remainder will make a partial turn in the named direction and form upon him, marking time as they come into the line.

The squad will move on in line in the direction in which it was originally marching in file.

5. Forming squad at the halt. At the HALT on the RIGHT (or LEFT) FORM— SQUAD.

The leading man will halt, the remainder will make a partial turn in the named direction and form upon him, halting and dressing as they come into the line.

SQUAD DRILL IN TWO RANKS.

39. Formation of a Squad in Two Ranks.

The squad will now be formed for drill in two ranks. The men will take their places in succession, commencing from the left unless they are ordered to form on the other flank, each occupying a lateral space of 20 inches. Each man of the rear rank will be placed 60 inches from the man in front of him, measuring from heel to heel, and will cover him correctly, the two men thus placed forming A FILE. When the squad consists of an uneven number of men, the third man from the left of the front rank will be a BLANK (or incomplete) FILE, that is, he will have no rear rank man. Squads will dress by the left unless otherwise ordered. The instructions for dressing by the left in the following sections may be varied so as to apply to dressing by the right.

40. Dressing. No word of command will be given.

When a squad is halted each man of both the front and rear ranks, except the left file, will look towards the left with a smart turn of the head, and will move up or back to his place successively, commencing with the file nearest the left file. Each man will look to his front as soon as he has got his dressing.

41. Numbering a squad. SQUAD— NUMBER.

The men of the front rank will number off smartly as in Sec. 32.

Each rear rank man will listen to the number given by his front rank man, which number will also be his own.

42. Opening and closing a squad. OPEN RANKS —MARCH.

The odd numbers of the front rank will step forward two paces, the even number of the rear rank will step back two paces; as soon as the paces are completed the men who have moved (except the left hand man of each of the four ranks) will look to the left and correct the dressing quickly, looking to the front as soon as the dressing is correct.

CLOSE RANKS— MARCH.

The odd numbers of the front rank will step back two paces, the even numbers of the rear rank will step forward two paces, and, as soon as the paces are completed, the squad will dress by the left.

43. Marching in line.

1. BY THE RIGHT (or LEFT) QUICK (or DOUBLE)— MARCH.

The whole will step off, the front rank man of the file on the named flank taking a point to march on. The men of each rank, except the directing file, will glance occasionally to the named flank to maintain their dressing. The men of the rear rank will also preserve their covering and distance from the front rank.

If there is a blank file, he will always be with the front rank; when the squad is turned about on the march he will step out to gain his place in the new front rank; if the squad is turned about at the halt he will take two paces forward after turning about.

Note. When a squad turns about the ranks are thereby changed, and the former rear rank becomes the front rank; the former front rank, the rear rank.

When, however, the squad is required to fall back for a short distance only, with a view of again turning in the original direction, ranks will not be changed. In this case the commands will be: THE SQUAD WILL RETIRE, ABOUT—TURN, and on completion, THE SQUAD WILL ADVANCE, ABOUT—TURN.

2. The diagonal march. RIGHT (or LEFT)— INCLINE.

As in Sec. 36.

The men of the rear rank will preserve their relative positions with the men of the front rank, in order that they may cover correctly when they are again turned into line.

3. Changing direction. RIGHT (or LEFT)— FORM.

The right (or left) hand man of the front rank will make a full turn in the required direction and the remainder of the front rank a partial turn. The rear rank will stand fast.

QUICK— MARCH.

The right (or left) hand man of the front rank will mark time, the remainder will step off, the men of the rear rank conforming to the movements of their front rank men. The whole will mark time when they come into their places in the new alignment.

FOR—WARD

The whole will move off in the new direction.

Notes. 1. If the squad is on the march the command QUICK—MARCH is omitted.

2. If required to halt after forming, the command will be AT THE HALT—RIGHT (or LEFT) FORM, the right or left hand man will then stand fast instead of marking time and the remainder will halt and dress as they come up.

44. Marching in file.

1. Turning into file. RIGHT (or LEFT)— TURN.

The whole will turn to the right (or left), and, if on the march, lead on in that direction without checking the pace. The men of the rear rank will dress by their front rank men.

2. Changing direction. RIGHT (or LEFT)— WHEEL.

The inner man of the leading file will move round a quarter of the circumference of a circle having a radius of four feet, stepping short to enable the outer man of the file to wheel with him. When the quarter circle is completed the file leads on in the new direction. The other files in succession will follow in the footsteps of the leading file without increasing or diminishing their distances from each other or altering the time.

3. Forming squad. On the RIGHT (or LEFT) FORM—SQUAD

The right hand man of the leading file, if the formation is to the right; or the left hand man of the leading file, if the formation is to the left, will mark time.

The remainder will make a partial turn in the named direction and form upon him, marking time as they come into the alignment.

The squad will move on in line in the direction in which it was originally marching in file.

Note. 1. If desired to halt on completion, the command will be AT THE HALT, ON THE RIGHT (or LEFT) FORM—SQUAD. The right or left hand man of the leading file will halt and the remainder will halt and dress as they reach their places.

2. The squad may be formed obliquely to the line of march by the command, HALF (or QUARTER) RIGHT (or LEFT) FORM—SQUAD.

4. Forming single file and two deep. ADVANCE IN SINGLE FILE: QUICK— MARCH.

The front rank man of the leading file will march off followed by his rear rank man, who will be followed by the front rank man of the second file and so on.

Note. 1. If the squad is marching in file, the command will be, ADVANCE IN SINGLE FILE, when the front rank man of the leading file will step off, the rear rank man marking time to get [illegible] on following at the desired distance.

2. A squad may similarly advance in single file from fours.

Strengthening the Sound Waves

AFTER travelling a certain distance the electric wave which carries the human voice along the telephone wire becomes attenuated and speech becomes too faint to be heard.

Just as in the old stage-coach days fresh relays of horses at regular intervals along the way, enabled the traveller to continue his journey with undiminished speed, so by means of the newly invented "loading coils" inserted at proper intervals, the electric waves are strengthened and long distance telephoning is made easy.

We have lately finished the "loading" of our long distance lines and speech transmission has been very greatly improved. This is especially noticeable on extra long talks. Our "long-haul" transmission is better than ever.

Begin the New Year by making systematic use of the Long Distance Telephone in your business. It will save you time and labor, as well as much money in the shape of travelling expense.

Every Bell Telephone is a Long Distance Station.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The Austro-Hungarian import duty on cottonseed oil, the whole supply of which comes from the United States, has been reduced from 40 to 25 kronen.

The roof of the Palace Skating Rink at Port Colborne collapsed yesterday morning, luckily when there was nobody in the rink. A big hockey match was held Saturday night.

Fire destroyed the West Grain Co. elevator at Carlstadt, Alta., on Sunday. The elevator had 5,000 bushels in it at the time, and the total loss is about $20,000, partly covered by insurance.

A Russian Imperial ukase, issued yesterday, fixed Jan. 30 as the date for the reopening of the session of the Council of State, and Feb. 2 as the day when the sittings of the Douma shall be resumed.

A fire which started in the rear of Miss Thompson's millinery parlor at St. Catharines, and spread to Devor's shoe store did damage which is not likely to exceed $6,000, partially covered by insurance.

The Red Cross Society of England has asked the Canadian Militia Department, it is reported unofficially, to furnish doctors and hospital orderlies to take charge of a base hospital which is being organized by the Red Cross Society.

The German Government has accepted the alternative offered by the United States in the case of the prize collier, K.D. 3, formerly the British collier Farn, and has consented to her internment for the war, with her crew, at San Juan, Porto Rico.

TO DEFEND HUNGARY.

Petrograd Despatch Says That Is the Purpose of German Move.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—A Times' Petrograd despatch says:

"News reaches here of a British success in the movement from the Persian Gulf of Bagdad.

"It is believed in Petrograd that the German troops which have been moving through Hungary are intended to oppose the Russian advance in the southern Carpathians, and that the announcement that they were to move against Serbia was incorrect. It is not believed possible that the Germans coul dprepare an army strong enough to act against Serbia until spring."

Britain Will Stop Ship.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—Unless a positive guarantee is given that the cargo of foodstuffs on the American steamer Wilhelmina, which sailed from New York Friday for Germany, will not reach the German army, it is likely the ship will be stopped by the allies. Because of the alleged general practice of the German authorities in seizing for military use any foodstuffs, it is stated that the British officials would not regard the consignment of the food ship to some individual or firm any proof that its ultimate destination is not the army.

Under the conditions that are alleged to exist in Germany, it is believed here that it is virtually impossible to guarantee that any foodstuffs destined for civilian use will reach the consignees.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

PETES SWAMPED OSHAWA, BEATING THEM TEN GOALS TO THREE AT HOME.

Blue and White Team Played Their Finest Hockey of the Season Last Night When They Handsomely Walloped the Lake Shore Bunch.

A BIG SECOND PERIOD

Playing their fastest brand of hockey of the season, the Peterborough intermediates handed a handsome lacing to the Oshawa team on their own ice last night. The score by periods was 2—2, 9—2, and 10—3, and the final figure about represents the difference between the two teams. The Petes had it on the Lakeshore gang in speed and stick handling, broke up their combination by burr-like checking, and outskating their checks, whirled inside with good passing themselves. It was altogether the finest exhibition the Petes have given, and they set a pace, especially in the second period, that made Oshawa appear to be standing still.

The score in the first period does not represent the play and the visitors were unlucky in getting no more than an even break on the action of the first twenty minutes. They had five shots to Oshawa's one in that session, but Smith's fine work in the nets kept the score down, and in spite of a big superiority in the play the Petes failed to go out in front in the period. In the second stage, however, they simply overwhelmed the Fair-Weiler bunch. They were all over the Oshawa outfit for the period, sweeping down with fine combination or wriggling inside on brilliant individual rushes, while shot after shot was poured in on Smith. He stopped a lot them but he could not keep them all out with the Petes swooping in on top of him every few seconds. Seven goals was the net result of the fusilade, while Oshawa failed to find an opening at all. It was 9 to 2 at the end of the period and the last session was merely an exercise gallop, with the Petes under wraps and content to hold their opponents in check.

Going on Oshawa's showing here, a much harder task was anticipated for the Petes last night, but it was a different outfit the Oshawas were called upon to meet. Realising that a defeat would mean the end of the race as far as they were concerned, the Petes worked from the drop of the hat. They checked Oshawa every inch of the way and carried the battle right to them. Oshawa's team work was completely broken up, and they found individual work equally as hard. Freeman, who did some great rushing here, could not get away at all, so closely was he watched.

Every man on the Petes' line-up had his share in the fine win. Janes made some beautiful stops of close-in shots, while in front of him Hunter and Pethick were an impregnable defence. Both checked in grand style, while their rushing was high class. It was the best exhibition that Hunter has given in a Peterborough uniform, and the same may be said of Pethick, who was in grand form. On the forward line all were good. Park seems to get better every time out. Brilliant as his play has been all season, he surpassed himself last night. He was always on the job for a pass, while his quick and accurate shooting gave Smith a most busy evening. Parks' rink length rush for the second goal in the first period was the best individual play of the night. He broke away from a scrimmage at his own end of the rink, burst through the Oshawa forwards, beat them in the sprint down the rink, fooled both defence men and tipped the rubber past Smith. Moines' stick-handling was beautiful to watch. The little wing man was always going and his puzzling style had Oshawa guessing all the way. Halpin, back in his right position at rover, was in the thick of the fray, and his rushing and checking were high class. Kelly did not have as much success with his shooting as usual, but played a fine game nevertheless. His dashes down the side were always dangerous, while his back-checking helped materially in breaking up the Oshawa attack.

For Oshawa, Smith the little goaler, was undoubtedly the star. His clever work saved his team from a much worse beating. Jacobi was the best of the defence men, Freeman being bottled up all night. On the forward line Fair and "Red" Weller were the pick, the red top doing some especially good work.

Oshawa		Peterborough
Smith	Goal	Janes
Freeman	Right defence	Hunter
Jacobi	Left defence	Pethick
Fair	Rover	Halpin
Hall	Centre	Park
Weiler	Right wing	Moines
Canning	Left wing	Kelly

Referee—Lou E. Marsh.

The Petes jumped into the game from the first tingle of the ball and carried the play towards the Oshawa nets, where, for the first five minutes, it remained. Only sterling goal minding by Smith kept the Petes out at this stage, while the close checking of the visitors had the homesters pretty well smothered. Park tested the Oshawa goaler several times in close succession and the net guardian turned aside a couple of hard ones from Pethick's stick, following two nice rushes by the defence man. During this period Oshawa had but one opportunity, when Fair broke down the side and shot wide. Finally after five minutes' play, in which the Petes had all the better of the going, Canning scored the first goal for Oshawa on a long shot from the side which Janes failed to block.

The counter acted as a spur on the Bradley gang and they came fast for a few minutes. When Hall slipped Goal No. 2 past Janes on a pass from the corner the crowd went wild and the Oshawa squad showed all kinds of pepper. The Petes, however, soon took command of the situation. A nice combination dash was followed by a shot by Moines which Smith blocked, but Pethick swooped in and slammed the rebound into the nets. That left it 2 to 1 and it was even all five minutes afterwards when Park, grabbing the rubber at his own goal, went the length of the rink and dodged through the whole Oshawa team to beat Smith from close in.

The second period was all Peterborough. From the face-off they swarmed down on the Oshawa nets, and Smith had to do his prettiest to keep them out. He made two beautiful stops on hard shots from Park from a few feet out. Then Park slipped down the side and centred neatly to Hunter, who sent the rubber past Smith and the Petes were in front.

Jacobi was benched for holding, and while he was off the Petes had several near goals, Kelly missing a past right in front of the nets on one occasion. Then Moines got away for a nice rush and passed to Park, who scooped a beauty past Smith and it was 4 to 2. The Petes were all over the Lakeshore gang and playing them off their feet with the most brilliant hockey they have shown this year. Hunter came down with Park, and drawing the defence to one side, slipped the rubber over to the centre man who found the nets with another pretty shot. Two minutes later Halpin passed from behind the nets to Park, who once more did the needful. Then Moines took a hand in the scoring. Getting the rubber he dodged inside and fooled Smith with a bullet shot that caught the top corner of the net.

Halpin combined with Hunter for Goal No. 9. Halpin started the rush, passed to Hunter, who returned close in, and the little rover beat Smith. A minute later Halpin made it 9 to 2, when he scored from a scrimmage. There was no further scoring in the period.

The pace was slower in the last twenty minutes. With a seven goal margin the Petes could afford to adopt a "We Should Worry" policy, while the Oshawa team were well beaten and knew it. The Petes were satisfied to hold their lead and while Oshawa kept trying they could make little headway. They managed to get a goal after seven minutes play, when Weiler batted one through on a pass from the side, but Kelly soon got that back when he took a pass from Park and took Smith's measure on one of his famous side shots. Hunter was serving a penalty at the time. There was little more doing until the final whistle.

HOCKEY

The Petes are leading the group now with eight wins and one loss, while Picton have seven wins and a loss Peterborough has but one game to play, in Bowmanville, on Friday night, while Picton are slated to play Bowmanville in Bowmanville and Oshawa at home. It is likely that Oshawa will default this game. Picton play in Bowmanville to-morrow night.

The Petes came through last night's game in good shape, except Joe Moines, who was wrapped over his sore toe.

The Peterborough rooters who accompanied the team were presented at Port Hope with a mascot in the shape of a kitten It was taken along to Oshawa, viewed the game, and the result was so successful that the feline has been adopted by the Petes and accompanied them home this morning.

Tankard Games Opened To-day With Lindsay and Millbrook

The Tankard games for this district were commenced almost with the whistles at one o'clock this afternoon. Lindsay, Millbrook, and Peterborough clubs were each represented by two rinks, Millbrook getting the bye.

The games will continue through the afternoon and evening, with no protracted intermissions. A fairly large gallery watched the afternoon games, with a preconceived idea that the veterans, Flavelle and Little, of Lindsay, were about to provide some real curling against the Peterborough selections.

They presented the following players:

Dr. Wightman	Walter Reeser
W. Hall	George Carew
D. Davidson	W. McClennan
W. M. Lang (Skip)	Geo. Little (Skip)
L. Hall	R. Butler
Geo. Hill	F. Williams
R. M. Waddell	L. V. O'Connor
W. Taylor (Skip)	J. D. Flavelle (Skip)

The Millbrook rinks were composed of J. Allan, M. Carry, R. H. Edwards, and W. T. Wood (skip); and G. E. Burnham, A. E. Campbell, W. Sayles, and C. Needler (skip).

R. M. Waddell is umpire.

PETERBORO' CURLERS IN LINDSAY TO-DAY

Two rinks of curlers went to Lindsay to-day to play for the District Cup. Peterborough, Lindsay, and Bobcaygeon are represented, the locals drawing a bye. The two rinks were composed of W. Maunsell, L. Dobbin, A. Kay and W. H. Benham (skip); and Percy Fitzgerald, Alex. Archibald, W. McCracken and W. Campbell (skip).

HOCKEY SCORES AT THE GRAND HOTEL TO-NIGHT

Every incident of to-night's Senior O. H. A. game between Riversides and Victorias will come over a special G. N. W. wire direct from the arena to the Grand Hotel. Mr. Schmuck will endeavour to give the fans this season the same good service they enjoyed last season. From now on all scores of important O. H. A. and N. H. A. games will be given out. Meet at the Grand Hotel to-night and watch the incidents flash in.

LADIES' CURLING

The first schedule game for the president's prize was played on Monday morning, with the following results:

Mrs. Jamieson	Mrs. Trebilcock
Miss Morrow	Mrs. Neill
Mrs. Stratton	Miss Davidson
Mrs. Matthews	Mrs. Eastwood
Skip 12	Skip 6
Mrs. Thompson	Mrs. Burham
Miss Gladman	Mrs. McLean
Mrs. Hill	Mrs. Grant
Mrs. Sanderson	Mrs. Coulthard
Skip 12	Skip 7

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

A meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Patriotic Fund and Relief Association will be held in the City Council Chamber at eight o'clock this evening. If as many people attend as the number of times that this notice has graced this column, there will be five which is two more than attended the last meeting of the Peterborough Board of Trade.

Water Contaminated.

Complaints still continue to come in concerning the contamination of the city's water supply above the intake. A case was reported a few days ago where a quantity of raw sewerage was finding its way into the river.

An Addition.

Steps have been taken to have coal oil added to the list of supplies that can be purchased on an order from the Charity Department. This was found necessary in order to meet the demands of those who are not connected with the electric lighting service.

Committee Meeting.

There will be a meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committe at 4 p.m. to-morrow.

Board of Works.

The members of the Board of Works Committee will meet at 8 o'clock to-morrow evening.

WITH OTHER COUNCILS.

B. J. McCormick, Welland's industrial commissioner for eight years, has resigned to accept a captaincy in the 44th Regiment.

Harris Wants Rubber Tester.

Works Commissioner Harris, of Toronto, wants to buy a rubber testing machine, so that he can keep a check on contractors. He says the quantity of rubber bought by the city justifies the spending of $685 for the machine and asks the Boards of Works to buy it for him.

Judgment Reserved.

The Dominion Railway Commission has reserved judgment in the application of the Toronto Board of Trade against the increased freight rates on vegetables, as set by the G. T. R., C. P. R., and C. N. R.

Nothing in the City Treasury.

City Treasurer Patterson, of Toronto, is working upon a full report on the financial situation of the city, on instructions from Mayor Church. "We found," said the Mayor, "that we had practically nothing in the treasury."

Cabarets Condemned.

Two Montreal cabarets, condemned by the citiens a year ago, will lose their licenses on May .

Help the Poor Sailors!

The laying of a sidewalk with handrail and temporary lights at the Bloor street fill, west of Quebec avenue, is recommended by Works Commissioner Harris, of Toronto. He says it will cost $685.

Air Raid Was a Success.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 26.—The British air raid last week on the town of Essen resulted in the destruction of 400 war automobiles, according to a correspondent of The Ila delaidad. These cars were in a machine shop which was wrecked by the British bombs.

The loss of this large shop and its elaborate equipment, the correspondent continues, has been a serious blow, and the Germans have been compelled to take over a private automobile factory at Aix-la-Chapelle, where hundreds of Dutch workmen have obtained employment.

The first factory in Great Britain for the production of metallic tungsten will be opened at Sheffield in the near future.

Cressman's Two Teams In Action

Main Floor Team Get Their Revenge

Last night's game at the Brock Street rink was the great annual event for the big departmental store's two hockey teams, and live supporters. It was also a great night for the main floor boys, as they overcame a two-goal lead and doubled the score on the third floor and clothing section team, and as last year's game went 5—4 the other way, the revenge was sweet. The losers had all the best of the play the first ten minutes and scored the first two goals, but Nicholls faded badly in the last two periods and left his defence wide open, and only Manning's great work in goal prevented the score going into double figures. For the winners Vickers was perhaps best, but Goal-keeper Schuleter has a bad attack of rheumatism from so much kneeling on the ice.

The teams:

Main Floor (4)—Goal, Schuleter; right defence, Vickers; left defence, Raynor; rover, Palmer; centre, H. Cressman; wings, Emory and Mullen.

Third Floor and Clothing Section, (2)—Goal, Manning; right defence, Wolfe; left defence, Nihcols; rover, F. Cressman; centre, Long; wings, O'Brien and Carlyle.

Referee—P. Spratt.

After the game the members of both teams and all the male employees of the store were the guests of the firm at a fowl supper in Hooper's banquet hall.

HOCKEY.

The South-End Seven hereby challenge the senior leading team in the Church League to a game of hockey to be played on the Sacred Heart Rink between 7 p.m. and 8 p.m., Wednesday, January 27th Please phone acceptance to W. J. Grady, cor. Lock and Lansdowne Street.

CHOCOLATE BREAD PUDDING.

A delicious way to make good use of the stray bread ends is this old-fashioned Chocolate Bread Pudding. Two cups bread crumbs, 4 cups scalded milk, 2 tablespoons Fry's Chocolate Powder, ½ cup sugar, 2 eggs, ½ teaspoonful salt, 1 teaspoonful vanilla. Soak crumbs in warm milk. Melt the chocolate, add the sugar and enough milk taken from the bread and milk to make a thin mixture. Combine with the first mixture and add the sugar, salt, vanilla and slightly beaten eggs. Turn into a buttered baking dish and bake one hour in a moderate oven. Serve with whipped cream or hard sauce.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Some of the candidates for election to the Council board, knowing that upon their merits they would stand no chance, made pre-election promises of retrenchment, and after election went through some form of making good their promise by proposing a reduction of the civic salaries without any effect as they must have known, but they had to make some show for the pretence which secured them their election. I was glad to see the manly stand taken by Alderman McIntyre in his advocacy of retrenchment. Alderman Green, although a good representative, has a penchant for reckless expenditure and needs to be curbed; and there are others. Although the meeting was called for the reduction of salaries, the report said it seemed the desire of some of the aldermen to add a little to some of the salaries.

Alderman Green tacitly admitted that some of the salaries were excessive when he said it was only probable that some changes will be made before a great while.

From a cursory look at the long list of salaries I should say the annual expenditure amounts to about fifty thousand dollars.

Does any sane man mean to say that if this was his own private matter that it would exceed half that amount? Would not prudence suggest that these offices should be tendered for and let the applicants furnish their credentials before considering their tenders?

Not only in that event would the salaries be cut in two, but there could be a selection of the best talent, instead of that furnished by the push and pull policy.

If there can be any excuse for not reducing these salaries or some of them, there certainly can be no excuse for not cutting off some of the subordinate offices which are only super-numeraries and born of the push and pull policy, and are not all "Made-in-Canada."

Yours truly,
ECONOMY.

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—What a slur on North Monaghan that an appeal should be made to Peterborough through the press for charity for the unfortunate poor of that township which may have been caused by stress of the war!

Yours truly,

LEGITIMATE NEWSPAPER SECRET

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The United States Supreme Court to-day decided that George Burdick, City Editor, and William L. Curtin, reporter, both of the New York Tribune, who declined to tell the Federal Grand Jury in New York the source of their information for newspaper articles in regard to customs frauds, need not answer the Federal prosecutor's questions.

Austrians' Anger Forces Change in German Plan

LONDON, Jan. 26. — Frederick Ramsay, the Daily News' correspondent, telegraphs from Petrograd:

"Changes proceeding in the distribution of the German and Austrian forces on the eastern front go to confirm the belief that the trip of the Austrian heir apparent to the German Kaiser will mark a radical overhauling of the entire war plans against Russia. The volume of Austrian complaints against the German General staff has reached formidable dimensions. The Austrian officers declare that in intrusting their army to Field Marshal von Hindenburg's absolute control they have been made the victims of a confidence trick. Now that the German staff realizes Field Marshal von Hindenburg's powerful strides in central Poland have been made temporarily useless by his yielding, at the Kaiser's bidding, to the fatal fascination of Warsaw, it is making hurried concessions to Austria.

"An army of 400,000, a substantial proportion of Bavarians, is being concentrated in Hungary. It is most unlikely that the Germans will allow its use in another attempt against Servia, but these are urgent reasons for sending it forward to meet the Russians in Transylvania before Roumania enters the arena as a belligerent."

Automobile Association Ready To Help In Mobilization Scheme

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Automobile Association was held last evening in the Bank of Montreal Chambers, with a large and most enthusiastic attendance of members. Among the principal items of business, in addition to the election of officers, was the discussion in regard to the organizing of motor car owners as an auxiliary to the Home Guard, and to the offering of their services to the Militia Department to help in quick mobilization should the need arise. A committee composed of A. H. Stratton (chairman), the President and Secretary, was appointed to arrange the details.

The reports from last year were most satisfactory, indicating the affairs of the association are in a very healthy condition. Among other things, it was reported that the association had donated $100 to Mr. Miller for relief work among the needy in the City.

The following officers were elected:
Hon. President—A. E. Coulthard.
President—Dr. Amys.
Vice-President—Dr. Sutton.
Secretary-Treasurer—S. J. Keyes.

The different committees—entertainment, finance, good roads, etc.—were also appointed by the meeting.

LETTER WRITING

With the Household Editor.

How many people consider letter writing as an education in itself? So often we hear some such expression as, "I do dislike writing letters. I never know what to say nor how to express my thoughts in an interesting way." As a rule, too, these same people are the ones who can sit down and tell some interesting bit of neighboring news, or tell about some social gathering that has taken place in which they have taken part and have no difficulty in finding something to say.

One of the great secrets in writing interesting letters is to make an effort to write as we talk. We all know how to enjoy the letter that comes from a friend who can relate some incident in such an interesting and bright manner that we can almost imagine we can hear them talking.

Just how much can be gained by cultivating the writing letter habit is shown by the following illustration:

A young lady away from home for the first time in her life for more than a night or two, was cheered in her loneliness by the bright, gay, wholesome letters of a chum at home and she always said that these letters changed her whole life. "I can write that kind of a letter myself!" she said with energy one day, when the depressed feeling was routed by the sunny letter, "and I intend to do it from henceforth." After that she resolutely refused to allow her feelings to color her letters or to make her shirk her duty. She began looking about for amusing and pleasant happenings to send home and to her friends, and a new vision of life opened before her interested eyes. After that her friends begged her to go away from home often that they might receive her cheery letters, and so much happiness came into the life of the girl who had learned her lesson that she was glad to share it everywhere. Her "Correspondence School," as she called it, with herself for a pupil, spread the gospel of good cheer far and wide and encouraged multitudes of other young people to try letter writing as a means of enjoyment and profit during the long winter months.

Someone has said as a means of education, letter writing is equal to a postgraduate course in the best college in the land. Let us endeavor then not to neglect our letter writing.

German Magnate On Trial.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—A despatch to The Post from Stockholm says: "A sensation has been caused in commercial circles here by the news that Senator Poensgen, head of the great firm of L. Poensgen & Co., has been arrested for high treason, the charge being trading with the enemy. He is being tried by court-martial at Leipzig. Poensgen is one of Germany's richest magnates. He is a member of the Herrenhaus and a personal friend of the Emperor."

Close Game In Tankard

Locals Were Down on One Rink and Up on the Other More Than Half Way Home

It was a real battle between Lindsay and Peterborough in the Tankard competition to-day. At the 12th end Skip Taylor, of Peterborough, was leading Skip Flavelle, of Lindsay, by 2, the figures standing 8-6, while on the 10th end of the Little-Lang battle, the Lindsay skip was four up on the Peterborough crew, 12-8 being the figures. Eighteen ends constitute the game.

A FIGHTING BURKE IS MR. GRUBBE'S COUSIN

Mr. R. W. Grubbe's cousin, Lieutenant Dominick Burke, was in the great naval victory in the North Sea on Sunday last. He was on the "Princess Royal," and was in the Heligoland victory as well, under Vice Admiral Sir David Beatty. Lieutenant Burke comes of a fighting stock, their battle cry and present motto of their house being "Ung roy, ung foy, ung cy"—(One King, one Faith, one Law). He is the fourth son of Colonel St. George Burke, Lord of the Manor of Auberies, Sudbury, Suffolk. His five brothers are officers in the British army and have been at the front since the first of September.

FORTS BROUGHT DOWN ZEPPELIN

Falls Into Baltic Sea Where Russian Boats Destroyed It

LONDON, Jan. 27—It was officially announced in London this evening that a Zeppelin dirigible balloon which on Monday dropped bombs on the Russian port of Libau, in the Baltic Sea, was destroyed, and that the members of its crew were taken prisoners.

The Admiralty to-night made public the following official statement from the naval general staff at Petrograd concerning the incident:

"Monday morning a Zeppelin appeared above Libau and had time to drop nine bombs on the undefended part of the town. After being fired at by the forts the Zeppelin fell into the water. Small craft were sent out and destroyed the Zeppelin and took her crew prisoners."

ACID STOMACHS ARE DANGEROUS

Common Sense Advice by a Distinguished Specialist.

"Acid" stomachs are dangerous because acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach, thus hindering and preventing the proper action of the stomach, and leading to probably nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble from which people suffer. Ordinary medicines and medicinal treatments are useless in such cases, for they leave the source of the trouble, the acid in the stomach, as dangerous as ever. The acid must be neutralized, and its formation prevented, and the best thing for this purpose is a teaspoonful of Bisurated Magnesia, a simple antacid, taken in a little warm or cold water after eating, which not only neutralizes the acid, but also prevents the fermentation from which acidity is developed. Foods which ordinarily cause distress may be eaten with impunity if the meal is followed with a little bisurated magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist, and should always be kept handy.

HORSES ARE UNDYEABLE.

Method of Painting War Horses Not a Success.

LONDON, Jan. 27. — Chemical blonde horses are not wanted in the British army. It was thought at first that white horses could be utilized at the front by dyeing them a khaki blonde. But the results have been far from satisfactory. A battery of 24 white horses was treated to a coat of yellow lately and sent on duty for ten days in rough weather. On their return, they were all a beautiful bottle green. No dye has yet been discovered that will hold its colour on a horse that is being worked.

A Series of Reckless Charges Directed Against the Allies

DERRFFLINGER WAS BADLY DAMAGED

German Night Attacks Of Unusual Ferocity

Heaps of Dead Formed the German Army's Birthday Present to the Kaiser--Desperate Infantry Assaults on the French.

SPECIAL CABLE:

PARIS, France, Jan. 27.—Heaps of dead, victims of a series of reckless and bloody charges against the allies' entrenchments, formed the German army's birthday present to Emperor William to-day.

Inspired by the presence of the Kaiser on the battle front, the German forces made simultaneous night attacks of unusual ferocity upon the French and English lines from the sea coast southward nearly to Rheims, according to advices received here to-day.

Except in the vicinity of Craonne, where the French were forced to evacuate the trenches, the Germans were hurled back. They left many dead and wounded on the field.

The fighting along the wooded heights west of Craonne was most furious early to-day. Desperate infantry assaults upon the French positions followed the celebration, and song service along the German trenches, supposedly in commemoration of the Kaiser's 56th birthday. Strains of "Die Wacht am Rhine" were still drifting across to the French lines when a German attack suddenly broke on the French left. The Germans were within five hundred yards of the barbed-wire entanglements before they were discovered.

Searchlights were played upon the advancing Germans. The machine guns poured a withering fire into their ranks. The German charges against the French lines were being renewed hourly to-day.

The Kaiser is reported to be on the German battlefront, near Ypres, to-day.

NEW USE OF AEROPLANES.

Aeroplanes have been put to various uses in this war, but this is the first time that they have been used directly as an attacking agent in conjunction with infantry movements. The Germans had just made a successful charge and had penetrated the French trenches between Huertebise and Ecuion wood where several French airmen went aloft.

The fliers gained a point above the lost trenches and rained down a deadly hail of explosives. The Germans were thrown into confusion, for they had no way of meeting this attack. At that moment the word was given for the French foot to charge and recapture the ground. The infantry came on with their bayonets set and without firing a shot drove the Germans, who broke and fled in disorder, according to unofficial reports received here.

TRIED TO DRIVE BRITISH.

La Bassee, one of the most strongly held positions on the German line, has been the scene of much fierce fighting during the war, but no engagement at any point has exceeded in violence that of yesterday, when the Germans tried to drive the British troops from Givenchy, a suburb. Not only did they fail in the attempt, but the gains they had made in previous days were wiped out by the British in a spirited counter-charge. The intensity of the action is illustrated by the announcement that in one field 300 German dead were found.

The report that all is quiet in Alsace indicates that the French positions on Hartmans-Wellerkopf, at Steinbach and also at Thann have proved too strong for any force that the Germans have in that region at present.

It is presumed the enemy is waiting for reinforcements before commencing the battle anew there.

Germany Will Confine Her Naval Activities to Submarine Raids is the Opinion of the Admiralty

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 27.—Deprived of the services of the swiftest wing of her fleet, Germany will confine her naval activities in the North Sea solely to a submarine raid for many weeks, the Admiralty predicted to-day.

The German battle cruiser Derrfflinger is reported badly damaged in the Sunday morning battle that resulted in the Blucher's sinking. The Moltke is said to have been in flames as she headed back to Heligoland. Of four German speed craft that steamed out to raid the British coast, only the Seidlitz is reported to have escaped serious damage. Single handed, she is not expected to venture away from the German naval base.

ADMIRALTY'S OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

The announcement made by the Secretary of the Admiralty said:

"All the British ships and torpedo-boat destroyers engaged in Sunday's action have returned in safety to port.

"The Lion, which had some of her forward compartments flooded by shells below the waterline, was taken in tow by the cruiser Indomitable. The destroyer Meteor, which also was disabled, was taken in tow by the destroyer Liberty. Both vessels were guarded by strong escorts of destroyers. Repair to both vessels can be speedily effected.

"The total number of casualties among the officers and men reported to the Admiralty is: On the Lion, 17 men wounded; on the Tiger, one officer and nine men killed, and three officers and eight men wounded; on the Meteor, four men killed and one man wounded.

"It is not believed that any other casualties occurred, but if so, they will be immediately published.

"As soon as Vice-Admiral Beatty's report is received a fuller account will be given."

PAINS QUIT! BACK SORENESS GOES! TORTUROUS LUMBAGO CURED BY "NERVELINE"

This Wonderful Curative Liniment Has Almost Magical Powers.

You can compare a congestive pain to a little fire. When congestion smouldlers, pain comes and goes. Congestion grows into inflammation, but pain, now intense, grows excruciating, and stays, too. There is an absolute antidote of pain—it is Nerviline.

New to you, perhaps is Nerviline, but known well in many lands as the most penetrating and pain-subduing pain remedy ever discovered. Not oily or ill-smelling, but pleasant—it rubs on. Not temporary action, but permanent in its control of pain.

Not an ache or a pain anywhere that it cannot reach. No soreness or strain that it has not the power to relieve.

Nerviline is the only remedy in the world sold under guarantee—if it does not relieve you, you get your money back. Proof enough that Nerviline is a remedy that will fulfill absolutely every requirement of a pain-reliever, both for internal and external use.

Backache it cures like magic. For rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, neuralgia, stiffness, swelling or sprains, it is the only thing. Large bottle, 50 cents; trial size, 25 cents; at druggists or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

HORRIBLE MURDER

Bodies of a Man and Woman Found With Heads Crushed

ARRESTS MADE

SPECIAL WIRE:

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 27.—Bodies of a man and a woman, both with their heads crushed, were found early to-day at 146 East 114th Street. A bloody hammer and hatchet were found near the bodies.

The woman is Miss Marion J. Franklin, 28 years old, stenographer out of work, whose home was in Wilkesbarre, Pa.

The man is believed to be John Christopher, aged 58, an engineer of 140 Fourth Street, Union Course, L.I. The janiter, Joseph Kriegleder and wife were arrested by the police. The woman, the police say, was too intoxicated to talk coherently, but they gather from her mutterings that she believes her husband knows something of the deaths.

Miss Franklin boarded with the Kriegleders.

May Cause A Breach

"Nefarious System of Secret Diplomacy" Resented by Socialist Party

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 27:—Fear that the "nefarious system of secret diplomacy" may cause a breach between the United States and Great Britain, was expressed in a public manifesto issued by the executive committee of the British Socialist party to-day.

It called upon the British government to make a "full and clear" statement regarding points now in controversy with the United States.

Russians Are Gaining In Speed

German Forces Move Slowly—Deterioration of Mobility

SPECIAL CABLE:

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Military critics here comment upon the unusual features which have characterized the operations in East Prussia, Poland and Galicia thus far, especially noting the changeability in the motive facilities of the German armies. The present condition of inactivity in the eastern war theatre is largely attributable to the temporary failure of transportation methods not only of the Germans, but of the Austrians and Russians as well.

Whether it is the scarcity of petrol and rubber in Germany which renders marching or the use entirely of railroads necessary, or whether the operations have reached such a stage that even rapid movement of men cannot change the situation is a matter of conjecture.

According to Petrograd advices, the Germans are slowing up in their movements, whereas the Russians are gaining in speed. The Grand Duke Nicholas has not yet put his arrangements in such a shape that he and his generals are satisfied with them, but they are now convinced that the mobility of the German troops is rapidly deteriorating.

It is said to be this reason that impelled the sudden despatch of a large Russian army against the German stronghold at Thorn. The Russian leaders know that if the transportation services were working well the Germans could send reinforcements there and could eventually turn back the attempt, but they had information that the weather was interfering with the railway service and that the time was ripe for such a stroke.

The directors reported, suggesting certain changes and improvements on the grounds, seating accommodation, etc., but on motion it was decided to take no action at present.

Mr. H. J. Miller presented a protest against award of prize to team of agricultural horses. Moved by J. J. Moore, seconded by F. A. Easson, that no action be taken by the society regarding this protest. Carried.

Moved by J. J. Moore, seconded by R. A. Nelson, that no action be taken by the secretary with regard to holding a spring stallion or seed and grain exhibition. Carried.

Moved by F. A. Easson, seconded by W. A. Nelson, that the society hold a field crop competition this season, the grain selected being white oats. Carried.

Other business, such as request for expert judges, revision of prize list, letting grounds, etc., was left over to the meeting of directors in May.

Moved by F. A. Easson, seconded by G. Howson, that Mr. P. Drummond be elected president. Moved as an amendment by John Lang, seconded by J. J. Moore, that Mr. H. Humphies be appointed president. Motion carried.

The directors of last year, with the name of John Byram added, were reappointed.

The directors are: J. Starke, J. J. Moore, W. J. Miller, D. Edwards, N. A. Anderson, Alex. Wood, N. Renwick, D. Neish, F. A. Easson, G. Howson, M. O. Keefe, R. A. Nelson, J. H. Fife, E. Wood, Enos Kent, N. Fife, S. Comrie, W. A. Nelson and John Byram.

Auditors: John Lang, James McNeil.

Moved by F. A. Easson, seconded by G. Howson, that John A. Drummond be appointed secretary-treasurer, and that A. Shearer continue to act until Mr. Drummond's appointment is confirmed. Carried.

Moved by J. J. Moore, seconded by John Lang, that Mr. H. Humphries be appointed vice-president. Carried.

Moved by J. J. Moore, seconded by R. A. Nelson, that Mr. H. Humphries and Mr. G. A. Drummond be appointed delegates to attend the Associations of Fairs at Toronto. Carried.

On motion of J. J. Moore, seconded by John Lang, the secretary was to convey to Mr. R. Humphries the hearty thanks of the Agricultural Society for the long and very efficient services he has rendered the society as president, and to convey to him the wish that he may soon be restored to his usual health and strength.

On motion of J. J. Moore, seconded by D. Edwards, a vote of thanks was presented to the retiring secretary, Mr. A. Shearer.

More than 2,000 miles of line and 11,000 miles of wires and cables and 183 telephone exchanges were established in India last year.

Husband Reported Killed Is Alive

Met His Wife Who Was Wearing Mourning for Him

SPECIAL CABLE:

NEW YORK, Jan. 25—Mrs. James McKay Oswald (who was Miss Davina McRoberts of St. Paul, Minn., now the wife of Capt. Oswald of the 7th Royal Fusiliers, reached New York o-day on the steamship Cameronia, wearing mourning for her husband who stood at her side as the ship docked.

She had not had time to purchase other garments before the "Cameron" left Glasgow, where she had been wearing black because her husband's name had been listed as among the dead in the trenches in France.

Capt. Oswald was only wounded, however. When he had recovered he went to Dundee, where he had left his bride, and found that she had left and, mourning im as dead, was about to sail home on the "Cameronia." He hurried to Glasgow and reached there a short time before the ship sailed.

Geological survey figures estimate the coal production of the United States last year at about 510,000,000 short tons, a decrease from 1913 of about 60,000,000 tons.

Keep Your Lungs Strong

This advice is doubly important with the knowledge that every three minutes some one in the United States succumbs to consumption and many refuse to realize they are afflicted until it is too late.

It is after colds or sickness, from overwork, confining duties or when general weakness exists that tubercular germs thrive because the resistive powers of the body are weakened.

Only with fresh air, sunshine and abundant rich blood can one hope to arrest their progress, and the concentrated fats in Scott's Emulsion furnish fuel for rich blood, and its rare nourishment helps strengthen the lungs while it builds up the forces.

If you work indoors, tire easily, feel languid or run-down Scott's Emulsion is the most strengthening food-medicine known and is free from stupefying drugs. Avoid substitutes.

"THE BATTLE CRY"

Charles Neville Buck

"There's never a day I'm not in danger," he replied in a matter-of-fact tone. "I've got pretty well used to it."

"But some day," she broke out, "they'll get you."

He shrugged his shoulders. "Maybe," he said.

"Oh, don't you see the horrible futility of all this?" she protested, her cheeks flushing with her vehemence. "Don't you see that it all ends in nothing but an endless chain of bloodshed—the sacrifice of useful lives?"

"I've seen that all along." His voice was grave. "What I don't see is how to help it."

They turned and walked for a time in silence, then she heard him talking and his fashion of speech was that of pleading from a bruised heart.

"What do ye reckon I'm gainin' by it all? Do ye 'low that I like bein' a man the world belittles as a blood-spiller? Don't ye suppose I'd like to be able to raise my eyes to a woman like you without lookin' acrost a space I can't never come over? My God, do ye reckon that's pleasin'? Every time I starts acrost there to see ye in the night-time I knows that maybe I won't get there, because of the enemies that's plannin' in the blind dark. Do ye suppose I like that?—I like it—like hell." At the oath which had come quite unconsciously from his lips he saw Juanita draw away from his side with a little gesture of repulsion, and his own features stiffened. "I asks your pardon," he said. "We mountain men are just barbarians, ye know. Ye can't hardly expect much of us. Nobody didn't ever teach me that cussin' was impolite. Ye see I ain't learned manners."

"It isn't because it's bad manners," she said quietly, "but because there isn't any sense in your making a virtue of mountain faults. You aren't as little as that."

"I asks your pardon," he repeated humbly. "If ye don't like it, that's reason enough for me, I reckon."

"What were you saying?" she prompted; and he went on.

"Much as I hates the McBriars I know that a day's comin' when them and us have got to stand together against another enemy."

"What enemy?" she asked.

"I don't know; I only know he's comin'. Maybe it'll be your friend, Malcolm, maybe somebody else. But whoever it is I want to be here to fight him. I'm hopin' to last that long."

As her influence grew with Bad Anse Havey, so it was growing at the school. She had to turn away pupils who had come across the mountains on wearisome journeys because as yet she had only limited room and no teachers save herself—and Dawn to help her with the youngest.

At the front of the hall which led into the main schol building was a rack with notches for rifles and pegs for pistols. She told all who entered that she made only one stipulation and that was that whoever crossed the threshold must leave his armament at the door. At first some men turned away again, taking their children with them, but as time went on they grudgingly asquiesced and at last with a sense of great victory she persuaded three shaggy fathers, who were coming regularly with their children, to ride back home unarmed.

Disarmament was her idea for the great solution and when Bad Anse came over, as he came every night now, she led him with almost breathless eagerness to the rack, and showed him two modern rifles and one antiquated squirrel gun.

"What's the idea?" he asked with his sceptical smile.

He found it very difficult to listen always to talk about the school in which he felt no interest and to regard his vow of silence as to her herself whom he dumbly worshipped.

"Look around you, Anse," she commanded. "Do you see any dirt or dust anywhere? No, we are teaching cleanliness and sanitation, but there's is just one place here where the spiders are welcome to come and spin their webs unmolested. It's that rack of guns. Did you ever hear of the shrine at Lourdes?"

"I reckon not," he confessed uneasily. Of late he had become a little ashamed of the things he did not know.

"Well, this is going to be like it, Anse. It is told that when the lame and halt and blind came to Lourdes to pray, they went away straight and strong and clear of vision. There hang at the shrine there numberless crutches and canes and bandages, discarded because the men who limped in or were carried there, went away needing them no more. Some day your old order of crippled things here in the mountains is going straight and strong, and these guns will be the discarded crutches."

He looked at her and if no response was stirred for her prophecy, at least he could not contemplate, without a jarring of enthusiasm, the flushed face and glowing eye with which she spoke. It was all worth while if it could bring that sparkle of delight to her countenance.

"It's right prety, but it won't hardly work," he said. "These men will leave them guns just so long as they don't need 'em. I'm glad to see ye pleased—but I don't want to see ye disappointed."

"We'll see."

"It's the same old mistake, ye're makin'," he told her as they sat before the blaze of her fire. "Ye're seekin' to grow a poplar in a flower pot. You're overlookin' the fact that these people are human."

"No, I'm insisting that they're human. I'm trying to give them human privileges. Sanitation and soap are more powerful than guns."

Dawn passed the door at the side, pausing to nod to Anse Havey. She was very straight with her head raised and her delicate features thrown into relief in the firelight. Her carriage was as free and graceful as some wild thing's which is young and instinct with the joy of living.

"Look there," whispered the man, leaning forward. "Have you got girls back there in the cities straighter or sweeter than her? She's one of my people. Is anything the matter with her? Is that a weed or a flower?"

"She's a flower. So was her mother once. Do you remember the old woman—old at forty—inciting her son to go out and do murder? Shall Dawn come to that, too? All flowers were once weeds, and without cultivation all flowers will be weeds again."

He sat silent and the girl went on.

"Look at yourself. What is to become of your splendid heritage of body and brain and manhood? What will you be in twenty years, if they let you live that long? You will have left nothing but courage.

"You stand for the law of the wolf pack, and the law of the wolf pack is that when a younger and stronger rises, you must go down. Why should you be the camp-follower of a worn out idea? Why shouldn't you be captain of your own soul?"

He rose and looked down on her with a face suddenly drawn.

"Ye're upsettin' everything," he said almost harshly. "Ye're upsettin' me as well as the rest."

"That," she declared with a note of triumph in her voice, "is what I came for. Unrest is divine."

Her face was alight with the pleasure of her fancied triumph. She was smiling up at him and fondly imagining that she was changing him, too, bringing out what was finest in him, and her woman nature was very happy. He said nothing as his hands were clamped behind his back and his lips set against the flood of words which surged to them and clamoured for outlet. He wanted to tell her of the wild unrest that had come into his soul, which had carried away in its swirling torrent the wreckage of all that had before been fixed and constant. He want to tell her that if she asked it, he would lay at her feet the ruins of his own deep loyalty to his people, and that for that weakness he hated himself bitterly. He wanted to tell her that his life would never again know the quiet of satisfaction because he loved a woman hopelessly, and since she chose to take him as a concrete example in her arguments he stood for a man as dissatisfied and wretched as any man could be; a man whose soul was crying for what it could never have.

But she chose to let him be her friend—and nothing more—so he must bite back those words, and finally when he was able to speak again he only repeated after her in a low voice, "Captain of my own soul!"

* * * * *

A little before Christmas old Milt McBriar went to Lexington, and there he met a heavily bearded man in rough clothes who had arived that morning from the West. They conferred in a cheap eating house which bears a ragged and unwholesome appearance, and which is kept by an exile from the mountains.

"Now, tell me, Milt," suggested Luke Thixton briefly, "what air this thing ye wants me ter do. I'm done with these hyar old flat lands thet they talks so much erbout."

But Milt McBriar's eyes had been vacantly watching the door. It was a glass door with its lower portion painted red and bearing in black letters the name of the proprietor.

"Damn!" he exclaimed violently, but under his breath.

"What's bitin' ye?" asked his companion as he bolted his food.

"I jest seed Breck Havey pass by that door," enlightened the chief. "But I reckon he couldn't hardly recognize you this fer back. I don't want no word of yore comin' to go ahead of ye."

"What is it I'm a goin' back ter do?" insisted the exile doggedly.

"Oh," commented Milt McBriar, "we've got ter talk thet over at some length. Ye're a-goin' back ter git Anse Havey, but ye hain't a-goin' jest yit."

Doctor Said She Had Bright's Disease.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS CURED HER.

Bright's disease is a term applied to one of the most serious of all diseases of the kidneys, the symptoms of which are often of a severe character.

Severe pains in the back appear at first and are followed by disturbances of the urinary organs which show that the urine contains a large amount of albumen. Dropsy is also another forerunner of the dreaded Bright's disease. On the first sign of any kidney trouble you should at once put the kidneys right by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. The pill that cures kidney troubles only.

Mrs. C. A. Heistand, Mooswa, Alta., writes: "Last May I was taken down sick. The doctor told me I had Bright's disease. My kidneys got so bad I could not rest day or night. The doctor's medicine did not give me any relief. I used four boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, and they put me in good shape again."

Doan's Kidney Pills are the original kidney pill, so when you ask for "Doan's" do not accept any others with similar names.

Price, 50c per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

Associations.

All experience evinces that human sentiments are strongly affected by associations. The recurrence of anniversaries or of longer periods of time naturally freshens the recollection and deepens the impression of events with which they are historically connected. Renowned places also have a power to awaken feeling which all acknowledge. No American can pass by the fields of Bunker Hill, Monmouth and Camden as if they were ordinary spots on the earth's surface. Whoever visits them feels the sentiment of love of country kindling anew, as if the spirit that belonged to the transactions which have rendered these places distinguished still hovered round with power to move and excite all who in future time may approach them.—Daniel Webster.

Long Honeymoon.

Marriage among Moslems in India is followed by other ceremonies. The bride, with the bridegroom, is taken back to her father's house after four days; then again she comes back to her husband's house after ten days' stay and then after a stay of twenty days returns to her father's house for at least six months. Thus instead of having a short period of honeymoon they make it last almost a year.

Why Roquefort is Strong.

Roquefort cheese gets its sharp flavor from caproic, caprylic and capric acids and their salts, which are formed by a sort of hydrolysis of the fat during the ripening period. This change is caused by a microbe called Penicillium roqueforti. These acids have a peppery taste.

Danger Signals Warn You of Approaching Paralysis

You may be restless, nervous, irritable and sleepless, but you think there is nothing to be alarmed at. You have no appetite, digestion is impaired, and there is weakness and irregularity of other bodily organs. You feel tired in body and mind, and find that you lack the energy to attend to the daily task.

MRS. ALLAN.

You may not realize that these are the symptoms of nervous prostration and the danger signals which warn you that some form of paralysis is the next step of development.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the most successful restorative for the nerves that has ever been offered to the public. This has been proven in many thousands of cases similar to the one described in this letter.

Mrs. Thos. Allan, R.F.D., 8, Sombra, Ont., writes:—"Five years ago I suffered a complete breakdown, and frequently had palpitation of the heart. Since that illness I have had dizzy spells, had no power over my limbs (locomotor ataxia) and could not walk straight. At night I would have severe nervous spells, with heart palpitation, and would shake as though I had the ague. I felt improvement after using the first box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and after continuing the treatment can now walk, eat and sleep well, have no nervous spells and do not require heart medicine. I have told several of my neighbors of the splendid results obtained from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

German Opinion of Americans

One factor is the general humbug and hypocrisy of American public opinion. Religion, virtue, abstemiousness, candor and honor are the stock phrases with which Americans are stuffed on every possible and impossible occasion, and the supposed violence done to the neutrality of Belgium was grist to the mills of these hypocrites. . . . In any case, people in Germany need not bother themselves in the least about what the Americans think or say, as long as the German arms win. That is all that matters, for the American is a thorough opportunist, and never has any sympathy with the side that is beaten.—Hamburger Fremdenblatt.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

RUNNING THE BLOCKADE

By Donald Chamberlin.

Fort Royal South Carolina, is a fine harbour. In that region are many islands lying between the mainland and the ocean on which is produced what is called sea island cotton, an article of very superior grade. When the war between the states opened and the southern ports were blockaded this was a favourite point for running the blockade with cargoes of this valuable cotton. Where it was grown it was worthless; beyond the Yankee blockading squadron it was often worth more than a dollar a pound.

The United States Government sent a naval and military force to Port Royal to occupy the harbour, and adjoining the islands, some 15 or 20 miles from the mouth of the harbour, is the town of Beaufort, and one day during the early part of the war a steamer lay at the wharf taking on cotton. A man on the deck was watching a gang of negroes rolling the bales aboard. A long, thin man with lean cheeks and a tuft of beard on his chin and wearing a butternut suit came sauntering along and stood looking at the loading.

"Are yo' the cap'n o' this hyer ship?" he said to the man on deck.

"I am."

"I'm lookin' fur transpo'tation. I want to git out o' this dod rotted, Yankee ridden country. I've sold out my little plantation and put the money into cotton. I got 20 bales."

"Don't you know that the Lincoln government won't let any cotton leave the Confederacy?"

"You don't say so!"

"Yes. I'll take your cotton for you, but there's a big chance of its being captured by a Yankee gunboat lying off the mouth of the harbour. If so it will be confiscated."

"Wall, now, I reckon that's interferin' with a man's nateral rights."

"But if you git it through, if it's sea island cotton, you'll make a small fortune out of it."

"Well?"

"If yo' want to take the risk I'll carry it for you for 20 per cent. of what yo' sell it for."

"Yo' goin' to carry over this what yo' takin' aboa'd?"

"I'm goin' to try."

"I'm afeard I mought lose my cotton."

"In that case yo' bette' not risk it."

"But yo' say yo' goin' to risk it with yo' cotton."

"I am."

"What yo' paintin' yo' ship that colo' fo'?"

"That's the colour of a fog. I shall not go to sea till I can git a misty night. That gray paint is exactly the shade of a misty mo'ning just befo' day."

A bargain was struck between the two, the captain agreeing to take the lean man and his cotton to England for 20 per cent. of its value in Liverpool provided the blockade could be run safely. The 20 bales were taken to the wharf and rolled aboard. The owner remained ashore till a foggy night should enable the ship to get to sea, there being five chances of success to one of capture.

Finally an east wind brought in murky weather, and the captain told his passenger that there was a prospect of her getting out early the next morning. The latter went aboard with his baggage, a hair trunk, a handbox and a leather case evidently containing a musical instrument. But the captain, who was busy superintending getting the ship off, had no time to inspect the passenger's baggage.

Steaming down on to the broader waters the ship cast anchor between two Confederate forts on either shore to wait for an opportunity. There were considerable wind and rain during the night, but nothing to conceal a ship. About 7 o'clock in the morning the wind lulled and a dense fog settled down. The captain concluded to try to slip out between the gunboats outside the harbour. Just before the fog shut everything from view he took his bearings from his compass and, with speed only sufficient for steerage way, aided by an outgoing tide, drifted to the harbour's mouth.

On passing out a dim hulk appeared on his port quarter. He knew that it was a blockader, but he had the advantage of his ship's being the colour of the mist, and he passed safely. Half an hour passed, and he was congratulating himself on having cleared the blockading ships, when from below there arose the resonant sound of a bugle. Dashing down the companionway, he followed the sound, which led him to his passenger's state-room. The man was practising on a cornet. The captain with a blow sent it scurrying on the floor.

"You idiot!" he exclaimed. "What do you mean?"

"What do yo' mean yo'self? I always practice at this time o' the mornin'."

"Fool! Do you want to lose your cotton?"

Through a porthole they heard "Ship ahoy!" then "Heave to!" and the captain knew it was all over. They were in possession of a Yankee gunboat.

The lean man was a Connecticut Yankee, and his prize money for his services amounted to $100,000. He had obtained a commission from Washington to prevent blockade running and had been furnished with means that enabled him to carry out his purpose in his own way.

Playing Safety.

There was a diplomat whose mind
Was one of wondrous strength,
Yet who in speech was not inclined
To go to any length.

On the piano he could play,
Likewise the violin.
He touched the harp strings in a way
That great applause would win.

The classics he would sound with zeal,
With ragtime, too, he paced.
He was equipped for an appeal
To every style and taste.

And now when interviewers seek
His presence to commune
He smiles on them, but does not speak.
He simply plays a tune.

Real Need of Two Cars.

"Still have two cars?"

"Yes."

"I thought you intended to sell the older one?"

"No. My son and his high school friends keep the old car busy."

"I see. You got the use of the new car yourself."

"No; I don't. It keeps the new car hustling to tow the old car home."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Unseen.

Tell me, Uncle Wiseman, why
Can't I love an unseen maid?
Never by her tears have I
Been dismayed.

She's appropriately dressed,
Asks no questions—that's a boon—
Sings the songs I like the best,
And in tune.

Whatever my mood may be,
She is generous and sweet.
We shall never quarrel—we Shall not meet!

—Puck.

NAMUR AND THE "BANK."

How Michael Godfrey Was Killed at Belgian City.

By a strange coincidence Namur, the Belgian city which is figuring so prominently in the great European war, is connected with a stirring story concerning the Bank of England.

As everyone knows, William Patterson, a Scottish farmer, was the founder of the great institution in Threadneedle Street. His plan for a national bank was submitted to the Government in 1691, but it was not till three years later that the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Montague, and Mr. Michael Godfrey, one of the richest merchants in London, put the scheme into operation. At this time England was at war with France, and Godfrey, who was the bank's first Deputy Governor, left his peaceful occupation to visit Namur, then being vigorously besieged by the British forces under William III. Godfrey had undertaken this perilous journey in order to consult the King respecting the supply of money to the army necessary to carry on the war. Thinking that the safest place would naturally be somewhere near His Majesty, Michael ventured into the trenches, and soon caught the eye of the King.

"Mr. Godfrey," said William, gravely, "I think you ought not to run this risk. You are a civilian, and can be of no use here."

"True," courteously replied Mr. Godfrey; "but I am no more exposed than your Majesty."

"Yet," returned the King, "I am in my duty, and therefore have a more reasonable claim to preservation."

At this moment a cannon ball, fired from the ramparts, struck Michael Godfrey and killed him instantly.

This sad event greatly affected William, and he commanded the body to be taken to England, where it was laid to rest in St. Swithin's Church, near the Bank of England. In the church records Godfrey's memory is honored thus:—

"He died a bachelor, much lamented by all his friends, relations, and acquaintances, for his integrity, his knowledge, and the sweetness of his manners."

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GREY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural colour dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and abundant. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old recipe which can be depended upon to restore natural colour and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two it becomes beautifully dark, glossy and abundant.

Havana's Pathetic Little Door.

This little door is one of the entrances to La Casa Beneficencia, the large and well regulated orphan asylum of Havana. The passerby might easily take it for a coal hole if coal were generally used in Cuba, for when the door is closed there is nothing to indicate its use. On opening it, however, one finds a revolving circular box divided into three compartments. It does not need a very vivid imagination to picture the drama that has been enacted here on many occasions.

A woman, her head covered with a black shawl, her arms holding a bundle to her breast, hurries along the narrow street. She reaches the little door. Glancing furtively about to see that no one is looking she opens the door and, shaken by stifled sobs, kisses for the last time the baby she is about to renounce. She places the child in the circular box, gives it a turn and hurries on. Inside one of the Sisters of Charity hears the tinkle of a bell. It marks the arrival of a newcomer in La Casa Beneficencia.—Boston Herald.

Pearls Off Irish Coast.

Pearl fishing may become one of the industries of Ireland. It is reported that a party of Englishmen have picked up pearls in the River Moy, near Swinford, County Mayo, which are estimated to be worth over $5,000. The country people had found pearls in the river previously, but were unaware of their value. One of them showed a specimen he had for seven years in his possession to an Englishman, and the latter immediately gave him $25 for it.

WOES OF THE POOR RICH.

How the Wife of One Wealthy Man Got Her Spending Money.

In the American Magazine, in a story by Rebecca Hooper Eastman, is a satire on the poor rich, in which the wife of a wealthy man tells as follows how she gets hold of her spending money:

"Kitty, dear, I can't bear that you should misjudge me, and so I am going to tell you what not a soul in this world knows. I have absolutely no money and no way of getting any. My husband doesn't think it is necessary for me to have money when I can charge things. I owe you a dollar. You think I have forgotten, but I have not. And I am going to pay you—when I can.

"I want to tell you that I have just discovered a way to make money. You see, I have borrowed so many small sums for tips and car fares that I am quite in debt.

"We have one of the finest cooks in New York, as you know, and I order him to make cakes. He thinks they are for a bazaar. In reality I sell these cakes at a certain woman's exchange for $1 a loaf, cash, Kitty. I leave my car at a nearby hotel, walk through the hotel to the exchange on the next street, wear a plain suit and a thick veil, which I put on in the hotel dressing room. Nobody knows."

THE EASIEST WAY TO END DANDRUFF

Stop Falling Hair and Itching Scalp

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy, every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you want to keep your hair looking rich, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for nothing destroys the hair so quickly. It not only starves the hair and make it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and everybody notices it. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

TEACHING KAISERISM

German Schoolboys Were Taught Hatred of Britain and France

It is common knowledge that Germany has for years been preparing for war. We preached peace while our German kinsmen have been increasing their armaments, laying their diplomatic traps and instilling the lust of war into the national mind, wrote a man who taught school in Germany up to within a month of the outbreak of the war. As English teacher at a Prussian Oberrealschule I daily beheld the havoc wrought upon boys by misguided teaching. When I read of the fiendish deeds committed by the Germans in Belgium I see in my mind's eye a class of innocent lads and seem to hear the master haranguing them. There he stands, with face flushed, with eyes astare, teaching his pupils the doctrine of rampant Kaiserdom, a devil's gospel that sears the heart.

I well recall going for a walk with one of the staff, a handsome Dusseldorfer, on ordinary occasions an excellent fellow. The conversation somehow turned upon France and the French, and forthwith he burst into insults, threatening France with a day of awful reckoning, the great day to which the Germans refer in the phrase "When it comes off." ("Wenn's losgeht").

This man's views on England were those of many other Germans. England was to him merely negligible among the nations. With no conscript army to meet the German millions, with a navy soon to be outclassed and outnumbered by a rival at Kiel, England was presently to see the wisdom of bowing to the Kaiser, thanking him that the Prussian hordes were not overrunning her.

Our school was richly bedecked with pictures of Bismarck and of scenes from the Franco-German war. On the top floor, along the corridor, were frescoes illustrative of certain lines in the poet Korner's "Aufruf." The lines "Thou shalt drive the steel into the foeman's heart" were illustrated by a bloody picture of French soldiers being skewered on Prussian swords.

In Harms' "Earth-lore of the Fatherland," one of the best German textbooks of school geography, the following is to be read in the chapter on Heligoland:

"There is a biting charm about it to think that England should have thrust her own weapon into her rival's hand. There was enough laughing when in 1890 Kaiser Wilhelm exchanged Zanzibar and Witu for Heligoland. The English newspapers swam in glee. But then came another tune."

The Hull of a "Dreadnought"

An amazing amount of material goes to the making of a 22,000-ton battleship. Into the hull alone enter some 9,869 tons of steel and iron, an amount more than equal to the whole of the material from keel to fighting tops in many of the pre-Dreadnought war vessels. Of this amount of material, over 6,000 tons is steel plating, 2,856 tons is for shapes, channelling, and angle pieces; the weight of the rivets used exceeds 530 tons, these rivets ranging in diameter from ⅝ inch to ½ inches and there are over 400 tons of specially shaped steel castings, ranging in weight from two to eighteen tons each. These figures include nothing for gun mounting or special armoring, but are for the mere construction of the bare hull alone.

Force of Habit.

A humorist was looking over a mill, and while in an unguarded moment he was perpetrating one of his jokes upon an innocent operative he was drawn into some ponderous gearing and badly crushed.

They extricated him from the machinery and laid him on the floor.

"Who is it? Who is it?" was the anxious inquiry as a crowd collected.

Nobody knew.

Then the funny man suddenly opened his eyes and strove to speak. A sympathetic bystander bent down to catch his words.

"There's good reason why nobody recognizes me," he whispered painfully.

"What is it?" asked the sympathetic one.

"Because," the humorist explained as he saw a chance to get one home, "it's because I've been traveling incog."

That was his final effort, for he never spoke again.—London Tit-Bits.

SUFFERED FROM BILIOUS HEADACHE.

At Times Thought She Would Go Mad.

Headaches are one of the most aggravating troubles a person can have. They are many and varying; but when the headache starts you may be sure that there is some other chief cause of this most painful difficulty. The stomach may go wrong, the bowels become constipated, the blood may not circulate properly, but the presence of the headache clearly shows that there is some other baneful disease which is liable to assert itself unless the cause of the headache is removed. Get rid of the headache and thus perhaps save yourself many years of trial and suffering.

Burdock Blood Bitters has, for the past forty years, been curing all kinds of headaches, and has also proved itself to be a remedy that cures where all others fail. It does this by removing the cause of the trouble.

Miss Mary A. Roberts, Hampton, N.B., writes: "For about two years I have suffered from bilious headache. At times I thought I would really go mad. Not long ago a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters which I did, and after taking three bottles I have never been troubled with any kind of a headache. I think that B.B.B. is one of the wonders of the world. I can safely recommend it to all who suffer from bilious headache."

Burdock Blood Bitters is the oldest and the best known blood medicine on the market to-day, and is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

POSTIES AT THE FRONT.

Thirty Thousand Have Joined the British Army.

LONDON, Jan. 28. —Thirty thousand men connected with the British General Post Office have joined the army. The number of deaths among soldiers from this branch of the Government service since the war began has reached a total of 570.

The employes who have not volunteered for service at the front have formed an organization which will provide for the families of those who have gone. The organization has levied a voluntary contribution of forty cents on every hundred dollars of the salaries of members, and this assessment will bring in nearly $400,000 a year.

Infantry Training

The Matter in This Column is from the Official Manual 1914 and is Published According to Orders of the Army Council

FORM TWO —DEEP. The leading man will mark time, the remainder of the squad will regain their positions in file, marking time as they reach their places.

FORWARD. The squad will move forward in file.

Note. If it is desired to halt on completion of the movement, the command will be AT THE HALT FORM TWO—DEEP, when the leading man will halt, the remainder halting as they reach their places in file.

45. The Formation of Fours and Elementary Training in Marching Discipline.

1. Column of fours is the ordinary marching formation of infantry on a road. The greatest attention should be paid to training the recruit to keep the prescribed distance from, and to cover exactly, the man in front. Order, comfort, and the reduction of fatigue, depend on the maintenance of exact distance by the section of fours. Exact covering and dressing when moving in fours is to be kept even when marching at ease unless orders to the contrary are issued.

2. In order that the left four may always be complete, the file on the left of a squad will always act as a left file, and the second file from the left as a right file in forming fours.

3. A test of good marching in fours is the position of the men when they turn into line. If there are no gaps or irregularities in the line, and the squad occupies the same frontage as before it formed fours, the marching is good. This test should be frequently applied during the instruction of recruits, and the slightest carelessness as regards the maintenance of the exact distance should be checked at once.

4. Units moving in fours will march on the extreme left of roads, and, during halts, men will fall out on the left of the road. It is of great importance when large forces are moving that a portion of the road is kept absolutely clear of troops for the passage of traffic and communication of orders, and it is necessary that the soldier should be accustomed from the first to marching in this manner, e.g. when marching to and from the range, when fatigue parties are marching to and from their work, &c.

46. Forming fours (FIIV).

1. In line in two ranks at the halt. FORM—FOURS The left files will take a pace of 30 inches back, and then a side pace of 30 inches, so as to cover their right files, the first pace being taken with the foot furthest from the right files. In this formation the squad will stand in fours.

FORM—TWO-DEEP The left files will move to their original position in line by taking a side pace of 30 inches, and a pace forward of 30 inches; or if the squad has been turned about while in fours, a side pace and a pace back.

2. To the right or left. FORM—FOURS As above.

RIGHT (or LEFT). Each man of the squad will turn in the named direction.

3. To reform line. LEFT (or RIGHT) —TURN. Each man of the squad will turn in the direction named, and then form two-deep, as described above.

Note. If it is required to remain in fours, the word of command will be IN FOURS, LEFT (or RIGHT)—TURN.

4. When on the march in fours. FORM—FOURS RIGHT (or LEFT). As in (2) and (3) but the right files will mark time two paces while the left files are moving to their places.

Note. Should the command RIGHT (or LEFT) INCLINE be given instead of RIGHT (or LEFT) the squad will incline instead of turning in the required direction. When inclining the squad will remain in fours.

FORM TWO —DEEP. The left files will move up or fall back into their places in file. If on the move, the right files will mark time two paces.

Note. When a squad is turned from line to a flank in fours, if to the right, the left will direct, and if to the left, the right will direct, without further word of command, and each section of fours will dress accordingly.

47. The Passage of Obstacles.

1. When a stream, ditch, bank or other obstacle is to be crossed it will generally be found better to increase rather than diminish the front by causing the men to open out gradually before they arrive at the obstacle.

2. It is frequently advisable to point out a place on the far side of the obstacle, and order the men to form up in a named formation at that place; each man will then find his own way across.

3. If a line is to pass a narrow place, its front may be reduced by forming fours, file, or single file to a flank or inwards. Fours may be formed, and these fours closed to a flank or on the centre.

4. If a narrow place has to be passed through in column it is important to avoid checks. It is therefore advisable to increase the pace during the passage, if it is not so long as to cause undue fatigue to the men.

48. Movements in fours.

1. Changing direction. RIGHT (or LEFT)—WHEEL. The inner man of the leading four will move round a quarter of the circumference of a circle having a radius of four feet, stepping short to enable the other men of the four to wheel with him, when the quarter circle is completed the four leads on in the new direction. The other fours in succession will follow in the footsteps of the leading four without increasing or diminishing their distances from each other or altering the time.

IF CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH AND SICK

Look, Mother! If tongue is Coated give "California Syrup of Figs."

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is, they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sours, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

Britain Does More Than Expected

Exceeds Her Share of the Burden Says Russia's Premier—No Premature Peace

SPECIAL CABLE:

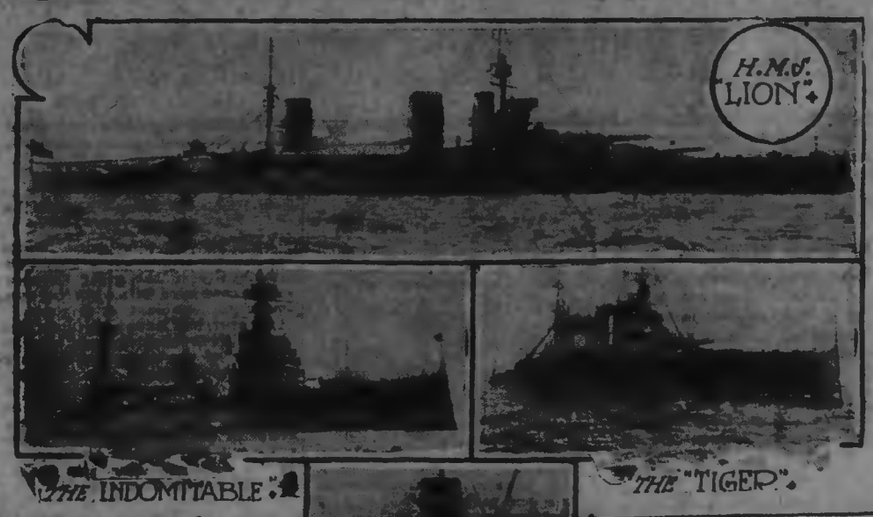
PETROGRAD, Jan. 27—A number of questions were put to foreign minister Sassanoff by members of the Duma at to-day's sitting of the Budget Committee.

Concerning the help England was rendering the allies, France and Russia, M. Sassanoff said that Great Britain had undertaken a burden far heavier than had been expected of her.

As to whether there was any danger of the conclusion of a premature peace, M. Sassonoff said emphatically that Russia would remain faithful to the spirit of the Imperial manifesto and the agreement with the allies not to conclude an independent peace).

Deputy Kovalesky urged that the government issue a statement promising that the legislative assemblies and the organs of public opinion be consulted before entering upon an elaboration of peace conditions.

Other questions raised concerned Italy, Roumania, Bulgaria, Rumelia, Palestine, Persia and Afghanistan, and the question of the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus and the relations between Japan and China.



HOW SOLDIERS LIVE AND FIGHT IN THE TRENCHES.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—When it rains the trenches are half filled with water. The cold is always of the damp, penetrating, dreadful kind that chills to the very marrow. Hot food is served three times a day to the men in the trenches by other soldiers, who scurry like rabbits through long uncovered tunnels running back from the works concealing the guns.

These men in the trenches must have good food in order that they can have good blood, and if they have good blood, they have good courage, they keep warm because their circulation is good and their extremities are warm from exercise. Many men are invalided, however, because their blood and their stomach were not right to withstand the awful hardships of this winter campaign.

When you do not properly digest your food your blood becomes thin and every organ of the body soon feels the effect. The result is—headaches, sleeplessness, nervousness and many other symptoms—due to accumulation of poisons in the body. Unless the stomach is given aid at this stage—more serious illnesses follow. Now is the time to help your weakened stomach—now is the time to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery (in tablet or liquid form). It has the same power to set you right as it has been proved to have in thousands of other cases. It will help your stomach so that the food you eat will nourish and sustain you and make good reviving blood. It will enable you to get rid of the waste a sluggish liver and irregular bowels have permitted to accumulate in your system.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is composed of known native healing remedial roots and herbs with no alcohol nor narcotic drugs to give you harmful habits. It can now be obtained in tablet or liquid form from dealers, or send 50 stamps for box of tablets.

PUT CREAM IN NOSE AND STOP CATARRH

Tells How To Open Clogged Nostrils and Halt Head-Colds.

You feel fine in a few moments, your cold in head or catarrh will be gone. Your clogged nostrils will open. The air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more dullness, headache; no hawking, snuffing, mucous discharges or dryness; no struggling for breath at night.

Tell your druggist you want a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head, soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, and relief comes instantly.

It is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer needs. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable.

SUFFERED WITH DISFIGURING ECZEMA

On Ears and Face. Itching and Sharp Pain Hard to Endure. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Completely Healed.

9-17th Ave., Lachine, Que.—"For three years I suffered with eczema. It commenced with a rash. When I scratched water came out and on the parts where this water spread it caused irritation. It was behind my ears, on my forehead, and a little on the other parts of my face. It formed little scabs that always disfigured me. The itching and sharp pain were hard to endure.

"I used ointments that were given me and tried many remedies and I was not able to obtain a complete cure. Then I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I washed in the evening with Cuticura Soap and I put the Cuticura Ointment on and in the morning I washed again with the Cuticura Soap. I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment for three months and I am glad to say that I am completely cured." (Signed) Miss R. Fremeau, July 8, 1914.

HIS HEALTH IN A TERRIBLE STATE

"Fruit-a-tives" Healed His Kidneys and Cured Him

HAGERSVILLE, ONT., AUG. 26th, 1913.

"About two years ago, I found my health in a very bad state. My Kidneys were not doing their work and I was all run down in condition. I felt the need of some good remedy, and having seen "Fruit-a-tives" advertised, I decided to try them. Their effect, I found more than satisfactory.

Their action was mild and the result all that could be expected.

My Kidneys resumed their normal action after I had taken upwards of a dozen boxes, and I regained my old-time vitality. Today, I am enjoying the best health I have ever had".

GERMAN FORCES AGAIN CUT OFF

REPORTS OF THE BRITISH VICTORY CONFIRMED

GOOD WORK OF THE FRENCH ARTILLERY SCORES SUCCESS

German Bridges Across the Meuse Again Destroyed and the Forces There Are Cut Off From Direct Communication With Their Main Body.

GERMAN ASSAULTS REPULSED EVERYWHERE

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

PARIS, January 27.—(3 p.m. Official.)—The German forces on the west bank of the Meuse at St. Mihiel, have again been cut off from direct communication with the main body of the Germans on the east bank. French artillery men have destroyed the new pontoon bridges thrown across the river at this point by the Germans. Scarcely had the enemy succeeded in replacing the bridges destroyed by the French shells a few days ago, when the bombardment was resumed.

In the Caperthes region west of Rheims, and about the heights of Craonne, the Germans made reckless infantry charges, but were repulsed with severe losses. In the Argonne another German infantry attack was hurled back after a bloody clash of bayonets.

Violent cannonading in the region of Nieuport and Ypres and from Lens southward to Soissons, was reported to-day. A German aviator, signaling the position of the allies' guns to the Germans infantry men near Nieuport, was brought down by Belgian rifle fire, and captured. The War Office this afternoon issued a flat contradiction of the German claims of successes west of Labassee. Reports of a brilliant English victory in that region have been confirmed, the War Office announced. More than 400 German dead were picked up along ahdig the Bethune road alone. The War Office estimates that the German losses in the fighting west of Labassee represented at least two battalions. From the stories told by prisoners, the French officers at the front believe that the Germans lost at least a battalion and a half in killed and wounded in the attack near Ypres on the preceding day.

BERLIN, January 27, via wireless to London.—In commemorationof his 56th birthday, Emperor William to-day granted a general amnesty to hundreds of offenders against military and disciplinary rules since the outbreak of the war. The Emperor's orders were issued at his headquarters in the field and then telegraphed here for promulgation.

BERLIN, via wireless, January 27.—The war office to-day confirmed the Copenhagen reports that the German cruiser Gazelle, torpedoed off Ruege, reached port without assistance. "This attack gave occasion for speculation as to whether English or Russian submarines were responsible," said the German Press Bureau in commenting upon the raid. "It has been reported for some time that the English have sent a number of submarines to the Baltic, but the tendency is to believe that it was a Russian submarine that attacked the Gazelle."

BERLIN, via wireless, January 27.—Brilliant successes in a series of infantry charges against the French positions on the heights near Craonne, were claimed in the official war office statement this afternoon. Saxon troops stormed and took several important French positions extending along the battle line of 1500 yards, pushing the French back upon the southern slope, says the statement. "We took 865 unwounded French prisoners, eight machine guns and one pioneer depot, from which the French sappers obtained their supplies; we also captured other war material."

OTTAWA, January 27.—Honorary Colonels throughout Canada will have their grand opportunity at the coming opening of Parliament. The official request is that everyone entitled to wear uniform shall appear at the opening in full dress uniform, and there are over a hundred Honorary Colonels entitled to this privilege. The opening this year will be marked with the usual pomp, though the drawing room and the state ball will be dispensed with. It will not be a khaki opening as characterized the war session in August. His Royal Highness will wear full dress uniform instead of the khaki field mashal service uniform worn by him last August.

It is practically certain that the terms of the political truce will be strictly adhered to and that on Monday, February 1st, six vacancies in the Commons will be filled without a contest. The only prospect of a fight is in London, Ont.

RUSSIANS ADVANCE

A New Offensive Aimed at Koenigsburg, the Capital of East Prussia, is Officially Announced

MAKING PROGRESS

SPECIAL CABLE:

PETROGRAD, Jan. 27.—The development of a new Russian offensive, aimed at Koenigsburg, the capital of East Prussia, on the gulf of Danzig, was announced in the official statement to-day.

The Russian forces operating in East Prussia, northeast of Insterburg, attacked along a line extending from Malwishken to Dasdehnen and were successful in pushing back the Germans. The Russian outposts are within 55 miles of Koenigsburg, nearly half the distance between that great fortress and the Russian frontier.

The Germans are offering stubborn resistance and are bringing up reinforcements. Reinforcements are being sent to the army of Grand Duke Nicholas, moving along the right bank of the Vistula to invade Prussia near the fortress of Thorn. The German attacks were repulsed, the Russian fire silencing two German batteries.

One Thousand Dollars a Day

Is the Approximate Cost of the Arbitration Proceedings Between the City and Power Company

One thousand dollars per day is the estimated cost of the arbitration that is taking place between the City and the Power Company. The three members who comprise the Board of Arbitration will in all probability average one hundred dollars a day for their services. Then there are legal fees, stenographers' fees and fees for expert valuators, "opinion" witnesses, and various other items that will crop up in the final accounting. It has not been decided as to how much of this amount the City will have to pay.

THE WEATHER

This morning the temperature was 8 degrees below zero. Extreme cold weather prevails throughout the West at the present time, and official figures of 55 below were registered yesterday at a number of places in the North-West. This cold dip will likely move eastward with diminished intensity.—W. P.

TO PROVIDE WORK FOR THE UNEMPLOYED

Proposal Brought in by Mr. F. H. Dobbin of the Relief Committee to Co-operate With Board of Works

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

At a meeting of the local branch of the Patriotic Fund and Relief Association that was held in the Council Chamber last evening, it was proposed to co-operate with the Board of Works in an endeavour to furnish work for those dependent upon relief funds. Mr. F. H. Dobbin, who introduced this proposal, suggested that a piece of the Water Street frontage of the Hilliard Farm, which is located in the North End of the City, be cut down to the level of the street and the material deposited in the Goose Pond or some other place where filling is required. Mr. Dobbin produced a report prepared by City Engineer Parsons, in which it was estimated that approximately fifteen thousand yards of material would have to be removed if the frontage were levelled back to a distance of about a hundred feet. The cost of removing this would amount to about fifty-five cents a yard, or about sixty cents by the time it was dumped in the Goose Pond. Mr. Dobbin asserted that there were a number of teamsters who were idle, and who would be glad of a chance to obtain work of any kind. The tools now owned by the Board of Works could be used for the purpose.

"Who's going to pay for this?" enquired the Mayor.

"Pay for it out of the relief funds," said Mr. Dobbin. "You have got to give out relief anyway, and you might as well give it out in the form of work as give it out in charity, as is being done now."

The matter was referred to the Distribution Committee, who will take it up with the Board of Works, as suggested.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

Mr. J. A. Aylmer, of the Finance Committee, submitted a report showing the proceeds of the Patriotic Fund campaign; the amount turned over to the Canadian Patriotic Fund at Ottawa, and the amount reserved for the local branch. Seventy-five per cent. went to the former and twenty five per cent. to the latter. A total of about sixty thousand dollars was raised. That includes the amount that was disbursed by Relief Officer Miller, commencing last fall, when the fund was first inaugurated, and the amount disbursed since the local branch of the Canadian Patriotic Fund was formed. A total of about nineteen hundred dollars has been expended within the past four weeks, making an average of about five hundred dollars a week. This average may show a decrease at the end of the next month, as the demand on the fund for the first month was higher than may be anticipated for subsequent months. Moneys were paid out of both the Canadian Patriotic Fund and the local relief fund.

DIFFICULTIES THAT ARISE

Mr. F. H. Dobbin enumerated a number of difficulties that arise from time to time in connection with the distribution of relief funds. Some doubt exists as to whether a man should receive assistance from the time he enlists or from the time he leaves for the concentration camp, and whether a man who is subsequently returned from the concentration camp, should receive the specified allowance for the time that he was away. The authorities at Ottawa have been asked to adjudicate on these matters. Each city or district seems to have a system of its own. It was stated that recruits who receive the militia pay of one dollar and ten cents a day, together with a ration allowance of seventy-five cents, are in many cases better off than they would be if they were working under normal conditions. Difficulty is also experienced in securing an accurate statement of those who are entitled to relief. Sometimes more children are recorded than actually exist. A system of investigation of each case is being carried out with the object of eliminating these difficulties. While investigation is obnoxious to some it is rendered necessary by reason of the deception that might otherwise be practiced by those so disposed. All these difficulties are gradually being straightened out.

ADDITIONS TO COMMITTEES.

Dr. Eastwood and Ald. J. J. Duffus were added to the Relief Committee.

Mr. D. F. Ackerman was added to the Finance Committee.

Mr. W. R. Morris and Mr. W. H. Dunsford were appointed auditors for the Patriotic Fund.

Messrs. J. H. Burnham, M.P.; G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P.; Ald. Stratton, B. Hall and J. A. Aylmer were added to the Membership Committee.

It was decided to secure twenty five photographs of the First Canadian Contingent to be put on sale in Peterborough at one dollar each; the proceeds to be devoted to the fund. These photographs represent a contribution of five hundred that were made to the Canadian Patriotic Fund by a Montreal firm of photographers.

VACCINATION NEXT ORDEAL FOR SOLDIERS

Process Commenced Yesterday When a Squad of the Mounted Rifles Received Treatment of Serum

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

The innoculation of the local members of the 3rd Contingent is practically completed and yesterday vaccination was commenced by Dr. Cameron, a squad from the Mounted Rifles being the first victims. The members of both units will all be vaccinated here in accordance with orders.

Yesterday the members of the Mounted Rifles had their first march out and the men made a good impression on the spectators who admired their soldierly bearing and steady marching. The route was via George Street to Charlotte Street, to Water Street and then back to the Armouries. The march-out was repeated this afternoon, the officers deciding to take advantage of the beautiful weather conditions.

Major S. T. Medd has returned from a recruiting trip to Millbrook.

The 57th detachment had seventy-five men on parade at the Armouries this morning, and three profitable hours were put in under the Company officers. Major McLaughlin is in charge of the detachment at the present time.

Mr. Walker Fair, nephew of Mr. Robert Fair, has been appointed a provisional lieutenant in the 40th Regiment and leaves to-morrow morning for Port Hope, where he will take the qualifying course.

It is stated that Sergt. Instructor Dunkerly, who for the past two years has been Instructor here, with the 57th Regiment, will go with the 3rd contingent as Sergeant Major of the 39th Battalion.

Bad Fire In Toronto

Damage of $300,000 to Russ Paper Box Factory—Almost a Fatality

TORONTO, Jan. 27.—Damage of between two and three hundred thousand dollars was caused this afternoon by a fire which practically destroyed the Russ Paper Box Company here this afternoon. The firemen are still battling with the flames which are very fierce owing to the inflammable nature of the materials.

It was feared at first that several girls' lives were lost, but, later, it developed that all were accounted for — saved by their own presence of mind and by the assistance of male employees and firemen.

BIG FIRE RAGING AT BELLEVILLE

Mr. M. Pappas' Property is Threatened—Has Billiard Rooms, Cigar and Barber Shop There

Mr. M. Pappas, who has a billiard, cigar and barber shop in Belleville, received word this morning from his manager to the effect that a fire which started this morning at two o'clock four stores away from his property, had burned another shoe-shine parlour, a grocery, a moving picture show and a piano store, and was at 10 o'clock this morning burning Mr. Pappas' property. The fire apparently is a very bad one and Mr. Pappas left on the 1.30 train for Belleville to look after his interests. He fitted up the property last summer and it was one of the best of its kind in the province.

Ploughmen Request Aid.

J. H. Garbutt and Joshua Smithson, representing the Ploughmen's Association of Peterborough County, asked for a donation toward the prize list in connection with their competition. Mr. Garbutt said there was no means of raising money except by subscription, but the Council could assist materially. Mr. Burnham had donated a cup and a good beginning was made last year.

Mr. Smithson declared that there were qualities requisite to a good ploughman that demanded development. It is not merely the turning of a straight furrow. The good ploughman must be observant, must have a desire to excel, must be a good hand with horses and possess self control. The Association aims at the development of these qualities by offering prizes sufficient to encourage young farmers to regard ploughing as something beyond mere labour. Some young men have said they would prefer money rather than to have their names on the competition cup. "I told them," Mr. Smithson said, "think again. No amount of money is going to qualify you to have your name inscribed on that cup; nothing but merit and achievement can do it."

Mr. Smithson said that the development of good ploughing entailed the moral, mental and physical improvement.

Mr. Garbutt suggested that $100 would materially assist the Association in securing prizes.

On motion of Mr. Coben, seconded by Mr. Squire, the request was referred to the Finance committee.

Transfer Was Confirmed

At a meeting of the Board of License Commissioners for West Peterborough on Monday evening, at which there were present, Dr. M. A. Morrison, Messrs. Jas. Kendry, Richard Sheehy and Inspector Stewart, the transfer of the license of the White House from Mr. Chris. Graham to Mr. Jas. Bolger, formerly of Guelph, was confirmed.

Of this Morning's Session of the Board of Arbitration—Meters Were Valued at $12.50.

MR. NESBITT HERE

The City's fight for ownership of the distributing system of the Peterborough Light and Power Company was resumed this morning before the Board of Arbitration, composed of His Honour Judge Huycke (chairman), Mr. Wallace eNsbitt, K.C., of Toronto (for the company), and Mr. R. A. Ross, of Montreal, for the City. The system, which is essential to the completion of the Hydro-Electric scheme, has been in possession of the City since October the first last. Arbitration proceedings have been resorted to in order to determine the price the City shall pay for the system.

THE "DOPE."

The examination of Mr. H. A. Fife, former superintendent of the company, occupied the whole of yesterday. The City's Solicitor, Mr. M. K. Cowan, endeavoured to ascertain the amount of construction undertaken by the company during his superintendency, also the materials used and the amount of old material that entered into reconstruction work. Maps showing the primary circuits of the system figured largely in the evidence, also meter books, transformer books, and construction sheets. This all comes under the heading of "dope," as it is frequently characterised by those engaged in the case.

THIS MORNING'S SESSION.

The examination of Mr. H. A. Fife was resumed this morning. Witness produced a map showing the extent of the distributing system prior to 1908. This was put in as exhibit number eleven. The map showed an extension west of Monaghan Road, which served the residences of Mr. Morrow, Mr. Bradburn and Mr. Hatton.

Mr. Tillery interrogated witness regarding the use of second-hand poles in the reconstruction of lines. Mr. Fife replied that the percentage of poles that were used a second time was small. If he had a fifty-foot pole and wanted a forty-foot pole, witness would cut ten feet off one end. A sliver of a pole that had been in the ground since November, 1896, was produced. Mr. Fife said that the pole from which the sliver was taken was in good condition.

"REPRODUCTION" VALUES.

Archibald Herbert Sayce, of Chicago, followed Mr. Fife. Mr. Sayce, who was put in as an expert on "reproduction" values, said that he was connected with a firm of electrical engineers of Chicago, whose specialty was the management of a number of public service commissions. Mr. Sayce, who is a graduate of Cornell University, gave a brief resume of his engineering experience. To Mr. Tillery witness stated that he commenced his valuation of the Peterborough system with an inventory, which was followed by the preparation of reproduction values. The values were based on an average of from three to five years previous. In the matter of generators and large type of machinery it would be possible to make a personal inspection. In the case of poles and pole transformers, personal inspection was out of the question. In such cases the law of averages was resorted to. Among other things, witness confirmed Mr. Fife's inventory.

Referring to poles, witness remarked that the prices were low. He compared them with prices paid elsewhere. The prices paid in Peterborough for poles were lower than those quoted elsewhere. The inventory showed a total of 2,100 poles in the City and 234 outside, making a total of 2,334 poles. Poles depreciated to the extent of three per cent. each year. A similar examination followed in the case of wire and other materials used in connection with the pole system.

CROSS-EXAMINATION.

Mr. Cowan, counsel for the City, brought out the fact that Mr. Sayce had levied a percentage of two per cent. for omissions, and that Mr. Fife had levied one per cent. for a similar purpose, bringing the percentage up to three per cent.

"How did you fix your prices?" asked Mr. Cowan, referring to materials.

"I enquired locally," replied witness.

"You enquired of some fellow who was supposed to know?"

"I enquired of people who knew something about the business."

WE OWE THE IRISH SOMETHING.

We sometimes see unfounded, or unproven, claims that in the matter of furnishing soldiers Ireland is not doing its share. This is an ungrateful thing to discuss, and there is no need for discussing it. If, as is not proven, it is asserted that man for man, in proportion to population Ireland is not recruiting as many men as others, she is contributing more than any other country to the success of the cause of the Empire. A nation that has produced a Nelson, a Wellington, a Roberts, and that provides us in these days, with a tower of strength, like a Kitchener, or a naval hero like Rear-Admiral Sir David Beatty, Irishmen all, is doing, has done, more than send men in millions. How many men fighting in the battle line, would represent the military value of Kitchener at the head of the war department? We are too proud of the noble response of all sections of the Empire is making to justify us in instituting comparisons, which proverbially odious, are all the more so when used in contrasting the share of contribution of any particular country, in a case where all are doing so well, and where unity of sentiment and aim are the essential elements of strength.

AS BAD AS BABY-KILLING.

We do not need any new evidence to prove that Germany is prosecuting this war not only without regard to any considerations of humanity, but with inexorable barbarity, with utter disregard of the sacredness of human life. Everything, even the life of her own soldiers and seamen is considered as meet sacrifice to the Moloch of militarism. The British, with characteristic humanity save every life possible, put to peril in naval engagements. In the naval battle on Sunday, after the German cruiser Blucher was put out of commission, and her crew, as she went down, thrown struggling into the icy sea, a British destroyer was told off to save them. No sooner had this work begun than a German aircraft began dropping bombs upon the rescuing boats, that therefrom had to desist and thus the Germans were guilty of the murder of perhaps hundreds of their own sailors. Could inhumanity go further? Can any civilized nation, keep silence and withhold its condemnation in the face of such inhuman barbarity? It is all the worse because it is a logical result of the German cult of brute force upon which all her diplomacy and war waging is based. In a blind and demoniac attempt to succeed in the field, German generals drive their troops—like sheep to the slaughter. Human life is nothing compared with military success.

WOMEN'S GOOD WORK.

The factors that enter into the successful prosecution of this war are infinite. Each has its place and each is to be credited with results obtained. These results cannot be tabulated but it needs little reasoning to show their importance. The very first importance is placed upon having the individual soldier fit. To be fit as a soldier, he must be fit as a man—have good health and good spirits. These come from bodily comfort, and in this regard the women who are working so heroically and tirelessly, to promote the physical well-being and comfort, and keep up the spirit, of our soldiers, are doing a very important work and contributing more to the winning of victories than many other more highly regarded and expensive agencies.

The "Peterborough Women's War Fund Committee" is entitled to a splendid round of applause for the work they have accomplished, in the past few months. The report of the practical and beneficent accomplishments of the Women's War Fund Committee, since the middle of last August, appears in another part of this issue; and it should be read with care; and then it will have been read with appreciation of the excellent work they have done. With the rapid movement of events, we are liable to forget, and lest we forget, and do an injustice to a worthy and worthily promoted and executed movement, we should take careful cognizance of the report of the women's committee's achievements. They were early in the field and filled with effective relief the time during which our Patriotic Fund enterprise was slowly being brought to its present effective status.

The committee hasn't had any great amount of funds to work with, but hard individual work by the members has very effectively supplemented the money at its disposal. Funds are still needed, and the community that owes so much to the work of the committee, should not be slow in assisting in this way. This can be done to a certain extent, and in a very agreeable way, by liberal, and more than liberal, patronage of the annual concert of the Peterborough Conservatory of Music Orchestra, which has very kindly offered to give their annual concert under the auspices of the committee on Feb. 8th. The orchestra in doing this is doing a good deal towards helping the funds of the committee. We should not let the orchestra do all; but should cooperate with our patronage and presence.

PROVIDING EMPLOYMENT.

At first sight it would seem that the policy of employing interned aliens in clearing crown lands, is a complication of the unemployment problem. Sir William Otter, who has charge of the internment of aliens of enemy nationality, has arranged to send 400 Austrians and Germans from Port Arthur and Fort William to work in clearing, for settlement, 2,000 acres of land west of these places on the line of the Canadian Pacific Railway. It might be argued that native Canadians out of employment might be given this employment. But, these hostile aliens, as a measure of national and imperial safety, have to be kept confined and harmless. It is a necessity; it becomes one of the sacrifices we must make to help bring the war to a victorious issue. It is much better that these men should be usefully employed, to pay in part, at least, for their maintenance. Otherwise we should be compelled to pay for keeping them in idleness.

At the same time it is incumbent upon the government to do something definite and practical for the relief of our unemployed citizens. There is considerable talk of highway improvement. If talk of this kind is not to end in talk, as it has done in the past, some prompt action must be taken; some means devised to raise funds for the purpose. We don't so badly need the clearing of wild lands; we have too much land now that is imperfectly tilled and that does not yield, on this account, half of what it might be made to produce under proper and thorough tillage. But we need, and need badly, good roads. They would be a benefit to the whole country, not only to the farmers, but to the town dweller.s Unfortunately governments are notoriously slow moving. But they can be wakened up. Under the spur of military necessity, our Dominion Government has showed great alacrity and promptitude in meeting the military situation, and in this they are heartily supported by the representatives in Parliament, who under the party system, ordinarily scrutinize closely and criticise carefully every act of the government. The people also approve of the government's action when it is effective, and they would do so in respect of an enterprise like improving the highways of the country. Prompt and speedy action in this regard would do much to lessen the prevailing unemployment. Our city authorities, did fairly well last autumn in providing funds and work that would give employment. They should now be considering and maturing measures to begin civic works that would give employment and have them in readiness for work as soon as spring opens. Of all the calamities that come upon a community, the worst of its kind is general, or even considerable, unemployment. It seems wise for a city or other government to provide means of employment, rather than spend, and in one sense, waste, money in providing for the relief of the consequences of unemployment.

IS IT AN OMEN?

Curiously enough the sinking of the German armoured cruiser Blucher yesterday disposes of all three of the enemy's ships named after the great German generals of the war of 1813 when Napoleon Bonaparte's yoke was thrown off and which conflict the Prussian war lords have been seriously endeavouring lately to bring to the attention of the German people. Blucher was given command of the Silesian army and later of the whole army. Scharnhorst and Gneisenau were his principal military advisers. Scharnhorst was killed early in the war. The armoured cruisers Scharnhorst and Gneisenau were sunk by the British fleet under Admiral Sturdee off the Falkland Islands together with the Nurnberg and Leipzig.

Blucher and his colleagues fought against military terrorism and aggression which had its seat in Paris. Britain to-day is fighting against military terrorism and aggression which has its seat in Berlin. Is the sinking of the three German warships named an omen?

HOW GERMANY ABUSES NEUTRAL PASSPORTS

Forged and otherwise fraudulent passports have played a large part in the campaign being carried out by German agents in British and neutral countries. It is suspected that the chief conspirator in the United States has been the German Ambassador at Washington, or some other official high in the service. Should this prove to be true the United States may insist that he be recalled to Germany, as otherwise it would have no authority to punish. Other Germans in the United States or American citizens who were party to the fraud might be very severely punished. For a neutral government to be a consenting party to the abuse of its passports would be quite as grave a breach of neutrality as to permit a belligerent to march an army over its territory. That this abuse in the United States has been on a huge scale is indicated by the report that by the use of fraudulently obtained passports hundreds of German reservists have been allowed to leave the country, posing as American citizens, and to find their way into the German army.

War Time Significance.

There has been fraud, too, practiced by the agents of the German Governemnt in England, and probably in other British countries. It is said that there was at first little difficulty in obtaining these British passports, and that they were to be had for $10 each. The truth is that until this war broke out and German emissaries were found upon both British and American territory, committing hostile acts in the one case and breaches of neutrality in the other, neither Government had paid any attention to the sudden significance of a passport. In the past British and American passports were easy to obtain, and were thought lightly of, and the war had been under way for some weeks before the new importance of these formerly slighted documents was understood.

Issued as Practical Joke.

In the Pittsburg Dispatch, "Ex-Attache" says that American delusion about the passport is very general. Many Americans, on the occasion of their first visit to Europe, supposed that the passports which they can so easily obtain at home entitled them to entertainment by the American Ministers in whatever countries they might travel, and even to some special attention on the part of European society. When they discovered that this was not the case, and the passport was merely an identification card, they immediately lost interest in it, and supposed it to be of no importance at all. Nor was this notion peculiar to the United States, for the passport has always been very lightly esteemed in Great Britain. The late Henri Labouchere boasted in print that when he was connected with the British diplomatic service he had no hesitation in issuing passports to any English-speaking persons who might apply for them. He considered the matter as a joke, and when a passport was sought was quite willing to issue it in the name of some titled person, according to the fancy of the applicant. There are to-day, says "Ex-Attache," hundreds of alleged counts and barons, and even princes, upon the European Continent with no other title of nobility than that supplied in a passport by this practical joker.

Used by a Nihilist.

In 1905, however, a case in England that attracted much attention showed that the careless use of a passport was no laughing matter even in time of peace. This was the prosecution of H. N. Brailsford, a well known lawyer, who had secured a passport for an English friend named Arthur McCulloch. In his travels upon the Continent McCulloch lent his passport to an acquaintance, and it turned up a few weeks later in the possession of a Russian Nihilist, who had been wounded in a bomb outrage. The Russian Government made very strong representations to Great Britain, and this led to the arrest of both Brailsford and McCulloch. As neither of them had been aware of the seriousness of the offence they were let off with heavy fines.

Importance of a Passport.

A passport is a document that certifies, upon the authority of the Government in question, that its bearer is a subject of that Government, and it entitles him to a special treatment when in a foreign country. It can be understood that in the present war Great Britain, for instance, would be reluctant to interfere with the citizens of a neutral and friendly country like the United States, and that German emissaries bearing authenticated American passports would be given unusual facilities for carrying on their trade. Such was the case with Lody, who was executed in the Tower of London, and with others who are now in custody. Similarly a German who was enabled through fraud and perjury to secure a certificate declaring him a British subject would be able to carry on his wartime function of spying in favourable circumstances.—Mail and Empire.

GERMANY'S WEAKENED FORCE.

Every day that postpones a decisive encounter adds to the Russian and takes away from the German striking force. We do not by any means underrate—it would be sheer insanity to do so—the enemy's capacity to endure and resist. But Germany's frantic efforts to convince herself that she is satisfied with her present situation mislead no one except her own people.—London Daily News.

INFANTRY NEEDED FIRST.

Of the numerous books that have been issued dealing with the war none is more interesting than "What of To-day?" by Father Bernard Vaughan.

Father Vaughan has always been very enthusiastic about our army, a fact which once caused him to make a good joke. A few years ago a militant Suffragette rushed at him and shrieked out: "Tell 'Bobs' the army will never be right till you give women more liberty!"

"Tell mothers," replied Father Vaughan quickly, "that the army will never be right till they give us more infantry!"

TWO DISTINGUISHED WEXFORD MEN.

"A fellow-feeling makes one wondrous kind," said Garrick, and John Redmond's promptitude in sending a message of congratulation to Sir David Beatty is one more illustration of the truth of the saying. Both are from County Wexford, and each is in his own way a credit to the famous shire. The Irish Nationalist leader has played his difficult part for exactly one-third of a century continuously, with consummate skill, and he has now the satisfaction of seeing the Irish Home Rule measure made a statutory enactment by the British Parliament. With true Irish abandon, as soon as the war broke out he threw himself heart and soul into the work of securing Nationalist recruits for the service in France, and in this he has given an earnest of the zeal and loyalty with which he will devote the remainder of his public career to making Home Rule a means of strengthening the United Kingdom as the nucleus of the British Empire.

Rear-Admiral Beatty is an officer of whom all classes of Irishmen have good reason to be proud. Two such naval victories as he has already won in water so dangerous as the North Sea is, make a splendid record of achievement, and there may be chances to eclipse even these exploits by others more notable still. What the past has shown is that whenever the occasion offers Admiral Beatty will rise to it.—The Globe.

IRELAND AND THE WAR.

Irishmen in the Army before the war—89,000.

Of these men, Catholics numbered —52,000.

Since the war Irishmen who have joined the colours numbered—53,422.

Of these, Catholics numbered—27,282.

Of these, Nationalist Volunteers numbered—16,442.

From Belfast Ulster Volunteers who have joined the colours numbered 10,112.

In Belfast the Catholics are barely a third of the population, yet they sent to the colours Nationalist Volunteers to the number of—3,843.

CANADA'S FLOUR GIFT.

How the Million Bags Were Allocated in Britain.

LONDON, Jan. 26.— Nearly all of Canada's war gift of a million bags of flour has now been distributed. The following table shows where it has gone: For relief of local distress, 90,474; Belgian refugees, 1,691; damaged flour sold, 3,219; sold by Wiles and Son, 1,500; transferred to War Office, 99,760; commission for relief of Belgians, 443,886; total, 940,530.

It is estimated that Canada's million bags of flour will make 67,000,000 two-pound loaves. The flour taken over by the War Office has already been sent to the army in France.

Major Perry G. Goldsmith Has Had Unique Experience in France

Has Made Several Trips to the Firing Line and Has Been Under Fire.

GOT MANY TROPHIES

BOULOGNE-SUR-MER, France, Jan. 6.—Canadian medical officers in France declare that Major Perry G. Goldsmith, of Toronto, is the luckiest man who came over with the contingent. The reason is that not only was Dr. Goldsmith among the first to reach the Continent but he was the first to reach the front. In fact, he had been in France only for a short time before he found himself less than three miles from the firing line. Since that time he has made two more expeditions to the danger zone and on at least one occasion was under fire.

Of course the Toronto doctor does not make pleasure trips to the trenches. This is a war in which only those on some definite military duty are allowed anywhere reasonably near the firing line. The explanation is that on three occasions a medical officer has been required to relieve some other man on the ambulance trains. On each of these occasions Dr. Goldsmith has had the good fortune to be chosen. As a rule his trips have lasted three days. He goes up on the empty train and returns with a load of wounded men from a field hospital at the rail head.

On the first trip Major Goldsmith had the exciting experience of being under fire for several minutes. He was on the ambulance train which happened to be standing on the track close to a French armoured train. The Germans got its range just about that time and there was a warm few minutes for all concerned. Fortunately the ambulance train was only slightly damaged, thanks to the bad marksmanship of the German gunners. On another day a hostile aeroplane was noticed hovering above the train, but no bombs or darts were dropped.

The Major himself considers the fact that he has been able to gather together a remarkable collection of war trophies the most satisfying feature of his trips. There are so many souvenir hunters in France just now that it is next to impossible to secure even an odd German helmet, let alone gathering together a respectable collection of trophies. But the Toronto man was lucky and his collection is a splendid one.

GERMAN TROPHIES.

To begin with, Major Goldsmith has two German helmets. One belonged to a Prussian Guardsman, and bears the regimental crest. It is in perfect condition even to the khaki cloth cover. The other is rather battered. It was taken from the head of a dead German by the soldier, from whom Dr. Goldsmith got it. Next in order is a round, blue-grey skull cap such as is worn by some of the Kaiser's troops. The hole made by the bullet that killed the owner can be plainly seen.

Major Goldsmith has also a great coat, German and Belgian rifles, German, French and Belgian bayonets, several clips of ammunition, a sabre used by the British Indian troops, German cavalry and infantry boots, German knapsack, water bottle, first aid package, clasp-knife, German staff officer's badge, German binoculars, a British field telephone captured by the Germans and later recovered by a Tommy in a trench from which the enemy had been driven, and so on. The Major, in addition to the German soldier's outfit complete, has numerous pieces of shrapnel, including a fragment some four inches long, which completely wrecked one of the London 'buses being used at the front. A dart dropped from a German aeroplane completes the collection.

Major Goldsmith has sent these trophies to London for shipment to Canada, and arrangements have been made for placing them on exhibition immediately upon their arrival. The Major believes that they will help to bring the war home to the people of Canada in addition to being of value from an educational point of view. Undoubtedly it is the most complete collection gathered together by a Canadian.

Another interesting experience Major Goldsmith had in France was a visit to the commanding officer of a French submarine in the Boulogne harbour. He was shown all through the craft which had done such deadly work in the naval operations of the war.

Denies Hungarians Tired of War.

VENICE, Jan. 26.—(Via London.)—Count Julius Andrassay, former Premier and Minister of the Interior of Hungary, according to a despatch from Budapest, characterizes as utterly mendacious, a report that Hungary is tired of the war and is desirous of seeking a separate peace, and declares that peace will be concluded only in union with Germany and with terms satisfactory to both countries.

Former Rebel Ill.

KINGSTON, Jan. 27.—Nelson S. Truax is seriously ill at the home of his daughter in Bay City, Mich. Mr. Truax is 97, and the doctors hold hope for recovery. He is one of the few veterans of the Patriot war of 1837-40, and took part in the battle of the Windmill. He was a prisoner for many weeks in old Fort Henry, Kingston, now used to house alien enemies of Britain. Mr. Truax was saved from execution for treason, for he was a boy of 19 at the time, and with twenty-one others of a like age, he was pardoned by Queen Victoria.

LAUGHTER COME FROM BELGIUM BUT PEOPLE NEVER COMPLAIN

Stoicism of Millions on Verge of Starvation Hides an Implacable Hatred, Says American After Trip Through Country

LONDON, Jan. 26.—"The impressions I take away from Liege are those of wonder that a people can suffer so much in silence, and of admiration for the bravery which enables them to do it."

This statement was made recently by Dr. P. H. Williams, of New York, who, at the suggestion of the Rockefeller Foundation, volunteered his services to direct the operations of the American Commission for Relief in Belgium at Liege, and is now returning to America. Continuing he said:

"The people of Belgium never complain, but they never laugh. Their stoicism, for that is the only word which describes their attitude, would mislead even trained observers into believing that everything was going on as usual. Under the surface, however, they feel implacable hatred because of their untold misfortunes and sufferings.

"A little girl at Liege who had been lucky enough to get a warm petticoat among the Christmas presents distributed by the commission, wrote to the American child who sent it, 'My country has been devastated by the sword. Our dear cure it dead, our burgomaster, who was a doctor and gave all his time to the poor, has been shot; my father was shot; and I am now living with nuns, eating bread sent from America.'

300,000 Destitute in Liege.

"In the province of Liege alone nearly three hundred thousand, out of a population of nine hundred thousand, are absolutely destitute and entirely dependent upon the commission for food to keep them alive. In the principal towns, Liege, Verviers and Spa, distress is most acute because the iron mills, gun works, rubber tire factories, zinc mines and other industries are closed. Practically the only exception is found in the coal mines, which are being worked three days a week to obtain fuel to keep the people from freezing.

"During the month I was in Liege it snowed or rained every day and when I left the province was covered with a thick blanket of snow.

"At Louvain and other places Belgian communal authorities are laying out boulevards and other municipal improvements planned long ago, simply to provide work for the people. They can keep this work going only three days a week, and in payment men are given paper bonds which are not negotiable outside the place in which they live, although with them they can buy their rations of bread and soup.

"In smaller towns which have been destroyed men are being employed under the same system to pile up bricks which still litter the streets and tell of bombardments the world has almost forgotten. All these operations are in the hands of relief committees.

Farmers Have No Horses.

"In the country districts of Liege province farmers are tilling the soil, but they have no horses, and they are being compelled to sell their cattle for slaughter, and cattle fodder has been requisitioned for the cavalry. This has had two results. The first is that meat is cheaper in Liege than it is in New York, and the second that the supply of milk is rapidly disappearing.

"At least thirty thousand people line up once a day for bread and soup at twelve canteens established by the commission in Liege. You see no young men; there are only old women, children and cripples.

The distribution starts at half-past eight o'clock in the morning and is not finished at the principal canteen until eleven. The women place their half pound loaves in net bags and old men wrap theirs in bandanna handkerchiefs which they hide under their coats. Then they go to another canteen to get their allowance of soup.

Rich and poor all have to send for bread and all get the same supply. 'Rich' is a term of irony, but I use it comparatively to distinguish between the distressed and the destitute. Think of steel magnates, university professors and well to do women accustomed to living luxuriously on investments which now bring in no income, being obliged to stand in a bread line. Within a few months there will be no distinctions to make because practically every person in Belgium will be dependent on the canteens. Every one's private means will have disappeared.

Assistance From Germans.

"Before the commission got into operation scores of small towns had no bread at all. Since I arrived at Liege we have not failed once to be able to supply rations for the people of the province, but we have had several close shaves. No one is starving now, but the people are beginning to show signs of the strain they are under in being kept alive on so small a ration. Their faces look drawn, and they naturally fall easy victims to any infection.

"Belgian physicians are doing splendid work both in relieving distress and in attending prisoners and wounded. The communal authorities have the sanitary situation well in hand, and, thanks to them, there has been no really serious epidemic. In this, as in other matters, the Germans do not interfere. In this connection I would like to say that so far as I know not one morsel of the food so generously supplied to Belgium is being taken by the Germans. It is only fair to say the Germans have given us every assistance, not only in the distribution of relief supplies, but in clearing the canals of broken bridges so our barges can reach towns and villages whose people otherwise would starve."

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Steamship traffic between Trelleborg, Sweden, and Sassnitz, Germany, has come to an end. The route is now controlled by allied submarines.

Emil Nerlich, charged in Toronto with high treason, occupied the same cell in the jail Sunday night as Harry Asher, who shot the Rev. J. McPherson Scott some time ago in the east end.

Women suffrage passed the West Virginia Legislature yesterday. The vote in the Senate was 28 to 1, and in the House 80 to 6. The measure will be voted upon by the people at the next election.

Three short, sharp earthquakes have shook the Isthmus of Panama in the last three days, the third one occurring yesterday. None of the shocks did any damage, though the inhabitants were considerably frightened.

The Japanese battleship Hizen and the armored cruiser Iwate appeared yesterday outside the three-mile international limit, and began taking coal from the collier Kamakura Maru, which had just left Honolulu.

Following the establishment of an employment bureau among the students of the School of Science, in Toronto, efforts are being made to provide as large a percentage of students as possible with positions during the coming summer.

Petitions in London, Ont., are being circulated calling for a civil or military trial of H. J. Glaumis, the German-born general manager of the London Public Utilities Commission, who is charged with aiding a German reservist to leave the country.

BIG GUN DESTROYED.

Huge German Piece Demolished by British Artillery.

ST. OMER, France, Jan. 27.—The heavy artillery of the British has destroyed an enormous gun which the Germans were placing on a hill about a mile behind their first line of trenches, and about two miles from Festubert, with the object of silencing the British howitzers and bombarding Bethune.

The position of the big gun was marked by a British aviator, and the fourth shell from the British guns demolished it.

The British gunners then directed their fire on a group of German artillerymen engaged in placing a similar gun a mile further behind, scattering them with a few well-timed shells. They also smashed three pumps brought up by the Germans to empty water out of their trenches.

Ex-Judge Ardagh Dead.

BARRIE, Jan. 27.—One of Barrie's oldest and best known residents died yesterday, in the person of John Anderson Ardagh, late senior judge of the County of Simcoe. He was 80 years of age and retired from the bench three years ago, after 30 years of service.

INSURED IN GERMANY?

Suspicious Circumstances Coming Out In Dacia Case.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The case of the former Hamburg-American steamer Dacia, recently sold and transferred to American registry, has assumed a more serious phase, likely to lead to a dangerous issue. Several additional circumstances have increased suspicion as to the bona fide character of the sale as understood in international law, and these may place those concerned in a position of having to defend themselves from a charge of bad faith.

There appears to be no doubt in well-informed circles here that the vessel obtained $50,000 insurance from Hamburg, being unable to obtain insurance for the hull from the Federal War Risk Insurance Bureau or from an American company. The Government was only willing to insure her cargo of cotton.

Furthermore, it is claimed that documentary evidence exists that the sale of the Dacia was made under the stipulation that the steamer should not be used by the new owners in trade with or between British and Dutch ports.

SCHOOL TEACHING EXHAUSTING WORK

Miss Rosa M. Keller's Struggle to Keep Up—How Vinol Helped to Ward Off Nervous Breakdown.

Alburtis, Pa.—"I am a teacher in the public schools and I got into a very nervous, run-down condition. I could not sleep and had no appetite. I was tired all the time.

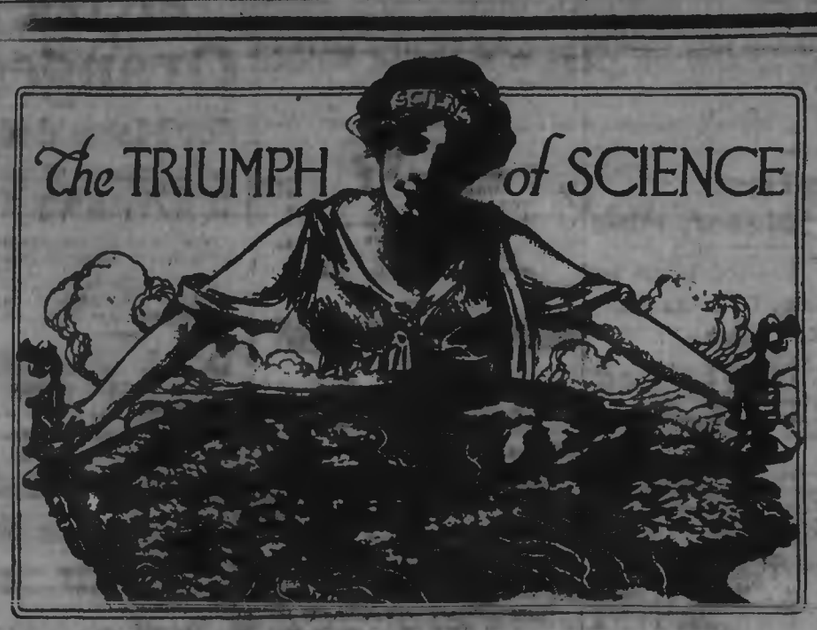
"My sister told me how Vinol had built up her nephew and asked me to try it. I did so, and within a week after taking Vinol my appetite improved and I could sleep all right and now I feel well and strong.

"Vinol is certainly a fine medicine and even the doctors say it is a good tonic."—ROSA M. KELLER, Alburtis, Pa.

The reason Vinol restored Miss Keller to her normal health was because in a natural manner it sharpened her appetite, aided digestion, strengthened her nerves, and as a result brought the refreshing sleep she needed.

If there is anyone in this vicinity, run-down, weak, nervous, worn out and who cannot sleep, we ask you to try Vinol, our delicious, cod liver and iron tonic, on our guarantee to build you up and make you feel better, eat better, sleep better, or return your money.

McDermid & Jury, Druggists, and E. L. Payne, Druggist, Peterborough, Ont.



THE completion of a long distance telephone line from New York to San Francisco is an engineering and scientific achievement, the fame of which knows no national boundaries. Canada, the birthplace of the telephone, will freely join her neighbor, we feel sure, in according due praise to those engineers and scientists to whose efforts this triumph is due.

It is a scientific achievement of the very highest character. The power that sends the human voice out over the telephone is scarcely greater than that of a breath, yet the means have been provided by which this tiny, almost imaginary impulse, made up of as many as 2,000 separate vibrations a second, can be picked up by a delicate instrument, conserved over a distance of 3,400 miles, and reproduced perfectly and instantly across the continent. The human voice has been made to travel as fast as light, faster than sound when unaided by technical apparatus. Indeed, it rivals even thought, in the swiftness of its flight.

In this work the experimental and research department of the Bell System, of which this Company is a part, has been engaged ever since the telephone became a commercial possibility, less than 40 years ago. It has required vast expenditures of money and immense concentration of effort, but these have been justified by results of immeasurable benefit to the public.

Facilities will soon be provided whereby the residents of Ontario and Quebec may have their part in this, the latest triumph of science.

"Every Bell Telephone is a Long Distance Station."

Spirit of Optimism and Good Will Prevails Among English Soldiers

Men Love to Sing in Chorus, for It Makes Their Marching Easier, and Troops of All Classes Have the Cigarette Habit in Superlative Degree

LONDON, Jan. 26.—To him whose duty it is to be constantly passing backward and forward across the Channel, the war seems very much closer to England than it does to the stay-at-home Englishman. As you know, many of the greatest struggles have taken place on French soil, and, moreover, you can see the English soldiers going down to the steamships on short leave of absence, covered from top to toe with mud from the trenches.

"What do the men now sing when on the march?" I asked a group of soldiers on the boat. "And they still as keen on 'Tipperary?'"

"Of course," they replied. "Tipperary' is the great favourite, and looks like being so till the end of the war, and after. But wherever you go, you can also hear the men shouting in chorus:

"'Hullo! Here we are again,
Hullo! Hullo! Hullo!
Here we are again!'"

"This will be repeated times without number, and as the tune is easy, every one can take a share. The men love to sing, for it makes the stiffest march a lighter and better task and keeps every one in good spirits."

Wherever you meet English soldiers and in whatever conditions, an incurable spirit of optimism and good will prevails. I came across a smart man in the flying corps at a French railway station, who was on his way, with six others, to a southern destination.

"Our men," he confessed, "have had a hard time and are exposed to many dangers, but they are superb in the way they meet extra duty and difficulties. On Christmas Day we had a job to do that took us all afternoon. On ordinary occasions we should have grumbled, especially on such a day, and particularly as the order had been given that we might be able to have practically the whole of the Christmas Day. But not one of them groused, and we all pulled together and completed the work much earlier than at ordinary times. I believe that if we all do our bit we shall presently pull off the bigger job we have in hand."

The cigarette habit is in a superlative degree familiar to the British soldier in France. In all his tight corners it seems to help him. He gets round somehow if he can light a "fag." When he has to wait for breakfast or dinner out comes the packet of woodbines. A call to duty at three or four o'clock on a winter's morning without a bite or sup to keep out the cold can only be met by a "cig." If the soldier clerks are smoking. Next door you will find the officers doing the same. The motorman with the 'bus or ambulance seems less perturbed when he has the end of a "fag" in his mouth, and takes life less as a headlong race regardless of life and limb. And when the officer is on the return boat for his brief furlough he leisurely pulls out his cigarette case and enjoys in blissful peace a score or two whiffs far from "Jack Johnsons" and "Coal Boxes."

To Renew Complexion Without Cosmetics

If the excessive use of cosmetics only knew the impression her artificiality really makes upon others, she would quickly seek means of gaining a natural complexion. Let her acquire the mercolized wax habit, discarding make-up entirely, and she will soon have the kind of complexion that women envy and men admire. It's so easy to get an ounce of mercolized wax at any druggistore, use nightly like cold cream and wash it off mornings. And the results are so remarkable; gradually the lifeless cuticle wears off, in almost invisible flaky particles. In a week or so there's a brand new complexion, clear, velvety-soft, or girlish colour and texture. The treatment is so simple, harmless and marvellously effective, the wonder is that every woman whose skin is withered, discolored, rough, chapped, freckled or pimpled, has not already adopted it.

Let wrinkles, coarse pores, sallowness and muddiness vanish while under the skin still lurks enough youthful beauty to make you look years younger. Just try this more sensible treatment: Dissolve 1 oz. mercolized wax-olite in ½ pint witch hazel. Use it as face lotion. Every line will quickly disappear.

ARMY IN RETREAT

Main Body of the Column to North of the Vistula is Moving on Kikot

SLAVS NEAR FRONTIER

PETROGRAD, Jan. 27.—The German army, under Gen. von Francois, has been defeated before Mlawa, and is reported to be retreating along the line of the railway toward Soldau, in East Prussia, followed by the right wing of the Russian army. Nearly a million fresh troops are now operating on the right bank of the Vistula. The main body of the army is advancing in the region of Kikot, fifteen miles from the frontier of West Prussia.

On the front along the Bzura and Rawka, before Warsaw, the Germans are fighting entirely on the defensive, with artillery duels and minor infantry engagements on Rawka. In the region of Sochaczew the right wing of the German army has been repulsed in a number of attempts to advance. The German loss has been particularly heavy in this region. The total of killed, wounded and prisoners in the second great advance towards Warsaw which has now been definitely checked, is estimated at more than 250,000.

In night attacks the Germans are now using a peculiar kind of bullet, which if it hits nothing, burst giving out a flame, which is equivalent to the lighting power of an ordinary match, but is only momentary. If it strikes a man it is a nasty species of explosive bullet. They have also been using some new artillery ammunition, which throws off stupefying gases.

The Russians are making another effort to advance in East Prussia, while in middle and southern Poland there has been a slackening in the fighting on both sides for the moment. The Russians appear to be concentrating themselves on their offensive north of the lower Vistula, while the Austro-Germans are busy making preparations to meet the Russian advance through the passes of the Carpathians and in southern Bukowina.

Germany Refused Bona Fide Negotiations Says Foreign Secretary

LONDON, Jan. 27. — Sir Edward Grey, the British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, yesterday authorized a statement in reply to an interview obtained with Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the German Imperial Chancellor, by a representative of the Associated Press, and published in London Jan. 26, and in the United States Jan. 25.

After tracing the negotiations preceding the war and making comparison with the Chancellor's later version, the statement concludes:

"The sincerity of the German Chancellor's professions to the American correspondent may be brought to a very simple test, the application of which is more apposite, because it serves to recall one of the leading facts which produced the present war.

"Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg refused the proposal which Britain put forward and in which France, Italy and Russia concurred, for a conference, at which the dispute would have been settled on fair and honorable terms, without war. If he really wished to work with Great Britain for peace, why did he not accept that proposal? He must have known, after the Balkan conference that Great Britain could be trusted to play fair. Herr von Jagow had given testimony in the Reichstag to Great Britain's good faith in those negotiations.

"The proposal for the second conference between the powers was made by Sir Edward Grey with the same straightforward desire for peace as in 1912 and 1913. The German Chancellor rejected this means of averting the war. He who does not will the means must not complain if the conclusion is drawn that he did not will the end.

"The second part of the interview with an American correspondent consists of a discourse upon the ethics of the war. The things which Germany has done in Belgium and France have been placed on record by those who have suffered from them, and who know them at first hand. After this it does not lie with the German Chancellor to read to the other belligerents a lecture upon the conduct of the war."

$1,060,280,000 LOSS BY WAR IN BELGIUM

An article in a recent issue of the Figaro places the financial damage done to Belgium by the Germans at $1,060,288,000. Of course this cannot give any idea of the suffering which has been inflicted on the country and inhabitants. It considers only the losses of a material nature which can be listed in terms of dollars and cents. The article is headed "A Note To Be Paid," and says:

"The following list, drawn up by a lawyer in the Court of Appeals in Brussels, shows the damage which the Germans have inflicted on Belgium. Here is the list:

Liege and environs, buildings, trade and forts, $34,580,000.

"Tirlemont, trade and buildings, $5,520,000.

"Louvain, university, buildings and trade, $37,160,000.

"Aershot, $1,240,000.

"Namur, buildings, commerce and forts, $23,932,000.

"Dinant (including the chateaux, near the river), $15,670,000.

"Charleroi and environs, buildings and factories, $103,160,000.

"Mons, $680,000.

"Tournai, Lueze and Ath, $500,000.

"Hasselt, Thourout and Moll, $1,542,000.

"Alost, trade, $1,960,000.

"Termonde, $4,170,000.

"Damage caused in the rural districts, crops, cattle, hogs, sheep, horses, chateaux and farms burned or pillaged, $283,614,000.

"Anvers and environs, forts, trade, Churches, merchandise and foodstuffs, $101,150,000.

"To the State, buildings, foreign holdings, monuments, bridges, roads, etc., $240,000,000.

"Total, $1,060,288,00.

"With this for an example, to what untold amount will the grand total come?"

ECZEMA ON THE HEAD.

Mr. Peterson, South Bay, Ont., writes: "For years I suffered a sort of eczema on the head. I tried four different doctors, giving each a fair trial, but the disease grew worse and spread to my arm. I got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it has entirely cured me. I give you my name because I want other sufferers to know about this splendid Ointment."

Splendid Work By Peterboro' Women's War Fund Committee

A Resume of What Has Been Accomplished for the Comfort of the Soldiers and for the Relief and Assistance of the Families of Those Who Went to the Front.

Following is a report of the Women's War Fund committee:

On August 18th, 1914, in response to the call of the Daughters of the Empire, a large and representative gathering of the women of Peterborough met in the armouries to consider ways and means by which money could be raised for the hospital ship offered by the women of Canada to the British Admiralty. It was decided to raise a war fund by open subscription lists at the banks and also by a street collection to be done by means of autos. A committee of forty-four was formed to take charge of all work in connection with the fund, this committee deciding to hold the collection on August 18th. The total sum collected at Banks and street collection amounted to over $1800.00 the first week, of which it was decided to send $1,000.00 to the Hospital Ship, the balance and all succeeding donations to be held as an Emergency Fund to be used for the soldiers enlisting in Peterborough. As there was a large balance it was decided afterwards to use part of it to help the soldiers' families. On August 21st the making of housewives for our men of the first contingent was begun, and the following week over two hundred of these were sent to Valcartier. When our battery men were leaving Cobourg for Valcartier the Women's committee sent them lunch for their train trip.

A committee composed of all Daughters of the Empire on the large committee, was formed to visit the families of men leaving for the front, and to find out if assistance was needed. This committee faithfully visited all families and provided them with clothing, including boots and rubbers. One hundred and thirty pairs of boots and ten pairs of rubbers in all were given. In cases of emergency they supplied them with groceries. Every week the members of this committee went to Mr. Miller, through whom the city supplied funds and fuel, and received the allowance of money for each family, which was taken to them until their regular pay arrived from the Government. This has been done with all families of members of the first and second contingents, but as the Patriotic committee has now been formed for this work, the Women's Relief committee has left it entirely to them to take charge of the families of the third contingent.

Every Wednesday afternoon from sixty to one hundred women met together to sew, and have made:

273 pieces of underwear, 10 bonnets, 11 dresses, 6 coats, 4 carriage covers and 1 skirt; besides 5 bonnets, 14 dresses, 4 coats, 21 pairs slippers, 1 skirt, 53 pieces of underwear, and 1 muff and stole, which were distributed at Christmas.

All of the above articles were used in Peterborough, while five bales were made up for the Belgians. For this work for the Belgians the Board of Trade donated $25.00 which was supplemented by private donations of money, clothing and material. A partial list of articles made at the Armouries for these bales is as follows:

16 children's dresses, 49 dresses with caps, 4 coats, 6 children's petticoats, 4 women's petticoats, 9 caps, 7 pairs slippers, 4 little coats and 7 pairs of pants.

Each of the five bales was valued at $100.00. On October 1st, Mr. T. C. Elliott kindly gave the use of his store to the Women's War Fund committee, who were to have part of the day's proceeds. They received the splendid sum of $100.00, which was sent to the Belgian Relief Fund.

There were one hundred and twenty-seven men and officers who went from the 57th with the first contingent and about eighty from the Battery, each of whom was supplied with a cholera belt, sleeping cap and wristlets knitted. They also received at Salisbury for Christmas 116 pairs of socks and 74 pairs of kneecaps.

The twenty-five C.G.E. men stationed on military service were provided with caps and wristlets and at Christmas were sent either a muffler or a pair of gloves.

The men of the second contingent numbered about ninety. On leaving for Kingston they were given a dinner by the Women's War Fund committee, and each presented with a sleeping cap and wristlets knitted. At Christmas they received a cholera belt each, also two barrels of apples to be divided amongst them.

There have been sent to Miss Plummer in England to be distributed to needy Canadians, 120 pairs of socks and 7 cholera belts, part of which were knitted by women of Chemong, Gilmour Memorial church and Zion.

Twenty pairs of wristlets and eight pairs of socks were sent to Belgian reservists leaving for the front from Montreal.

Between Christmas and New Year's a supper and Christmas tree were given the wives and children of the soldiers. In the early afternoon the children played various games, and then all sat down to a bountiful supper, after which came the distribution of gifts from the tree. Each mother received a gift and each child was given something useful to wear, also a toy or book, and candies, nuts and oranges.

The women have given a great deal of time and thought to their work, and while knowing that they have helped to alleviate the material wants of the families of our defenders, can only trust that they have cheered them in their loneliness.

As the funds of the committee are running low the Conservatory of Music orchestra have kindly offered to give their annual concert under the committee's auspices on Feb. 8th, when it is hoped the funds will be considerably augmented.

D. E. TURNER, Secretary.

MANN'S PORTABLE SAW MILL STARTED

The corner of Sherbrooke and Aylmer Streets has again assumed its busy appearance. The hum and activity of E. H. Mann's winter custom sawmill has begun, and attracts general attention. The teamsters are busy drawing in their logs to be cut according to specifications, while the good sleighing lasts; and builders and others are ordering their stock cut into lumber as fast as the logs can be handed in. Mr. Mann has given employment to quite a number of men, who will now be steadily employed until the spring opens.

Writes From Salisbury Plain

Pte. M. M. Wood Writes Interesting Letter to His Mother

Mrs. Wood, Water Street, has received the following letter from her son, Pte. Maitland Wood, who is with the first Canadian contingent at Salisbury Plain. It is as follows:

Salisbury, Jan. 8, 1915.

Dear Mother and Family,—I have your letters of Dec. 14th, 21st and 28th, and your Christmas card and anaps of boys. How they are growing!

I have just been up to London on my second leave, and had one of the best holidays I ever had. I was with Odely Taylor and a fellow named Greene from Havelock, for a few days, until they returned to camp. I had to spend the rest of the time alone, as I could not find Barney Quinn, for the bunch got separated.

You know we are having bad goods here, and I have to wade about 100 yards in water over a foot deep to get home to camp. It being dark I stopped at a camp to inquire my way, and stayed to have a cup of tea and a piece of Christmas cake at the cook house. The cook was a Queen's student. He said he knew Ian Revell, and Roy Dixon, and he told me Hawley Grant was in his regiment, the field ambulance, so I found Hawley and had a visit with him. He was well and had letters from nearly every one around Hartington. I received two pairs of socks from Aunt Emma and Grandma Hogle, which I needed badly as mine were all wet. I got new boots and new uniform to-day. We are still in tents, and I am not sorry, as I think the tents are healthier.

Odely and Barney are here in the Y.M.C.A. tent writing letters. Odely has seen Allan Kingscote, but I have not seen him yet. I had my Christmas dinner in camp. The Duchess of Connaught sent us each a cake of maple sugar, which we enjoyed very much.

As soon as I read the papers you sent I took them to the Peterborough camp. Love to all,

M. M. WOOD,
Salisbury Plain.

P.S.—Just received the Christmas box you sent to Barney and I took Barney's to him. I had a fine time. The boys in the tent send thanks.

British Cruisers Lion and Meteor Were Hit By Shells

Eye-Witnesses of Sunday's Naval Battle Say British Gunners Far Outpointed Enemy—Injury to Cruisers to be Speedily Repaired.

LONDON, Jan. 27. — The battle cruiser Lion, which led the British squadron into battle with the Germans in the North Sea last Sunday, and the torpedo boat destroyer Meteor were disabled and had to be towed into port and in addition, one officer and thirteen men were killed and three officers and twenty-six men wounded on three of the ships — the Lion, Tiger and Meteor.

This information is contained in an Admiralty statement issued last night. This statement gives denial to the German reports that one British cruiser and two torpedo boat destroyers were sunk by declaring that all of the British ships engaged in the action have returned in safety to port.

The announcement was made by the Secretary of the Admiralty, whose statement said:

"All the British ships and torpedo boat destroyers engaged in Sunday's action have returned in safety to port.

"The Lion, which had some of her forward compartment flooded by shells below the water line, was taken in tow by the cruiser Indomitable. The cruiser Meteor, which also was damaged, was taken in tow by the destroyer Liberty. Both vessels were guarded by strong escorts of destroyers. Repairs to both vessels can be speedily effected.

"The total number of casualties among the officers and men reported to the Admiralty is: On the Lion 17 men wounded; on the Tiger, one officer and nine men killed and three officers and eight men wounded; on the Meteor, four men killed and one man wounded. It is not believed that any other casualties occurred, but if so they will be immediately published.

"As soon as Vice-Admiral Beatty's report is received a fuller account will be given."

Benjamin Stead, former member of the navy, who witnessed the battle Sunday between the German and British fleets from the steam trawler Octavia, arrived at Hull yesterday. He says that those on board the Octavia suddenly heard a heavy cannonade and almost immediately found themselves in the very midst of a terrible naval battle.

The German squadron of six battleships tore by the Octavia at full speed, their stern guns belching at the pursuing British. The latter fired a veritable stream of shells at the Germans, many of which scored clean hits.

The enemy were obviously trying to reach their own shores, says the eye-witness, while the British were striving to drive them on in a southerly direction. He declares that the Germans were firing wildly, with practically no effect, while the British gunners were training their pieces with the precision of target practice, and continued to reach the Germans as long as the two fleets were in sight.

The Blucher passed very close to the Octavia, and it could be seen that she was rapidly sinking. One funnel was gone, her bridge smashed and hull riddled when she limped by the Octavia. Men on board the trawler had an excellent view for the fight for 20 miles.

A Sheffield sailer, a first-class stoker on the light cruiser that took part in the naval action, came home on Sunday night on short leave, and told a vivid story, in the course of which he said:

"It did not take many hits to finish the Blucher. The last one took her on the waterline and she slowly heeled over and went down like a glass sinking in the water. Some of our destroyers immediately went to the rescue of the drowning crew, but other Grman boats fired on them, and as a result far fewer were saved than otherwise would have been the case."

Lockmaster At Burleigh Falls

Passes Away—Death of Mr. Jacob C. Bates on Jan. 15th

There passed away at his home at Burleigh Falls, on January 15th, one of our oldest and most highly respected residents, in the person of Jacob C. Bates, after an illness of two weeks' duration, with appendicitis, at the age of seventy years. The deceased had for the past eight years been in the employ of the Trent Canal, being Lock Master at Burleigh Falls. There is left to mourn his loss his sorrowing wife and two daughters, Mrs. A. Wilson of Milden, Sask., and Mrs. W. W. Lewis of Dinsmore, Sask.

The funeral was held from the family residence, on Saturday, January 23, and was conducted by Rev. Mr. Johnson, Pastor of the Methodist Church, Lakefield. The pall-bearers were Messrs. Nathan C. Bates, Allan Church, Ernest Harvey, Charles Lauder, William Bolton, and Israel Church. A large number of friends and acquaintances followed the remains to their last resting place.

Interment took place in the Harvey Cemetery.

WONDERFUL FOR THE BLOOD

Cures Sallow Skin, Headache, Langour and Tiredness

You don't need to be told how you feel,—blue, sort of sickish, poor appetite, vague pains, tired in the morning. This condition is common at this season.

Fortunately there is prompt relief in Dr. Hamilton's Pills which immediately relieve the system of all poisons and disease-producing matter.

Thousands have been so utterly depressed, so worn out as to be despondent, but Dr. Hamilton's Pills always cured them. "I can speak feelingly on the power of Dr. Hamilton's Pills," writes C. T. Fearman, of Kingston. "Last spring my blood was thin and weak, I was terribly run down, had awful headaches and a knawing, empty feleing about my stomach, I couldn't sleep or work until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills,—they did me a world of good." Feeling Against Glaubitz Is Running High

SPECIAL WIRE:

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 27.— Judge McBeth, who had been asked to investigate the charges of treason against General Manager H. J. Glaubitz of the Public Utilities Commission for the alleged allowing a German reservist in his employ to escape after war was declared, refused on the ground that he had no authority.

A mandamus may be asked by the Council, but the Citizens' committee may lay a police court charge of high treason.

Feeling is running high against Glaubitz, who is a German, and in some quarters fears for his safety are entertained.

A method has been invented for stopping a leak in a vessel with compressed air without injury to other parts of the vessel.

Beware of Trouble

It is the wisest thing you can do to have your watch examined at this time of the year.

The cold weather is apt to harden the oil—that strains the mainspring and affects the motion.

People usually wait until something breaks. The other way is the cheapest in the end and a little attention at the right time saves the watch.

Rural School Teachers In East Peterborough During 1914 Had Higher Qualifications

Mr. Richard Lees Presented Very Satisfactory Report of His Inspectorate to the County Council To-day--Agriculture in Several Schools Proving a Successful Experiment--Salaries Considerably Higher.

Mr. Richard Lees, Inspector of the Schools in East Peterborough, presented the following report to the County Council, this morning. It is full of interest and provides a great deal of satisfaction in the knowledge that education in Peterborough's rural communities is fast approaching a high level. Mr. Lees said:

The Number of Schools.

There were open during the year 71 rural schools, with 77 teachers, and three village schools, with 21 teachers One of the schools, classed as rural, No. 2, N. Monaghan, is now in reality an urban schol, having four teachers. In the performance of my duties I made 221 half-day visits, 173 in the rural, and 48 in the Village schools. Every rural school was visited at least twice, except No. 13, Methuen, which was closed when I was in that part of the inspectorate in the first half-year.

Qualification of Teachers.

It is pleasant to be able to report continued improvement in the qualification of the teachers. Of the 77 teachers in the rural schools during last term, three held First Class, 37 Second Class, 12 Third Class, 9 District, and 14 temporary certificates. Two had no certificates. This is an increase of one First and eleven Second Class Certificates, as compared with the same period a year previous. While at that time there were 27 teahers with no professional training, the number had been reduced to sixteen last term.

Still Room for Improvement.

While this is encouraging, it will be seen that there is still ample room for improvemept. The difficulty in getting qualified teachers has greatly decreased during the past couple of years, and with the encouragement now given to the poorer schools in the form of extra grants, there should be little difficulty in securing teachers with at least, Model School training, for all schools except those that remain open for a part of the year only. Of these there were last year only six or seven.

The twenty-one teachers in the Village schools, including the four Continuation School teachers, were, for the first time, all fully qualified.

Increase in Salaries.

There was a gratifying increase in the salaries paid, which, no doubt, accounts for the improvement in the qualification of the teachers. The average for the whole inspectorate, based on the rate being paid during the fall term of last year, was $517, as compared with $478 a year previous, or an increase of $39. The average by townships for the past four years was as follows:

	1911	1912	1913	1914
Asphodel	$491	$514	$536	$575
Belmont & Meth.	391	413	446	478
Burleigh & Anstr.	339	371	399	437
Chandos	305	344	385	387
Douro	448	500	530	555
Dummer	421	456	503	519
North Monaghan	476	520	535	567
Otonabee	500	525	553	562

Grants Show Increase.

A year ago attention was called to the fact that the Government had been compelled to make a pro rata reduction of 28 per cent. in the grant on account of salaries and certificates. For 1914, the reduction was 36.3 per cent., but notwithstanding this the total amount received for the inspectorate was $219.21 in excess of the amount for 1913. This, however, was still $1,243.59 below the amount received in 1912. As was pointed out last year, this is an indication that the increase in salaries here has not kept up with the average for the whole province for the two years, though for last year alone, it would indicate that the increase had been greater for this inspectorate than for the Province as a whole. This is encouraging, as it is evident that until our schools pay salares equal to the average the teachers will also be below the average.

The Assisted Schools grant for 1913 which was received in February last, was $2,810, as compared with $1,365 the previous year. The increase in this grant did much to offset the falling-off in the other. For 1914 the sum of $2,910 was asked for, but notice has not yet been received in regard to it.

Agriculture and School Gardens.

During the year two schools—Nos. 7, Douro, and 13, Otonabee—undertook the teaching of Agriculture and the conduct of school gardens, under the direction of the Department of Agriculture The latter spent a considerable sum in acquiring land and making the necessary provision. Though the early part of the season was very dry and conditions unfavourable, the garden did well and the experiment was a decided success. Condition as to soil and surroundings were less favourable at No. 7, Douro, and the results were not so encouraging.

A third garden was conducted independently at Hiawatha School, No. 11, Otonabee. The trustees there acquired half an acre of land adjoining the school ground, and fenced it separately. The results were more than gratifying and demonstrated the possibilities of this work when backed up by interest and enthusiasm.

Individual Gardens.

In addition to this, the pupils of some twenty or more schools conducted home gardens and experimental plots under the direction of the District representatives of the Department of Agriculture. This work was well organised and successfully carried out. At the close of the season school fairs were held, at which the products of the gardens and other aricles, as well as live stock, produceded under the care of the pupils, were exhibited. Two fairs were held in the inspectorate, one at Westwood and the other at Greystock, in Otonabee. At each of these fairs about 600 school children were present, besides 300 parents and young people. The number of entries was large, the quality of the products good, and the interest manifested, all that could be desired.

S. S. No. 6, Asphodel.

The school house in Section No. 6, Asphodel, which was almost a new building, and one of the best in the inspectorate, was destroyed by fire on January 10th, last year. The trustees at once made temporary arrangements for the carrying on of the work and as soon as possible proceeded to replace the building The new building was completed at midsummer. It is slightly larger than the one destroyed, is more complete in some ways and is a credit to the section.

Hinderances to Progress.

As in former years irregularity of attendance and frequent changes of teachers continue to be the most potent hinderances to satisfactory progress. Of 77 teachers in the rural shool, 16 changed hands at the beginning of last year, 9 between that and June, and 41 at midsummer, making a total of 66 changes during the year. While this is bad enough, it is an improvement on the previous year, in which there were 73 changes with two fewer teachers.

It is hoped that the new regulations in regard to truancy and irregularity of attendance, which go into operation in September next, will have some effect in remedying that evil.

All of which is respectfully submitted by

Your obedient servant,
Richard Lees.
P. S. Inspector, Peterborough East.

Foreign Crop Outlook Not Very Optimistic

Figured by Conservative Authorities That U. S. Has Yet 100,000,000 Bushels to Share--Argentine an Uncertain Quantity--World's Visible Shrinking.

SPECIAL CABLE:

An estimate of 48,000,000 bushels of wheat available for export during the remaining five and a half months of the crop year is declared in well-informed circles as too small. Some influential men are inclined to place the surplus at double the figure.

One of the most trusted grain specialists in the New York market says: "It has been figured that we have about 100,000,000 bushels more to spare, after making liberal allowances for the farm reserves, seed and so forth. At the beginning of the season it was estimated that we had at least 275,000,000 bushels for export. We have already shipped approximately 175,000,000 bushels. Since the estimate was made the rise of prices has come. On the strength of these it is not improbable that the farm reserves may be cut down 25,000,000 bushels more. That would give us an exportable surplus of 300,000,000 bushels or 125,000,000 bushels more before July 1."

The foreign situation, so far as crop prospects are concerned, seems to be in favour of the American market. Russian winter grain areas are known to be suffering from severe cold. The heavy rains and consequent floods in Western Europe have done some damage. A conservative mercantile house here in touch with conditions in Argentina places its exportable wheat as low as 110,000,000 bushels. Some of this will not be marketable before July, and out of this the deficit for Australiasia will probably be taken.

Even if the Dardenelles be opened, it is claimed by some familiar with Russian conditions, that the available Black Sea surplus will not be large enough to affect the general situation materially. As for the Balkan surpluses they are being or have been absorbed by Austria-Hungary and Germany.

The Decrease.

Ordinarily a weekly report of decrease of 5,089,000 bushels in the all-American visible supply would have sent prices up still farther. But the investigation ordered from Washington explained the drop of 2 3-8 cents on Tuesday. Mills were probably the buyers on the way down for immediate needs. The decrease in the world's visible supply of 5,889,000 bushels of wheat contrasts sharply with the increase of 3,933,000 bushels in corn.

Wheat at $1.43 for May delivery and $1.25 5-8 for July is not regarded as leaving much speculative value in either of these contracts. The cash position is nearly identical with May. In the case of corn, however, the trade is much more speculative. The holdings are compact, and the recent rise of May prices to 79 1-8 was the highest quotation for May contracts in January in the history of the trade. Here the short interests have been considerable. Supplies have been large at primary markets for some weeks. Between August 1st and December 31, Chicago received 41,080 cars of corn, compared with 30,000 cars a year ago. Oats, on a crop of about equal size is 37 1-2 per cent. higher than a year ago.

$1.35 is being paid in Peterborough for Ontario winter wheat. This is the highest price that has been paid in years. A very limited quantity is coming in.

ATHENS, Greece, January 27.—General Jemal Pasha, the former Minister of Marine, has been appointed commander in chief of Turkish forces in the campaign against Egypt. Three Turkish army corps are reported to be marching on Egypt. The advance party has clashed with the British outposts at Elkantra, near the Suez Canal.

ATHENS, January 27.—It is learned here that the Turkish forces invading Egypt number one hundred and twenty thousand men, and the advance parties have already clashed with the Australians and the British less than thirty miles from the Suez Canal. The British report a loss of one officer and three men wounded.

A COMPARSION OF PRICES ETC.

"Of course you did. It's not likely you would go to a grocery store for prices."

"What was the price of five ampere Westinghouse meters in the spring of 1914?"

"I don't know exactly."

"Well, give me an approximate price."

"It depends on whether it was the latest type of meter. They would probably cost about $7.85."

"Then you charge us $12.50 for a meter that you can purchase for $7.85 in lots of 500?"

"There would be freight to pay."

"What would that amount to?"

"Not very much."

"Is it fair to say that you get your prices from salesmen representing electrical houses, and adopted these as your prices?"

"I got prices from the various electrical houses, and compared them with those in my price books."

"Who did you say in the Northern Electrical Company?"

"I don't remember his name. He was supposed to—"

"I don't want to know what he was supposed to do. What did he do?"

"I don't know exactly."

"Where did you get the price of wire at 18c a pound?"

"I took an average of the prices in Canada and United States. The prices in Canada are a good deal higher than in the States, and the Canadian prices are governed by the United States."

Harry K. Thaw Is Arraigned

SPECIAL WIRE TO THE EXAMINER:

NEW YORK CITY, Jan. 27.— The battle of lawyers to dissipate the Thaw millions began anew to-day, when Harry K. Thaw was arraigned and pleaded not guilty to a charge of conspiracy in escaping from Matteawan. The trial is fixed for February 23rd, and Thaw will remain in the Tombs in the meanwhile.

After long experimenting a helical bevel gear has been perfected for automobile use which is said to be less noisy and more powerful than straight bevels.

"Pats" Take Prisoners

Letter From Mrs. Gault Tells of First Day in Treaches

MONTREAL, Jan. 27. — The Princess Patricias' Light Infantry, now in Flanders, have taken their first German prisoners. This is revealed in a letter from Mrs. Hamilton Gault, wife of Major Gault, to relatives here.

Mrs. Gault, describing the Patricia's engagement on Jan. 2, says: "Three men were killed and six were wounded in the fight which was evidently successful, as they took their first German prisoners. It was a terrible day. Constant fire. Poor Denzil Newton was shot through the abdomen just as he was getting out of a trench."

Mrs. Gault says Lord Kitchener referred to the Patricias as "the premier regiment of my second army" when asked whether they were to be considered as Territorials or regulars.

Mrs. Gault gives several instances of the unquenchable cheerfulness of the men. One sergeant told an officer he had been reduced to the ranks, pointing out that a shell had ripped off the stripes from his sleeve. Another sang the "Maple Leaf" while being carried away on a stretcher. He had been very badly wounded. Major Gault himself had his ear grazed by a bullet while going into a trench.

Is In Command In South Africa

Lieut.-Col. (M.D.) F. H. Brennan, O.D., Formerly of This City, Writes to Local Man

Mr. M. H. Quinlan, Charlotte street, has received a communication from Dr. F. H. Brennan, formerly of Peterborough, bu now Lieut.-Col. F. H. Brennan, V.D., of South Africa. He is in command of a regiment of 750 men, and has been in active service for Great Britain for over three months. He further states that twenty-two of the twenty-six officers of his regiment are Irishmen and eighty-five per cent. of the men in the Company are Irish. The Regiment, consequently, is called the Irish Northern Force with headquarters at Capetown. Lieut.-Col. Brennan was, while a resident of Peterborough, a Captain in the 57th Regiment

MISS SAUNDERS AT Y. W. C. A.

National Secretary Gave Two Addresses Yesterday

Miss Una Saunders, national secretary of the Y.W.C.A., gave two addresses in the Y.W.C.A. parlours yesterday. In the afternoon at 3.30 o'clock she spoke on "Christ's Work Among the Individuals," in which she urged the necessity of doing personal work for Christ.

At 8 o'clock Miss Saunders' address was on the 'Women's Movement.' She showed the development of the movement since its earliest inception and stated that woman stood with man for the highest ideals of life in all its phases.

Miss Saunders will speak this evening at 8 o'clock. It is hoped that many will avail themselves of the opportunity to hear Miss Saunders' last address.

BREAD WENT UP ONE QUARTER CENT

Bakers and Grocers Declare a Truce—Wheat is Up Again

Apparently a truce has been declared between the bakers and grocers of the city. At present the grocers are receiving their bread at 5 1-4 cents per 1 1-2 pound loaf, and retailing at the usual price of 6 cents. The bakers wanted 5 1-2 cents for the small loaf and when the grocers refused to pay the extra half cent it was arranged that for a time at least the increase should be cut in half.

Ontario wheat is selling this week at $1.32. It is steadily advancing and will probably hit the top notch before spring. As one grocer remarked, the bakers must have made an enormous profit when wheat sold around 80 cents and they received about the same price for their bread as they are getting at present.

Better Teachers and Higher Salaries in the Townships

Mr. George E. Broderick Presents a Report of His Inspectorate, Showing Conditions as Satisfactory as Those Detailed by Mr. Lees — Attendance Could Be Better.

ENNISMORE CONTINUATION SCHOOL

Education in rural communities is on the upward trend according to the report of the County School Inspectors to the County Council to-day. Higher salaries are being paid by trustees and the qualifications of the teachers are commensurately improved. Mr. George E. Broderick, whose inspectorate includes with victoria [illegible] the western townships of Peterborough, presented a very gratifying report, and Mr. Lees', printed in another column, is equally satisfactory. Mr. Broderick stated that with the exception of S.S. No. 1, Cavendish, there is not now in Peterborough West, a teacher without some professional training. At the present time all the schools of Smith, except one, all those of Ennismore, and 78 per cent. of those in Harvey are taught by qualified teachers.

Mr. Broderick mentioned that teachers holding higher grades of certificates cannot be induced to go to the remote schools except to those near railroads or approximate to their own homes. To remedy this condition he again suggested the consolidation of schools. A second remedy is higher salaries to attract better teachers. The increase should be met by increased government and county grants.

The present assessment in West Peterborough is approximately 2,482,-204.00. Assuming that the government would grant an equivalent, a county levy of ½ of 1 mill on the dollar would increase the salary offered in each of 12 schools in the north of Peterborough section of my inspectorate by $100.00. With a rational consolidation of some sections the increase would be greater.

Grow Its Teachers.

The placing of competent second-class teachers in these schools would mean that many pupils could take a course of study leading to model school entrance examination. That examination passed there need be but one year in preparing for entrance to normal, at a good Collegiate Institute. In this way the country could grow its own teachers, which, in my opinion, is the remedy for present conditions.

The union of sections for the sake of economy and increased grants to weak schools are neither visionary nor impractical; and I venture to suggest that a committee of the Council be appointed to investigate and report upon the matter in June, or at the November session.

School Attendance.

Smith—Enrolment 406; average attendance 291; percentage 58¾.

Ennismore—Enrolment 100; average 100; percentage 68.

Harvey—Enrolment 206; average 134; percentage 62.

Attendance Unsatisfactory.

An examination of the above table shows that the attendance of pupils is very unsatisfactory. A school with a 50 per cent. is not 50 per cent. efficient. I take the liberty of suggesting that where the Township Council has failed to exercise the authority vested in them, the County Council should appoint an officer as permitted in Section 7 Sub-Section (3) of the Compulsory Attendance Act.

Continuation School.

The Continuation School at Ennismore is prospering with an attendance larger than at any time in its history except one year, and a staff fully qualified, enthusiastic and competent, the school is in several ways doing excellent work. It is giving the young people of the township a substantial High School education at their own door; it is doing a fine work in preparing candidates for the teaching profession and for the university, and through the culture and competency of its staff it is influencing in the strongest way all who attend. Besides the ordinary High School subjects the trustees have recently made arrangements for the effective, and I hope permanent, teaching of agriculture.

The conduct and spirit of this school is in every way of a high order.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

The estimates of the Fire, Water and Light Committee and Board of Works will likely be tabled at the respective meetings that will be held this afternoon and evening respectively. It is stated that the estimates will come a little higher than last year, so that it will devolve upon Ald Stratton, Chairman of the Finance Committee to pare them down.

New Work.

Mayor Buller is authority for the statement that it is the intention of the City to proceed with the various forms of public work as soon as the Spring opens up. Any special work such as the construction of sewers and sidewalks can be provided for by debentures.

WITH OTHER COUNCILS.

Mayor Announced Private Meeting.

"I object to attending private meetings," said Controller Foster at the meeting of the Toronto Board of Control, when Mayor Church announced that a private meeting would be held with the Hydro-Electric Commission to adjust the claim of the commissioner for the cost of removing Hydro-Electric poles. The conference was eventually deferred for two weeks.

Board of Trade.

A. Bauer has been elected President of the Waterloo Board of Trade.

Registration Is Now 14,700

The total registration of the Toronto Civic Bureau is 14,700, over 200 men having registered yesterday. The work of excavating for the laying of the new 36-inch main is to be started to-day

Hydro By-law.

Sell Bonds by Tender.

Mayor Church of Toronto expressed the opinion that this year in the sale of bonds the tendering system would be used.

Will Insure Soldiers.

Stratford will insure those of its citizens who go to the front with the third contingent.

City's Rifles are Good.

Property Commissioner Chisholm of Toronto states that after consulting experts, he learns that the City's rifles are even better than the sample.

NORTH MONAGHAN WOOD CUTTERS

A Party of Five Cut Seven Cords in a Week and Then Complained of the Remuneration

There is a story going the rounds concerning a party of five residents of North Monaghan who spent a week cutting wood for Reeve John McIntosh, in consideration of which, it is alleged, they received the sum of five dollars, to be divided between them. Reeve McIntosh submits his side of the story, as follows:

"In order to alleviate the suffering incident to those out of employment, and residing in the Township of North Monaghan, Reeve McIntosh inaugurated the idea of putting men into the woods to cut wood at the rate of seventy-five cents a cord, and to further demonstrate his philanthropic spirit, agreed to pay ten cents more per cord than the prevailing price for such work. In due time a party of five responded to the call. Reeve McIntosh looked them over and then showed them the woods and the shanty that they were to live in during their week's sojourn in the tamarack swamp. In the words of the Reeve, two of the party were boys, and the sharpest axe any of them had you could ride to town on. They remained a week during which the Reeve supplied them with potatoes. When they were through, their work measured up to five dollars, which they received on the spot. They were also given two cords of wood valued at seven dollars.

The total amount of wood cut during the week was seven cords. Reeve McIntosh states that one good man would cut two cords of wood a day. His idea of dispensing charity is to make Hash earn it as far as possible. This is similar to the system that the Relief Committee proposes to adopt.

SASKATCHEWAN TO OUST ONE FORM OF GERMAN PRODUCTS

Most of the coal tar products that have in the past been imported from Germany in large quantities will in all probability now be made in Canada. It has been discovered that many of them can be obtained as a bi-product from the lignites found along the Canadian Northern Railway in the Province of Saskatchewan, which, when properly handled, will form one of the main fuel supplies of the Province.

A review of the trade of the past few years shows that Canada and the United States have been bringing in tar products valued at the point of export at over twelve million dollars, which probably cost double that amount by the time they reached the consumer. Amongst the most important of these commodities are wood preservatives, paraffin, aniline dyes and various antiseptics.

Millions of gallons of creosoting oils for preserving timber and ties have been imported by Canada and the United States. On account of the decrease in the visible supply of railway timber, the demand for preservatives is much on the increase, and it is only a matter of time before railways will use nothing but treated ties.

As the German supply is cut off it can readily be understood that this is a golden opportunity for the development of a large trade in these products, which can undoubtedly be obtained from lignite at a lower cost than they are being laid down on the ground at present.

Interests in Regina have been actively engaged for some time in investigating the lignite fields (of virtually unlimited extent); and their possibilities in conjunction with the Government of the Province, and the active developments of these deposits of excellent fuel has been decided upon. In conjunction with this operation, those undertaking this work intend to invade the open market with their coal tar products, and capture this valuable trade, the control of which in the past has been to a large extent in the hands of the Germans.

INSTALLATION OF THE OFFICERS OF COURT STANLEY

The regular meeting of Court Stanley, No. 7680, A.O.F., was held in the Sons of England Hall, Hunter street, Jan. 26th. A large attendance of the members went into many important matters, and specially the installation of the officers for 1915. Bro. Geo. Record occupied the chair, and welcomed the District Chief Ranger Tom Hendry, who took over the meetinf and installed the following officers:

P.C.R.—G. Record.
C.R.—C. Joyes.
S.C.R.—T. Parks.
Secretary—R. J. McWilliams.
Treasurer—H. McWha.
B.W.—A. Lawes.
J.W.—R. G. Northcote.
S.B.—J. Morton.
J.B.—E. B. McWilliams.
Chaplain—E. Brotherson.

After the installation was concluded the Brethren sat down to a sumptuous repast prepared by the good and welfare committee, when the following pleasant programme was gone into and very much enjoyed:

Toast—"The King," D.C.R., Tom Hendry.
Song—"The Anthem," Bro. R. Hendry.
Toast—Army and Navy, Bro. J. Malane.
Song — Soldier Boy, Bro. T. E. Parks.
Toast—A.O.F., Bro. T. Hendry.
Song—Bro. G. Hutchinson.
Toast—Court Stanley, C.R., C. Joyes.
Song—Bro. Roberts.
Toast—Juvenile Branch, Bro. A. Lawes.
Response—P.C.R. G. Record.
Toast—Officers for 1915, Treasurer H. McWha.
Song—Mona, Bro. E. B. McWilliams.
Song—Fou the Noo, Bro. R. Hendry.
Song—Bro. A. Lawes.

Speeches were made by Bros. T. Hendry and several others, after which the company sang Auld Lang Syne and God Save the King.

A pleasant evening indeed.

Responsibility Ended.

(Manchester Guardian.)

A sturdy little Lancashire lad went to a recruiting station to enlist. He was much disappointed when the officer told him he was too small and too young.

"Can't you find me some job in th' army what I am big enough for?" anxiously asked the lad.

"No, I can't, I'm sorry to say," replied the officer.

As the lad turned sorrowfully away he said: "Well, don't blame me if th' bloomin' Germans lick t' lot on yo'; that's all!"

A ROMANTIC HIT AT EMPIRE THEATRE

The story of the "Man on the Box" is being shown at the Empire theatre, Charlotte Street, and to-night will be the last presentation of it here. It has been having a good run all week, as it is a vivacious theme that deals with a phase of life that will appeal to all.

"Lieutenant Bob Warburton, a fancy-free, adventuresome spirit, is wounded during an encounter with the Indians and taken to the home of Col. Annesley for medical treatment. Recovering, Bob finds that his service in the army has expired and he says he is flat broke. However, he is rich in romance and becomes fascinated by the Colonel's daughter, Betty. Betty, not knowing who Bob is, offers him a position as coachman, which he accepts. Many and varied are Bob's experiences as "The Man On the Box" of the Annesley coach. Becoming implicated in a plot to defraud the United States Government of important plans, he thwarts the attempts of a Russian Count and saves important plans. Betty, while visiting Bob's sister, who is a dear friend, learns from Bob's photograph who he is, but allows him to continue as coachman. Bob is entirely ignorant of Betty's knowledge of his identity. Betty's father loses his money; then Bob discloses his identity and admits he is the possessor of a large fortune in his own right; however, Betty's and Bob's romance is one of pure love, and, after a series of intrigues, plots and counter-plots, all of which "The Man On the Box" foils, the couple are married and live happily ever after."

Lindsay Beat Cobourg Again

LINDSAY, Jan. 26—In a fast, clean game of hockey Lindsay Juniors defeated Cobourg by a score of 10 to 4.

The teams:

Referee—McCord.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

First Tankard Win Over Lindsay Curlers Since 1903

By defeating Lindsay and Millbrook curlers at the Charlotte Street Rink, yesterday, Peterborough won their district in the first round of the Ontario Tankard games, and qualifeated in the evening, the total score in Toronto.

The outstanding feature of the day's events was the satisfactory work of the local rink skipped by W. H. Taylor, who won a decisive victory over that splendid curler, Skip Flavelle, of Lindsay. Their final score was 18—8, and this margin of ten points was fully required, for in the meantime George Little, who skipped the other Lindsay rink, defeated W. M. Langley by 22—16. This left Peterbrough 4 up, the totals being 34—30.

Two Millbrook teams, headed by C. Needler and W. T. Wood, were defeated in the evening, the total score being 35—19.

The Taylor rink provided some of the prettiest curling that could be desired. Llewelyn Hall played first stone, with George Hill second, and R. M. Waddell vice-skip. The leads did all that was required of them, wasting very few stones; Mr. Waddell had a good day and gave the Skip every assistance, and Mr. Taylor has probably never shown better form. This rink fully deserved the hearty congratulations it received. Some of the members of the Club stated that this was the first time since 1903 that Peterborough had defeated Lindsay in a Tankard round. A victory was certainly due, and it largely resulted in the pace the Taylor-Weddell four set that the visitors were sent home on their shields.

Mr. Flavelle received good support. He had Dick Butler leading, with Frank Williams second stone. 'Larry' O'Connor was vice-skip. It was anybody's game until the 12th or 13th end. The scores were being counted up with stingy singles; but the visitors broke. On the defensive they began to take wider chances, while the Taylor rink closed very strong. The score was as follows:

Taylor . . . .1010101010202310—18
Flavelle . . .0101010200100000— 8

The score-board showed 6—6 on the eleventh end. Taylor went up two points on the 12th end. On the 13th, Taylor, with a pretty shot, picked off two Lindsay stones, near the centre, and lay shot with an outer stone, counting by a mere fraction. Flavelle's last stone was short, and Taylor counted two more. On the 15th end Taylor removed a Lindsay stone, near the button, drew cleverly with his last, and Skip Flavelle gave him a third by raising an outer Peterborough stone with a wide shot. Mr. Taylor was given excellent support. He and Mr. Hall were receiving their first Tankard experience. Mr. Hill and Mr. Waddell have been up before and their experience was a big factor in securing a win over rivals of many games in the past.

The Other Game.

W. M. Lang's rink lost in the last four ends beginning with five, in the fifteenth. Little of Lindsay played a great game throughout and had the best of support. The local rink flashed at times. They came from behind about the middle of the game, and seemed to be well on the way to a win but that five end quickly changed the complexion of the game. The Peterborough rink curled in good form, but they were opposed by four of Lindsay's best curlers.

The score was as follows:

Doctor Wightman	Walter Reesor
Wm. Hall	George Carew
D. Davidson	W. McLennan
W. M. Laing	Geo. Little
Skip—16	Skip—22

By ends—

Little . . . .0012040203010051 21—22
Lang . . . . .1100300201010430000—16

Against Millbrook, Lang defeated Wood by the score of 12—11, after a close game of fifteen ends; Taylor trimmed Needler by 23—8, going the full route.

HOCKEY GOSSIP

(Lou Marsh in the Toronto Star.)

Peterborough made it practically certain of a tie-up in group No. 1 of the intermediate O.H.A. last night when they laid it over Oshawa by 10 to 3 at home. This ties Picton and Peterborough up, each with seven wins and one loss. After the hard fight the speedy Oshawa lads gave "Ack" Hunter's seven at Peterborough it was felt that at home they would prove troublesome, but the big Peterborough ice evidently suited the Oshawa boys better than their own pond, for Peterborough beat them easily. It was good, hard hockey all the way, with just enough pepper to keep the crowd on its toes. Oshawa threw a scare into the Peterborough camp early by notching the first two goals, but after that the Lift Lock City crew got going and rammed home nine straight. It was 2 all at the end of the first period, 9 to 2 at the end of the second, and each got a goal in the final period. Petes were without Spratt, but with Halpin at rover and Moines on right wing the team was not at all weak, as the score indicates. The entire Peterborough team played good hockey. Freeman, Fair and Weiler were Oshawa's best. Weiler played a particularly strong game. Picton must beat Bowmanville Wednesday night to maintain themselves on even terms with Peterborough, who get a defaulted game with Whitby the same night.

Joe Moines, the Peterborough right wing, a Western boy, is only a little fellow, but he is showing up stronger every game. Last night at Oshawa some one swatted Moines on his broken toe, and after that there was fireworks all up and down one side of the rink.—Toronto Star.

Peterborough intermediates have two mascots, a dilapidated-looking yellow and black baseball hat owned by Grover Halpin, now worn by Captain "Ack" Hunter, and a grey cat Billy Bain picked up at Port Hope yesterday and toted down to Oshawa. The only game Peterborough lost this season, the one at Picton, the hat was missing. Both the hat and the cat will be at Bowmanville Friday night.—Toronto Star.

The Whitby ladies' hockey team probably the speediest team of girls in Ontario, are ready to play any ladies' team in Ontario at home or abroad. Robert Deverell is manager. On the team are the sisters of two of Whitby's star players, Artie Blanchard and "Dinner" Smith. The team consists of Miss Gates, a daughter of the late Allie Gates; Miss Amy Ross, Miss May Thompson, Miss Nellie Blanchard, Miss Lena Smith, Miss Flo Ward, and Mrs. Bryant. Miss Blanchard's stick-handling is the feature of the Whitby team's play.

They have been together for several years, and in that time have beaten Stirling, Haileybury, Cobalt, Ingersoll and Oshawa. Mr. Deverell is anxious to have his team meet the best ladies' seven in Toronto.—Toronto Star.

International Soccer War May Ensue From Great War

F. A. and S. F. A. at Loggerheads—The Leagues Are in Harmony—First Round English Cup Attendance

There is every prospect of an estrangement between the National Football Associations of England and Scotland over the "stop the game" business. The F. A. agreed to cancellation of International matches, but the S. F. A. have gone further and vetoed all cup ties. Here is the report submitted to the F. A. Council at their last meeting:—

"As the Scottish Football Association had asked for the conference, it came as a surprise to members when the president of the Scottish F. A. informed them that his association had placed themselves unreservedly in the hands of the War Office in the matter of the continuance or suspension of the playing of football in Scotland. It is difficult, in face of this decision to understand (1) why a conference was requested by the Scottish F. A.; (2) why their delegates should take part in discussions with the other representatives as to the desirability or otherwise of continuing to play; and (3) why before reporting the conference resolutions to their association for consideration the delegates should take action in opposition to a resolution for which a majority of the representatives had voted at the conference.

"No intimation whatever was given at the conference by the Scottish representatives that they intended to visit the War Office.

"As no explanation has been given your committee consider they have good ground to complain of the action of the Scottish F. A. and its delegates.

DESTROY PRINCIPLE.

"The report of the Scottish delegates to their association as to what occurred at the conference is not correct in some respects; but the most serious consideration is that if the representatives at a joint conference are not to hold themselves bound to honour the decisions of that conference, the fundamental principle of the International Board and International Agreements is destroyed."

The foregoing report is almost certain to be the subject of keen and bitter criticism over the Border, and in all probability will lead to a serious situation between the two governing bodies of our great national winter pastime—a situation so serious, indeed, that it may mean an estrangement so pronounced as to point to the probable abandonment of international contests between England and Scotland. The reply of the Scottish F. A. will, of course, be awaited with intense interest in football circles.

LEAGUES WILL PLAY.

Although the two associations will not play international matches this season the Leagues will, and this is where the anomalous part of the business comes in. At a meeting of the English League, the secretary reported that a communication had been received from the Scottish League Committee, stating that they were willing to go on with the Inter-League match provided that the English League agreed. It was resolved to play the match on March 24 at Glasgow.

TELLING FIGURES.

Despite the war the wisdom of the F. A. in allowing cup ties to proceed is justified by the following attendances at some of the games in the first round and they are such as must make the Scottish clubs' mouths water and more than ever resent the action of their national body. Here they are:

Sheffield W. vs. Manchester U., 23,247; Chelsea vs. Swindon Town, 28,000; Swansea T. vs. Blackburn R., 16,000; West Ham vs. Newcastle U., 15,000; Everton vs. Barnsley, 19,000; Bolton W. vs. Notts, 17,870; South Shields vs. Fulham, 15,000; Millwall vs. Clapton, 16,700; Bristol City vs. Cardiff C., 17,000; Birmingham vs. Crystal P., 18,000; Bradford vs. Portsmouth, 14,000; Hull City vs. W. Bromwich A., 13,000; Preston N. E. vs. Manchester C., 14,000; Burnley vs. Huddersfield T., 14,000; Aston Villa vs. Exeter City, 12,000; Derby County vs. Leeds City, 10,000; Blackpool vs. Sheffield U., 10,000.

ALTERED RULE.

In view of the altered conditions with reference to drawn games in the F. A. cup ties, the English League have decided that the underlying principles in Rule 16 governing the question of compensation in the case of League matches postponed through cup ties should operate as follows:

(1) If the home club is not engaged in a cup tie, but the visiting club is, the visiting club be liable to pay compensation.

(2) If the home club is engaged in a cup tie, and the visiting team is not, no compensation shall be paid.

BEHIND FIRING LINE.

The French have started playing football in conquered, or, rather, reconquered territory. The first match played by the troops in Alsace is reported by L'Auto as resulting in a victory for the 207th Infantry over the 4th Artillery by 8 goals to none. The game was played at a distance of a few kilometres from the firing line.

A NEAR THING.

That Derby were only able to draw on their own ground with Fulham is further evidence of how insecure the position of any club is at the present time. The Second League leaders were counted upon to take two points out of this game, but they had to be content with one only. Notts Forest won at Bristol, and this, added to the victory of the County over Oldham, will make Nottingham folks very happy. The other results are much as expected.

THEY STILL LEAD.

Reading still lead in the Southern League, but they just managed to take one point out of their game with Watford. This at home, too. Truly it was a day when the big guns failed to find the proper range. It is some consolation to them to know that Millwall, one of their rivals, lost two points to Southampton, but it will be noticed that Brighton and Hove are now at second place and have a game in hand. They will now require to be watched.

LEADERS BEATEN.

Few ever thought that Oldham Athletic, the league leaders, would fall to Notts County. They have been performing so consistently well of late that it was confidently expected that they would increase their lead in Lancopolis. Not fewer than five of the First League games were drawn and points divided. Bradford's tie at Sunderland is perhaps the most meriterious of the lot. That Manchester United are recovering from their recent lethargic state is evident by their performance at Blackburn. Sheffield Wednesday are forging ahead and are now at third place. Aston Villa found the "Throstles" too much for them and had to leave the points behind them.

SOUTHEND WON.

In the replay of the only cup tie undivided of the first round Southend beat Bristol and pass safely into the second stage which falls to be played next Saturday.

EXCURSION FROM LINDSAY ON FRIDAY NIGHT

The Lindsay team are running an excursion to Peterborough over the C.P.R. for the battle with the Peterborough Juniors at Brock Street Rink on Friday night. This, the only game of the week, should draw a big crowd, as it will be a fight all the way. Lindsay must win here to tie the district, while the Petes are anxious to finish up the group with a win. The old rivalry between the two clubs is sufficient to ensure a real fight, while the presence of a lusty-lunged squad of Lindsay rooters will add to the excitement. The game is called for 8.30 o'clock sharp.

BOWLING

In the Y.M.C.A. Collegiate Bowling League yesterday, the Elegantes won two out of three games from the Guttersnipes, this putting the Elegantes two games closer to the North Enders, the leaders. The following is the score:

HOCKEY

Now that the champion Berlin intermediate O.H.A. team have beaten both the Victorias and St. Michaels, it is evident that the "Flying Dutchmen" are of senior calibre. Had Berlin said the word last fall, a senior O.H.A. group of five or six clubs would have been formed in the west, which would have added the greatest interest to that series. Next season there will undoubtedly be new senior O.H.A. districts in the east and west of the Provinces, with 20 or more teams competing instead of eight. The splendid victories of Berlin over the crack teams from Toronto will give the game a great impetus in the west.—Toronto Star.

Sporting Editor: Will you please decide the winner of a pool? A has the score 8 to 3 in favour of Peterborough. B has the score 10 to 6 in favour of Peterborough. The correct score was 10 to 3. Who Wins?—Fan.

Answer: The winning percentage is .769. A's score of 8—3 gives a percentage of .727 and B's score of 10—6 gives a percentage of .625. A is therefore the winner.—Sporting Editor.

The Peterborough Juniors and Intermediates will practice at Brock Street Rink to-night at 7 o'clock. A full turnout of both squads is expected. Each team has a game on Friday, the Juniors playing Lindsay here, while the Intermediates play the final game of the group in Bowmanville.

Gifts of Quarter Billion.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—John D. Rockefeller, jr., yesterday told the United States Commission on Industrial Relations, which is investigating the great philanthropic foundations and the cause of industrial unrest, that he felt justified in placing the amount of money his father had devoted to philanthropy at a quarter of a billion dollars. The bulk of this sum, he said, had been turned over to the Rockefeller Foundation, the University of Chicago, the General Education Board and the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research.

Hydro-Aeroplanes for Rescue.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—The aero club of America has announced its intention of co-operating in the plan of Bert M. McConnell, Canadian meteorologist and survivor of the Arctic expedition of Vilhjalmar Stefansson to send a relief expedition equipped with hydro-aeroplanes in search of Stefansson and ten others of his party who have been missing for about a year. It is stated that Rear-Admiral Robert E. Peary, United States navy, retired, chairman of the committee on the aeronautic map of the world approved of this use of the machines.

156TH BIRTHDAY OF ROBERT BURNS BRAWLY KEPT

By City Scots—Feast and Speech, Song and Story

In keeping with Scottish clubs and societies throughout the world, the birth of the National Bard was celebrated with full honours by Peterborough Caledonian Club on Monday night.

Coleman's Parlours had been laid out, with covers for between 40 and 50 guests, and the array was appetizing. Shortly after eight o'clock the company were called to order, and to the strains of the pipers, on the zonophone, His Lordship Sir Haggie, was borne in on the elevated hands of four "stalwarts." At this juncture that leal and true Scotsman, Mr. Weatherstone, in dramatic style, gave the now famous "Address to a Haggis." The dishing-out was carried through, and justice done to the dish. In rotation various courses were brought forward and received their death. It might be mentioned that the "Selkirk Blessing" preceded the meal.

The president and chairman, Mr. Robert Burns (not the Immortal Robbie), filled his chair with acceptance, in his opening remarks and the toast of "The King," in true British fashion voicing patriotic sentiments.

The toast of the evening, "The Immortal Memory," was proposed by Hon. Pres. John Moyes. In racy manner he reviewed the various beauty spots of

"Auld Ayr, wham ne'er a toon surpasses

For honest men and bonnie lassies."

From this theme he went on to enumerate the poet's characteristics, and life and works, and referred to the great legacy left to the world in his songs and poems. The toast was honoured in silence.

Other toasts honoured in true fashion were "Army and Navy," Mr. Bob Hendry; "The Club," Mr. Wm. Leyburn; and "The City," Mr. Thos. Ogilvie—whose quota was short and sweet.

It might be mentioned that about a dozen members of the club have been accepted for overseas service in the army.

The following is the toast list:

"Address to a Haggis" — Mr. Weatherstone.
